Before she left that night she invited me over to Mr. Vass' home."

Plaintiff paid a visit on a Sunday afternoon and stayed for supper. There was no particular conversation with her. Later he went driving with her in his car. On one occasion they were alone.

Mr. Gordon—"You were finally drafted for the C.E.F.?"—"Yes."

"About what time?"—"April 1918."

Bowler said that before that he had talked with Mrs. Redman about going to Mr. Gordon's office to have his car given over to her.

The Marriage Proposal.

"Was there anything said about you and her before that?"—"The only thing said was that she would marry me."

"Who did the proposing?"—"Mrs. Redman."

"What did you say?" —"I said yes."

Plaintiff recounted that he had refused to consider marriage until he came back from overseas."

"Do you remember if anything was said about your car or money?"—"She said she would take good care of the car and money till I came back."

Judge Huycke —"Who suggested that first?"—"Mr. Vass started it."

Mr. Gordon—"Who mentioned the car and money on that day or might with Mrs. Redman"? —"I think I did."

Bowler stated that before he went to Kingston Mr. Vass told him the car would be in good keeping."

Mr. Gordon—"That was twice Mr. Vass said that"—"Yes."

"How many times did Mrs. Redman say it would be taken care of?"—"Just once, I think."

Plaintiff said the Vass advised that they go and see a lawyer.

They went to Gordon and O'Brien's office. Mrs. Redman was there. A bill of sale that was then drawn up was produced in court. It showed that the car had been given to Mrs. Redman for the nominal sum of one dollar.

"Was there anything said in the office about marriage?"—"I don't remember."

"Is your memory as good now as it was on your previous examination?"—"No."

It was brought out that the bill of sale for the automobile was drawn up by J. A. O'Brien. Bowler signed it.

Transferred His Savings

Afterward Mr. O'Brien, Mrs. Redman and plaintiff went to the Bank of Commerce where Bowler signed over the sum of $325, which he had in the bank.

"Was there any other money paid over?"—"My assigned pay."

Mr. Gordon remarked that the total of the assigned pay was $180.

"Why did you give her your assigned pay?" —"I wanted it put in the bank."

Judge Huycke—"Did she agree to save it, or did you just want her to?"—"She agreed."

Bowler said he came back from Kingston once.

"Did you see her?"—"Yes, I saw her at Mr. Vass'. I stayed there four or five days."

"Where was she stoping?" —"There too."

"How did you happen to go there?"—"Mr. Vass said I was welcome."

Replying to Judge Huycke plaintiff said Mrs. Redman had always been spoken of as Edith. He didn't learn that she was married until he came back from France."

Mr. Gordon.—"Who told you?"—"Somebody told me."

Judge Huycke—"Who told you?"—"I think Mr. Blodgett told me."

Mr. Gordon—"At Blodgett's and different places how did they speak of her?—"As Edith Redman."

"When you were overseas did you get any letters?"—"About once a month."

"What did she call you?" —"Dear Sweetheart."

"Did you write her?"—"Yes."

"Who wrote for you?"—"Different chums?"

"How did you address her?"—"The same way."

In jured on Nov. 3rd

To Judge Huycke, Bowler said he was injured on November 3rd, 1918, just before the armistice. He came back on May 19th this year.

Arriving home he saw Edith Redman at Mr. Jos. Henderson's.

"Anything said about marriage then?" —"No."

Judge Huycke—"Did she ever say anything about not marrying you?"—"She said how could I keep a woman when I had only one arm."

Mr. Gordon—"What did you say?"—"I said I could keep her just the same."

"Where was this talk?"—"I think it was at Vass' when I came back from Kingston hospital."

"When did you ask about your money?" —"The second last time I came from Toronto?"

Plaintiff was then at the Christie street Convalescent Hospital.

"When was that?"—"This past summer."

"What did she say?"—"She said my money was ready for me any time I wanted it."

"Why didn't you get it?" —"I was going back to Toronto in the morning."

Plaintiff said that when he came down the next time he asked for a settlement of the money, but would meet me the next day at the Bank of Commerce."

"What was to be done?"—"She was to settle up all matters."

"Did you wait there?" —"Yes."

"Who with?"—"Mr. Blodgett."

"She said she hadn't time that day Did she come?—No.

Did you hear from her?—I got two letters.

Tired of Her Job.

A letter written by Mrs. Redman on July 23rd, beginning "Dear Tim," and ending with "Your Sweetheart, Edith," told him she had been picking berries, the car had "acted up," and she did not get home until 3.30.

"Do you think I could get a nice job up there?" she wrote to Bowler, then in Toronto. "I'm tired of it down here. Not too far away from you. You told me to buy Madeline a piano and it is at Henderson's. What do you think that I should do with it—sell it or take it with me. Answer right away so that I will know what to do about it or I will have to get another place down here."

Mr. Vass Sold the Car.

After waiting in vain at the bank, Bowler went to Mr. Gordon's office.

Referring to the sale of the automobile, plaintiff said that Mr. Vass offered to sell the car and did so, in the exchange already mentioned.

Mr. Gordon—Did you ever get the $300?—No.

When you were overseas did you ever send Mrs. Redman anything?—Some handkerchiefs and other things

Did she send you anything? Boxes of eatables.

Reverting to Mrs. Redman's single state, Bowler said that after he had given the bill of sale for the car he was told that she had been married but was separated for eight years, and was free to marry. He thought Mr. Vass told him.

Mr. Gordon—Well you understood she was to give back the car when you returned? — Yes.

And if you didn't come back? — She was to keep it.

Was Drafted.

Mr. Hatton opened a cross examination delving into Bowler's actions before he was drafted.

Mr. Gordon objected. "My learned friend knows your Honor has strong views on this matter."

Judge Huycke—I think Mr. Hatton is quite within his rights.

Bowler had applied for exemption as a farmer but his appeal was disallowed. He was arrested in the city one night and kept in cells at the police station for not having his registration papers.

Mr. Gordon interrupted that this series of questions was designed to degrade the plaintiff.

Mr. Hatton — When you were at Blodgett's didn't you become engaged to Blodgett's daughter? No sir.

"I thought you told me on your previous examination that you were?" "I didn't know what I was saying?"

You took her for drives? Yes.

To Oshawa twice? Yes.

Mr. Hatton educed the fact that ill feeling had developed between the plaintiff and the Blodgett's before the automobile deal.

"Didn't you say that rather than let Blodgett get the car you would break it with an axe? No sir.

Didn't Mrs. Redman offer you all the money she had when you came back?—Not to me. I think that she did to Mr. Gordon.

You heard that she had made this offer? Yes.

She was sorry about it? Yes.

What did you expect when you went to the Bank of Commerce?—$800 and something.

When was the first occasion when the question of marriage was mentioned?—Over at Vass' house.

Have you any idea when?—No.

Did she insist on getting married before going overseas? Yes.

You strenuously objected? Yes.

Bowler almost fainted on the witness' stand. Court was then adjourned.

Winnipeg's New Aqueduct.

The new aqueduct of Winnipeg passes under the Red river in a tunnel 1,100 feet long. The tunnel is a ten by ten foot bore cut through solid limestone and within this is the 60-inch cast-iron pipe of the aqueduct. The rock is badly seamed and has many pockets. The contract called for completely filling in the space around the pipe with concrete and further stipulated that compressed air must not be used in placing the concrete. Accordingly the following method was used: Prior to placing the pipe a concrete floor was laid and carefully graded for the pipe to rest upon. After the pipe had been laid, bulkheads were erected, dividing the tunnel into sections, which were successively filled to within two feet of the roof. Then concrete dams were built to the roof, sealing off the sections, and through holes previously bored from the surface through the roof, the cavities in each compartment were completely filled. The compartments directly under the river were filled through pipes extending up to a temporary trestle.

New Game In England.

"Pier jumping," as it is called, is becoming a popular outdoor sport in England. Thousands of people are, almost literally, marooned there. It is very hard to get out of the truly tight little isle because of the shortage of tonnage and because most of the steamers leaving British ports are filled with colonial troops going home.

So the pier jumper who yearns to go to India or Africa hurries to the steamship piers on the dates of sailing. He hopes against hope that at the last minute someone who has been lucky enough to obtain passage will cancel his booking or be late. If odds were laid in this new sport, they should be 1,000 to 1 against the pier jumper.

There have been unprecedented delays in obtaining any sort of accommodation on vessels bound to North and South America, the Far East and the Antipodes. Some women have been held here three years because they could not, and cannot, book to South Africa. Fifteen thousand persons await transportation to the East. A newspaper correspondent knows of a business man who came here from Cape Town six months ago. He cannot escape and has taken a position here while waiting an opportunity to return.

It is almost impossible to get sailing for India in less than eight or ten months, and some far-sighted people have taken passage on vessels that will sail fifteen months from now—perhaps.

Rewards for Big Families.

Ninety French families with nine children living will each year hereafter receive donations amounting to 25,000 francs each, a Paris despatch says. The French Academy has just received a donation for the foundation of this work from M. and Mme. Cognacq. The amount of the capital is not mentioned but to produce ninety donations of 25,000 francs annually it would at the present interest rates be at least 40,000,000 francs.

CAN OF GASOLINE EXPLODED IN CELLAR

FOUR ELECTRICIANS HAD A NARROW ESCAPE.

Four employees of Miller, Powell and Watson, electricians and Mr. Bert Miller had a narrow escape from serious injuries this morning when a can of gasoline exploded in their midst. They were installing gas in the home of Colonel J. W. Miller, 312 McDonnel street, and had opened a can of gasoline to light a torch when the fumes from the can reached the furnace, became ignited and brought the flames to the can which immediately exploded a few feet from each of the men, scattering burning all throughout the cellar and igniting the wooden stairway, the only means by which the men could leave the now burning cellar. With marvellous presence of mind all five men immediately carried ashes to wherever the burning oil had scattered and had the flames well under control before the fire department arrived None are any the worse for the accident.

DIFFICULTY AT THE MONTREAL MEETING OF THE BANK CLERKS

(Special to The Examiner.)

MONTREAL, Dec. 18. — A series of unfortunate contretemps marred the organization meeting of the Montreal Bank Clerks' Association or Union last evening. Tom Moore, President of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, who was to have given the main address, sent word that he had got tangled up with the vaccination problem, and had been compelled to go to Toronto. It was not made clear whether Mr. Moore had arrived in Montreal, and refusing to be vaccinated, had been returned to the province of Ontario, but this was the theory which his message evoked. The hall was not warm and the hundreds of bank clerks who attended shivered as the meeting progressed, despite the fact that they sat in their overcoats, and caps. Finally the lights went out shortly after ten and stayed out. An effort was made to continue the meeting in darkness, punctuated by the glowing ends of cigars and cigarettes, with occasional matches, while one humorist made a torch of paper and gave a faint illumination, but eventually cold and darkness ended the meeting.

Mr. J. L. Bourbonniere, who presided, stated that the Association had made rapid progress, and represented nearly 80 per cent. of the bank clerks of Montreal, while in Toronto a similar organization had been formed which already had some six hundred members working for the same banks as the members in Montreal. He also announced that the stenographers and office clerks both in Montreal and Toronto were forming unions.

A CASE WHERE DOCTORS AGREE

MEDICAL SCIENCE PRACTICALLY UNANIMOUS AS TO TREATMENT OF COLDS AND INFLUENZA.

Doctors are practically unanimous in agreeing that the drugs which are used in such cases are Aspirin, Phenacetine, Quinine, Salol, Caffein, Citrate and Camphor Monobromate. Any physician will tell the reader that this combination may safely be trusted in the treatment of a cold or a case of Grippe. It is also a combination which does quick and effective work.

The objects sought by the treatment are the keeping of the system open in order that the systemic poisons generated by the cold may be thrown off, the reducing of the feverish conditions accompanying the cold, the alleviation of the clogged up condition of the head and the soreness of the muscles usually present and the general toning up of the system.

Grip Fix, a preparation now on sale at all drug stores is a combination of just the ingredients advised by physicians for effective results.

Grip Fix has a record of relieving a cold in a night and even a case of Grippe in 48 hours. With a box in the house full safeguard is at hand if colds break out. Be sure to get the genuine Reid's Grip Fix with the formula printed on the box. It sells at 25 cents —a small price for a treatment so effective for colds. On sale by all druggists.

TIED WOMAN TO BED; BEAT HER WITH AXE-HANDLE

CALGARY, Dec. 17. — Charles Lawson, accused of a brutal assault on Mrs. Frank Soares, was arrested in his bed in a local hotel here. Lawson denies that he is the man who attached Mrs. Soares, bound her to a bed in her home with an electric cord and struck her over the head with an axe handle. He has been identified, however, as Mrs. Soares' assailant. Mrs. Soares' condition is not serious. Lawson has just finserving a term of six months on a conviction for passing worthless cheques on women, especially a member of wives of soldiers.

JURIST FIDDLES IN COURT.

NEW YORK.—Magistrate Sweetser, on the bench in Yorkville Court, varied the session by obliging with violin selections. He played "Turkey in the Straw," the "Blue Danube" and other melodies.

Oscar Davis, a colored hall boy and telephone operator of No. 234 West 126th street, stood accused of stealing two violins from the store of Joshua Nicholson. Assistant District Attorney O'Shaughnessy contended they were antiques and worth $1000. Attorney Robert Donough, for Davis, asserted they were just "plain fiddles," worth less than $25 each.

Magistrate Sweetser qualified himself as an expert and ordered Davis charged with grand larceny on the $1,040 valuation, and held him in $5,000 bail for the Grand Jury.

ARRESTED AFTER 10 YEARS.

LONDON, Eng.— For a ten-year old offence, Sergeant Walter Stevens was fined $125. A relieving officer said he had left his four children chargeabue to the union and they had cost the taxpayers about $2,000. The warrant for the Sergeant's arrest was issued in 1909.

Discolored or 'potty Skin Easily Peeled Off

The discoloring or roughening to which many skins are subject at this season may readily be gotten rid of. Ordinary mercolized wax, spread lightly over the face, before retiring and removed in the morning with soap and water, completely peels off the disfigured skin. Get about an ounce of the wax at any druggist's. There's no more effective way of banishing chaps, blotches, pimples, freckles or other cutaneous defects. Little skin particles come off each day, so the process itself doesn't even temporarily mar your looks or keep you indoors, and you gradually acquire a brand new, spotless, girlishly beautiful face.

DEAR MILK BABY WAS KIDNAPPED

ABANDONED IN NEW YORK TERMINAL BY MAN WHO STOLE HIM.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—A search of almost five months for the baby boy of Mr. and Mrs. August Wentz who was two months old when kidnapped July 30 from in front of a department store in this city, ended last night with his discovery in Bellevue Hospital, where he had been taken on December 8 after being abandoned in the Grand Central Terminal by an unidentified man, presumably the kidnapper. The man left a note pinned to the baby's clothing which read:

"For the love of Mike, somebody take this kid. He is too much for the family. Can't afford him on the price of milk they are charging to-day. There are others I am trying to support."

Since the infant disappeared, its distracted mother had made daily visits to the city's institutions, inspecting every new foundling brought in, in the hope it might prove to be her lost baby. To-night she went to Bellevue and found him. The overjoyed woman got to her home as fast as she could, to give the news to her husband, who was ignorant even of her daily pilgrimage to the city hospitals. She found the father busily engaged decorating a Christmas tree he had just boucht for the other children, and placed the baby at the foot of the tree as an added Christmas gift.

WHERE THE PUNISHMENT DOES NOT FIT OFFENCE

NIAGARA FALLS, Dec. 17.—The local police are getting after all foreingners carrying weapons of any kind. Officers Farrell and Hughes made a capture in the Italian district of three Italians who were found to be in possession of knives and guns. When the arms were unloaded after midnight, they looked like a small arsenal. Jim Ross had a stiletto about eight inches long with a razor like edge and a needle point. Peter Rocco had a loaded revolver, 32 calibre, and two dozen of shells. Domenick had two knives, one a stiletto and the other a folding knife. They appeared before Magistrate Fraser and were each fined $25 and costs and their weapons confiscated.

FREAK APPLE TREE.

LONDON, Eng.— An apple tree obtained from a nursery in the spring was planted at Portcawl, and a couple of months after it flowered and bore a number of apples. It blossomed a second time and bore two large apples, different to the first crop in color and shape. Now it is blossoming for the third time.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR WEEK

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.

Dec. 21, 1919.

THE PRINCE OF PEACE. (Christmas Lesson) Isaiah 11:1-10; Matt. 2:1-12; Luke 2:8-14.

GOLDEN TEXT: Thou shalt call his name Jesus; for it is he that shall save his people from their sins. Matt. 1:21.

1. Isa. 11:1-10. What did Isaiah literally mean by this simile of the "rod" and "stem of Jesse," and the "branch from his roots?"

2. Verse 2. What three pairs of extraordinary qualities does Isaiah foretell that the Messiah should be possessed of?

3. Verse 3. What was the paramount or root quality in Jesus?

4. What difference is there, if any, in the way Christ judges the rich and the poor?

5. Isa. 11:5. What is the essence, or "root" principle of all God's laws?

6. Verses 6-8. From such a good and Almighty ruler as Christ, what sort of a world may be expect this to become?

7. Verse 9. WHAT ARE PRESENT DAY INDICATIONS THAT WAR WILL FINALLY BE A THING OF THE PAST? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by the members of the club).

8. Matt. 2:1-12. Where is Bethlehem, the birthplace of Jesus?

9. Verse 2. What is the evidence that God in past ages has revealed himself and his will to others besides those of Hebrew origin?

10. Verse 3. What evidence is there that God's original intention for Jesus was to be the literal, earthy king of the Jews, as the wise men stated and Herod feared?

11. Verses 4-6. Would you say or not, and why, that the prophet from whom they quoted, as well as these chief priests and scribes, expected Christ to be an earthly king?

12. Matt. 2:7. What is it which makes the study of a worthy subject either noble or ignoble?

13. Verse 8. What reason is there to believe that some to-day attend church and thus pretend they are seeking Jesus, who have practically the same motive as Herod?

14. Verse 9. Why would you say that God places a "star" indicating where Jesus may be found that can be seen by the common people as well as by the few "wise men?"

15. Matt. 2:10. What are some of the things which produce joy in our hearts, and what is the thing which produces more joy than all besides?

16. Verse 11. What are the grounds for certainty that those who seek Jesus always find him?

17. Verse 12. Why would you say that the day for the supernatural guidance of God's children is not passed?

18. Luke 2:8-14. Which method assures us of the more Divine revelations, and why, specifically seeking them or devoutly attending to our daily duties?

19. Verses 11, 12. Why was the birth of Jesus good tidings to the shepherds and to all mankind?

20. Verses 13, 14. Did the host of angels come at that moment, or were they already there and the eyes of the shepherds suddenly opened to see them and their ears to hear them?

Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. SUNKEN BATTLESHIP RAISED, KEEL UP

One of Finest Feats of Naval Engineering Ever Accomplished.

One of the finest feats of naval engineering ever accomplished is that of the raising of the Italian battleship Lenardo da Vinci, which was blown up in the harbor of Taranto on Aug. 2, 1916. She turned turtle before she sank in forty feet of water, and lay on the mud resting upon her five turrets and superstructure, her keel showing above the surface, a serious obstruction in the harbor.

Divers went down and diamounted the turrets, removed the cannon and patched the large rips torn in the hull by the explosion. Powerful pumps emptied the interior of water and compressors filled it with air. Workmen then went inside and continued the lightening. After twelve months of these labors the weight was reduced from 24,000 tons to 18,000. Eight 400-ton cylinders of air were sent down and attached to the hull; these brought it to the surface, still bottom up. The strange-looking vessel was towed into a dry-dock, where it now rests while ship builders are effecting all necessary repairs. These finished, it will be relaunched, upside down, into water deep enough to permit it to turn over.

The work was begun by Gen. Ferrati and, on his death, continued by Gen. Faruffini, two of the best engineers in Europe.

LIVING BAROMETERS.

Birds, Animals and Fish Show Knowledge of Weather.

Anyone who has been brought much into contact with animals knows how sensitive they are to approaching changes in the weather, says Spare Moments. Nature seems to have provided them with a prophetic instinct in this respect, partly no doubt, because to so many of them the weather is of such great importance.

The nests of many birds would be utterly ruined if its tenants were away during a storm and, so, warned by instinct, they never fail to return home in time.

When a storm is approaching the robins sit whistling on the top branches of trees; if swallows touch the water as they fly it is a sure sign of rain, and so it is if the sparrows chirp a great deal.

When seagulls fly out to sea early in the morning the day will be fine, and the wind moderate; but when the gulls hang over the land and fly inshore the fisher-folk know that they must expect severe winds, and probably stormy weather.

Fish, too, are very weatherwise. Cod will actually take in ballast before a storm. Some time ago, a number of cod were caught off the shores of Newfoundland twelve hours before a severe gale, and it was found that all of them had swallowed a number of stones, some of which weighed three or four ounces.

Sea urchins always try to wiggle under the mud, or at least to cover themselves with mud before a storm; while dolphins never sport or toss about in a rough sea until a change for the better is at hand. All sailors know that a tempest is impending when numbers of the stormy petrel flock in the wake of the vessel.

In Scotland the country people believe that it will be a fine day if the raven cries before the rook in the morning, but quite the reverse if the rook makes himself first heard.

If a horse is lively without apparent cause, it is a sure sign of cold weather in the near future; but if it stretches out its neck and sniffs the air, the observer should turn back and fetch his umbrella, for he will certainly need it before the evening.

If a cat sneezes or sits with her back to the fire it will rain. If she washes her face during a frost it will soon thaw, and if she scratches the wall or the leg of the table vigorously the wind will be very high.

"Hark! I hear the asses bray. We shall have some rain to-day."

Happy Hunting Ground.

COMING STYLES IN MILLINERY

Forecast of Materials and Shapes That Will Mark Fall and Winter Hats.

TRIMMED BRIM IS CERTAIN

Will Be Used in Many Ways, Most of Them Charming—High Draped Crowns Sure to Be Another Feature.

While it seems somewhat early in the season to speak with finality of the fall and winter hats, enough new shapes have been displayed to give us some inkling of what is to come, writes Martha Goode Anderson in the New York Sun. For several weeks now we have seen a sweeping rage of the felt hats with wide brims and exploited in the palest pastel shades and ornamented with bright and gay wool stitchery. As this wool stitchery is to be so much in evidence throughout the winter not only on hats but on coats, dresses and blouses, it is just as well to consider it seriously and recognize the demand, for it is one of the established facts in winter's coming fashions.

The felt hats of which I am speaking have been used primarily for sport hats with pale-colored sweaters and bright-hued skirts and blouses. We cannot complain of the lack of color during this summer, for as a sort of reaction from the dull and somber hues of the war period our clothes have caught and reflected the most radiant tones of the rainbow and every group has been resplendent in its vivid colors.

The First Showing.

Always at the beginning of every season it seems as if the first showing of millinery included only the wide brimmed and large hats. This is inevitably so for the spring and summer, as we find ourselves preparing for the hot days when the sun is blinding and we need some sort of protection for eyes and skin. Just why it should be for fall and winter, however, I do not know unless the idea is to display first the dressy hat, as most women go on the principle that having invested in a smart and very good hat almost anything will do for every day. I do not present this idea as conclusive by any means, but it may be one of the reasons why we are shown so few of the small and simple every-day sort of hat and most of the newest shapes are of the splendid velvet picture hats.

Paradise feathers are predominating as trimming. They sweep down, but not up as heretofore, and thick sprays are used more than the single feathers we have seen so much of in recent times. Black paradise is really lovely and so expensive that it need not be disdained by even the most exacting and conservative.

One of the newest shapes which is neither large nor small in size is the round turban with the draped and heavy brim. This is not an easy shape to wear, as it is apt to look very heavy so close to the face. However, it is really very splendid, for it is developed in the rarest and richest of brocades heavily embroidered in gold and silver and resplendent in a mingling of colors entrancing to see.

The crowns of these wide draped turbans are of velvet or duvetyn as the case may be and are entirely untrimmed, as the present indication in the matter of trimming is seen in the draping of the brim. Where feathers are used they sweep down close to the face, even resting almost under the chin in a soft curve. This way of placing the paradise is an old, old one, borrowed, doubtless, from portraits of great ladies of some hundred or more years ago. It is in distinct contrast to the upstanding and jaunty aigrette which showered in a little fountain of fronds high in the air so much used formerly.

Trimmed Brims.

The trimmed brim is used in many ways, as we shall see as the season advances. Single flowers of velvet are being used in flat masses around the wide brims which turn up and away from the face saucer fashion. These hats are not so elaborate and dressy as the picture hats of velvet and paradise, but they are suitable for morning wear and make a trim finish for the shopping dress worn with smart veils and furs.

One of the simplest is exploited in a midnight-blue velvet in the saucer shape with upturned brim. Around the crown is placed a circle of loops made of heaviest blue silk floss in a lighter shade. These loops are used to imitate ostrich fronds, which are also much in evidence as a winter trimming. At one side of this model is placed a large rosette of the loops of the silk floss and an edge of the same finishes the brim around the face.

Another treatment of this upturned brim is seen in the wide sailor shape which has a flaring brim across the front of the hat, giving something of a three-cornered effect seen from the front. This is particularly suited to young faces and youthful types.

The flaring brim is often thickly studded with tiny steel beads or dotted with knots of silk in the kind we call French knots, meaning a tiny dot of the silken thread made by wrapping it twice around the needle and pulling through to the under side. The effect is that of silken beads. As this is often done in contrasting colors it makes a most effective trimming.

Too Eloquent.

It was the young barrister's chance. The court had appointed him to defend the prisoner, who was charged with theft. And he proceeded to make the most of it. After his impassioned appeal on behalf of his poor helpless client many spectators were sobbing, while even the jurymen were furtively using their handkerchiefs. Then the prisoner bestirred himself, turning to the warder with the question: "Who's the blighter's been talking?" "That's your counsel," replied the official gruffly. "He has been pleading for you." "Ain't 'e a dismal chap!" commented the prisoner.

WANTS DANCING IN CHURCH

LONDON, Eng. —"When properly conducted, dancing has a refined influence' said the Dean of Manchester at the Diocesan Conference. He spoke on the necessity of the Church taking a greater interest in the social life of the people. He thought they could make good use of the modern passion for dancing. It was natural that young men should want to be in the company of young women, and young women in the company of young men. Therefore they should make opportunities for them to be together under suitable conditions.

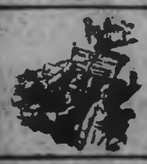
HARRISBURG, Pa.— Bears have become such a nuisance in parts of Potter and McKean counties that Seth E. Gordon, acting secretary of the State Game Commission, issued a statement in which he expressed the hope that hunters would go into that section.

—a Liberal Education!

The object of Hearst's is to entertain and enlighten. Through all its entertainment, however, runs a certain serious purpose—a definite mission. And that mission is to discuss, absolutely and sober—as far as may be possible—the vital questions of family and public life that people everywhere are themselves considering.

ALREADY—at the very moment you read this—a thousand particularly intelligent men and women are asking newsdealers for Hearst's for November. Minute by minute and hour by hour—all over the United States—this will continue until 300,000 of the most progressive magazine readers have secured their copies.

The others, disappointed, will have to wait—or be satisfied with a lesser magazine.



YOU, perhaps, already have your November number. You have looked at the Table of Contents—Holmes, Masterlinck, Conan Doyle, G. K. Chesterton. Or maybe Judge B. H. Gary, head of U. S. Steel, on "Something More Than the Pay Envelope." Or B. C. Forbes, K. C. B., Walt Mason, Dr. Frank Crane. Or you have, maybe, turned first to the Art—Play—Book—Science—of the Month. One thing is certain, you have noticed the real authority of Hearst's—its splendid serious side.

BUT—you say—you buy a magazine for its fiction. Good! Here in Hearst's for November are stories by Robert W. Chambers, Richard Washburn Child, Arthur Somers Roche, and Bruno Lessing, Arthur Stringer, Edwin Balmer and Cleeve Morris. Besides these are three English writers, F. E. Baily, Derek Vane, E. Phillips Oppenheim—up with an American Lever, the best of the modern French writers. All these and several others in enchanted stories—stories that will make you think!

IF you don't particularly care for a magazine that will make you think—if you are not interested in a magazine a bit beyond the ordinary—you won't want Hearst's this month or any other. BUT, if you want the works of the world's great writers if you want the words of the world's real leaders, if you want the thoughts of the world's great thinkers, don't fail to make sure each month, starting today with November, of getting your regular copy of Hearst's.

JUST THE THING FOR CORNER

Pretty Decoration for Holding Flowers or Fern May Be Put Together at Small Cost.

Suggestions for filling up even the corner of a room in these days of high prices will be useful to many of our readers who may be furnishing, and the pretty corner decoration of which we give a sketch can be made at a very small cost.

It is composed of eight pieces of bamboo arranged in the manner shown, and hung across the corner of the room by means of two picture rings screwed into the bamboo at the points indicated by the crosses in the sketch. Suspended from the top bar in the center is a small pot containing a fern; but if preferred, of course flowers could take the place of the fern.

The bamboo should be fastened together with thin, sharp nails, and, where necessary, the ends of the bamboo should be plugged with little pieces of wood. The horizontal pieces, too, must be cut to fit against the sides of the upright pieces. Into the ends of the upright pieces small brass balls are screwed, and suitable articles for this purpose can be obtained from any hardware store at a small cost.

The pieces of bamboo that are fastened across the corners of the frame should be about half the thickness of the other canes. The ends of these canes must be cut to fit into their places, but can be fastened in place without plugging them. The ends of all the other pieces must be plugged with wood.

Curiosities of the Calendar.

The month of January always begins on the same day of the week as October, and the same is true of April and July, September and December. February, March, and November also begin on the same day of the week. This, however, is only true in normal years of three hundred and sixty-five days. A century can never begin on Wednesday, Friday or Saturday. Furthermore, the ordinary year ends on the same day of the week as that on which it begins.—Family Herald.

PETERBORO PLAYGROUNDS ASSOCIATION HELD CLOSING MEETING OF THE YEAR

TREASURER'S REPORT SHOWED A BALANCE—THE COMMITTEE REPORTS ANNUAL MEETING IN JANUARY.

At the closing business meeting of the Peterborough Playgrounds Association held yesterda afternoon in the Public Library the reports of the different committees showed the past year to have been most successful, and the financial statement revealed a balance.

Committee Reports.

In a verbal report Mrs. A. Mowat, the convenor of the Equipment committee, outlined the way in which the $750 appropriation given by the Board of Education had been spent, and concluded by remarking that the Queen Mary school eqiupment compared admirably with the model equipment shown at the Toronto Exhibition. Mr. J. W. Worth commented upon the splendid results of the year's work and predicted an even more successful year for the Association in 1920. "I think," he concluded, "that we should be particularly happy at the fact that the financial report shows a balance."

Mrs. F. Neal spoke of the growing popularity in public opinion of the playgrounds scheme and remarked that the public is becoming educated to the idea.

Annual Meeting.

It was decided to hold the annual meeting of the Playgrounds Association on January the 5th, 1919, and on the first Tuesday in October for subsequent years. Mr. A. G. Roberts, who occupied the chair, remarked that the Association should have a good, rousing meeting in January, at which the good features of the work should be brought out.

Playgrounds Exhibit.

Mrs. W. R. Morris spoke of the exhibit sent in by the children of the playgrounds to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, which was shown with the school exhibit and attracted great interest and attention. This consisted of infants' clothing, knitted garments for the Grenfell Mission, cross stitch work, cushions, bags, raffia trays and bags, all made by the children at the playgrounds under the supervision of the supervisor in charge. A member of the Association was in attendance at the exhibit to talk playground work.

Gratuity to Janitors.

On motion of Mrs. A. Mowat, a gratuity of $5 was given to each of the three janitors at the playgrounds, in recognition of their faithful service during the summer. Mrs. Mowat also moved that the financial statement be audited each year.

Treasurer's Report.

To the Chairman and Members of the Peterboro Playgrounds Association:

I take pleasure in submitting to you a financial statement of your Association for the period from November 30, 1918, to December 17th, 1919.

Funds for the carrying on of the work of the Association have been received from two sources, namely, public subscriptions, amounting to $1,140.30, and a grant from the Board of Education of $750.

The first amount requires no explanation but in connection with the latter I may say it was a grant from the Board of Education, the funds to be used for the purchase of permanent equipment, this equipment to be the property of the Board of Education.

The grant was paid out in three amounts:

R. G. Sturgeon & Co.	$620.60
Ernest L. Telford	70.00
J. J. Turner & Sons, Ltd	59.40

This amount appears in both the receipt and disbursement columns of the statement.

As regards disbursements, the largest item is for salaries of the supervisors of the different playgrounds. The balance of $158.13 paid out is made up of small amounts for small equipment, sporting goods, advertising, etc.

All accounts for the year have been paid and the balance shows a credit in the bank of 99c.

Respectfully submitted.

E. J. H. Vanston,
Treas.

Peterboro, Ontario,
17th of December, 1919.

Supervision Committee.

The members of this committee, Mrs. Morris, Mrs. Mowat, Mrs. Roberts, as a committee and as individuals spent a great deal of time on the Playgrounds.

Mr. Tillotson was the only gentleman supervisor on the staff. The directors and assistant directors possessed varying degrees of training for, and experience in, this work. They required and appreciated sympathetic support and encouragement in their work, and this reacted to the benefit of the children.

The committee arranged that Mr. Tillotson should spend some time each week with the children of each playground. Mr. Tillotson also held a weekly conference of playgrounds directors when problems were discussed, ideas exchanged and plans for special work considered.

During August your committee arranged that each Playground should be open one evening each week in the hope that older employed boys and girls might rally there. This hope was realized to a limited degree, but the attendance was always large as the older children who regularly came to the Playgrounds, returned in the evening.

In July, a most successful open evening was held at Queen Mary School grounds, when a great many interested citizens enjoyed the playgrounds activities. The full staff—three men directors and three lady directors—were in attendance, and were able to meet the parents of the children and to talk over the work with many citizens who previously had no understanding of it.

This open evening was most interesting to those present and extremely valuable to the association as a publicity measure.

The Civic Bathing Place at Lake street was well patronized by the children of the city, and two Playground directors were in attendance four afternoons a week to teach swimming and exercise a general careful oversight.

Your Supervision Committee wish to congratulate the Association on having had Mr. Tillotson in the city for the third season, as general supervisor of Playgrounds.

Mr. Tillotson's years of experience in Playground and kindred work, combined with a most attractive personality and natural aptitude for the work make him invaluable to us. It should be the endeavour of this Playgrounds Association to retain Mr. Tillotson as General Supervisor as long as he is willing to return to Peterboro.

The association was well served by the staff of directors, all having a certain degree of experience with children and their play and all most interested in the development of the work in the city.

Respectfully submitted.

KATE MORRIS,
Con. of Supervision Committee.

Committee on Appointments.

As chairman of the Committee on Apointments, I beg to report as follows:

The Committee on Appointments began in May of this year to endeavour to secure qualified supervisors for the three supervised Playgrounds of the city.

Advertisements were inserted in the local papers, in the Toronto Mail and Empire, the Globe and the Star. Your convenor also wrote to the Registrars of Queen's and Toronto Universities, to the Physical Director of the Y.M.C.A., Toronto, to the Y. M. C. A. Training School, and to several universities in the U.S.

Toronto and Queen's Universities had no students available for this work.

The advertisements in the Toronto papers brought a number of replies, most of the applicants indicating that they knew nothing of the work, but were willing to learn at a substantial salary.

The Y.M.C.A.'s were unable to find us any one, though the Toronto Y. sent us one application early in June.

The president of each of the U. S. Universities sent in the names of several suitable young men, and applications were received from these.

A few local young men applied, some with no training whatever to fit them for the work.

After several meetings and a good deal of corerspondence your committee recommended the following appointments:

Mr. Roy E. Tillotson, Alleghany, Pa.,

To be Director of Queen Mary Playgrounds and supervisor of all the Playgrounds.

Mr. Harold Copp, Boys' Secretary, Y.M.C.A., Peterboro, Director Central School.

Miss Laura Cook, London, Assistant, Central School.

Mr. Allan Draper, Rochester, N. Y., Director King Edward Playgrounds.

Miss Gladys Collinson, Peterboro, Assistant King Edward Playgrounds.

The Attendance.

There was a regular atendance of 1,200 children at the playgrounds, and a number of casual attendants.

Every One Wants Money's Worth

Natural Desire Is Not To Get The Worst of Any Business Transaction

Cheapest Not Always Best

Person who Buys from the Catalogue House Sees Only the Price & Forgets that Value is the Thing that Counts

When you spend your money you naturally want to get all you can in return. No one can criticize you for having that desire. Only those who are commonly referred to as having "more money than sense" throw their money away. All others are careful to see that they do not get the worst of any bargain. But one has to be able to look farther than the end of his nose if he is to be sure that he is getting the most that he can get for his money.

That is the defense of the man who buys from the mail order house instead of patronizing the merchants in his own town. He says he can get more for his money when he buys from the mail order at home. But in arriving at that conclusion he certainly has not been able to look further than the end of his nose.

In most cases the man who buys goods from a mail order house does so because he thinks he is getting the goods for less money than he would have to pay for them at the store in his own town. He thinks he is looking out for No. 1 and he says it is not his fault if the merchants in his town cannot make any money and is forced to go out of business. He overlooks the fact that he is likely to be hard hit as anyone else when that merchants closes his doors but, leaving that probability out of consideration, the chances are about 10 to 1 that the buyer has really lost money on his deal with the mail order man.

Price Not Only Consideration.

If buying an article of any kind, whether it be a house and lot or a paper of pins, the price is not the only thing to be considered by any means. You are not in the habit of going into a store when you want to buy a suit of clothes and saying to the storekeeper: "Give me the cheapest suit of clothes you have in the house." You want the best suit of clothes you can get for the price you pay for it, but you don't usually want the cheapest thing you can find.

A man may delude himself into believing that when he buys a suit of clothes from a mail order house for $10 he is saving money, but what is there to justify him in such a belief? The mere fact that he is getting a suit for $10 does not mean that he is saving money. The chances are that if he should go to the man who runs the clothing store in his own town and ask for it he could get a suit of clothes for $10 and the chances are also that it would be just as good if not a better bargain than the suit which he could get from the mail order house for the same sum. It is not the price he pays that shows whether he is getting a bargain or not. It is the quality of goods that he gets for his money that counts.

Can Undersell Mail Order House

The home merchant can sell as cheaply as the mail order man if he sells as cheap goods as the mail order man sells. His expenses are not as heavy as those of the mail order man. He pays less rent in proportion to the business he does, his taxes are less in proportion to the capital invested. His advertising bills are less than those of the mail order man in proportion to the volume of his sales. He can undersell the mail order man any day in the year if he wishes to sell only goods of the same quality and style of those sold by the mail order man, but he doesn't do this because he knows that the majority of the people in his town do not want that quality and style of goods. Therefore he keeps in stock goods of all qualities and all prices. He has the $10 suit for the man who thinks that he can get more for his money by buying a suit at that price than he can by buying a better one for $20, but he tells the customer just what he is buying.

The next time you think about buying something from a mail order house, if you ever do think of such a thing, go first to your home merchant and ask to see the article which you are thinking of buying.

Ready to Compare Prices.

Your home merchant is business man. He gets the best values he can for his money when he buys goods, and he does not expect his customers to do anything else. All that he asks, in return for the favors he does his customers and the things he does for the good of his community that he be given an opportunity to meet the insidious competition of the mail order house. He is perfectly willing to have his prices and his values compared to those of the mail order house, but he has a just complaint when he is not given a chance to make this comparison.

If all buyers would take the value as well as the price of the article they are buying into consideration, the mail order houses would all go out of business to-morrow.

FIREMEN HAD A COLD RUN

The fire men received a call last night at 11.15 to the Perkins-Ince Co. at the corner of Bethune and Charlotte streets. When the firemen arrived the building was surrounded with a dense cloud of black smoke that seemed to foretell a serious fire although there were no flames.

Feeling that something was amiss the chief got the key to the building and although he searched the building from top to bottom no fire could be found.

The smoke was discovered to be from a train which passed under the roof that projects out about six feet from the building and blew out a dense cloud of smoke which was prevented from rising by the ledge and so gave the appearance of a serious fire.

OBITUARY

MRS. MARY HURLEY

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Hurley took place from the residence of her son-in-law, John T. Tracy, 41 Albemarle street, December 10th at 9.45 o'clock, and from St. Patrick's Cathedral at 10 a.m. Solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by the Rev. Francis J. O'Hern, assisted by the Rev. Walter F. McCurdy of Moravia, N. Y., and the Rev. George V. Predmore of Elmira, grandnephews of the deceased, as deacon and sub-deacon. The Rev. John Crowley was in the sanctuary.

The remains were blessed by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Thomas F. Hickey. Burial was made at Holy Sepulchre Cemetery, where the last rites at the grave were offered by the Rev. Walter F. McCarthy. The bearers were George F. Nier, Edward Kylie, Donald A. Byrne, Daniel Culhane, Patrick A. Mannion, and Clarence O'Connor.—Rochester Times-Union.

Mrs. F. Fairen and Miss J. McCarthy, of Peterborough, are nieces.

GAVE JUDGMENTS IN COUNTY COURT

EACH PARTY PAYS OWN COSTS IN WELSH VS. PERRIN.

In delivering several reserved judgments this morning, Judge Huycke agreed with the recommendation of the jury in the case of Welsh vs. Mrs. Perrin that each party pay equal shares of the cost, and accordingly dismissed the action without costs.

In Whatman vs. Duprau, in which a jury awarded the plaintiff $800 damages for negligence, His Honor ordered that the defendant, Mrs. Duprau, pay the costs of the case.

In the Monongah Glass Co. vs. S. R. Leggott, of Lakefield, in which $319.84 was claimed by the plaintiff company, Judge Huycke allowed the company $274.73 and interest from the 27th of May. O. A. Langley was solicitor for the plaintiffs, and Mr. F. D. Kerr for the defendant. A stay of twenty days was granted.

CHILDREN MADE GOOD RESPONSE

FULLY FIFTY PER CENT. OF SCHOOL CHILDREN HAVE BEEN VACCINATED.

Dr. A. W. McPherson, Medical Officer of Health, stated this morning that the school children at all the schools made a splendid response to the offer of free vaccination, and with the children who had been previously vaccinated, fully fifty per cent. have now been covered, and the balance will probably be done to-day. Yesterday, the first day of free vaccination, the doctors at the different schools had more than they could do to attend to all the children waiting.

AFTERNOON TEA WAS BIG SUCCESS

CHRISTMAS GIFTS DISPOSED OF—MRS. KILLALY A PRIZEWINNER.

Yesterday afternoon the tea and sale of work at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Morphet, 458 Hunter street, under the auspices of the Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E., proved a splendid success and over $100 was realized.

The tea table which carried out the Christmas color scheme of red and green in the decorations of bouquets of poinsettas, ferns and tiny red shaded candles, was exceedingly attractive, and the different tables on which the work was sold also carried out the color scheme even to the boxes in which the home made candy was sold.

In Charge of Tables.

Mrs. F. L. Robinson was in charge of the work table at which charming hand made Christmas gifts were sold. Miss Margaret English was in charge of the doll table; Mrs. R. R. Hall and Mrs. W. A. Sanderson of the sale of cake and candy; Miss Nan Hall of the cards, and Mrs. Herb Stinson of the refreshments, assisted by Mrs. Adam Hall, Mrs. Spriggs and Mrs. Rose. Each of the tables realized unexpectedly large sums.

Those Present.

A few of those noticed at the tea and playing cards were Mrs. Gardiner, Mrs. Albert Stratton, Mrs. Gingras, Mrs. Huycke, Miss Rosamond Huycke, Mrs. Walker, Miss Morrow, Mrs. Breckenridge of Detroit; Mrs. Aylmer, Mrs. Dean, Mrs. Curry Anderson, Mrs. A. L. Killaly, Mrs. Chas Reid, Miss Mary Stratton, Mrs. Perks, Mrs. C. Fesserden, Mrs. Wm. Sherwood, Miss Burnet, Mrs. D. J. Lundy, Miss A. Kingan, Miss Archer, Miss Hugel, Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mrs. MacDiarmid, Mrs. Robert Ross, Mrs. W. Hall, Mrs. J. W. MacDiarmid, Mrs. R. G. Kingan, Mrs. R. Kingan, Mrs. Charles Kingan, Miss Laura Belleghem, Mrs. R. Fortye, Mrs. Buchanan, Mrs. Adam Hall, Mrs. J. C. Smith, Miss Peck, the Misses Rubidge, Mrs. Fraser, Miss Erskine, Miss Elsie Cameron, Mrs. C. L. Brewer, Mrs. D. N. Carmichael, Mrs. James Hamilton, Miss Howden of Detroit, Miss Olive English, Miss Margaret English, Mrs. W. H. Hill, and Mrs. Birks.

Mrs. Killaly won the prize at bridge.

D'Annunzio, who was present at the meting refused to accept the decision, the correspondent said but was hissed down when he attempted to harangue a crowd which assembled.

SAILORS LOST ON DISABLED STEAMER

OVER FORTY MEMBERS OF CREW LOST THEIR LIVES AS RESULT OF STORM.

(Canadian Press.)

HALIFAX, Dtc. 19.—Those drowned on the steamer "Manxman" were the captain, first mate, fourth engineer, wireless opeartor and thirty-nine of the crew, according to a wireless message sent out by Capt. Gore of the "British Isles." The Manxman foundered in mid-Atlantic on Thursday morning. All the other officers, chief steward and eleven of the crew are safe on board the "British Isles." The radiogram did not state how the men lost their lives, but it is presumed they went down with their ship, though there is a possibility that they may have had time to take to boats and these subsequently capsized. The "British Isles" sighted the distressed ship on Wednesday and stood by for twenty-four hours with a view to assisting the "Manxman" to port.

TO THE SKATING PUBLIC

I am requested by Local 191, American Federation of Musicians, to notify the skating public of Peterborough that they will confer a favour upon our members by skating to union music. It has been brought to our attention that a combination of men have banded themselves together, and wishing to be known as the Maple Leaf Band, are doing duty at the East City Rink, and we cordially suggest to the public that they patronize the rink that is fair to our members, and all paying the union rate of wages. Music supplied either by the G.W.V.A. Band or the 57th Regiment Band, are strictly union members, and can furnish all the music necessary for this or any other purpose. For any further information, write the Secretary of Local 191, "American Federation of Musicians."

Premier Remains

BORDEN WILL TAKE ANOTHER LONG REST--RECALLS HIS POLICY.

CAUCUS LATER

OTTAWA, Dec. 18. — Sir Robert Borden announced at six o'clock last night that he would withdraw almost immediately from active participation in public affairs, remaining, however, the titular head of the Government at the earnest request of his colleagues until it can be seen whether or not a prolonged rest will make him well enough to resume later on.

The statement which he issued says that Sir Robert's own feeling is that he should resign, but that he could not disregard the views urged on him unanimously by his Ministers.

He states that he considers it essential, however, that his parliamentary supporters "should approve of the arrangement which his colleagues have urged and which he has accepted."

Wants Policies Discussed.

He reminds the public that on October 2 last he submitted to a Unionist caucus his proposals as to the policies for which he thought the Government should stand during the lifetime of the present Parliament. At a caucus to be held next session Senators and memebrs are to make suggestions with regard to his proposals, and he believes that these proposals as finally accepted should be presented to Parliament and to the people.

Sir Robert has still a good color, and during a limited period each day his capacity for work is undiminished. But in using up the small store of nervous strength remaining to him in his strenuous work which falls to a Premier he is using up the vitality which may permit him in the days to come to repair the ravages made on his constitution by the strenuous years of war and the more wearing tasks of reconstruction.

Sir Robert will not leave Ottawa immediately, as there are a few personal arrangements which he must make before leaving for the south, but his departure will not be long delayed.

NO PREPARATIONS FOR AN ELECTION

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Dec. 19.— Government whips absolutely deny rumors that it is intended to dissolve Parliament in February, while party agents assert that no preparations have been made for a general election. It is stated in political quarters that rumors have been traced to Laborites, who are said to be working for an election, recognizing the possibility of forcing a crisis.

A VICTORY FOR GEN. DENIKINE

Paid the Penalty

HAMILTON MURDERER WENT TO THE GALLOWS THIS MORNING PROTESTING HIS INNOCENCE.

THREE VICTIMS

(Canadian Press.)

HAMILTON, Dec. 19.— The triple murderer, Paul Kowalski, a Polack, was hanged this morning at sunrise for the murder of a fellow countryman named Knot Tremiak. Some weeks ago while awaiting execution of sentence for the Tremiak murder, Kowalski got loose and attacked his death watch, Coune Constable A. C. Springstead, throttling and killing him with a sharpened spoon. When Chief Turnkey Arthur Awtry and others sprang upon the powerful prisoner and forced him into his cell, Awtry was so badly injured by Kowalski that he died shortly afterwards.

To Father Tarasuk, priest of the Holy Sepulchre, the condemned man protested his innocence of the crime for which he was sentenced to death. He also received from the priest the last rites of the Roman Catholic church. His request to see his children was denied him. The Government executioner, Arthur Ellis, arrived here yesterday morning from Winnipeg, and in company with Dr. James Roberts, jail surgeon, visited the jail and inspected the gallows.

THE "SIT STRATE" ON DEMONSTRATION

At Turnbull's store this week the strides modern invention has taken are convincingly demonstrated in the sewing machines which Mrs. Kemp is showing nightly. The "White Rotary" which is shown in the new "Sit Strate" and the portable electric machine which when folded up is about the size of an ordinary typewriter and easily carried about in a trunk.

"The "Sit Strate" is really a triumph of modern science and not only assures good looking, in fact that the sewing machine of styles is so constructed that she sits perfectly straight, but the machine displays the most [illegible] work from plain stitching (in [illegible] less time than formerly) to hemstitching, picot edging, ruffling, darning and embroidery,—in fact everything but crochet and knitting. The Mexican drawn work done on "Sit Strate" and electric machines which also does all the work which may be accomplished on the "sit strate" is practically impossible to distinguish from hand work.

The Features

The principal features of the machines outside of the wonderful work which may be accomplished on them art the stitch regulator and tension indicator both of which may be read like clocks at a moment's notice, the life time guarantee which goes with each and the oil cup on the needle bar which the White Rotary alone carries and which catches all oil and prevents all soiling so aggravating to dressmakers. All supplies for either the "Sit Strate" of the electric machine may be purchased at Turnbull's avoiding the usual delay in replacing parts to a machine. A feature of the electric machine is the foot regulator which guages the speed of the sewing. The machine costs one cent a day to use. Mrs. Kemp has a complete assortment of garments made by the White machines from practical garments such as children's rompers to the daintiest neck wear of finest net and charming boudoir caps. A tribute to the machines ability lies in the remark made by a traveller this week who was displaying collars. When he saw what might be accomplished by any owner of the White Rotary he remarked that the machine was no friend to his business.

CAN YOUTH AND MIDDLE AGE BE HAPPY?

The older man is attracted by the young girl's freshness and innocence. And the girl is fascinated by the older man's experience, his broader outlook on life, his delighted manners—in brief, his sophistication.

Can they be happy together?

Will not the young girl's very sweetness cloy after a time? And will not the coldness and undemonstrativeness of the older man kill his young wife's love? Or worse yet, drive her to some younger and more agreeable man for comradeship?

Is any love strong enough to reconcile two people so different in character? Sandra Courtney thought so, but even she had hours of black doubt.

Read the solution of her problem in "Sandra the Jealous," which starts To-morrow in the Examiner.

BUTTER SELLS FOR TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER POUND IN AUSTRALIA

PRICES ARE MUCH LOWER IN THE SISTER COLONY--LABOUR SUFFERS SEVERAL DEFEATS—INTERVIEW WITH SON OF PREMIER HUGHES.

(Special to the Examiner)

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 19.—A. Hughes, son of Premier of Australia stopped over in Winnipeg yesterday to make train connections to Chicago where he will study Sociological questions.

Prices prevalent in the Big Island, as quoted by Mr. Hughes show butter selling at 25 cents per pound, bread 9 cents 36 ounce loaf, milk 12 cents quart, sugar 7 cents and wheat at $1.25 per bushel. He showed a pair of all leather tan shoes retailing in Winnipeg at $15, which he bought for $7 in Sydney.

"It must be terrible living in Canada and United States" Mr. Hughes remarked. "I have no doubt that the people here get good wages but with our lower scale in Australia we are able to put more by than you people here." The result of Australian elections described as a great vindication of his father's policy for reconstruction.

"Labor is being defeated all along the line,' 'Mr. Hughes said. "At one time they had six out of seven State Governments and Commonwealth Government. Now they hold control over one state only, great middle group in Australia which belongs to no party, gave Labor chance and when it did not make good voted it out of office."

MRS. REDMAN DENIED THAT SHE PROPOSED TO BOWLER

SWORE THAT SUBJECT OF MARRIAGE OR OF AN ENGAGEMENT WAS NEVER MENTIONED BETWEEN THEM—MR. VASS TESTIFIED THAT BOWLER MADE FIRST SUGGESTION TO GIVE HER THE AUTOMOBILE.

JUDGE ASKS FOR ACCOUNTING

Mrs. Edith Redman this morning denied that she had proposed marriage to Timothy Bowler or that either of them had [illegible] subject of an engagement. He Judge Huycke's question as why Bowler should have given her his car, his savings and assigned pay, she replied that he had said that they were both alone in the world and he would rather leave the money to her, before going overseas, than to anybody else.

In his cross-examination of the defendant, Mr. Gordon endeavoured to obtain an accounting of her expenditure of the $200 in cash which, with a $50 Victory Bond, she had received from the co-defendant, Albert Vass, for the car. Judge Huycke also declared that there should be some definite statement of what Mrs. Redman did with, for her, the large sum of money she had handled.

Mrs. Redman told of purchases of clothes and other articles, including repairs to the automobile, and promised His Honour, at the conclusion of her testimony, to try to think of other payments during the noon adjournment.

Mr. Albert Vass, who is charged with conspiracy in this case, asserted that Bowler had voluntarily decided to give Mrs. Redman his automobile. Mr. Vass swore that he had never said anything to induce Mrs. Redman to make this gift, and that he knew nothing about Bowler's savings or that he had transferred them to Mrs. Redman until she had told him some time afterward.

It Was Bowler's Wish.

Mrs. Redman testified that the first mention of transferring Bowler's savings to her was made in Gordon and O'Brien's office on the day Bowler gave her the automobile under a bill of sale.

Mr. Hatton—Who were there —Mr. Bowler, Mr. O'Brien and myself.

Defendant said she didn't want to take the money. "I thought he was giving me enough when he gave me the car." She faltered and broke into tears.

Who went to the bank with you?—Mr. Bowler and Mr. O'Brien.

What happened there?—Mr. Bowler signed a cheque for $236. The money opened an account for me.

Mrs. Redman asserted that Bowler first suggested giving her the money he had in the bank. He also proposed to give her the automobile one night in a Chinese restaurant. They went to Mr. Gordon's office immediately, but he wasn't there. Next morning they returned to make the transfer of the car, and defendant stated that Bowler then decided to give her the money too.

Mrs. Redman said she had proposed a settlement with Bowler upon receipt of a demand from Mr. Gordon. She instructed Mr. Hatton to offer him the money she had left in the bank.

Mr. Hatton—Could you earn enough to pay it all back?—I don't think so.

Judge Huycke—What did you do with the assigned pay?—I spent it. He told me to.

Mrs. Redman said she had received $15 a month for eleven or twelve months.

Mr. Hatton—When did you first know he had assigned it?—When it came.

FIRST BUSINESS WAS A RESOLUTION TO REIMBURSE COUNTY DIRECTORS—GRANT TO COMMUNITY HALLS.

NATIONAL POLICY

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, Dec. 19.—The U. F. O. leaders apparently overslept this morning when the farmers gathered for the clean-up session in the Labor Temple.

"Nobody objected," exclaimed Secretary J. J. Morrison, when he opened the meeting 45 minutes after schedule time. "Burnaby is not here, Amos is not here, Halbert is not here," he declared. There were only two hundred delegates present, many having already left the city.

Col. J. Z. Fraser took the chair in the absence of the President and Vice-President.

The first business was a resolution "to reimburse the county directors of the U.F.O. in a satisfactory maner." It was warmly supported by J. McOrmond of Mattawa, who said the U. F. O. was not a mushroom organization and could well afford to pay its directors.

Prof. John Sharp moved the six months' hoist. Another speaker wanted to leave the matter to the local clubs.

"If you pay out more money than you take in, bankruptcy will follow," continued J. J. Morrison. "The treasury of the U.F.O. is not inexhaustible. You know how the proposal to raise the annual fee was opposed. Let the county organization raise the funds for the work you do in your own country. The system you are advocating here would be unfair. The backward counties would benefit at the expense of the others.

The resolution was snowed under.

Joseph Lowden, seconded by S. J. McDonald, moved to memorialize the Ontario government to amend the Act re grants to community halls in order that ownership may be vested in a Board of Trustees or other corporate bod as well as in a Municipal Council. The resolution carried.

National Policy.

Hon. T. A. Crerar, to the United Farmers of Ontario:

"The national policy formulated by the Canadian Council of Agriculture is not a class document. The statement that the farmers of this country are seeking to impose upon the people of Canada a set of political principles that are purely selfish and designed alone to benefit agriculture is not a true statement. . . . . I am not among those who believe that one class in this Dominion, whether it is farmers or labor, or bankers, or manufacturers, or transportation, should have the sole right in the ruling of this Dominion. The farmers have not had their fair share in the making of the laws of the country in the past. Particularly in the Federal House, I think probably the Farmers have not 10 per cent. of the representation. I am not sure but that a larger infusion of Farmers and of Labor men into our Parliament will not exercise a most wholesome influence on the character of the legislation that is there enacted."

Local option in taxation was advocated by J. S. Hunter, seconded by A. J. Forsythe. The motion carried.

French Clubs.

A resolution was moved by S. J. McDonald of Stormont, that "so far as possible all French clubs on request be supplied with literature in their own language." This was unanimously carried.

Another resolution condemned the present method of appointment of directors of the Canadian National Railway by the Dominion Government as "not in accordance with democratic principles." It favoured provision for the election as directors of a number of the employees and superintendents of the railway from among their number by themselves, and that in the appointment of the remainder of the directors the chief sections served by the railway should be represented. It carried unanimously without discussion.

Long term loans for farmers at low rates of interest were favored unanimously, the meeting calling on the Provincial governments to introduce legislation establishing rural credits.

More uniform rates for Hydro-Electric Power and Development of Ontario's water powers were favored in an amendment of Col. Fraser of Burford. It carried immediately.

The Senate of Canada was asked to amend the railway act to give long distance telephone connections to rural telephone subscribers at the regular long distance rates.

THE HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

Every habitation in Peterboro is not a home. Alas! No! We have seen a beautiful house, richly appointed, supplied with every luxury, whose beautiful tapestried walls and lovely carpets, all flower-strewn, handsome furniture, exquisite china, sparkling cut-glass and silver, beautiful flower yards, made a picture of lovely beauty and would suggest a real "fairy land" everything wealth, skill and taste could command, whose inmates were highly educated and considered very refined, and yet that was no home, and the Christian father of that family would go from a daintily spread breakfast table; and a cross, ill-tempered, silk robed wife, and not one kind word, not a single ray of sunshine to cheer lonely the gloom of a busy business man's long days. The boys were glad to get off to school, out of the reach of mother's scolding tongue, and the "beautiful fashionable" daughter fretted the day away over the novels that didn't turn out like she wanted them to, and dresses that didn't hang just right, and spent the evening and a goodly part of the night dancing and saying silly nothings to a silly young man. Why was this home so unhappy? Because the mother was got in sympathy with the father and children, and the children were uncongenial with each other So wealth alone cannot make a happy home.

* * *

See here, boys! Whatever you try to do, do it the very best you can; do it better than it was ever done before. Don't yield to the temptation to slight your work. And above all things, do what is right, every time. Never mind the scoff and leer of others, but go ahead and do what is right. Be brave about it, too. Everyone hates a coward. And another thing, don't be afraid of doing right for fear you will make enemies. Enemies are as necessary to success as vinegar is to pickles. Don't above all things be a hypocrite. The thief may steal our property, but the hypocrite betrays one's confidence and only waits an opportunity to stab him in the back. If you have a mind of your own don't be afraid to express your opinion, and if you feel that it is right, stand by it. People will talk and fools will turn grindstones for others to sharpen their axes on. Think for yourself. Lay your course of action in accordance with the idea that some day you will be a man and called upon to take an active part in life's great battles. Don't imagine for a moment that you can please everybody, not yourself. Few people care for you and you must care for yourself or be left in the cold.

* * *

There is a class of laborers in Peterboro who seldom complain. They get up at five o'clock in the morning and never go to bed until ten or eleven at night. They work without ceasing during the whole of the time and get no other pay than food and clothing. They understand something of every branch of economy, from finance to cooking; though harassed by a hundred responsibilities, though driven and worried, though humiliated and looked down upon, they never revolt and they cannot organize for their own protection; not even illness relieves them from their post. No sacrifice is deemed too great for them to make and no incompetency in any branch of their work is excused. No essays and poems are written in tribute to their steadfastness. They are the housekeeping wives of the majority of the people, who work, live and die for their loved ones.

* * *

To the true man or woman there can be nothing more agreeable on earth than the business of home-making and all who are not home-makers miss the best part of their mission in life. Who ever makes a home, in the best sense of the word, is a real benefactor to the race; for every true home is the abode of joy, peace and happiness to those who share it, and exerts an influence that is incalculable for the amelioration of the whole human family. Many a prodigal has been led by the thoughts of home and the makers of his own particular home, to repent of his sins and to change his course in life; and many an unfortunate one has been saved in the evil hour from suicide, or worse, by the tender recollections of home, of fond mother's prayers, an indulgent father's councils, or a sister's or a brother's tenderness.

* * *

Home is a harem of rest to a man after a hard day's work. Mother, you may be tired after a trying day with the children, but remember that others have trying days, too. Father has been in the office all day pouring over business perplexities or financial problems but now he locks the office door and with a sigh of relief he thinks of his loved ones and turns his face towards the rest and peace of home. Don't meet him at the door with a look on your face that would stop an eight day clock. Greet him with a smile, make him feel that home is the sweetest and most restful place on earth.

* * *

Let us not wait for chances for doing good to come to us, but to go out to meet them. Too many beautiful opportunities escape us otherwise. As charity begins at home, so should love. We don't care much for the charity or love that would leave its dearest to want for duty or affection and go out into the world to work. We find it a delightful plan to make each one of our homefolks happy about some one thing each day of our life—plan little surprises for their delight, do little deeds for them, brighten a dull hour, or congratulate them upon some achievement of their own way.

* * *

If the mother is in the habit, in her common conversation, of coloring facts, of exaggerating what she hears and relates, can she expect her children to grow up with a love and reverence for the truth?

SASKATOON INQUEST RESULTS IN CHARGE OF MURDER OF WIFE

REGINA, SASK., Dec. 17.—Following opening of the inquest into the death of Mrs. Mary Wilson, held at Saskatoon, Superintendent Mahony, of the Provincial Police, stated to-day that a charge of murder has been laid against Sergeant John Wilson. The theory is Wilson murdered his wife on a lonely trail in September, 1918, hid the body by burying it, and burned his motor car to conceal the crime. Wilson up to now his been held on a charge of attempted suicide.

BOWLER MAINTAINED HE THOUGHT MRS. EDITH REDMAN UNMARRIED

WITNESSES ALSO SAY SHE WAS SPOKEN OF AS MISS REDMAN AND "EDE"—BUCOLIC COMEDY TO HELP HER ADVANCES TO BOWLER.

OTHER INCIDENTS OF TRIAL

Mr. G. W. Hatton's cross-examination of Timothy Bowler was resumed yesterday afternoon in the County Court. At the conclusion of the plaintiff's case, Mr. Gordon, his counsel asked for an adjournment until this morning because of the likelihood that the hearing of the defense would not be concluded last night, and of the fact that Mrs. Redmand and Albert Vass were co-defendants Mr. Gordon desired that no time should lapse between their examinations.

Mr. R. R. Hall, representing Mr. Vass, stated that in so far as his client was concerned the plaintiff's action was based on two grounds. One was that Bowler's money and automobile had been obtained by Mrs. Redman by reason of some false statements made to him by Vass. There was no evidence of mispresentation on the part of Vass, Mr. Hall contended, nor evidence of conspiracy. He asked for a non suit.

Judge Huycke said he would note this application.

Didn't Know She Was Married

Mr. Hatton—"How long had you known Mrs. Redman before you gave her the car?"—"Close on to a month."

"When did you first learn she was a married woman?"—"Not till after I signed that document."

"Didn't you know she was a married woman that time of the dance?"—"No."

"You knew she had a child?"—"No."

"Hadn't the child been at Vass' when you were there?"—"I wasn't there very often."

"Where did you make the appointment to meet her at the Bank of Commerce?"—"At Joe Henderson's.

"Joe Henderson was overseas with you?"—"Yes."

"She didn't meet you?"—"No."

"Was there anything said then about returning your money?"—"She said she would give it all back."

"Did you ever make another demand on her for your money or car?"—"No."

"You saw your lawyer?"—"The next day."

"And gave him instructions to take proceedings?"—"Yes."

"Tell us in what way Edith Redmand used you fraudently?"

Judge Huycke—"Isn't that a question for the court to decide."

Mr. Hatton to plaintiff—"You don't know the meaning of the word fraudently?"—"No."

A letter written by a comrade for Bowler to Mrs. Vass on Sept. 20, 1918 from Seaforth camp was read by Mr. Hatton. A paragraph in it referred to the automobile and also to a letter Bowler received from the Blodgett's in which they evidently had mentioned his disposition of the car.

"They thought I should have left the car to them, but I left it where I wanted to, so they can go to—" Mr. Hatton skipped the next word in Bowler's letter.

"Perhaps he meant the garage," remarked the judge.

"There's "ha! ha!" and "excuse me" here", Mr. Hatton added.

Mr. Gordon's Objection

Mr. Gordon sharply objected to the admittance of Bowler's letter to Mrs. Vass stating that it wasn't fair. He contended that they should have been previously produced, and that the defendant Vass must have known they were available.

Mr. Hatton recalled Bowler's experience before the local military tribunal, and asked him if he had said that "the old land wasn't worth fighting for."

Mr. Gordon again interposed. "This has nothing whatever to do with the case. I'm astounded at my learned friend. He using things he learned as agent of the Union Government."

Bowler said he was glad he had fought for Canada and England.

Mr. Gordon—"They're using any attempt to defeat this returned soldier's claim."

Mr. Hatton—"Poor returned soldier!"

Mr. Hatton—"Did you say at that examination that the old land wasn't worth fighting for?"—"Yes."

Judge Huycke—"The old land's taking better care of you than you would of the old land."

Bowler's pension is $42 a month. His left arm is off at the shoulder. He said he was unable to use the artificial arm that was given him.

To Mr. Hall plaintiff said Vass didn't go into the bank when he transferred his savings to Mrs. Redman.

"Did he know what you went there for?"—"Yes. It was talked over before."

William Dummitt

William Dummitt the next witness, stated that Mrs. Redman kept house for him on Rubidge street in 1917 and 1918.

Mr. Gordon—"Did you see anyone, else that came there?"—"Yes, Mr. Vass."

How often did he come?"—"About three times a day. He took dinner there."

"Did you ever here anything said about Bowler?"—"I heard Mr. Vass joking Mrs. Redman that she might as well have Bowler's money as he had to go overseas and she might as well have it as anybody else."

Mr. Hall—"You took it as a joke?"—"I didn't know whether it was a joke or not."

"When was that conversation?"—"In January 1918."

Mr. Bowler says he didn't know Mrs. Redman at that time?"—"I can't say as to that."

"What was Mrs. Redman doing there?"—"She was keeping house for me."

"Who was there?"—"Mr. Vass, Mrs. Redman, myself and my children."

Mr. Dummitt said that along in the Spring he saw Mrs. Redman, Mr. Vass and Bowler together in a car several times.

Denied Offer of Marriage

To Mr. Hatton, witness said he recalled Mr. Vass' statement last Sunday when Detective Cookman interviewed him. As a housekeeper, Mrs. Redman was alright at first but not in the long run.

"Why not in the long run?"—"Vass was always there, morning, noon and night. I objected to that. I don't impute anything against her character."

"How much wages did you owe her?"—"She supposed I owed her $35 I thought that it was $20."

Mrs. Redman was finally paid $20. Witness explained details of housekeeping accounts that had led to the wage dispute.

Mr. Hatton—"Did you ever ask her to marry you?"—"Never."

"If she says you did will you say she's perjuring herself?"—"I never asked her to marry me. When she found out she had to leave my place she got down on her knees and begged me to marry her."

"How many children have you?"—"Four."

"Yes, she got down on her knees and asked you to marry her," was Mr. Hatton's sarcastic comment. "She looks like that kind of woman!"

James A. Blodgett

The next witness Jas. A. Blodgett said he lived about a mile from the home of Albert Vass.

When was that dance at your place?"—"April 10th 1918."

"Do you know when Bowler met Mrs. Redman?"—"In January of 1918. He came three different times to buy wood from me, but they never bought any. Mrs. Redman was with him each time and so was his wife."

"What opportunity had Bowler of meeting Mrs. Redman?"—"The very first time when we were sitting around Tim went out for something. Vass pushed his chair over near Bowler's and said "We'll have some fun with Tim when he comes in." When Bowler came in Vass said, "See how much she thinks of you, Tim, she pulled your chair alongside hers."

Witness also testified that when the three visitors were departing that night Vass told Mrs. Redman to ask Bowler over and she said: "Aren't you coming over to see me, Tim?"

"How was she spoken of?"—"I think she was introduced to him as Miss Redman and I think Vass called her that. They all called her "Ede."

"When was the earliest time Bowler knew she was married?"—"Between April 10th and 19th.

"Was it before or after you gave a deed of the car?—"I'm not sure. I advised him to leave his money and goods with Mrs. Sheppard, the woman who brought him up."

To Mr. Hatton witness said he knew Mrs. Redman was married but he didn't tell Bowler until after she got the car."

Mr. Hatton—"Did you say you'd have the car if there wasn't a shingle left on your house?"—"No, sir."

"To Harry Castle?"—"No, sir."

"Last fall?"—"No, sir. I wasn't talking to him. I never wanted the car."

Mr. Hall—"What did Bowler say when you told him Mrs. Redman was maried?"—"He said she wasn't, and that Vass told him he could marry her."

"Was Bowler engaged to your daughter?"—"No, sir. She was married on April 10th."

Blodgett admitted that the relations between his family and Mr. Vass' were not friendly."

To Keep Skin Healthy, Youthful, Wrinkless

Now that the social season is here, be especially careful to keep your skin in fine condition. You know how conspicious complexion defects appear under the bright light of the drawing or ball room. Also how very evident are some makeups when similarly illuminated. You can discard cosmetics entirely, using a process which gives far better results, and which leaves no trace on the skin. At night smear on a thin coat of ordinary mercolized wax, washing it off next morning. This gradually absorbs the devitalized particles of surface skin; just as gradually the more youthful skin beneath comes forth, providing a complexion as clear, smooth and delicately tinted as a young girl's. Get an ounce of mercolized wax at your druggist's and try this remarkable treatment.

Remember, too, that wrinkles, even the finer lines, are not easily concealed in a brilliantly lighted room. You can quickly obliterate these hateful marks by bathing your face in a solution of powdered saxolite, one ounce, dissolved in witch hazel, one-half pint. And your face won't look sticky, as after using pastes.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 19TH, 1919.

A TRAGIC COMEDY.

Detroit Journal: Various Allied Nations argue about who won the war, and in Germany they are debating who lost it. It's an amusing old world.

UNFIT TO DRINK, ANYHOW.

Philadelphia Inquirer: When constitutional prohibition comes into effect, what are some of those localities going to do about their hard waters.

WORSE OVER THERE.

Columbus Dispatch: Yes, some people around here are worrying about how to get sugar to put on their food, but over in Europe millions are worrying most about how to get the food.

END JUSTIFIES THE MEANS.

Providence Journal: D'Annunzio's adventure is already justified by at least a considerable measure of success. It has demonstrated that the Italian people are with him in his insistence that Fiume shall not be turned over to the Jugo-Slavs, and the chances are less than ever that it will be alienated from Italy. The Jugo-Slavs will find a railroad outlet to the sea somewhere else and, let us hope, a long peace will descend upon the troubled waters of the Adriatic.

HOOVER FOR PRESIDENT.

Brooklyn Eagle: The sentiment among thoughtful people for Herbert Hoover as the Democratic Presidential candidate represents a deep interest in the issues of the mind and heart. True, Mr. Hoover is a great business man, but what his name means to the American people is interest in and self-sacrifice for the stricken, starving, death-ridden people of Europe, and a large and constructive purpose for the future, as was shown by his declaration in favor of the League of Nations, when he returned from his mission of mercy in Europe.

SAVING THE HINDU BABIES.

Times of India: The result of careful scrutiny of the figures in Calcutta indicates that 94 per 1,000 of the total mortality occurs during the first week of life, and the deaths are due to ignorance on the part of the mother, neglect, premature birth, debility. The Caucutta Corporation initiated a very useful movements for providing trained midwives to attend to confinements among the poor, and women health visitors to give advice to prospective mothers. Within a few years, the mortality was reduced to 55 per 1,000. The movement in Calcutta is capable of any amount of expansion, but the conditions remain very much what they have always been in the rural areas of Bengal.

THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE HOME

London Daily Express: Forty years ago the middle class was at its zenith. Then women darned socks and men came straight home from their offices to spend all their leisure in a family life which was, at its best, exquisite. A visit to a theatre, a dinner at a restaurant—these were adventures almost as big and rare as the annual family exodus to seaside lodgings. Today our homes are places where we sleep and have breakfast, manned, if we are fortunate, by one expensive and elusive domestic servant. This is if we do not just live in hotels. But will all this, or much of it, pass? Will home life return? Shall we, sated with extravagance and pleasure, seek again the more permanent satisfactions of family ties and simple affections and—and quiet?

EATING HUMBLE PIE.

Germany repeats her tactics of last June, hoping by vacillation, by hesitancy and by such defiance as she dare employ, to drive a wedge in the friendship of the Allied and Associated Powers, and in so doing secure some modification of the terms which have been dictated to her. Substitute arrogance and a sour obstinacy for the coyness of the maiden of Bryon's fancy, and we can say of Berlin, "a little while she strove and much repented, and whispering 'I will ne'er consent,' consented."

The conference held last week in London between Lloyd George, Clemenceau and Foreign Minister Scialoia of Italy has no doubt been a factor in forcing Germany to a quicker decision than appeared likely before the announcement of the meeting. Germany repudiates the idea that she claimed modifications to the Treaty because of the withdrawal of the American delegates from the Paris Conference. Her explanations will be accepted or not according to our faith in the German word and the German promise, but the fact remains that Germany's arrogance has increased in exact proportions as the withdrawal of America has been accomplished. The coincidence is at least remarkable.

But it is on the Scapa Flow incident that Germany displays her great change of front. True she still talks of the Hague Tribunal, but it is only to say that she "still maintains her opinion that such a reference would have been the best means of reaching a solution." Yet in the same breath Germany admits her guilt in declaring that "she is ready to make reparations for the damages caused by the destruction of the ships."

Having acknowledged her guilt, Germany cavils over the method by which reparation is to be carried out. In the original protocol the Allies demanded that as a reparation for the destruction of the fleet at Scapa Flow the Germans should deliver the light cruisers Koenigsberg, Pilau, Graudenz, Regensburg and Strasburg and "such a number of floating docks, floating cranes, tugs and dredges that are equal to a displacement of 400,000 tons."

To these demands Germany replies that such a transference of material would "compromise irretrivably Germany's economic life, and render impossible of executions the other enormous obligations which the Treaty imposes upon Germany," and she offers to formulate certain alternative proposals which would "not compromise her vital interests." The documents found in the salvage sale of the Emden are sufficient evidence that the sinkings were undertaken within the cognizance of the German Government, and having destroyed property which did not belong to her, but which she was holding in trust, it is not for Germany to dictate how the reparation should be made.

Noske's bluster of last week sounds very picayune in the light of the text of his note. An ultimatum with a time limit seems to be the only whistle that brings Germany to heel. —Montreal Star.

HEINTZMAN & CO.'S NEW MANAGER

The following appeared in the St. Catharines Standard of Dec. 11th:

A newcomer among us is Mr. B. H. Britton, who assumes the active management of the Heintzman & Co. store in St. Catharines. Mr. Britton has been for many years associated with the House in important positions, latterly having charge of the Peterborough branch, from which he has now been removed to take hold of the large business done by this firm in this city. Mr. Cadle, who has been manager, has been transferred to the west.

Mr. Britton will be remembered as forme manager for Heintzman & Co. in Peterborough, having had charge of the establishment of the now well known Heintzman Hall Musical Warerooms, which has proved so successful a venture.

PIONEER AVIATORS.

Frenchman Flew Short Distance In Man-driven Airplane.

All the earliest ideas of human flight were naturally based upon the observation of birds and demanded that the man should work his own artificial wings, for there were no engines, and possibly if there had been their use would have been considered "not cricket." In the notebooks of Leonardo di Vinci, the painter and universal genius, are many sketches of wings to be fitted to arms and legs, and more than one disastrous attempt was made to fly with such devices.

Thus at the beginning of the sixteenth century an Italian alchemist promised to fly from the walls of Stirling Castle to France, and actually tried to do so. Naturally, he failed; but luckily only broke a leg. He attributed his failure to the fact that he had used for his wings the feathers of fowls, which had an "affinity" for the dunghill. He does not appear, however, to have made a second trial with eagles' feathers, which should have solved the difficulty.

A more successful, if more modest attempt was made recently at Longchamps by a French professional cyclist, Poulain, who with a man-driven airplane actually flew, not to Stirling Castle, but a distance of 15 yards. It is understood that a prize of 10,000 francs awaits him if he shall repeat the feat under specified conditions.

As it requires a professional cyclist to fly a few yards, one yard from the ground, it is likely to be some time before the air is full of air-cyclist going for a spin. It is rash to prophesy, but the general opinion is that while Poulain's experiments may give rise to a new sport, something like jumping on skis, they are unlikely to be the preliminaries to long flights on man-driven machines.

War Words We've Borrowed.

While we have added scores of new words to the English language during the war, it is odd, and perhaps significant that only one of them is actually taken from the enemy. That is "strafe," and in all probability that one word will remain. There is, of course, "Zep.," but the Zep. is already becoming a mere memory, and this word will most likely die out.

In the past we have not been so particular, and as a matter of fact, nearly all our war terms have a foreign origin.

"Dragoon" and "cuirassier" are both French words. The original dragoons bore a dragon on their shield, while cuirassier wore breastplates of copper, for which the French is "cuivre."

"Hussar" comes from the Hungarian word "Huzz," meaning "twenty." In Hungary every twentieth recruit was placed in a cavalry regiment. The bayonet, of course, takes its name from the French town of Bayonne; while "pistol" is derived from the Italian town called Pistoja, once famous for its munition factories.

"Lieutenant" is French, but "major" is Latin, or perhaps Spanish. The Spanish is "amoyr," meaning "in a superior position."

"Howitzer," oddly enough, is really the Czech word "houfnice." This as originally applied to a sort of catapult for throwing stones. How it came to us is "wrapt in myst'ry."

"Musket" is from the Italian "moschetto," which was really a species of hawk, but was applied to a sort of small mortar.

"Arsenal," as most people are aware, is one of the very few English words taken direct from the Arabic. Its adoption takes us right back to the Crusades.

"Flotilla" and "armada" are, of course, pure Spanish, while the grenades which played so large a part in the great war owe their name to the Spanish city of Grenada, and "commandeer" — used by the Boers in South Africa—has long become a part of our language.—Pearson's.

MICE HARM ORCHARDS

Thousands of Trees Are Girdled Annually by These Pests.

The Short-tailed Field Mouse Is the Depredator — Prevention and Poisoning Described as Measures of Control — Transplanting Early Crops from Hotbeds.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

ALMOST every year thousands of fruit trees are girdled and killed by mice. The species of mouse responsible is not the common house mouse, but the short-tailed field mouse, whose runways may be easily seen in spring in long grass, especially around fence corners. It is grassy fence corners, especially where snake fences are used, that afford the best hiding and breeding places for these mice, hence the sooner such fences can be replaced by wire fences or done away with entirely and the freer the orchard is kept from all sorts of rubbish the easier it will be to combat mice.

Control Measures.—There are several methods by which almost complete protection from injury may be secured. These are as follows:

1. In autumn remove the sod from around the trees for a distance of about two feet on every side and bank earth up against the trunks to a height of six to ten inches. In doing this do not leave a deep ditch around the tree in which the water may collect, as this would be injurious to the roots.

2. If the ground becomes frozen before the grass can be removed, mound the trees with coal ashes instead of earth, packing them down somewhat firmly so that there may be no runways leading through the grass beneath up to the tree.

3. After the snow has become a foot or so deep or after the first heavy snow storm in winter, tramp the snow firmly around the trunks of the trees. This will close the runways and prevent the mice from working their way to the tree. If a thaw follows and the snow again becomes deep it will be necessary to repeat this operation.

4. A popular plan and a good one is to wrap common building paper around the trunk to a height of about twenty inches, or it would do no harm if it went to twenty-four inches or more, as this will also protect the base of the tree from rabbits and from sunscald. The building paper should be put on while the ground is still unfrozen and a little earth should be thrown up around the base to prevent the mice getting in beneath. The part above can be kept in place by fastening it with a common cord. Galvanized wire netting with a mesh of about a quarter of an inch is an excellent substitute for building paper and will last for several years, but the initial cost is much higher than for building paper. Tarpaper is often used, but is sometimes injurious to the trees and therefore cannot be recommended.

5. Occasionally, though very rarely in this province, resort is made to poison to destroy mice. The Washington Department of Agriculture recommends the following poison: "Mix thoroughly one ounce of powdered strychnine (alkaloid), one ounce powdered bicarbonate of soda, and one-eighth ounce (or less) of saccharine. Put the mixture in a tin pepper box (or any perforated tin) and sift it gradually over forty pounds of crushed oats in a metal tub or vessel, mixing the grain constantly so that the poison will be evenly distributed." Place not more than a teaspoonful of this at a place beside the trees, and, if possible, in the mouse runs. To avoid destroying birds the poison should always be covered by a small piece of board with a stone or chip underneath it to keep the board slightly raised from the ground; or it may be put into an old tin such as a tomato can and the edges bent nearly together to keep out birds but to let in mice. A small tile or a broken tile will serve the same purpose. Great caution must, of course, be taken in using such a deadly poison as strychnine.

Sometimes chopped alfalfa hay thoroughly moistened with a solution of the poison made by dissolving one ounce of strychnine (sulphate) in two gallons of hot water is used in place of the above poison. A little of this poisoned hay is placed close to the trunks of the trees late in the fall, and not more than a handful should go to each tree, and should be placed down close to the crown so that the mice will be sure to find it. It is better to put a little piece of board on top of it, and under no circumstances should cattle be allowed into an orchard thus treated.

Transplanting Early Crops From the Hotbeds.

Two things are very necessary in this work; one, that the plants get as much air as possible and kept as cool as possible in this way getting them used to night temperature so that when set in the field they will be able to withstand a considerable degree of cold. The other is that of withholding water as much as possible; this has two direct effects on the plant. One that of enlarging the finer root system, the other that of stiffening the wall cells of the plant, making them more suited to withstand outside conditions. On many occasions it has been proved that a plant, which has only had the water required for its actual growth, the former came through a rather severe cold spell in good shape while the softer, more frequently watered specimen, froze.

WAR SERVICE BUTTON SALADE.

Every Man Who Wears a Button Is Not All He Seems.

Sergt. Aldons of the battalion was supposed to be armorer-sergeant. He was not efficient; never ought to have come along at all. The colonel fancied him though, back in Toronto during the formation period, and although told by the ordnance people that "the man was not fit for the job," persisted in his desires. It is a way colonels have at times, and a mighty awkward way it is, too. The sergeant reached England with his inefficiency, also France with the same incubus. Here, his brave front went to pieces, and he was a burden to all concerned. Never saw the front, never tinkered a rifle, never earned his passage, was only a nuisance. So, back he came to talk largely of his experiences, always growing larger, to get a button and become a veteran.

Late in 1918 the last batch of draftees went forward; they naturally included many of those who through no fault of their own had not got over before. The batch also included many who were quite unwilling, and quite the last lot one would pick for heroics. Bill Foulks was a sample of the latter. His general make-up and character shoved him into the cook-house help class. These are generally men who, husky enough, do not yearn for drill and smartness, but rather for easy-going jobs about camps and such. He reaches France about November, 1918, is attached to a celebrated Toronto unit, does his share of cookery chores, still craving the fleshpots, and comes back in the spring of 1919 quite a hero, by the cheers which greeted him; gets a button, too.

The captain in this salade had been a captain for some years before the war. He was the very sort you would think useful. The colonel fancied him mightily, and you have been told that colonels' fancies are to be thoroughly respected. So, in spite of the warnings of those higher up, the persistency of the colonel told, and the captain went over to England with the battalion. Here his usefulness was found to be quite a minus quantity, and when the battalion went to France, he stayed behind. By this time the colonel has seen light. The captain worked in a way for a while, had a trip to Canada on some vague grounds, came back to England, loafed some more, got sent to France on what is called Town Major's work, called "housekeeper's" by the men, came back to Canada and got a button.

All salades have four parts if properly made. The fourth part of this one concerns an ordinary private who never did anything, never got anywhere, never had any great desires or ambitions, or if he had certainly kept them to himself. Eventually he came along to the demobilization period. He had had a couple of years' work as a soldier and had been duly paid, fed, and clothed. In spite of there being a war on of real bigness, no one had ever contemplated for a moment sending this man forward. He wasn't good enough to send, and so quietly loafed away here at home. There are quite a lot of these. When he came up for discharge, "Got your button?" "No, sir!" "All right, here you are," and he gets his button.

Now put the dressing on the salades and make up your minds, that every man who has a button is not all he seems. It is a worthy badge and an honorable one, but there are tares in most wheat.

Whistler's Peacock Room.

The history of Whistler's celebrated Peacock Room is entertainingly told in a new book by Dr. C. C. Williamson called "Murray Marks and His Friends." One of Marks' friends was F. R. Leyland, a wealthy Londoner who wished to reconstruct a prosaic London house on Venetian lines. He spent £1,000 on some wonderful Cordova leather for one of his rooms. Whistler painted a picture for the room. He thought the leather too dark as a background for the picture, and in Leyland's absence painted the leather and the entire apartment until the wonderful Peacock Room resulted. Leyland was exasperated because his beautiful leather had been painted over; Marks resented the change because his blue and white china (he was a ceramic specialist) no longer had a suitable background, and Jeckyll, the architect of the new house, became demented when he saw what had been done. Eventually, however, the wonderful Peacock Room of this story was recognized as a masterpiece of decoration even by Leyland and Marks. After Leyland's death it was removed from his house, and it now forms part of the priceless Whistler collection of Charles L. Freer, of Detroit, together with [illegible] picture by Whistler which caused all the trouble.

BERESFORD ANECDOTES.

Popular British Admiral Had a Ready Wit.

Once in 1911 or 1912 when Lord Beresford was on full pay, and had, therefore, to keep a stopper on his tongue, he dropped anchor in the Mersey, where his flagship was boarded by three newspaper correspondents, the first to salute the quarter-deck being one from the London Daily Express. The admiral, having heartily received them, said: "This, gentlemen, is not a fleet; it is a squadron of battleships without cruisers or destroyers. Please note the fact." A few days later a letter was received by the editor of the Daily Express, which read: "My Lords of the Admiralty have asked me why I gave an interview contrary to King's regulations. I said I did not give an interview. I saw three correspondents on my quarter-deck, and I made a speech to them. Will you, therefore, kindly write and say that your correspondent did not interview me, because I don't want the Admiralty to have one on me?" And the editor replied: "Dear Lord Charles: If you were the last admiral of the British navy I might stultify myself to the extent of a white lie, but as there are others, I fear you will have to 'dree your own weird' with the Lords of the Admiralty." Next day the editor received this note: "Thanks. Am telling them to go to hell.—Beresford."

The many breezy anecdotes of Lord Beresford best describe the sort of man he was. One of his neat phrases was, "I can sleep on a clothesline." Of all his sayings none is so famous as his telegram to King Edward refusing an invitation: "Sorry, can't come. Lie follows by post." "Admirable speech," said a famous politician to him after a meeting. "I didn't think you could do it. You don't look like a statesman." "Perhaps not," was the reply. "No more do you look like a weathercock."

CURE FOR DOUBLE CHINS.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.— That airplanes will in time completely eliminate "double chins" is seemingly proved out at Swarthmore College. Among the hundreds of co-eds there this year, not one can be discovered who displays the least tendency toward having more than the usual one chin. It is the two flying fields near the college that are held directly responsible for this exceptional condition.

Whenever one of the machines is visible the faces of 100 or more pretty co-eds are turned skyward, for the young women, seemingly never tire of watching their flight.

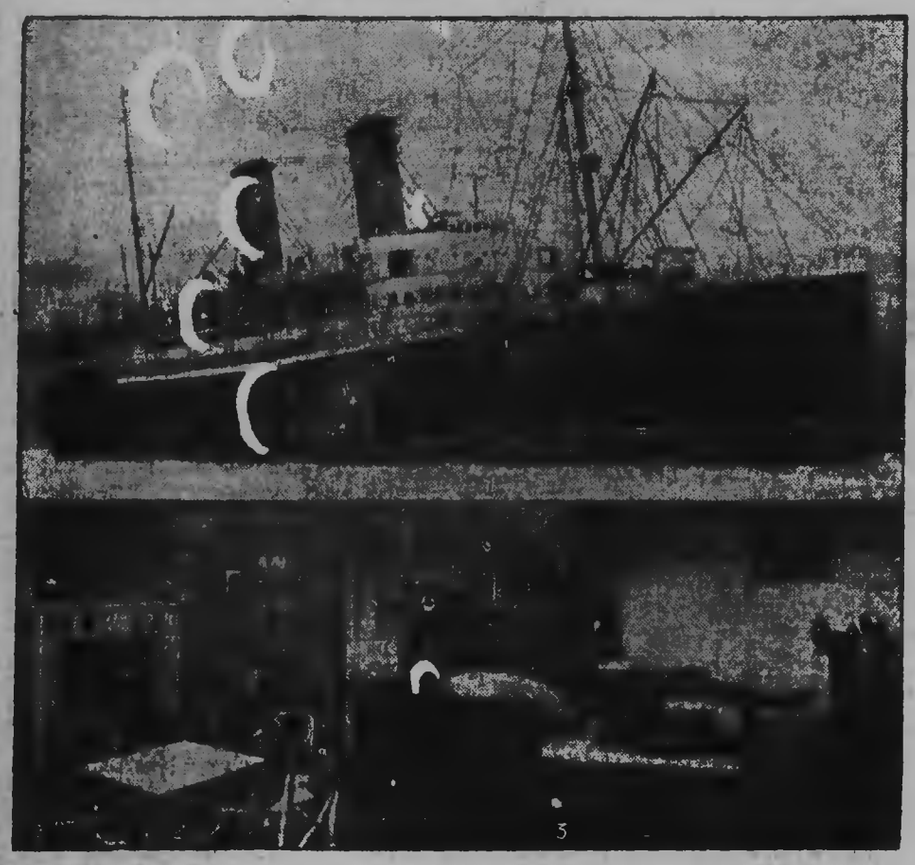
ARMED CRUISER RECONDITIONED



(1) C. P. O. S. Empress of France. (2) A Corner of the First-Class Card Room.
(3) A Part of a First-Class Bedroom Suite.

The latest addition to the great fleet of C.P.O.S. Steamships which ply between Canada and practically all the important ports of call in the world is the "Empress of France," before the war popularly known as the SS. "Alsatian" and one of the ocean grey hounds between Canada and Liverpool. The vessel has been reconditioned since the war ceased and recently completed her maiden trip to Quebec under her new name. The photographs here reproduced give an adequate description of her interior arrangements and fittings, and will compare favorably with the great Leviathans in this respect. The "Empress of France" has a length of 600 ft.; beam 72 ft.; depth (to D deck) 54 ft. 6 in.; and a tonnage of 18,000 gross. A striking peculiarity is the cruiser's stern, which imparts a warlike appearance to the vessel. Her war record is one to be proud of.

The "Empress of France" as the SS. "Alsatian" was requisitioned for war purposes under Royal Proclamation immediately on her arrival at the port of Liverpool, midnight on the 6th August, 1914. After completion of discharge, the entire removal of all passenger accommodation and other woodwork, she was armed with 8-6 in. guns, commissioned and manned by a naval crew under the command of Captain V. Phillimore, D.S.O., and was attached to the 10th Cruiser Squadron on northern patrol duty, sailing from Liverpool on August 15th, at which port she has been based during the entire period of her commission.

From August to December, 1914, she remained as above stated, but in December she was made Flag Ship of the Squadron to which she was attached, and Vice-Admiral Sir Dudley R. S. De Chair, K.C.B., M.V.O., hoisted his flag, which flew up to March, 1916, when he was succeeded by Admiral Sir Reginald G. Tupper, K.C.B., C.V.O., who was succeeded in November, 1918, by Rear-Admiral C. W. Keighley Peach, under whose flag she terminated her commission as an Armed Cruiser.

The Squadron to which she was attached, and later became Flagship of, consisted of 24 vessels, the majority of which were Armed Mercantile Cruisers. The duties of the Squadron consisted of the stopping of vessels, boarding them and examining their papers, and should on examination they prove to be at all of a suspicious nature, a Naval Officer was placed in charge and they were taken into a United Kingdom port for closer examination. This similarly applied to any members of the passengers or crew, as each and everyone had to give a satisfactory explanation as to their nationality and business. Available records show that in all the Squadron intercepted some 16,000 vessels, but it is impossible to state how many of these proved to be engaged in work hostile to the Allies' interests.

In the early part of 1918, circumstances permitted of the 10th Cruiser Squadron being considerably reduced in numbers, and vessels so engaged being allocated to Convoy Protection Duty, the "Alsatian" figuring amongst the number and being stationed on the North Atlantic route in such capacity. While so engaged she escorted nine convoys of about 20 vessels each, carrying an estimated number of troops per convoy of 30,000, principally Americans.

While engaged on Convoy Escort duties the "Alsatian" also carried troops and cargo, the number of former per voyage being about 600, and the weight of cargo per voyage between 2,000 and 3,000 tons. She made her last voyage on Government Service in November, 1918, sailing from Liverpool on the 14th, and re-docked at that port on December 11th, 1918, having steamed a total distance on Government Service of 266,741 miles and consumed 170,571 tons of coal.

On January 17th, 1919, she left for Glasgow, having been placed in the hands of her Builders—Messrs. Beardmore & Co.—by the Admiralty for reconditioning, being redelivered to the C.P.O.S. at the Port of Liverpool on Thursday, September 25th, and sailed for Quebec on Friday, September 26th.

Captain Outram, her captain when war broke out, was given the rank of Commander R.N.R., and acted in that capacity, which was of an advisory nature, under both Vice-Admiral Sir Dudley R. S. De Chair, K.C.B., M.V.O., and Admiral Sir Reginald G. Tupper, K.C.B., C.V.O., and was granted the D.S.O. for services rendered, being succeeded by Captain Cook at the same time as Admiral Tupper was succeeded by Rear-Admiral C. W. Keighley Peach. Captain Cook was appointed Flag Captain, and granted a commission as Captain R.N.R., and now commands the vessel.

VISCOUNT FRENCH HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Canadian Press:

DUBLIN, Dec. 19—An attempt was made at one o'clock this afternoon to assassinate Viscount French, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. Lord French was driving near the Vice-Regal Lodge when a shot was fired, which instantly killed a civilian nearby. A policeman was wounded.

Several shots are said to have been fired by Lord French's assailants, but none were effective, and the military present promptly returned the fire, one of the assailants falling dead. Ambulances were immediately rushed to the scene. Information gathered indicated that the assassins fired from a field while the Vice-Regal party were passing. The first shot fell in front of the Vice-Regal car and the second entered the side of the car, another piercing the back. A cyclist policeman acting as escort was hit in the foot.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J.—Jewelry valued at $1,000, wrapped in a sheet and thrown out of a window from the Bowker Apartment House yesterday during the fire in the Oceanic Hotel, was restored to its owner through a photograph placed with the gems.

Edward Wilson, former superintendent of the Chelsea postoffice, recognized the photo as a likeness of Mrs. Margaret Wilson, a tenant in the Bowker Apartments.

TWO VACANCIES NORWOOD COUNCIL

There will be at least two vacancies on the Norwood Village Council to fill— Councillor T. H. Elliott having removed to Peterborough and Councillor C. I. Puffet, on account of ill health, has been advised to spend some time in the south and expects to leave after Christmas. The other three —Reeve B. W. Squire and Councillors W. H. Montgomery and J. R. McKelvie, are, we understand, not averse to serving for another year. The ratepayers should get busy and look for a couple of good men to fill the two vacancies. Mr. C. E. Pakenham has been mentioned for one of these and it is said he is not unwilling to serve for 1920. Mr. T. E. Finlay's name is also mentioned. If these two men will agree to stand we are sure the ratepayers of the village will be pleased, as the coming year will be a very important one on account of the Hydro-Electric question.—Norwood Register.

REEVE SQUIRE AGAIN MENTIONED FOR WARDENSHIP

(Norwood Register.)

Reeve George Nicholls, of Smith, Reeve W. Griffith of Belmont, are spoken of as likely candidates for the Wardenship of the County next year.

The Peterborough Examiner also calls attention to the fact that none of the Council have a better claim to the Wardenship that Reeve Squire, of Norwood, based on his length of service and experience.

FIND BEAUTY IN EXERCISE

Work in Garden or House Is One the Best Means of Attaining a Graceful Figure.

The woman who would be graceful must exercise. As the two essentials in the quest for grace and beauty are fresh air and exercise, seek them in the garden. There is nothing better for the muscles of the back, shoulders and arms than to loosen the earth about the plants with a rake or hoe.

The constant bending forward and straightening up the body from the waist is an exercise that the seeker for beauty should take frequently. Housework also is an invaluable aid to beauty, and the woman who is without a maid will find her tasks far more interesting if she realizes that they will increase her good looks.

For instance, washing window will develop the arms and strength on the muscles of the back and chest. Sweeping and dusting produce the same excellent results, while reaching high to dust pictures and a plate rail with a long-handled brush, will do much toward improving your figure.

As you go through your house pick up threads, instead of using a brush or carpet sweeper, and you will find that soon you will be reduced to youthful slenderness. With these thoughts in mind, you will cease to grumble of complain about having to do housework, for there is much consolation in the thought that it is helping you along the road to beauty and grace.—Exchange.

TUNIC FROCK FOR YOUNG GIRL

Of Velvet or Taffeta With Distinctive Touches That Will Please the Youthful Wearer.

Designing styles for the young girl is largely a matter of adapting the simple modes of the grown-up to the more youthful figure. A season of draped effect in women's frocks usually finds an echo of some sort in the garments turned out for members of the younger generation, and the coming season will prove no exception. Straight-line garments, draperies, and tunics have all been approved for women, and certainly straight-line chemise or smock styles and tunics are being equally strongly favored in the dresses developed for girls of ten years and over.

Seen recently was a smart little tunic dress that may be made of wool material, of velvet or of taffeta. It would be exceptionally smart made of taffeta in navy, with narrow double fringe in contrasting color outlining the neck and the side closing. Buttons matching the fringe also give a trimming touch. The sash ends are also finished with fringe. If made of velvet or serge the sash may be omitted and a wide crushed girdle caught with an ornamental buckle substituted for it.

CAPE IDEA FOR FALL

Paris has indorsed the cape, and it will be prominent in the fall fashions. This frock is sand taffeta with black satin stripes and the cape is of black satin lined with sand georgette.

MODISH IDEAS.

The godet basque appears on some of the very latest skirts.

The Greek sandal is so popular that it is worn on the street.

Little helmet hats are trimmed with lace and strings of beads.

Taffeta hats in mushroom shapes are excellent for country wear.

The wide tucks of skirts are sometimes made to stand up like cuffs.

For traveling a taffeta coat which covers one entirely is useful.

Some long silk tunics come within two inches of the foundation skirt.

With Black.

There is a movement to revive the black lace blouse posed over a white silk lining.

Black and gray is demureness itself. But take a black satin frock and give it a deep bertha of gray net and put frills of the same gray net at the short elbow sleeves and you have an effect that is delightfully quaint and feminine.

Depreciation of Machinery.

Did you ever think of the relation of the farmer's bank account to the tool shed? Machinery depreciates faster in the weather than it does in use. The time saved by having a rust-free implement will soon pay for the shed.

SAYS POLICE CO-OPERATED WITH BURGLARS IN THEFTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.— Theft of hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of goods, planned by burglars in active co-operation with policemen, have been executed in the past six months in Brooklyn, District Attorney Lewis asserted to-day in a statement declaring that Patrolman Herman Crouse instigated a $12,000 robbery of a manufacturing furrier's plant on November 30. Crouse and Peter Rueger, another policeman, were arrested yesterday in connection with this theft.

The rarest of all precious woods is said to be the calamander, a tree which grows in Ceylon, where it is held in reverent awe. The wood is beautifully mottled in veining when polished but its almost priceless value is due a great deal to its rarity. At one time the trees were quite plentiful in Ceylon, but only a comparatively few specimens now remain and all these are numbered and jealously guarded by the government.

DOCTOR WAS FINED

An interesting case was heard before Magistrate Dumble this morning. Dr. Haggie, of Brampton, was fined $30.00, and costs, amounting in all to $40.40, for running into William J. Northey on the Lakefield Road on the morning of 14th November.

Northey was working at the front of his car, and when he went around to the other side, he was struck by Dr. Haggie's car.

HE APPROVED RUSS SOVIET, ADVOCATED ITS FORM OF GOVT.

DEFENDANT AT WINNIPEG TRIAL SAYS THAT ALL WORKERS ARE "SLAVES" —THERE ARE TWO CLASSES, EXPLOITERS AND EXPLOITED.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 19.—Approval of the Russian Soviet system of Government was expressed by R. B. Russell, charged with seditious conspiracy in a statement made under cross-examination at his trial yesterday. He said that he had advocated it as the only acceptable form of Government.

In answer to a question, he stated that all workers were "slaves" and that those who did not realize their class position in society were "idiots." There were, he said, only two classes: the exploiters and the exploited.

The accused underwent a gruelling cross-examination by A. J. Andrews, K.C., senior counsel for the Crown. During his examination by Mr. J. E. Bird in the early part of yesterday's session, he denied the allegation in the indictment that he was responsible for the strike.

Cross-examined by Mr. Andrews, for the Crown, R. B. Russell, one of the defendants, admitted that he voted in favor of the motion to call a general strike and that he took a very active part in the Trades and Labor Council. He stated that he believed in general strikes under the system existing in craft unions.

Mr. Andrews put in as an exhibit a copy of the ballot taken for the sympathetic strike, and read from the Western Labor News the report of a speech made by R. J. Johns in which he spoke to the effect that blood-shed had appeared in Germany, that fighting was going on in this country with ideas, and soon would be conducted with rifles. The witness said these words had never been uttered by Johns, who had subsequently objected to the Labor paper's report.

What Judge Says.

Mr. Justice Metcalfe pointed out that it had been shown by the Crown that the Trades and Labor Council was responsible for the Western Labor News which had been means of carrying on propaganda. In this way it was evidence against the accused.

Another article read by Mr. Andrews from the paper stated that the Reds and moderates of the Trades Council were fighting, and Mr. Russell said that William Ivens, editor, was one of the so-called moderates; and that there was always a fight going on between opposing factions.

The witness admitted that he had made a tudy of Socialism and he considered that the Bolsheviki in Russia had the only workable system. He said the strike in Winnipeg differed materially from that in Seattle and there had been no attempt to model after the Seattle affair.

RELIGIOUS THEMES AND THOUGHTS

GOD SAVE THE PEOPLE.

When wilt Thou save the people?
O God of mercy, when?
Not kings alone, but nations!
Not thrones and crowns, but men!
Flowers of Thy heart, O God, are they;
Let them not pass like weeds away—
Their heritage a sunless day.
God save the people.

Shall crime bring crime for ever,
Strength aiding still the strong?
Is it Thy will, O Father,
That men shall toil for wrong?
"No," say Thy mountains; "No," Thy skies;
Man's clouded sun shall brightly rise,
And songs ascend instead of sighs.
God save the people

When wilt Thou save the people?
O God of mercy, when?
The people, Lord, the people—
Not thrones and crowns, but men?
God save the people. Thine they are,
Thy children as Thine angels fair;
From vice, oppression, and despair,
God save the people

E. ELLIOTT.

THE WORLD A GIFT FOR CHRIST.

The little boy of heavenly birth,
And far from home to-day,
Comes down to find his ball, the earth,
Which sin had cast away.
O! brothers, let us one and all
Join in to get him back his ball.

Here is the sublime end which the whole process of spiritual nurture has in view: "I will write my laws, not across the skies, nor on table of stone, nor in the line of action prompted by the evil doing of others. I wil write my laws upon their hearts, and I will put my truth in the inward parts."

The purpose which God has in mind is the gradual development of steadfast, dependable moral personality within, to which all the interests of conduct may be safely committed. The special action suited to each situation may then be left to the high determination of that inner life. Out of your own heart are the issues of life, and not from the chance provocations of those who may act as your enemies. We become morally free and spiritually efficient only as we rise above petty rules and maxims, made to fit special occasions. We become morally free only as we rise above the current practices of society. We become morally free only when we have our own standards of action within.

Jesus dealt with men, not according to their immediate desserts, but according to their needs and according to the redemptive purpose He cherished on their behalf; and because He furnished His own high standards of action, His life became morally efficacious beyond any other life in history.—From "The Master's Way."

I AM WITH THEE.

Where the many toil together, there am I among My own;
Where the tired workman sleepeth, there am I with him alone;
I, the Peace that passeth knowledge dwell amid the daily strife;
I, the Bread of Heaven, am broken in the sacrament of life.
Every task, however simple, sets the soul that does it free;
Every deed of love and mercy done to man is done to Me.
Nevermore thou needest seek Me—I am with thee everywhere;
Raise the stone and thou shalt find Me; cleave the wood and I am there.

.... Dr. Henry Vandyke.

Buy in Home Town Is Economy

By E. M. Trowern, Secretary, Dominion Executive Council, the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, Ottawa.

If a city or town is good enough to live in, and good enough to take a salary from, it should be good enough to buy in. If the teachers, the preachers, the professors, the firemen, the policemen and the civic servants want increased salaries, the short direct route to bring about that desired end is to keep the money circulating in the home town. If all the money in Canada ever got into the hands of one or two men, business in general would stagnate. The proper and healthy condition is to have money circulated so that everyone will, through his or her industry, get some of it.

The first expectation of a producer is to be able to sell his crop after it has been grown. To sell it he must have customers, with money, who are able to buy it. The further the producer is away from the consumer the more the transportation costs. Farms near thriving towns and cities are more valuable than those which are isloated in the backwoods. The best way to make backwoods farms valuable is to buy in the cities and towns near them.

Co-operation Counts

Prosperous cities and towns are built up through proper co-operation between retail merchants and their customers. They must work together The customer requires the retail merchant, and the retail merchants requires the customer. If customers send all their money away to mail order houses for staple goods and expect the corner store to live on the sale of lamp chimneys, eggs and coal oil they will awakes some day to find the little store closed. Goods when you want them and where you want them are worth more than goods thousands of miles away. Ten cents' worth of toothache gum in the corner drug store in the home town is worth more to a suffering child with an aching tooth than ten tons of the same article in Hong Kong, China.

A Double Mission

Retail merchants endeavour to locate in places where they are required. They have a double mission to perform; they buy goods to suit their customers and they expect to make a living by selling and caring for them. The better service a retail merchant gives his customers the better business he should receive in return. The service should be mutual and the customer should be equally anxious to see that the retail stores in his city or town succeed.

The statement that by buying through mail order houses you are saving the middleman's profit on all you buy is only a glaring deception, to say nothing whatever about the question of lack of loyalty to your home town. Let us follow the process and see if less labor is required. A person living in a town, and whose position depends upon the prosperity of the town, receives a catalogue. In order that the said catalogue should reach the person the following process must take place.

1. The catalogue is designed.
2. Printed.
3. Cuts made.
4. Delivered to the mail order house office.
5. Addresses secured.
6. Catalogue wrapped up and addressed.
7. Stamped.
8. Placed in the mail bag.
9. Mail bag taken to the station.
10. Carried on the train.
11. Taken off the train.
12. Taken to the Post Office.
13. Delivered to the customer in the town.
14. The customer spends time reading it over and selects an article.
15. Writes a letter.
16. Secures Post Office Order, or encloses the cash and takes the risk.
17. The postmaster enters it up and puts it in the mail bag.
18. The mail driver takes it to the station.
19. Mail clerk in charge of the train delivers it at the other end.
20. Post Office delivery wagon clerk delivers it to the Post Office.
21. Postal clerk checks it and sorts it ready for the postman.
22. Postman delivers it to the mail order house.
23. Mail order house clerk opens the letter.
24. The book-keeper credits the cash.
25. The order clerk selects the order.
26. Stenographer acknowledges the receipt.
27. The shipping clerk mails away the order.
28. The postal clerk sorts it out for the mail delivery.
29. Places it on the train.
30. Mail clerk takes it off the train.
31. Delivers it to the local Post Office.
32. The underpaid postmaster delivers it either direct to the customer or gives it to the rural mail delivery service that is costing Canada a large sum of money to mostly benefit mail order houses.
33. The customer receives the article, and after a careful examination finds that he or she could have bought a better article in the home town by keeping the cash in local circulation.

No Economy

No sane person could say that there is any economy in that system of doing business, especially when fourteen transactions out of the thirty-three are made by the Government mail order service at less than cost price, thus benefiting the mail order house proprietors at the expense of the whole people of Canada.

True economy and sound patriotism, therefore, call upon every loyal citizen of Canada to patronize his home town and keep the wheels of commerce moving in the direction in which most persons can be mutually benefited.

MRS. REDMAN DENIED THAT SHE PROPOSED TO BOWLER

Was there no undertaking on his part to send it?—No, he never said anything until his letter came saying he was giving it to me. He told me to spend it as I got it, to send my little girl to school, to buy a piano, and give her music lessons.

Marriage Wasn't Mentioned.

When was the first time he asked you to marry him?—He never asked me.

When did you ask him? — I never asked him.

Nothing said between you?—Nothing.

On any occasion?—No.

Defendant smiled a denial of Mr. Dunmitt's statement that she had got down on her knees and begged Dunmitt to marry her. He had asked her several times to marry him.

Mr. Hall—The suggestion was made that you knew Bowler in January, 1918?—I don't think so.

Was there any truth in what Dunmitt said of Vass joking you about Bowler?—No.

Defendant said she always thought Bowler knew she was married. He had seen her and her child together.

She sold the automobile to Albert Vass last June for $250, because she didn't want it any longer and had no use for it.

Said She Was a Widow.

Mr. Gordon, in cross-examination—You gave your status as a widow when the bill of sale was made out?

"I must have said it," she replied when Mr. Gordon indicated the word in the document.

Why did you say in Bowler's presence you were a widow if you were not?—I don't remember.

What explanation have you to offer to His Honour for this?—I think I always called myself that.

As a matter of fact, you are a married woman?—Yes.

And were when you met Timothy Bowler?—Yes.

Mr. Gordon—Well, we'll leave it there.

What did you mean when you wrote to Bowler in Toronto asking about a job and to be near him? — I don't know.

Why did you close that letter with the word sweetheart on July 22nd, 1919?—I used to do it.

Did you think that proper conduct for a married woman addressing a single man?—That didn't enter my mind.

Has Victory Bond Left.

Mrs. Redman said that of the assigned pay, savings and automobile money, she had left a $50 Victory Bond and $50 paid on a piano.

Mr. Gordon began to probe into how Mrs. Redman spent the money Mr. Vass paid her for the car.

She replied that she couldn't remember.

"If we sit here until New Year's we've got to find out what you did with that money," Judge Huycke animadverted. "It's impossible for a woman like you, earning three dollars a week, to get rid of all that money and know nothing about it."

Bought in Toronto.

Following this point, Mr. Gordon drew up a list of bills enumerated by Mrs. Redman. The amounts were indefinite. There was a bill to Dr. Harvey and another to Mr. Hatton, both amounts forgotten by defendant. She made two shopping trips to Toronto. On September 1st, after Bowler's writ was issued, she bought from her sister in Toronto a dress for $20, a set of furs for $25, boots $10, sweater at $4 or $5, and so on.

Mrs. Redman said her sister lived on Christie Street, near the hospital, in Toronto. She wasn't certain of the address, but thought it was 23.

Regarded Money As Hers.

To Judge Huycke, defendant said she had spent the money because she thought it was hers.

"You couldn't have been sure after receiving the writ, whatever you thought before that," remarked His honour.

Touching upon the use of her automobile, Mrs. Redman said it was kept in a barn at Vass's. Mr. Vass had a garage for his own car.

She denied that Mr. Vass drove to work every morning in it. She left it there because she had no place to put it. When she was working in the city she used to go out to Vass's nearly every night in the summer and was driven home in it.

Of the many drives she had in the car she was alone with Mr. Vass about twelve times.

Judge Huycke—When did Vass pay you for the car?—About July 1st last.

Mr. Gordon (reading)—On a previous examination you said you didn't know when you got the money; and also that it was after Bowler asked for a settlement.

Judge Huycke—Was there any reason why he should give you all this money?—He said I was alone in the world and so was he, and he would leave it to me before anybody else.

Mr. Hatton—There's no crime in taking money voluntarily given.

Judge Huycke—I'm not sure it was given.

Married Thirteen Years Ago.

Mrs. Redman said she was married thirteen years ago. Her husband left her two years later. She didn't know where he was.

Mr. Hatton—Did Bowler ever ask you if you were a married woman?—No, he never did.

Mr. Hatton—What did you do at Vass's when you went out in the evenings?—I sat and talked with them or worked in the garden if they were workin.g

Albert Vass.

The co-defendant, Albert Vass, was examined by his solicitor, Mr. Hall.

He recalled an occasion when Bowler visited him after being arrested for not carrying his military papers.

"Bowler said he was through with Blodgetts, because they didn't get him out of the police station sooner. He said he was going to give his car to Mrs. Redman."

Mr. Hall—What else was said?—He said he didn't get a square deal from Blodgett, that he had paid for a milk route, and that there was some back wages and that he paid $25 to try to get exemption.

Who were present when Bowler said he would give her the car?—My wife and the children and myself.

Was there any suggestion of marriage?—No, none.

Mr. Vass said he never knew Bowler had money in the bank until after Mrs. Redman got it.

One night Bowler, Mrs. Redman and Mr. and Mrs. Vass had supper in a Chinese restaurant, after a motor trip to Buckhorn.

"Bowler was again in the mood to give her the car," defendant said. "but he said nothing about his money in the bank or of his assigned pay."

Mr. Vass declared that he had never said anything to induce Bowler to give Mrs. Redman his car or anything else.

"When Bowler returned from overseas, in May or June, he seemed to be as contented as when he went away. I never knew he claimed the car until I got a letter from Gordon and O'Brien on July 2nd."

Mr. Hall brought out that Mr. Vass had traded the Ford car to Mr. Gillespie on July 3rd.

What did you do in consequence of receiving that letter?—I went to see Mr. Gordon and told him what we were going to do. He said he had 500 veterans at his back and a case of conspiracy, and that I'd better get busy and see a lawyer."

UNITED FARMERS GROWING PAINS ARE QUICKLY SQUELCHED

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, Dec. 19.—The United Farmers of Ontario had a severe growing pain at their general meeting in the Labor Temple to-day and only strong medicine by the leaders quickly applied, prevented an outbreak of serious trouble. The matter, it may be prophesied, has only been postponed and will call for considerable discussion in the future.

The words "disintigrate" and "sectional" were thrown about during the crisis, which so swiftly arose and was so quickly swamped.

The matter was precipitated by the following resolution moved by Daniel Hogan of Perth, and seconded by S. J. McDonald, of Stormont, that:

"The U.F.O. and the Co-operative Company take the earliest opportunity to establish an eastern headquarters at some central or eastern point."

A delegate who earlier had shown a disposition to put forward special claims for the northern part of the province in the necessity for paying the county directors, A. R. Ascoe, of Rainy River, immediately moved that it be amended by adding the words: "And further, a district office for the north."

"What about the west?" was the cry that rose from all parts of the hall.

A. A. Powers pointed out that it was only an "office" in the east that was sought. He explained that there was no desire on the part of anyone to disintegrate the movement.

This ended the matter. W. E. Amos, Vice-President, who was in the chair, put the resolution to the meeting. "All in favour?" he asked. There was not a move. "All against?" Practically every hand shot up.

Flowers for Home Decoration.

What could possibly be lovelier than one or two pond lilies floating in a transparent china or glass bowl? Of course you must use a leaf and bud in such a composition. Every woman that loves to decorate her home knows intuitively the arrangement of flowers that will make her house the most beautiful. Every one of us that has the slightest love for the beautiful interprets this desire in our own individual way when it comes to selecting jars to hold our posies and the placing of them filled. We must each one express our own artistic impulse in our own way and if we love our flowers we will know how to arrange them.

India Raises Most Cattle.

Contrary to popular opinion, the United States is not the world's greatest cattle country. India has one hundred million more than America, though America is second, and there are twenty-nine countries that have more than two millions each.

In the last thirty-three years Guernseys led by far all other breeds in numbers of pure-bred cattle imported into this country, and of the five breeds leading the importations four were distinctly dairy types.

More than 8,750 Guernsey cattle were imported; Jerseys ranked second in number, with Durhams, including Shorthorns, third; Holsteins fourth, and Ayrshires fifth. The volume of pure-bred cattle importations has been extremely variable

Canadian Resourcefulness.

The recent British railway strike brought out a smart piece of Canadian resource and organization at Buxton depot. On Saturday, October 4, 600 men were to join the Belgic at Liverpool and a special train had been arranged for Saturday morning, but on Friday evening it was cancelled. Col. Hanson, commander, and his staff, not to be beaten, however, began to organise a road transport, and, with the assistance of Capt. Smythe, of a local volunteer detachment, it was all fixed up in four hours from Manchester and London. By Saturday morning the lorries were all on hand. Saturday evening brought news that the last man was aboard the Belgic. At a civic farewell ceremony at Buxton, Col. Hanson planted a maple tree commemorating the Canadians' long and intimate association with the town.

DUMMER TOWNSHIP COUNCIL WILL ERECT A MEMORIAL TO SOLDIERS

COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO LOOK INTO THE MATTER—WARSAW NEWS OF INTEREST.

WARSAW, Dec. 18.—At a meeting of the Council of the Municipality of Dummer, held on Oct. 24th, 1919, a committee of eight members was appointed to carry out the work of erecting a memorial in memory of the soldiers of the municipality who fell in the great war.

At a meeting of this committee held in the town hall, it was—

Resolved, that to meet the desire of those who wish to make voluntary contributions in aid of the memorial, subscription lists be opened at the Post Office, Warsaw, and at other convenient places in the municipality, and that any further amount which may be necessary to complete the work be provided by a levy by Council on the whole municipality.

This committee of eight met again last Wednesday to examine photographs of monuments and to confer with a wholesale dealer. No definite order was placed, as no wholly suitable designs were presented. What was considered suitable was discussed, and blue-prints and prices will be seen shortly.

No one will be asked to contribute, but an opportunity is given to all to do so, and the smallest number will be gladly received. It is felt that some who are paying no, or very small taxes, would like to contribute, as well as those who pay heavy taxes. The money need not be paid until about the end of March. Mrs. Ed. Hamblin, Mrs. Garfield Crowe, Mrs. Ivy, Mr. Robson, Mrs. Geo. Barr and Mr. A. F. Choate have subscription lists and will be very glad to get subscriptions from as many as possible.

Girls' Club.

The Girls' Club held their last meeting of the year at Mrs. D. Miller's home on Friday. A good number of girls and some mothers were present. This gathering was more of a social nature than usual. Miss Emma Batten gave an instrumental selection, Miss Cressa Crowe read "Peter of the World," Mrs. Miller gave a little talk on "Home Etiquette," Mrs. Ed. Hamblin had been voted director in place of Mrs. Gurriffe, who returned to Toronto, but she was unable to be present. The girls brought sandwiches, and cake and coffee was provided. After lunch the gathering dispersed, to meet again at the home of Mrs. Robert on Friday afternoon, Jan. 9th, 1920, at 2.30 o'clock, when it is expected Miss Dewart will give her talk on "Domestic Science."

Women's Institute.

The Warsaw Women's Institute held its regular meeting on Thursday. Two other unexpected and unavoidable gatherings on that day prevented as large an attendance as should have been. There was some business done, but the feature of the afternoon was Mrs. Robert Moore's report of the convention in Toronto, to which she was deleagte. Mrs. Moore is very enthusiastic. She had the photo of the convention, taken outside the Technical school, where the convention was held. One point which appealed to Mrs. Moore was that it was necessary that all should be promptly on time.

Church Services.

The regular Baptist services were conducted by a student. The Baptists are not getting up any Christmas entertainments this year.

The Methodists had their usual Sunday services, Sunday school in the morning and preaching service in the evening. Their Christmas tree this year will just be a social gathering of those interested in the Sunday school, with a programme and candies, etc., for the children.

The Presbyterian Sunday school also is just planning a social evening for Sunday school and friends, with a little programme by the children, distribution of candies, prizes and diplomas.

Rev. Hugh Brown conducted the services morning and evening. Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed in that church on Sunday, Jan. 4th at the morning service.

Regular services were held in St. Mark's.

Heart Disease and Nerve Troubles Sweep the Country

Probably at no period in the world's history have heart and nerve troubles been so prevalent as they are to-day.

The heart can't stand the stress and strain of this busy, bustling age, and the care and worry, the anxiety and activity of business life constitute a serious drain on the nervous system.

The business of this work-a-day world goes with such a rush that the stoutest hearts and strongest nerves break down under the strain.

On the first approach of any breakdown of the system Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills should be taken. The reconstructive power of these pills on the heart and nerve system is simply marvellous.

Mr. W. A. Wright, Hopewell Ave., Ottawa, Ont., writes:—"After suffering for some time with my heart, I consulted a number of doctors, but got no relief. However, I read what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills had done for others, who had the same symptoms and thought I would give them a trial. Believe me, six boxes cured me completely. I am feeling fine now, and can attend to my work every day. I can recommend your pills to any one suffering as I did."

LOST WITHOUT A TRACE.

Mystery Ship Went Down In Lake Erie.

The graves of the freighters which go down in the storms of the Great Lakes are not always undisturbed, and the sandy bottoms of Erie and Ontario do not always become the last resting place of the ill-fated vessels which fall prey to the gales. Even when boats are lost without a trace to show where they sank it is not infrequently that they are discovered by chance and raised to further usefulness by the application of science on the part of engineers and energy on the part of the great wrecking companies of the lakes. Such is likely to be the case with the lost car ferry Marquette and Bessemer II, which after ten years on the bottom of Lake Erie is now believed to have been located.

Ever since the Bessemer disappeared in the storm of 1909 there has been a continuous search for her. The ferry is a steel built vessel several hundred feet in length, and of modern construction. If salvaged in fairly good condition with her cargo of many cars of coal she would be a prize well worth the effort of a long search, and consequently an effort has been made to locate her.

At various times reports have been given credence to the effect that the last resting place of the great car ferry had been discovered, but every time this was proved to be wrong. On the night that the Bessemer disappeared she was seen off the harbor of Port Stanley, trying repeatedly to gain entrance. Each time, however, she was carried to the south by the terrible gale, her siren sounding the distress signal as she disappeared in the storm.

Fishermen and villagers gathered at the pierhead to watch the repeated efforts of the coal boat to get through the harbor mouth. Late at night she disappeared to the southwest for the last time, and soon afterwards her signals of distress were heard no longer. In the morning she was gone from the lake, and not a board or rope ever gave evidence of where she sank. Not a survivor ever appeared, nor was a body ever recovered. The mystery of the vessel's disappearance was relegated to the long list of similar mysteries of the Great Lakes, and after a time it ceased to be a matter of wonder.

Then came the efforts to locate the hulk. From Port Stanley dredging boats and search parties went out in every direction to try to find where the wreck lay. The bottom for miles around the port was literally combed without result. Farther out the vessels went and continued their cruisings for years. A few months ago a plan was proposed by which an airman should fly over the lake and make observations where he could see bottom, and in this way try to find the Bessemer. The plan was given up after the first two hours' flight, and the searchers went back to their tugs and grapnels.

A few days ago while cruising between Port Stanley and Rondeau, Capt. Stevens, on one of the tugs of the Midland Steamship Company, picked up a bit of wreckage from a considerable depth of water, which he believed to be from the hull of a boat. Investigation indicated that a vessel of some kind lay below, but further efforts failed to bring up any evidence of the name of the lost ship. A spar and rope that finally came to view seemed to suggest that the hulk was not that of the Bessemer, and it was agreed by many that it would be either the Mereda or the Colgate, sister ships lost on Lake Erie in the September storm of 1917. However, such was the distance between places where bits of wreckage appeared, that it was concluded that a bigger boat than either the Mereda or the Colgate lay below. Nothing was left to believe, then, but that the Bessemer was found, and accordingly Capt. Stevens called in the other tugs and left for Toronto.

The next step will be the bringing of diving apparatus to the scene, which has been carefully marked. It is probable that after a couple of descents to the wreck, the diver will be able to state definitely what vessel it is that the searchers have located.

The announcement that the Bessemer is probably found after her long uncharted residence with Davy Jones has roused the greatest interest in lake ports everywhere. The story of the big car-ferry had been a tradition widely known, and word of her discovery was on the lips of sailormen from Port Colborne to the Soo.

There are other wrecks of the lakes that have defied discovery, and nearly every port has a story of some freighter which foundered off that part of the coast with all hands. There was the Chas. S. Price, too, the "mystery ship" which finally floated after being under the surface for days, then keeled over again and sank for good just when the divers were beginning to get in their work on her. There was the Wexford, a victim of Black Friday, like the Price, which went down somewhere off Goderich and never sent a silver ashore to indicate her whereabouts.

FRENCH SYNDICATE MAKE OFFER FOR HEAVY BOUT

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 17.—A French athletic syndicate headed by Theodore Vienne, has offered Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, $200,000 and 25 per cent. of moving picture revenue, estimated at $50,000 more, for a match with Georges Carpentier in Paris.

This information was contained in a cablegram to Ben F. Steinel, Milwaukee, Vienne's representative in this country. Steinel has wired the offer to Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager.

BURY HATCHET BENEATH CIVIC CHRISTMAS TREE

KITCHENER PUBLIC BODIES PLAN FOR COMMUNITY SANTA CLAUS.

KITCHENER, Dec. 19.—As an indication that in spite of the disturbances in the city two weeks ago there is no lack of harmony here, the entire community is going to unite around a mammoth civic Christmas tree during the holidays. All private and public organizations are meeting for joint action in connection with the great Christmas program planned here. The tree will be erected in the market square and laden with gifts. Every child in the city will receive a gift and a special Santa Claus committee will have charge of distributing gifts to all patients in the local hospital. The orphans of both the Catholic and Protestant orphanages, the soldiers at the Freeport military hospital, and the old people at the house of refuge.

The Christmas tree will be the main feature of the get-together campaign in this city. The campaign is gathering momentum and it is expected by those who are assisting the movement that Christmas in Kitchener will see the burial of the hatchet for all time.

EDINBURGHS BEAT THE GLASGOWS

RETURN GAME RESULTED IN A CLOSE FINISH OF 22 TO 20.

The excitement ran high Wednesday night in the Woodmen of World Hall, when the Scotsmen met to do usual business. The committee reminded the memebrs to obtain their tickets for Hogmanay celebration before 28th Dec. Some new members were admitted to the club.

The rest of the evening was spent in games and bowling, more particularly the Glasgow and Edinburgh game was the attraction. Glasgow in the first seven end was leading 10 to 6, then Edinburgh came up again until the both were standing at 17-17. Now Glasgow made a determined effort to win the game by getting 3 in third last end; eventually Edinburgh made it 20 straight. The excitement was again great, as they were now playing twenty-third end, when Edinburgh got 2, making the total score—Edinburgh 22, Glasgow 20. Vice-President Bob Henry presented the skip, Mr. Alex. McArthur, with the handsome prize.

Edinburgh team—Alex. Hardie, Ed. Hardie, Tom McArthur and Alex. McArthur (skip.)

Glasgow team— Tom Smith, Bob Elliot, Alex. Dick and John Smith (skip.)

The president announced that Mr. Lawson, Heinteman Hall, had presented to the Club three handsome prizes to be competed for by members of the Club, owners or prospective owners of gramaphones, so now, fellow members here is your opportunity to spend a pleasant evening.

At the close of the proceedings refreshments were served, under the able supervision of Ed. Hardie and Bill Young.

CHEESE VALUES MAINTAINED

While prices are maintained in the cheese division of the Toronto product market, there is a tendency to shade prices in order to do business and the quotation of 31½c for large cheese sold to retailers is one that will be reduced to 31c in some cases where the purchase order is large enough. Twins and triplets sell at a ½c advance in each case above the price for large.

Shopping Aids for the Puzzled Person

If you walk about this store our show cases and shelves are bound to help you solve the gift problem

WE ARE NOW APPROACHING THE FINAL STAGES of the Christmas season and we are mistaken if there are not thousands of people who have not yet determined what to purchase. To aid these people to make a decision we have enumerated several items below. They were selected from our various departments because during the past few days we have found that they are greatly in demand by the woman who is buying Christmas gifts.

There will be music in the Tea Room to-morrow afternoon from 4 to 5.30, and every afternoon at the same time until Christmas. Mr. O. Glidden, Pianist; Mr. Buck, Violinist.

1847 ROGERS BROS. SILVERWARE.

We cannot picture anyone being ill-pleased because their Gift took the form of Silverware, and especially if it is "1847 Rogers Bros." The plate itself is above criticism, and the designs are such that anyone who appreciates art cannot take exception to the dignified pattern. The efficiency of this company in making Silverware is the result of years of experience, and on many of the most notable occasions during the last 70 years their products have graced the tables. This is one of our New Departments located on the Fourth Floor.

Dainty Lingerie! Beloved by Womankind

VESTS, COMBINATIONS, AND KNICKERS

They are made of Pink Italian Glove Silk, and the yoke is outlined with Silk Feather-stitched Beading. The price is $4.75.

Others in Crepe de Chine and Wash Satins, priced at $2.98 $4.50, and $5.50.

Pink Silk Knickers to match, with elastic at the knees and waist. Prices $3.95, $4.50, $4.95, and $5.50.

Combinations at $7.50.

GOWNS

Flesh Crepe de Chine is employed in the making. The style is Empire and the yoke is tucked in cross-bars and trimmed with a wreath of Ribbon Knots. The shoulder straps are edged with Pink Satin. Price $12.00.

White Satin Gowns in Empire style; shirred yoke, formed principally of wide Fillet Lace, and the same inserted in the shoulder straps and edging the sleeves. Price $8.25.

CAMISOLES

This handsome number is of Maize Crepe de Chine, and the yoke is a pointed effect, trimmed with pin tucks, hemstitching on the edge, and floral knots of Ribbon in front. Price $4.25. Can also be had in Flesh or White.

Flesh-coloured Crepe de Chine is effectively used for the making of this model. The yoke is formed of alternate rows of Fillet Lace and Crepe, with Embroidered Knots of Baby Blue. The price is $3.50.

Its charm lies in its simplicity. The material is a Wash Satin, and the only relief is a hemstitching at the top and a Pale Blue Ribbon Bow in front. The price, $2.95.

BOUDOIR CAPS

The one we have in mind is Pink Crepe de Chine, and is patterned in cross-bars, with shirred rows of Pale Blue, Pink, and Orchid coloured Baby Ribbon. Price $3.25. The same in Pale Blue.

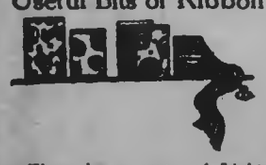
We can offer you a selection of several handsome Boudoir Caps of fine Nets and trimmed with shirrings of Pink and Pale Blue Satin Ribbons. They are all priced at $1.69.

ENVELOPE CHEMISE

The material is Pink Crepe de Chine, and the yoke is of Net and divided in the centre with a bow of Lavender Ribbon. The Lace is daintily touched with Floral Knots of Ribbon, and all the edges are finished with Lace. Price $8.50.

Others from $4.25 to $8.95.

Useful Bits of Ribbon



There is an array of Light Taffeta and Dresden patterns, in Pale Pink, Pale Blue, and Pale Yellow — all are shaded with Pale Green. The widths range from 3 to 5 inches, and the Prices are from 29c to 59c yard.

There is a whole series of Oriental patterns on dark grounds, with shadow effects. They have a misty sort of beauty that will appeal to your artistic taste. They are of Duchess Satin and Taffeta, and range in width from 4 to 7 inches; and are priced from 65c to $1.75.

VETERANS MET LAST EVENING

FEW 1866 WARRIORS ARE LEFT IN PETERBORO.

A very enjoyable re-union of the old men of "'66" was held in the Armouries last evening.

Out of a membership of over seventy some twelve or fourteen is all that are able to answer the roll to-day, as the ranks get depleted from year to year. The good fellowship that has always been manifest grows stronger with the few who are left, and these re-unions of the old comrades of "'66" are very much enjoyed.

Members present: Col. J. W. Miller (President), R. Tivey, J. D Collins, H. Rush, W. C. Bourne, J. McComb, P. Thompson, G. Stenton and R. Sanderson

The following gentlemen were the guests of the evening: Major the Rev. Canon Davidson, Col. Young, Mr. Everett, of the G.W.V.A., and Mr. F. Pratt.

The Veterans feel greatly indebted to these gentlemen, who entertained them during the evening with speech and song.

The Veterans and their guests formed a happy group around the board, and did justice to the good things provided by Mr. T. Hooper. Col. Miller was in his usual happy mood, and gave an excellent address.

Smokes and social chat were indulged in. The singing of the National Anthem brought to a close one of the many re-unions enjoyed by the Veterans of "'66."

POLITICAL CALM NOW PREVAILS

Canadian Press.

OTTAWA, Dec. 19. — The Premier's decision to remain at the head of the government has produced a political calm at the Capital in very marked contrast to the uncertainty and the excitement of the past few days. The effect of the announcement is to restore conditions to an even and more stable basis than existed before it was known that ill-health might compel Sir Robert to retire from public life, because it is generally recognized that not a great deal in the way of cabinet reorganization is to be expected from the Premier under existing circumstances. Sir George Foster being the senior Member of the Privy Council will naturally asume the duties of acting Premier should he desire to do so. With the political situation normal again there is no reason why the calling of the next session should be delayed.

Unionists this moring expressed the opinion that the government will not experience any great dififculty in maintaining a majority in the Commons during the approaching session —they say that there will be no desire on the part of any party or group to precipitate a parliamentary crisis, nevertheless recent events are believed to have materially increased the likelihood of a general election next fall more particularly in th event of Sir Robert Borden not being fully restored to health, and being eventually compelled to permanently retire from public life.

WORLD HAPPENINGS

OFFERED SEATS.

Canadian Press.

TORONTO, December 19. — Edgar Evans, the United Farmer M.P.P.-elect for South Simcoe, has offered to resign his seat to provide one for Premier Drury, it is announced unofficially to-day. It is expected that Mr. Drury will accept his offer.

It is rumoured that John Carty, who was elected in South Renfrew, will step out to make way for Hon. Manning Doherty, the Minister of Agriculture.

ALCOCK DEAD.

Canadian Press.

ROUEN, Decemberj 19. — Captain Sir John Alcock, the first aviator to make the transatlantic airplane flight, died here this afternoon as a result of injuries he received when his airplane crashed yesterday near Cottevrand, Normandy.

Alcock, flying in a water plane, was following the River Seine at the time of the accident, intending to alight on the river opposite the Grand Palace for an aviation exhibition.

SEVERE FIGHTING.

Canadian Press.

LONDON, Dec. 19. — Severe fighting in the vicinity of Narva, on the Esthonian front, where the Bolsheviki broke through the wire defences, and captured several villages, is reported in an official statement, issued by the Soviet government today. The Bolsheviki cavalry is reported to have executed a daring raid on Kremenaspaskai, a hundred miles from Narva, taking numerous prisoners.

FEATURE SPEECH.

Canadian Press.

LONDON, Dec. 19. — The London newspapers make a great feature editorially of the latest and greatest speech of the Prince of Wales which he delivered yesterday at Mansion House after he had been officially welcomed home on behalf of the city of London.

If you wish your children to be respectful to you, then you should be respectful to them. The boys and girls who are spoken to in a harsh, rough tone of voice naturally fall into the habit of responding in the same

OBITUARY

CHARLES McNEIL.

(Millbrook Reporter).

The death of Mr. Charles McNeil on Monday, at the age of 72 years, removes one of the most prominent men of the township of Cavan, and in fact of the United Counties. Deceased was born in the township, the old homestead being still occupied by his brother, Mr. John McNeil, on the 7th Concession, and lived there until some two years ago, when he and his now bereaved widow removed to Millbrook. Successful in his affairs on the farm, our departed citizen was just as fortunate in all his public offices. Twelve years ago, in December, 1907, he laid aside the Warden's gown and vacated the chair of office in the Counties' Council Chambers, Cobourg, with all the dignity and unsullied reputation that ever distinguished an occupant of any office under the gift of his fellow-men or his King. He served well municipally and equally wise and disinterested as president of the Agricultural Society, and also of the Liberal-Conservative Association. Mr. McNeil's schooling was mostly in the sterner class-room of the field and flock, but his clear and retentive mind added to his activity and ambition, made him a self-made man indeed, yet one who was in all things true to his home and country, and may we further add, faithful to his God and King. About ten years ago, he was united in marriage to Miss Noble, of Cobourg, and their married life has been happy indeed, although the shadow of the impending break has darkened Mrs. McNeil's pathway for some months, and every sympathy will be tendered her by all.

There was a large family, all of whom have crossed beyond, except one brother, John, and a sister, Mrs. Fraser, of Whitewood, Man. The brothers were all Sauls in stature, seven of them, it is said, weighing in their prime over a ton. Charles McNeil has gone from amongst us, but his fine sonorous voice, his excellent example and worthy citizenship cannot be obliterated while memory lasts or tongues continue to voice their approbations.

Beautiful, massive wreaths were placed on the casket by the bereaved widow, Mr. John McNeil and family, the Agricultural Society, Cavan Council, and the Masonic Lodge.

The funeral was under the direction of J. B. Hall Lodge A. F. & A. M., to which he was affiliated.

DEMPSEY'S MANAGER WAITING UNTIL PROMOTER'S ARRIVE

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Dec. 17 Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, declared that he would not reach any decision regarding a match in Europe until representatives of French and English promoters, now en-route to the United States, arrived. He asserted that the offer made by Theodore Vienne for a match with Georges Carpentier in Paris, was the result of cable exchanges.

Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion, must feel confident that he is still there with the wallop when he signs to meet Joey Fox, Benny Valger and Johnny Dundee, the three bouts to be pulled off within a period of six weeks.

THE DUMBELLS

"Biff, Bing, Bang," the greatest musical comedy ever written and played by any military organization, and claimed by many to have been the greatest success ever offered to the boys in France, will be the attraction at the Grand on Christmas Day, matinee and evening.

The company presenting this unique unique revue in Canada, was known in France as "The Dumbells," and has a record of over five hundred performances given immediately behind the front lines during the war. After the Armistice they gave forty performances in Brussels for the benefit of the wounded and disabled soldiers and sailors. These performances were under the royal patronage of King Albert of Belgium, who has since presented Capt. M. W. Plunkett and his Dumbells with a medal and address in commemoration of their splendid success. Their only other public appearance before coming to Canada was in London, where they played a month, two weeks of which they appeared in the famous Coliseum, where they played to 91,200 people.

All of the original company, who survived the war ,are now in Canada and their forthcoming appearance here promises to be one of the finest and certainly the most unique and interesting theatrical engagements ever staged in this city.

MONTHLY MEETING WOMEN'S COUNCIL

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES READ AND RECEIVED.

The regular monthly meeting of the Local Council of Women was held yesterday in the Y.W.C.A. at 3.30 p.m., the President, Mrs. Harstone, in the chair. Routine business was covered including reports of outline of the proposed Baby Welfare week, was received from the Provincial Board of Health Bureau, of Child Welfare. Details are not yet complete, nor is the date set. Miss Ralton reported that the matter of the use of films in the schools for educational purposes was under debate by the Department of Publicity of the Bureau of Trade and Commerce.

Mrs. Harstone referred briefly to the first meeting of the Provincial Executive Committee of the N. C. W. held recently in Toronto. This committee deals with matters that are purely Provincial, and only such provincial questions as have been already covered by the platform of the Nation Council of Women.

It was announced that the Allen Theatre was putting on a film for children partly in response to the efforts of the L.C.W. and it was agreed that support should be given by the members. A special film for children will be shown after the New Year.

The Playgrounds

Mrs. Mowat reported for the Playgrounds Committee of the L.C.W. of the Paper and Rag Collection in October and asked that the hearty thanks of the L.C.W. be tendered to Turnbull Co., Richard Hall & Son, Cressman's and the Bonner-Worth, for substantial donations of baled paper. A resolution to this effect was unanimously carried also a resolution thanking Mrs. Mowat and Mrs. Morris "for strenuous work in connection with this semi-annual collection of paper and rags. A resolution from the Home and School Association of Queen Mary's School, asking that L.C.W. re-affirm its stand on the School Board and also endorse the woman condidate standing was received. Mrs. Medd President of the Queen Mary's Home and School Association spoke to the motion. It was made clear that in endorsing a woman candidate for the Board of Education, the members are not entering politics. The Woman School Trustee Movement is in the interest of women and children

The L.C.W. re-affirmed its belief in the usefulness of the woman school trustee and endorsed Mrs. Morris, regretting that, so far, a second woman candidate had not been found.

The President pointed out that having endorsed Mrs. Morris, the vote and influence of the members should be used in her support.

Progress in the Baby Clinic was reported and accomplishment expected early in the new year.

A "WEAR EVER" DEMONSTRATION

A FUEL AND LABOUR SAVER FOR THE BUSY HOUSEKEEPER.

A practical demonstration of the "Wear Ever" aluminum at Turnbull's store this week is attracting most flattering attention and the sales made by Miss Chamberlain, who is in charge, are in keeping with the merits of the utensils she exhibits. The utensils shown cover every need of the modern housekeeper for her model kitchen from a greaseless griddle to a combination roaster, canner and steamer, the latter as well as the former being utensils of unusual usefulness inasmuch as the greaseless griddle makes pancakes without smoke and may be used on an electric plate at the breakfast table, the latter a compact utensil which may be converted into a roaster, bread tins, a steamer for steamed puddings, fowl or preserving, as it holds several quart bottles. In the demonstration, which is given at ten in the morning and three in the afternoon, all the merits of the ware are skilfully and convincingly brought out from the wonderful heat resisting qualities which renders it practically impossible to burn or scorch food, the heating retaining qualities which saves fuel, the absence of joints or seams which makes the utensils absolutely germ proof, and the fact that the ware is proof against forming any poisonous substance such as is found in tin, copper and enamelled wares. Of the hundreds of interested people who have attended the demonstration, one hundred per cent have assured the demonstrator of their entire satisfaction with any of the aluminum utensils they have ever used, and their intention of replacing all saucepans, frying pans, baking dishes, etc., with aluminum in the future.

RUN ENGINE WITH WHIPPED CREAM? CHICAGO CAN DO IT

NEW YORK.—To run engines, using as a fuel olive oil, melted butter or whipped cream may sound absurd, but, according to E. W. Blakeley, of the Society of Automotive Engineers, at the convention of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, this already has been accomplished.

The experiment was accomplished recently with the use of a Hvid engine, invented by R. R. Hvid, of Chicago, and was performed in the presence of five engineers representing the Russian Government.

CHURCH ALTAR ROBBED.

NEW YORK.— After thieves had stolen the candlesticks from the altar, the altar cover and a bell weighing fifty pounds, the Rev. John L. Bedford, rector of the Catholic Church of the Nativity, decided it was time to lock the church.

In a statement issued in answer to complaints that the church was locked between services, Father Bedford announced the precaution was necessary to prevent the thieves "stealing the pews or the organ.

BOOST GOVERNOR'S RENT.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. — Governor Calcin Coolidge, who lives in the same modest two family house which he has occupied here for twenty years, has had his rent boosted $5 a month. He now pays $32 instead of $27. Former Mayor James W. O'Brien is the owner of the house. He said he was sorry to be compelled to boost the rent. Gov. Coolidge did not think it exorbitant.

THE WHISKEY RUNNERS BUSY

MUCH CONTRABAND LIQUID SMUGGLED ACROSS THE BORDER.

WATERTOWN, N. Y. — Tales of border-running that rival the most thrilling yarns of olden days develop almost daily in northern New York since prohibition made importation of liquor from Canada a profitable business for those willing to take a chance. Barely a night, or day either, that does not produce its episode of strange and powerful motor cars, or mysterious craft speeding through the channels of the Thousand Islands.

The St. Lawrence River, with its famed islands and their maze of lost and winding channels separating the United States from the Dominion of Canada has ever been the source of smuggling stories.

But the stories of the past are weak and tame compared with those that are told these days.

Along the northern border there are guards, sheriffs, deputies and revenue officers. Night and day they are patrolling the border line. Yet hardly a day or night passes that does not bring Canadian whiskey across the line. The officials know it and admit it. Despite their efforts they say they can nab only a small proportion of the number engaged in the traffic. The rewards offered by the thirsty are too high to be ignored by the daring.

There is a little village across the Canadian line north of Malone, which is said to be one of the principal sources of supply for the smugglers. To the casual visitor the town is nothing out of the ordinary. Yet from this town it is said one to half a dozen automobile loads of whiskey depart almost nightly.

The efforts of the revenue officers and sheriffs have been made more difficult by the operations of men who have posed as officials, who confiscated the liquor and then permitted the occupants to drive on. Drivers of cars at night are unable to tell whether the men who confront them in the highway are officers or hold-up men, and the result is that they usually step on the accelerator and make their escape.

EVENING FROCKS OF TAFFETA

Charming Designs in That Material Put Forward by Leading American Designers.

Flowered taffeta is being used in the development of evening dresses by some of the best American designers. One charming frock seen recently was made of gray taffeta splashed with pink roses. The girdle or bodice was of cloth of silver and a small pink ostrich tip held the side drapery in place. Draped effects predominate in the development of evening frocks, tunic and redingote frocks share honors with the more fluffy draperies. The general tendency being to show greater width at the hips than is in evidence in daytime frocks.

Metal trimmings are very much favored, and in the lineup of lovely fashions, shown especially for evening frocks, a chiffon with gold or silver motifs is one of the novelties of the season. A gown made of one of these fabrics may have bodice or girdle of metal cloth matching the motif on the fabric proper, a really gorgeous gown [illegible]

LAKEFIELD NEWS

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 18.—Mr. Donald Fitzgerald has returned home from the School of Practical Science Toronto, for the Christmas holidays.

Pte. W. H. Stevens and his English bride arrived in the village on Tuesday and will visit Mr. Coones in Smith for a few days. They were passengers on the "Carmania" and report an exceedingly rough passage. The "Carmania" collided with the "Maryland" which caused tremendous excitement and considerable damage.

Mrs. Pratt who is spending the winter with her father, Mr. R. C. Strickland at Eel's Creek Ranch, is the guest of Mr. and Miss J. C. Strickland at "Uplands".

Messrs. J. E. Galvin and Garvis Graham are in Toronto, as delegates to the U.F.O., convention.

Special Meeting.

A meeting in connection with the Forward Movement of the Anglican Church was held at the residence of Mrs. Marling on Tuesday afternoon The women of the church are taking over the first part of the campaign and intend to visit every family in the parish. Mrs. Macing, who, in the convenor of the committee has the following able assistants, Mrs. Mahood, Mrs. W. Watson, Mrs. S. White, Mrs. T. Weldon, Mrs. Twist, Mrs. Stennet, Mrs. J. Sanderson and Misses A. Atwood and Ogilvie. The meeting was an enthusiastic one and the prospects for a successful campaign are very high.

Mrs. Marling served afternoon tea to the committee.

Maple Leaf Club

The Maple Leaf Club sent fifteen Christmas stockings to the Canadian Red Cross Society as the result of their campaign. The Club set twelve stockings as their objective but so diligently did they work so well were they supported that they were able to send fifteen stockings. These little girls, under the direction of their president, Miss Hillard, have accomplished a great deal of patriotic work and are to be congratulated in their latest success.

Dainty Frills at Lines.

One and two-inch frills of lawn either hemmed or used in a double thickness is one of the daintiest trimmings that can be used on fluffy wash summer frocks. On the organdies so good right now, voiles and ginghams, it is charming to edge sleeves, necks, outline boleros, pockets and trim skirts. For children's frocks particularly it is a simple appropriate looking trimming.

And speaking of children, one can get a great many ideas that are just as effective and smart looking for grownups' frocks, blouses, sweaters, sweaters and hats, by looking at the pretty hand-made dresses in both children's and babies' specialty shop windows. The embroidery used on Lace, also displayed in millinery windows is often a dainty pattern to adapt to [illegible] the stitches are usually simple [illegible] that make a show with little work.

JUST A SIMPLE, EASY-TO-MAKE AND EASY-TO-WEAR APRON..

2672—Good for seersucker, gingham, drill, lawn, percale, sateen and alpaca. There is nothing cumbersome or uncomfortable about this style.

The Pattern is cut in 4 Sizes: Small, 32-34; Medium, 36-38; Large, 40-42, and Extra Large, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size Medium requires 4 yards of 36-inch material.

Rheumatic Pains

Quickly Routed By Penetrating Hamlin's Wizard Oil

A safe and harmless preparation to relieve the pains of Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lame Back and Lumbago is Hamlin's Wizard Oil. It penetrates quickly, drives out soreness, and limbers up stiff aching joints and muscles.

You will find almost daily uses for it in cases of sudden mishaps or accidents such as sprains, bruises, cuts, burns, bites and stings. Just as reliable, too, for earache, toothache, croup and colic.

Get it from druggists for 30 cents. If not satisfied return the bottle and get your money back.

Ever constipated or have sick headache? Just try Wizard Liver Whips, pleasant little pink pills, 30 cents.

PAINT FADED HAT

Some Effective Hand Touches for Headgear.

Any Number of Simple Designs May Be Worked Out by Woman Who Is at All Clever With Brush and Colors.

If it's the old straw hat that is looking pretty much the worse for wear, but still has possibilities to carry it through the rest of the summer, you might treat it with the paint brush.

Usually the hat that begins to look seedy so early in the race is a light hat. So the first thing to do is to give it a brand-new complexion. Cleanse it, and then let it go at that—as far as the background is concerned—or treat it to any kind of hat dyes on the market. The painted hat is most effective when it's first of all a black hat, as witness the stunning examples in the millinery shops. So you will do well to let the new coat be a black one, or at least a deep blue or purple.

One appreciable thing about this for trimming a bit of headgear with all colors is the effectiveness of big, simple, rather splashy designs as compared with the insignificance of more delicate decoration, particularly if the hat be sport and the straw rather of a coarse variety. Colorful conventional fruits and flowers are excellent choices. They may be placed precisely or with new art freedom on crown or brim, wherever you choose, or wherever they are calculated to be most becoming.

Delightful in an entirely individual way are the bird and animal motifs for the brims of hats for the wise people. If you apply them where hat bands usually go, you can make a stencil band and expedite them with almost lightning rapidity.

But maybe you would like to get a bit ahead of the season. In that case you will treat yourself to a chapeau in a pastel velvet and treat the velvet to some straight-stitch motifs, worked up in tinsel, or to a stunning embossed effect that is achieved by cording a design in all-over effect over the whole surface of the hat.

Scriptural Names.

Practically all the inhabitants of Little Tancock island, Lunenburg county, Nova Scotia, are named Levy. In the majority of cases the given or Christian name is taken from the Old Testament. The Levys claim to be direct descendants of the men who followed the fisherman's calling on the shores of Galilee in the time of Christ.

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE.

One of the benefits which must be reckoned when the final balance sheet is drawn for the great war is that music was permitted to serve as never before and that the public mind is so aligned upon the importance of music in human life that only the pathetically ignorant will hereafter class music with the non-essentials. Above all, music offers itself as the most available, most popular, most influential of the fine arts—music, which is the art and language of the feelings, the sentiments, the spiritual instincts of the soul; and so becomes a universal language, tending to unite and blend and harmonize all who may come within its sphere. Music lends secret sympathy, relief, expression to all one's moods, loves, longings, sorrows; comes nearer to the soul or to the secret wound than any friend or healing sunshine from without. It nourishes and feeds the hidden springs of hope, love and faith, renews the old conviction of life's springtime— that the world is ruled by love, that God is good, that beauty is a divine end of life, and not a snare and all illusion. Music floods out of view the unsightly, nebulous grounds of life's petty, anxious, doubting movements and makes immortality a present fact, lived in and realized. It locks the door against the outer world of discords, contradictions, importunities, beneath the notice of a soul so richly occupied: lets "Fate knock at the door" (as Beethoven said in explaining his famous symphon'—Fate and the pursuing Furies—and even welcomes them and converts them into gracious goddesses. Music, in this way, is a wonderful elixir to keep off old age.

KISS FOR PONY.

LONDON, Eng.—When the magistrate at Old-street Police Court ordered the destruction of an old pony belonging to Alfred Bates, who is 80 years of age, the man and his wife went into the courtyard and, with tears streaming down their faces, kissed the animal good-bye.

'My old means of livelihood is gone if my poor old horse must die," Bates had declared when he was charged with working the pony in an unfit condition.

NEW POLICY FOR GRAND ANNOUNCED

BIG VAUDEVILLE ACTS LAST THREE DAYS OF THE WEEK—MR. DAHN AT CONFERENCE.

The inauguration of a new policy for the Grand Opera House and the coming to Peterborough of first-class vaudeville, as well as the cream of the British and American productions is announced to-day by Mr. Harry Dahn, resident manager of the Grand, who yesterday attended a conference of the directors and house managers of the Trans-Canada Theatres, Limited, held at Montreal, at which details of the season were discussed.

Mr. Dahn's suggestion that the last three day of each week in Peterborough should be devoted to vaudeville, was adopted.

Beginning on 7th January, the Grand will have from four to six big vaudeville acts the last three days of each week, coupled with a feature picture. The acts will come to Peterborough from the Orpheum Theatre, in Montreal, and will then go to Shea's Theatre in Toronto.

They will be different from anything Peterborough has ever seen, and the innovation of the new service means much for local theatregoers.

The first three days of each week are to be reserved for road shows, and among the big attractions to be seen here will be Tyrone Power in "The Servant in the House, "Friendly Enemies," the big New York success, and Martin Harvey, celebrated British actor.

THE ARCTIC TERN.

A Bird That Hates the Darkness—Travels 150 Miles a Day.

For many years the annual migration of the birds, although a perfectly familiar fact, was shrouded in mystery. Except in the case of a few birds like the robin, which winters not far south of its summer home, no one knew where the song birds or the shore birds went in the fall, or when they began their northward flight in the spring.

But the subject has been carefully and patiently studied by so many observers and naturalists that it is no longer impossible to answer these questions. The cliff swallows and blackpoll warblers spend their winter in tropical South America; the golden plover, which nests on the Arctic Sea, winters 8,000 miles away in the Argentine; the scarlet tanager is to be found in December and January in Ecuador and Peru, and the bobolink in Southern Brazil.

For a long time it was thought that the golden plover bore off the palm for length of flight between summer and winter homes, but now that distinction is awarded to the Arctic tern. This bird breeds as far north as it can find anything stable on which to construct its nest; it has been found within seven and a half degrees of the pole. And that nest was found surrounded by a wall of newly-fallen snow which the mother bird had carefully scooped out from round her chick.

The tern arrives in the Far North about June 15, and leaves again for the south toward the end of August, when the young are able to fly strongly. Two or three months later the birds are found skirting the edge of the Antarctic continent, 11,000 miles away. What their track is over that vast space no one yet knows.

A few individuals are occasionally seen along the New England coast in the fall, but the flocks of thousands and thousands of these gregarious birds which alternate from pole to pole have never been met by any trained observer competent to learn their preferred path and their time schedule. They must travel at least 150 miles a day—apart from their flights in search or pursuit of food—to carry them within ten or twelve weeks from one end of the world to the other.

The Arctic tern enjoys more hours of sunlight than any other creature on the globe. The sun never sets during its stay at the northern nesting grounds, and during the stay in the south it has two months of continuous sunlight and practical daylight for between six and eight months of the year.

The Valley of the Kootenay.

Forty or fifty odd miles south of the little lake, high in the Canadian Rockies, in which is the ultimate source of the Columbia river, almost under Deception Mountain, lies Fort Steele. This British Columbian town, southeast of the tourist-famed Selkirk Range, east of the Purcell Range, in the meadow-bottomed valley of the Kootenay between them and the numberless minor ranges composing the main chain of the Canadian Rockies, has a picturesque setting. The utter and peculiar beauty of the Kootenay river with its flanking prairies under mountain heights apart, the multiplicity of mountain lakes and streams tributary to it in this vicinity, determine distinctively the aspect of the country about Fort Steele.

First an Indian camping ground, the beginning of many points of settlement throughout the west, then a trading post with a ferry, tarrying place and point of departure for those who travel on pioneer business in the spaces of the west, it finally took "local habitation and a name" from the establishment of a mounted police post there under the name of a hardy inspector of the famous force.

With the opening of the railroad through the Crows' Nest Pass came access to the silver, lead and copper mining districts that, even now scarcely more than prospected, are hidden in the convolutions of the mountain ranges whose multitudinous minor passes debouch into the great valley of the Kootenay amid whose meadows lies Fort Steele.

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. DRAWING TO A CLOSE

THE SELLING OUT SALE AT H. J ZACKS' FINISHING WITH A FOUR DAYS WIND-UP.

As will be seen in the large display advertisement on another page, the balance of the H. J. Zacks stock, in the capable hands of Mr. B. Chesler, is to be thrown on the market as a last call for the four days that are left previous to Christmas. The exceedingly low prices asked, representing in many cases much less than cost, or even half the original cost, should bring the desired clearance by Christmas eve. After that date the store must go under alerations, so that it is imperative that in these last four days a great clean-up must be realized.

Price is not the object, the goods must go, and values do not figure in the matter. People who are anxious to keep down the high cost of living should take advantage of this wind-up period to the selling out sale, as such an opportunity will never come again.

THE ONWARD LADIES BIBLE CLASS ELECT OFFICERS FOR YEAR

The Onward Ladies' Bible Class, of George street Methodist church, held a most enjoyable evening at the home of one of their members, Miss Davey, Division street, last evening. After a few pleasant hours spent together, the officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

President—Mrs. L. Sarginson.
Vice-President—Mrs. A. Trethewey.
Treasurer—Miss Amy Allen.
Asst.-Treas.—Miss Thurza Allen.
Secretary—Miss Mabel Roseboro.
Asst. Secretary—Miss Lotty Allen.
Treasurer King's Bank Book—Mrs. Middleton.
Asst. Treasurer King's Bank Book—Mrs. Allen.
Treasurer Building Fund—Mrs. F. Sanderson.
Look-out Committee—Mrs. McMillan, Mrs. Evans.
Visiting Committee — Mrs. Lane, Mrs. Thornton, Mrs. McWilliams.
Social Committee — Miss Davey, Miss Roseboro, Miss Crane.

Presentation to Mrs. Stubbs.

After the election of officers the Onwards presented their beloved teacher, Mrs. James Stubbs, with a wool sweater coat. A few remarks were made by Miss Davey and the presentation by Mrs. Middleton. Although taken completely by surprise, Mrs. Stubbs thanked the class for their present and for the many kindnesses shown to her in the past.

Served Refreshments.

Refreshments were then served, which brought an enjoyable evening to a close.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"JACK AND THE BEANSTALK."

"Jack and the Beanstalk," the feature picture at the Grand, showing the two inimitable children, Jane and Kathryn Lee, proved a most fascinating play, and charmed both young and old in the large audience which attended last evening. The story—dear to every child's heart—is most realistically acted, and the setting of the different episodes in the play were a revelation of the ability of movie directors. Any disappointment the audience felt at not seeing "Smiles," the picture advertised for last evening, but which went astray, was compensated for in the splendid programme which was presented. The pictures appearing with the feature were well up to the usual high standard of the Grand.

WITCHCRAFT.

Many British People Still Dread Evil Eye.

We constantly hear it said that "this is the twentieth century; superstition and all that sort of thing died out long ago." Yet there is hardly a person in the country without his pet little belief — that misfortune follows stepping over a baby, or spilling salt or that a black cat brings good luck, for example, says Answers. Hence, too, the universal practice of wearing mascots "for luck."

"These, however, are not very serious beliefs, being merely personal fads. Superstition of a deep-rooted and more unpleasant type is still common in the more backward rural areas, however. Only a few weeks ago an old dame in the Fen Country was boycotted by the whole countryside because she had the reputation of being a witch and of throwing spells over people's children, stock and crops. No one would go near her or let her have food or clothing, and she nearly starved to death.

The cold, legal atmosphere of the courts would be thought unfavorable to belief in witchcraft, and yet a farmer — by no means an ignorant man — stood up, the other day in a Norfolk court, and informed the bench that someone had bewitched his cows. He cured the evil spell by thrusting a red-hot poker into his churn, when the evil spirit vanished in a bright flame.

Years ago an old crone who was cross-grained with the neighbors stood a good chance of being tried (and burnt) for witchcraft, and cases are even known where animals were solemnly brought into court and tried on a similar charge.

A tough old cock at Basle, in Switzerland, was accused of laying eggs—a most serious offence, as such eggs were used only for making witches' ointment. The unhappy bird was haled before the justices, and one of the eggs produced as proof of guilt. In the face of such evidence the rooster's case was hopeless. He was convicted, and he and his miraculous eggs solemnly burnt at the stake in the town square.

A sow and six young pigs were accused of witchcraft towards a child and were brought, protesting loudly, before the "beak." Amid great sensation the sow was found guilty and publicly executed, but the porkers were acquitted on the ground of extreme youth. As late as 1740 a cow was accused of possessing a "devil," and after a long hearing was found guilty, and condemned to death. "Rats and mice and such small deer" have been summoned on numerous occasions, but almost invariably failed to put in an appearance at court.

In the fifteenth century the peasants of a village in the south of France took legal proceedings against a plague of locusts which trespassed on their fields and devoured their crops. As the case was still being fought nearly half a century later, the modern gardener can sympathise with the unlucky plaintiffs, but would probably prefer the more up-to-date application of lime of mustard.

Another action was brought against a pest of leeches swarming in the ponds and streams of another country district in France. The judge issued a decree against the leeches trespassing farther on the disputed territories, but history is silent as to whether the injunction was obeyed or ignored, with resultant punishment for contempt of court.

Animals have even been admitted as witnesses in the courts. It used to be considered no offence to kill a burgar trying to break into a house. There arose the difficulty that one man living alone might ask another to his house, and then murder him, pretending that he was a robber. To get over this it was decided that any domestic animal, such as a cat or a dog, present at the time might bear witness. If the animal on being questioned satisfied the court that his master had acted in good faith the killing was held to be justified. There are not many instances of acquittal.

USE FOR OLD HAIR RIBBON

When Freshness Is Lost It Can Be Made Serviceable as Covering for Coat Hanger.

When the freshness of the hair ribbons has vanished so that it is quite impossible to make them stand up properly on the child's head, they may be used to good advantage for covering coat hangers of the ordinary wire or wooden variety. The ribbons should be dipped in gasoline, rubbed with clean, soft cloths until perfectly clean, and then pressed with a warm iron on the wrong side. The hangers should be padded, first, with a soft foundation material, and it will be found that the hair ribbons of usual width will do nicely to cover them. Little enamel bugs, attached on baby ribbon, make a dainty finishing touch to the hanging.

Little Things That Add So Much to Effectiveness.

Costumes Cannot Be Considered Complete Without Smart Accessories to Set Them Off.

The charm of many frocks is emphasized by the smart accessories that accompany them. Dresses of simple design are stamped exclusive by a novelty color, or perhaps a gay girdle offers itself for smart trimming. Frocks this season have a clever way of opening over dainty tucked vests and lace waistcoats to show their ruffled faces to the world.

Striking sashes are featured, and there is a bright allied girdle that forms a distinctive accompaniment to a white linen frock. It is of corded silk, six inches wide and striped with the allied colors artistically blended. Heavy red or blue silk tassels terminate this stunning sash.

Crisp organdie in delicate or pastel tints lends colorful beauty to many a simple dress. At present there is a vogue for plain white organdie sashes that suggest the quaint charm of the Dutch peasant's costume. These white sashes are usually part of a set consisting of dainty collar and cuffs hemstitched with a half-inch border. They are unusually effective on checked or striped voile or fine gingham gowns.

A new note might be introduced in an old frock by an organdie sash of contrasting color, such as jade green with a white frock or sea-shell pink organdie expressing exquisite daintiness on a frock of pale ciel mull.

The sense of being fashionably and tastefully attired comes with wearing an embroidered satin sash on an afternoon gown of soft mulberry georgette. A splash of gay worsted embroidery in a conventional flower design traced itself over the center of the satin sash and crude wooden beads in bright colors weighted the ends.

For the matron with the black net gown there is a heavy jet rope girdle that glitters and twinkles delightfully when coiled about the hips.

Wonderfully exquisite are the new sashes that the younger set have adopted for evening and dance wear. The finest of the metal brocaded ribbons are traced with gold and silver thread on delicate backgrounds of orchid, lettuce green, peach, apricot, lemon, flesh and sky blue. The broad ribbon is drawn about the waist in a crushed girdle and allowed to fall in a graceful panel at the back. Soft silk fringe in a harmonizing tone borders the bottom.

A lace frock or a lovely taffeta or georgette dance frock would be popular at the many social affairs, if favored with one of these exquisitely dainty panel sashes.

The largest pineapple canneries in the world are located in Honolulu.

Radek.

From the first day that the name Radek appeared in the news coming out of Bolshevist Russia, its owner has been something of a mystery. The progress of Lenine and Trotzky was, comparatively at any rate, gradual, but the ultra Bolshevik, Karl Radek, the little man with the huge head and the drab-colored Norfolk suit with knickers and leggings, the cross between a bandit and a professor, came with a bound. Out of the everywhere of international socialism into the here of Petrograd bolshevism came this Austrian subject with his imperfect knowledge of Russian, surrounded with strange rumors of expulsion from the ranks of revolutionary socialism in Germany and Poland because of the terrible extremity of his views. He plunged into the thick of the fight, and before the outside world was sure of his name, he was slaying all and sundry with a strange impish brilliance in the columns of the notorious Isvestia. As a propaganda agent he is probably unrivaled. For utter unscrupulousness he is quite remarkable even in the ranks of bolshevism; whilst, as an advocate and deviser of a reign of terror, the author of the phrase "In the winter, no bourgeois shall have an overcoat until every member of the proletariat has been provided for," stands quite in a class by himself.

When The Day Is Over

When the household cares and the worries of everyday life have dragged you down, made you unhappy, and there is nothing in life but headache, backache and worry, turn to the right prescription, one gotten up by Dr. Pierce fifty years ago.

Everything growing out of the ground seems intended for some use in establishing natural conditions. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., long since found out what is naturally best for women's diseases. He learned it all through treating thousands of cases. The result of his studies was a medicine called Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine is made of vegetable growths that nature surely intended for backache, headache, weakening pains, irregularities, inflammations, and for the many disorders common to women in all ages of life. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is made of lady's slipper root, black cohosh root, unicorn root, blue cohosh root and Oregon grape root. Dr. Pierce knew, when he first made this standard medicine, that whiskey and morphine are injurious, and so he has always kept them out of his remedies. Women who take this standard remedy know that in Dr Pierce's Favorite Prescription they are getting a safe woman's tonic so good that druggists everywhere sell it, in liquid or tablet form.

PRETTY THINGS IN FOULARD

Parisian Dressmakers Are Turning Out "Creations" That Are Much More Than Ordinarily Attractive.

An excellent piece of advice for the summer is: "When in doubt, choose foulard." Foulard has again come into its own kingdom; never has this delightful silk been more lovely, never has it been produced in more delicate and original colorings. The Paris dressmakers are doing rather wonderful things with spotted foulards. They are using the spots as a groundwork for silk or wool embroideries and producing really amazing results by simple means. For example, a little chemise dress of black foulard was dotted over with large white rings. At the hem, for a depth of twelve inches, these rings were worked over on the outside with japonica pink silk and covered—that is to say, the inner round—with a miniature lattice of silver threads. The same embroidery was applied to the front and back of the bodice and the sash was made of japonica pink satin ribbon with black and white tassels. It was charming, this little dress, and so simple; any one could achieve it. Rings or stripes may be decorated in this way with colored silks and metallic threads. Irregular designs, too, can be outlined or filled in.

Scarcity of Feeder Cattle.

With the growing scarcity of feeder cattle and the advance in value of farm lands, the baby-beef industry is of increasing importance and is receiving the attention of farmers in all live stock sections of the country.

THE STUDY OF MUSIC DISCIPLINES THE MIND.

One of the Most Attentive Audiences a Well-Known Musical Lecturer Ever Addressed, he said, Was a Group of Engineers.

It is not right to be always dwelling on the beauty of music. Too little is said about its disciplinary effect on the mind. It is, therefore, pleasing to read that the latter side is not overlooked by Alexander Russell, Director of Music at Princeton University, in a recent address on the university's attitude towards music.

Mr. Russell, after speaking of the importance of cultivating good listeners, which after all make up at least say 90 per cent. of the people, on to say:

"The study of physics has a disciplinary effect on the mind, consequently it is included in many college courses. Physics involves acoustics and vibrations, and acoustics and vibrations are the genesis of musical sound. Further, the laws of vibrations are the laws of music and on them is based all musical construction. Therefore, the student of physics, whether he knows it or not, is really studying the basic principles of music, both in the classroom and the laboratory. It would be a simple matter to link up the study of physics (which involves these fundamental principles of music' with the broader study of music as an art. Thus we must admit that the study of music in certain of its phases can possess a disciplinary value.

"Take mathematics. I defy any one to listen intelligently to a fugue or symphony without employing, consciously or unconsciously, a mathematical process of analysis. In fact, counterpoint is mathematics applied mathematics if you will. Further, any one who performs one of the higher forms of musical composition, must submit his mind to the most severe discipline. It even involves a measure of stern self-control to listen to certain kinds of music. Consequently students in counterpoint and composition would receive a high degree of training in mental concentration which might conceivably prove just as valuable in later life as a similar degree of training in higher mathematics. W. J. Henderson once told me that one of the most attentive audiences he ever lectured to on music was made up of engineers. I do not mean the locomotive variety that has strikes and walking delegates, but the kind that has clubhouses and builds bridges. You see, he talked the mathematics of music to them, and they were on familiar ground, much to their surprise.

"Why go on with this evidence? There are untold and as yet undreamed-of treasures of mental training in the study of music. The surface has been merely scratched.

"But in the last analysis, the highest mission of music is aesthetic and not disciplinary. I fear a generation of students trained in the scientific and material side of music would not solve our national need, the need of more intelligent listeners. What we need are more people who appreciate music, not more people who can tell how it is made. This can best be accomplished by a cultivation of the aesthetic sense, by appreciation of music as a creator of beauty. Let the professional musicians unearth the secrets of how to create it—let the rest of us learn how to enjoy it. The university can be of great assistance in bringing about this result, but the seeds must be sown in the earlier years of the student.

"If the courses in the lower schools are well chosen and well taught an amazing number of men and women will elect music courses in the universities and colleges. We can thus go a long way toward the results we are after, a nation reeling music."

SMITH'S THRILLING STORY OF GREAT AUSTRALIAN FLIGHT

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Dec. 19.—Captain Ross Smith's story of his great flight from England to Australia as published in the Sydney Sun reads like a tale from the Arabian nights.

For absolutely new adventure his tour of the countries of Asia and Oceania is unsurpassed. Landings made by the party, especially in Java, were dangerous. At two landings in the Malay Sham Archipelago, the natives would have nothing to do with them, believing that the airmen were spirits of the dead who could come back to the world, but could not rest, so kept on flying from place to place. In farther India and Siam, the natives were simply frightened out of their lives when the airmen appeared.

When two hundred miles north of Port Darwin, on the day of which their voyage was completed, they passed the cruiser Sydney, the famous warship which destroyed the Emden. They dropped a message in a bottle attached to a small parachute, which they had made while flying. This was picked up by a boat from the cruiser.

The entire story of the flight is one of dauntless courage, bull dog tenacity and initiative. Several times they were nearly beaten down to the ground or the sea by torrential rains, and while flying over Malaysia, ran into a storm so terrible that definite steering was practically out of the question, and they merely circled around aimlessly until better weather was encountered.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

TELLS SAFE, SIMPLE WAY TO TREAT AND RELIEVE AT HOME.

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises caused by catarrh or if phlegm drops in your throat and has caused catarrh of the stomach or bowels you will be glad to know that these distressing symptoms may be entirely overcome in many instances by the following treatment which you can easily prepare in your own home at little cost. Secure from your druggist ½ ounce of Parmint (Double Strength.) Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. An improvement is sometimes noted after the first day's treatment. Breathing should become easy, while the distressing head noises, headaches dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., should gradually disappear under the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell, taste, defective hearing and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms which suggest the presence of catarrh and which may often be overcome by this efficacious treatment. It is said that nearly all ear troubles are caused by catarrh and there must, therefore, be many people whose hearing can be restored by this simple home treatment.

THEORY AND WORK FOR CHATHAM BOYS

To Spend Equal Time in School and Factory.

CHATHAM, Dec. 19.—The Industrial Committee of the Board of Education, acting on suggestions of the Chamber of Commerce and heads of local factories, will adopt a new scheme when classes reopen in the new year. The boys will study one week at school and work a week in a factory, alternated during the term, by which it is hoped to give them both theory and practice.

Suffered With Boils Past Five Years

Boils are simply a breaking out of bad blood and anyone who has suffered from them knows how sick and miserable they make you feel. Just when you think you see the end of one another seems ready to take its place and prolong your misery. All the poulticing and lancing you can do will not get rid of them.

While the skin appears to be the cause of the irritation the real disease is rooted in the blood and to get rid of these painful boils it is necessary to get right at the seat of the trouble.

When the blood is purified, cleansed and vitalized by Burdock Blood Bitters, the boils will quickly disappear, you misery is at an end, and health and strength come back again.

Mr. Robert Johnson, Barkway, Ont., writes:—"I have suffered very much, during the last five years from boils, having as many as five at once. I tried different remedies without any relief. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters which I did and after taking just one bottle have had no more boils."

B.B.B. has been on the market for over forty years and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Soups may be thickened with tapioca.

Pies should be baked in a moderate oven.

COULDN'T LEAVE HOUSE FOR YEAR

HAMILTON TELLS OF HIS WIFE'S REMARKABLE IMPROVEMENT SINCE TAKING TANLAC.

"Last Sunday my wife was able to be out of the house for the first time in almost a year, and she wouldn't have been out then if Tanlac had not put her on her feet," is the remarkable testimony of William Hamilton, who resides at 149 Preston street, Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada.

"Mrs. Hamilton had Spanish Influenza over a year ago," he continued, "and had never been able to overcome the effects of it. Her appetite was gone completely and she fell off in weight and strength until she was as frail and thin as anybody could be and still get around. Her nerves were all torn up and the least little noise would make her jump and quiver like a leaf. Many a night she has laid awake until daylight in nervous misery. She complained of dull throbbing headaches and it has made me actually suffer at times to see her so weak and run down and in so much pain. Somebody else had to attend to all the housework as she could just barely creep about the house and hadn't been able to go out-of-doors for nearly twelve months. She was confined to the bed most of the time, and even when she would sit up in her room for a while, she really ought to have been in bed.

"It sure was a surprise to me to see her build up the way she has since she started taking Tanlac. Her appetite is just fine now, why, she told me the other day that if she kept on she would eat us out of house and home. Every day she seems stronger and more like her old self and she never complains of being tired and weak and run down any more. Last Sunday she went out for a long walk with me, for the first time she's been out of the house in nearly a year. She seems like a different person and is beginning to feel that her troubles are all over. Tanlac is the only thing that ever did her any good, and we both are happy as we can be over the way she has recovered her health since she has been taking it, and we are glad to recommend it all the time."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Ware Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowlers Corner by W. A. Hunter, in Galert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

COLLEGIATE PUPILS WERE VACCINATED

FORTY PUPILS WERE TREATED YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

About forty pupils of the Collegiate Institute took advantage of the opportunity offered them yesterday afternoon for free vaccination. Dr. F. P. McNulty and Dr. T. W. H. Young were at the Institute at 3 o'clock to perform the vaccination and were assisted by Miss Jery, the Schol Nurse. The boys received their vaccination in the Principal's office, the girls in the Library.

WHERE MEDICIAL SCIENCE FAILED

Excerpt from a Red Cross Field Director's Letter.

"I went with the entertainers to the insane ward. One patient was counting over his fingers in an intensive sort of way, talking incoherently, and all the while neither the doctor in charge now I could influence him to stop while the reader was telling the stories. I suggested that the vocalist be called upon. She responded with a sweet, melodious song. The babbling stopped almost instantly; first only silence, then I seemed to see an interest creep into his being. A healing influence had reached him by virtue of music.

Such invisible wounds are sometimes harder to heal than the shattered limb. They have to be reached by subtle means, than which nothing is more potent than music."

GIRL 14, SAVES FATHER FROM INFURIATED BULL

MAPLE SHADE, N. J.— Bertha Summers, 14 years old, armed herself with a pitchfork and rescued her father from a bull that had knocked him down and was goring him as he lay on the ground.

When the girl ran to where the animal was standing over her father, she in turn was attacked, but stood her ground and succeeded in holding the animal at bay by jabbing him repeatedly in the head.

Mr. Summers was so badly injured that his condition is serious.

SAYS SOME DAY FARMING WILL BE A GENTLEMAN'S JOB, NOT A SLAVE'S

MRS. G. A. BRODIE THRILLS THE WOMEN WORKERS ON THE ONTARIO FARMS AT U.F.W.O. CONVENTION.

TORONTO, Dec. 19.—President Burnaby, of the U.F.O., took the chair at yesterday afternoon's meeting of the organization. He thanked them for electing him president, and said he would never betray them. "Undoubtedly it is an honor to be Premier, Cabinet Minister or U.F.O. member of Parliament," he said, "but is it not a greater honor to be steering the ship that makes the election of these men possible?" (Applause.)

Mr. E. H. Stonehouse, president of the National Dairy Council, spoke about the dairying industry of Ontario. He said the food value of milk and milk products was known to the people as never before. The growth of the cheese industry in eastern Ontario had been amazing. In one section alone 63 million pounds of milk had been used during a brief period for cheese-making, the value of the products being 1½ million dollars. Milk products should be more extensively used by the people of Canada, who consumed less than one pint of milk daily per capita. Toronto was using tremendous quantities of milk, the anual total being 12 million gallons. Seven or eight billion pounds of milk were produced annually in Canada. "We hope in the near future to have Onearlo covered by an organization. We are not an organization in restraint of trade, but the day is coming when we will get prices that are fair and right," he said. "The National Dairy Council has been organized to speak nationally for dairy farmers and make us a force to be reckoned with in our industry." (Applause.)

He hoped the day was not far distant when they would have a great, national dairy show in Toronto.

Mr. J. Dougall, live stock commissioner for the C.P.R., who had several years experience in doing buisness with farmers' organizations in the West, spoke on better service and co-operation.

Mr. H. B. Cowan, editor of Farm and Dairy, Peterboro, speaking on 'Co-operative Dairying," said that in the West the farmers had gained success by the entire handling of their own products by a complete chain from their own farm to foreign markets.

"One of the great weaknesses of the Ontario movement," he added, "was too much dependence on local clubs." He sought a somewhat more permanent basis for the movement. Their great opportunity lay in the dairy interest. If they handled their cheese through their own factories and export companies they would be striking a great blow for the farmers' movement.

The dairymen, he declared, were almost in a position, as the result of conferences recently, to handle their products on a co-operative basis as a company similar to that of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Company To start with, they would start in the counties of Peterboro, Hastings, Northumberland and Prince Edward. In these four counties there were 145 co-operatively-owned companies already. The aim of the dairymen was to ask all these to come together and be linked in one central company.

They expected to save $20,000 annually in the purchase of cheese boxes alone. They hoped to save tens of thousands of dollars in the selling of their products themselves.

"Let the U.F.O. get behind this thing," he exhorted. "It will give a permanency to this movement that will be of great benefit in the future."

Mrs. Brodie Delivers Message.

"I have a message for the men," said Mrs. G. A. Brodie of Newmarket president of the United Farm Women of Ontario. "We started last year with three clubs and now we have fifty women's clubs. Also we helped the men and now we have the Parliament Buildings in Queen's Park, a place that is none too good for our folk who produce 80 per cent. of the wealth. No longer do we have to waste our time sending futile resolutions to the Government; we sit down and confer with the men in power. (Applause.)

"If there's one thing I'm a crank on it's rural education," continued Mrs. Brodie. "I am trying to educate seven children. We have a one-room school that's no better than when I went to school, 40 years ago." She was in favor of consolidated schools.

"It looked so nice to have the Cabinet Ministers on the platform last night," she said, "and the only bewhiskered one was a Toronto lawyer, W. E. Raney, the new Attorney-General. This brought wild cries of approval and laughter from the big audience. The country folk had nothing to apologize for. They had men and women, who were just as handsome and beautiful as any city. (Applause.) They must raise the dignity of their profession. "Some day farming will be put on a basis where it will be a gentleman's job and not a job of a slave."

Fine Material in U.F.W.O.

Mrs. H. L. Laws, of Cayuga, another messenger from the U.F.W.O. said that they had found at their convention a great deal of fine material among farm women. One of them had discovered that what was needed to keep the young people on the farms was "educational recreation." (Applause.)

She wanted the women to step out of their home surroundings to a Provincial and national viewpoint. They must be careful not to embarrass their men by inexperienced talking, now that they were a political body.

"Now that we've got the cobwebs cleaned off the windows of the Parliament Buildings that look country-ward," she declared, "we're going to have legislation from an agricultural viewpoint."

She did not expect "perfect" legislation, but at least it would have an agricultural standpoint,

The citizenship was as much the women's business as the men's. In fact, she thought the men ought to rock the cradle at times. The father was just as responsible for the up-bringing of the children as the mother. The woman who had a vision outside the four walls of her house was a better mother because of it.

"Does my husband expect me to vote U.F.O. because he does?" she asked. "If he does he will be disappointed." She wanted women to understand and believe in the principles they voted for.

BLACKHEAD OF TURKEYS

Intestinal Disease Which Causes Considerable Mortality.

No Known Cure for the Trouble—Immediate Killing Recommended—Turkeys Affected Should Be Kept From Other Birds—Handling Asparagus After the Cutting Season.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

THE disease of turkeys commonly known as blackhead (entero-hepatitis) is one that has caused untold havoc to the turkey-raising industry in North America. It is responsible for more sickness and deaths among turkeys than all other diseases combined. It has practically stamped out turkey-raising in many districts.

It is an infectious disease primarily affecting the intestines, more particularly the caeca (blind pouches) and later the liver. It is caused by "Entamoeba meleagridis," a minute unicellular animal organism to see which a high power microscope is necessary. This minute organism is picked up with the food on infected soil. On reaching the caeca with the passage of food it penetrates the mucous lining where it induces inflammation, congestion, thickening of the caecal walls and ulceration. The contents of the caeca thicken into a cheesy or hard dry mass mixed with blood and broken-down epithelial tissue from the mucous lining of the caecal walls.

While this condition of the caeca is developing some of the entamoeba make their way to the liver, where they establish themselves and multiply. The areas of the liver tissue in which the entamoeba establish themselves soon become necrotic, that is they degenerate and die. On post-mortem examination these necrotic areas are very noticeable as whitish or gray, round to irregular, flat or slightly sunken patches in the liver tissue. Sometimes as much as fifty per cent. of the liver tissue will be composed of these necrotic areas.

Needless to say the congestion and ulceration of the caeca and the necrosis of the liver interfere very materially with the functioning of these organs and as a consequence the affected bird becomes listless, mopy, loses flesh and the head loses its bright colored appearance, becoming dull in lustre and dark in color, which condition is responsible for the common name of the disease—blackhead.

Turkeys are liable to contract the disease at any age; they, however, mostly become infected when young. Many die as poults from an acute attack of the disease; others have the disease in a chronic form and live to maturity, but these are never thrifty and always look poor and miserable when compared with healthy birds.

There is no known cure for the disease. Turkeys that show the symptoms of the disease should be killed. If the disease be not too far advanced and the muscle meat in fair condition, it may be used for human consumption as there is little or no danger of man contracting the disease or suffering ill effects as a consequence, particularly if the meat is well cooked. The texture and flavor of the meat, however, will not be so desirable as that from a healthy bird.

Immediate killing of affected birds is recommended because the droppings from such are liable to be heavily infested with the organisms that cause the disease. These being scattered around will naturally spread the disease. It is from the droppings of affected birds that the land gets contaminated and other birds contract the disease.

If affected turkeys are out on free range it is practically impossible to control the spread of the disease amongst others of the flock. If, however, they are kept in colony houses and small runs there is a chance to practice hygienic measures which will limit the dissemination of the causal organism to these small areas which can be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected after the sick birds have been disposed of.

The ordinary domestic fowl is liable to suffer from the same trouble, but usually much less acutely than the turkey. In fact, the domestic fowl may harbor the parasite without showing any signs of ill-health. For this reason blackhead is found more common amongst turkeys that run with flocks of domestic fowl than amongst those which are kept by themselves, hence turkeys should not be allowed to run with other fowl.—D. SHOP EARLY—For Best Choice And Avoid Disappointment

WELL KNOWN SPEAKERS AT MURRAY STREET BAPTIST CHURCH LAST EVENING

DR. T. T. SHIELDS AND DR. JOHN M'NEILL GIVE INTERESTING ADDRESSES ON THE FORWARD MOVEMENT.

Peterborough citizens had the opportunity last night of listening to two of the foremost men in the Baptist church, Dr. T. T. Shields and Dr. John MacNeill, of Toronto. Dr. MacNeill is president of the Ontario and Quebec Baptist convention.

Murray street church was well filled, and the audience was deeply impressed with the message of the speakers.

Rev. J. R. Webb introduced Mr. Albert Matthews, the chairman of the Executive committee of the Forward Movement, to the audience, and expressed pleasure in turning the meeting over to him.

Mr. Matthews said he was pleased to be with them, as it seemed like old times, for he was raised in this district. Mr. Matthews spoke of the work of Rev. Webb on the executive, of his energy and force and untiring zeal in the labor of God. Mr. Matthews introduced Dr. Shields.

Dr. Shields said that he was proud to have one of his deacons preside (Dr. Shields is the pastor of the church Mr. Matthews attends.) Dr. Shields spoke of the work of Rev. Webb in the eastern townships and how a large measure of the success met in the movement there was due to the work of Rev. Webb.

Forward Movement.

"The Forward Movement is primarily a spiritual movement," Dr. Shields said. "It is not a money-making campaign. It is a campaign to stir up the spiritual life of the church."

Dr. Shields dwelt on the need for such a campaign and how the world was spiritually bare, and this bareness was re-acting throughout all the world.

"Where are the Baptists?" Dr. Shields asked. "We must know where we are. Before a man can preach he must feel the divine message."

"We must recognize God's power above everything else," continued Dr. Shields. In Jesus Christ God appeared among men. Jesus was human but also divine. In what measure was He man and in what measure divine?" asked Dr. Shields. In what realms is he Lord, and what is the measure of His authority?"

Dr. Shields spoke on the people's attitude to the Bible and said that if we failed to recognise it as the source of our spiritual truth, we have lost our only reason for existence, and if a man doesn't believe in it he cannot be a true Baptist. We must recognise its truths and be fully persuaded by them."

"What is your measure if a Christian?" All Paul's intellects served Christ and He stood above all else. "Brethren you, too, must make him Lord of your intellect."

Dr. Shields spoke on Christ, calling everywhere and His voice should be heeded, and Christ should take the central place in our hearts and we are lost if we do not accept Him. "If we are going to be saved we must be born again," said Dr. Shields.

More About Grace.

Dr. Shields wished that the Baptists would preach more about grace which doctrine has grown out of Jesus' death on the cross. Grace is the love beyond the bounds of love, and the world is in sore need of this doctrine to-day. Christ must be placed at the head of the church and we must believe more in the truths of the Bible. We are here to witness for Christ and our business is to see that Jesus is made Lord of all and that His government reigns supreme.

The offering was then taken up, during which the choir, under the leadership of Asa Huycke, gave a solo. The audience then joined in singing "Crown Him With Many Crowns."

After his hymn, Mr. Matthews introduced Dr. MacNeill.

Dr. MacNeill.

Dr. MacNeill spoke of their work during the last few weeks and of the heavy responsibility he had been carrying, but which had been lightened by the work of Mr. Matthews and Dr. Shields. Dr. MacNeill dwelt on the enthusiasm and hearty response that they had met with everywhere and he thanked the audience for coming out, and also expressed his appreciation to the congregation for the hospitality extended to the delegates.

"We have come to a great point in the spiritual life of our church," Dr. MacNeill outlined other moments of crisis that had come to the church—in 16th century at the time of Martin Luther; in 18th century at the time of John Wesley. To such a crisis we have come to-day. So far as we are concerned there are two outstanding facts—first, that the world is in need of spiritual manifestation to God, and secondly that God is willing and ready to accept it. "We should open up our hearts to God."

Great Forces.

Dr. MacNeill told of the great forces of evil working against the churches and that they were literally fighting for their life. Dr. MacNeill said that he was proud of what their foremost Baptist, Lloyd George, had said: "The need of the world to-day is not material, but spiritual."

The heart of the world is torn and the time is now ripe for planting the seed for the day of God's visitation. In Canada five different religious oddies, and in the States thirty, are moving to prepare this seed.

Dr. MacNeill said he felt that a great revival was at hand, and told how the great revival in Glengarry years ago originated in the prayers of three little school girls, and this started the movement.

Dr. MacNeill spoke briefly on the foreign missions and of the pressing need for workers.

Dr. MacNeill spoke of the need for young men and women in the churches and how now the mothers and fathers did not seem to want to give up their sons. It should be the pride of every family to have at least one son in the ministry.

"The Lord wants us and all that we have," Dr. MacNeill concluded, "and when we come to the point where we shall do everything for Him, our Forward Movement will have begun."

Liquor Supplies Can Be Imported After January 1st

SUPPLY WILL BE LIMITED—SHORTAGE OF BOTTLES IN SCOTLAND.

PRICES ABOUT SAME

Special to Examiner.

TORONTO, December 22. — It will be sad news to those who are suffering from the drought ocasioned by the war time order in council, respecting the importation of liquor to learn that although the measure, the repeal of which they so fondly anticipated, has been annulled, that there is a shortage in the supply of alcoholic beverages.

It will be some time, the Examiner was informed this morning, before the flow will reach the volume which it attained previous to the passing of the order.

There is also a shortage of bottles in Scotland so that the supply from that quarter will be limited until the manufacturers can turn out sufficient to send the sealed article to Canadian consumers.

"What do you think of the repeal of the order in council prohibiting the importation of liquor?" Lieut.-Colonel J. F. Michie was asked today.

"You need not ask me that," replied Col. Michie.

"You think that it is all right?"

"The Government should never have put it on," said Col. Michie.

"It should have been put off long ago. It has caused more discontent than anything else."

"You can now bring it in from Quebec?"

"Yes, and from the old country."

"Yes, but how will the temperance law of Quebec affect the sale there?"

"There are certain men there who are entitled to sell it to wholesalers, so that it can be brought from any other province."

"What about the States?"

"I don't know whether they have the means to export it or not."

"It is said that the prices have gone away up."

"I don't think so. I think that they are about the same, and some lower."

PRESENTATION TO MRS. SHIELDS

On the evening of Friday 19th inst., the members of the Co-Workers Bible Class quietly invaded the home of their teacher, Mrs. Shields and held possession until her return from Grace S.S. entertainment. Shortly after her coming a programme was placed in the hands of Mrs. Curtis, who ably filled the position of chairwoman. At the close of the programme Mrs. Harrison read an appropriate address and Mrs. Allison on behalf of the class presented Mrs. Shields with a beautiful Casserole.

Mrs. Shields made a suitable reply after which a pleasant time was spent with music and umpromptu speeches Refreshments were served and the evening closed by singing "Blest be the Tie" and the National Anthem.

TO THE SKATING PUBLIC

I am requested by Local 191, American Federation of Musicians, to notify the skating public of Peterborough that they will confer a favour upon our members by skating to union music. It has been brought to our attention that a combination of men have banded themselves together, and wishing to be known as the Maple Leaf Band, are doing duty at the East City Rink, and we cordially suggest to the public that they patronize the rink that is fair to our members, and are paying the union rate of wages. Music supplied either by the G.W.V.A. Band or the 57th Regiment Band, are strictly union members, and can furnish all the music necessary for this or any other purpose. For any further information, write the Secretary of Local 191, "American Federation of Musicians."

Signed on behalf of Local 191, A. F. of M.,

GOVERNMENT WILL SEEK PLEBISCITE

EFFORT WILL BE MADE TO PUT ONTARIO IN THE DRY BELT AGAIN.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, Dec. 22.—In view of the action of the Dominion government repealing the war-time prohibition and race gambling orders-in-council, the Examiner was assured this morning that the Ontario government will tackle the problem of a plebiscite right away. The most immediate question is that of prohibition, because liquor may be imported into Ontario by the carload after Jan. 1st. What will probably happen is this: The Ontario Legislature will pass a resolution calling upon the government to take a plebiscite in this province on the question of prohibition. If the people express themselves in favour of prohibition, the importation of liquor into the province will be stopped, but it will not be "bone dry" prohibition, for the distilleries and breweries of the province will still be permitted to manufacture potent stuff for export to other provinces and other countries where liquor may lawfully be sold. Such a law would, however, stop imports of whisky and other strong liquors from Montreal or from countries outside of Canada.

GAVE FICTITIOUS NAMES TO OFFICERS

TRESPASSERS ON C.P.R. NOW LIABLE TO DOUBLE PENALTY.

Seven trespassers on the C. P. R. were each fined $5.10 in police court this morning and seven others double-crossed the company's constable, John Bickford, of Havelock, by giving him fictitious names. Those who honestly identified themselves when surprised by the constable, and who paid their fines were: Frank Christopher, Clifford Cox, Noah Gillis, Albert Lasenby, James Curran, Herb Greenhalgh and Winnifred Laidley.

It was reported this morning that Bickford knows some of the seven who have left themselves liable for a double penalty by giving fictitious names to a properly authorized official, and it is understood that a special effort will be made to round them up.

EXCELLENT MUSIC AT ST. JAMES' CHURCH

"The Nativity of Christ" by Maunder was presented by the choir of St. James Methodist Church last evening to a congregation which taxed the seating capacity of the church to the utmost. The work of the soloists Mrs. A. Kithey, Miss Emmerson, Miss Flora Nicholls, Miss Wright, Mr. Cuff, Mr. Lambdon, Mr. Hotson and Mr. Anderton was usually good and received unlimited favorable comment each of the soloists having proved themselves finished artists and to have been trained by a competent leader. The quartette work was excellent and merited the high praise it received. Mr. Nicholls, the organist proved himself to be a highly qualified and sympathetic accompanist.

CHRISTMAS MESSAGE FOR THE BOY SCOUTS OF PETERBORO

To the Examiner.

It is with pleasure I ask you to publish the Christmas message to the Boy Scouts of Peterborough from His Excellency the Duke of Devonshire, Governor-General, and Chief Scout for the Dominion:

THE CHIEF SCOUT'S MESSAGE.

Government House, Ottawa, December, 1919.

"The question is often asked, What will be the future of Canada? And the immediate reply is to point out the wonderful national assets of the country, and the endless opportunities which it provides, but by far the greatest of all assets is the character of her citizens.

"The history of Canada in peace and war is a record of continuous success, and it is for us in our generation to see that that record is worthily maintained.

One of our surest hopes lies in the Canadian boy of to-day. He inherits a great tradition. He has the instincts and qualities which have made British and Canadian citizenship what it is, and as a Boy Scout he has the opportunity of training himself to make the best use of them.

"The year now drawing to a close has been eventful, but we can look forward with ever increasing confidence. And as Chief Scout, I am glad to have the privilege of wishing every Scout a Happy Christmas and a Most Prosperous New Year.

(Signed) "DEVONSHIRE, Chief Scout."

In order that every Scout and Scout worker may read the message, we are asking the co-operation of our local papers to print the message—with the Season's Best Wishes, from Provincial Council and Peterborough Local Council.

E. J. Whiteside, Local Council Secy.

PETERBORO MEN ON DIRECTORATE

NEW DAIRY COMPANY WILL BE CAPITALIZED AT $250,000

The proposal that had been under consideration for some time to effect an amalgamtion of the cheese factories in the Central Ontario District, took definite form on Friday, December 19th, when a meeting of the provisional directors was held in Toronto, and it was definitely decided to incorporate a company for that purpose. The company will be known as the United Dairymen Co-operative, Limited. It will be capitalized at $250,000, divided into 10,000 shares at $25 each. It was decided to endeavour to accomplish the amalagamation on the same lines as have proven so successful in the case of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company and also the Saskatchewan Co-operative Creameries, Limited. During the afternoon the directors visited Ottawa. Mr. Doherty, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, was present and [illegible] was pointed out to him also that many factories would desire to have speakers address their meetings to discuss the matter. The proposed company would be sending out speakers for this purpose and Hon. Mr. Doherty was asked if the Department of Agriculture would furnish a dairy expert to address these meetings when the services of such an expert were desired. Hon. Mr. Doherty agreed to grant both requests. He stated that he was of the opinion that the proposed company should prove to be greatly in the interests of the dairy industry and said that he was glad to assist any movement that would make it possible for farmers to co-operate more effectively in the control and conduct of their own affairs.

In order to keep the new company in close touch with the United Farmer' Co-operative Company it was decided to appoint Mr. J. J. Morrison, secretary-treasurer of the latter company, as a provisional director of the new company, Mr. Morrison having consented to act in that capacity.

The provisional directors of the new company are R. W. Ireland of Wellington and Walter Clark of Allisonville, representing Prince Edward County; T. J. Thompson, of Springbrook, John McCaffery of Madoc, and Hugh Maloney of Marmora, representing Hastings county; J. E. Galvin of Lakefield and W. H. Crough of Ennismore representing Peterborough County; J. J. Morrison of Toronto and H. B. Cowan of Farm and Dairy, Peterborough. Mr. Cowan will act as secretary-treasurer of the company until the charter has been obtained and the first meeting of the shareholders has been held. Officers of factories desiring to have speakers representing the company address their patrons in reference to this movement are being invited to notify the company to that effect in order that the work of organization may be pushed without delay.

LARGE SUPPLIES IN UNITED STATES

EXCHANGE SITUATION WILL PROVE A STUMBLING BLOCK.

Special to Examiner.

OTTAWA, December 22. — Now that the order in council against liquor importation have been removed, the question arises, Where will the liquor come from to fill the expected deluge of orders. It is stated that there are 400,000,000 gallons of intoxicating liquor in the United States, which must be exported on January 16th if it is to be got rid of at all. It is sugested in some quarters that much of this will find its way to Canada and there are some who even hint at a connection between the Canadian and the American dates.

One obstacle apart from the customs duties in the way of heavy importation from the United States for the purpose of interprovincial traffic is, however, the exchange situation.

Owing to the provincial laws [illegible] the liquor would [illegible] for and paid for on the other side, and the American dollar is 10 per cent. more valuable than the Canadian.

Heavy importations from Great Britain might be anticipated for the very opposite reason though the supplies of Scotch are said to be low on the other side of the Atlantic.

CHILDREN TOOK IN THE MATINEE

MANAGER H. DAHN HAD A BUSY SESSION AT THE GRAND.

Six hundred school children and the little ones from the Children's Shelter and St. Vincents' Orphanage, were guests of the Examiner and the management of the Grand Opera House at the pictures at the Grand this afternoon and the spectacle presented by row after row of children convulsed with laughter over the antics of Fatty Arbuckle, would have proved a lasting tonic to the most chronic pessimist. The children arrived in droves armed with the coupon inserted in the Saturday Examiner long before the doors of the theatre opened, and when Manager H. Dahn finally opened the house one wild dash was made in order to see to the best advantage the splendid programme so generously provided.

The treat will long remain green in the memories of the children to many of whom it will be the brighest spot in the Christmas holidays.

REIGN OF TERROR IN IRELAND

(United Press.)

DUBLIN, Dec. 22.— Political observers here to-day saw in the success of yesterday's raid upon the Independent, a leading Dublin newspaper, by radical elements, a serious blow to the prestige of the Irish government.

Coming immediately after the attack upon Lord French, they pointed out it apparently showed that the Sinn Fein and other radical elements were able to defy the authorities in the heart of the heaviest policed town in Ireland. In both the French attack and the newspaper raid, it was asserted, practically all the law-breakers were able to escape and elude detection These observers saw in the two incidents a virtual reign of terror, with none abel to resist the will of the extremists.

PRIZE MONEY FOR WINNING AVIATORS

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—Prizes amounting to $6,150 will be distributed to-day by the American Flying Club among the thirteen leading contestants in the recent fifty-four mile trans-continental air race. Lieut. Belvin W. Maynard, first in the race, gets $1,025. It probably will be his last prize money, as he announced yesterday he would retire from the air service early in 1920 and forsake the air for the pulpit.

WILL NOT CONSENT TO EXTRADITION

HOLLAND NOTIFIES ALLIES TO THIS EFFECT—"ASYLUM FOR KAISER."

(United Press.)

BRUSSELS, Dec. 22.— The Dutch government several weeks ago officially notified the Allies it will not consent to the extradition of the former Kaiser to stand trial for war crimes, the Soir said to-day it had learned authoritatively. Holland advanced several reasons for its stand, according to the newspaper, including the "right of asylum."

DEMONSTRATION BY SIXTEEN PUPILS

Sixteen pupils of Mrs. Curry Anderson's kindergarten class at the Conservatory gave a novel demonstration of their work on Friday afternoon and the parents who dropped in for the demonstration were delighted with the children's work and keenly interested in the manner in which the little ones who are all of exceedingly tender years receive their instruction. At the close of the demonstration a Christmas tree was lighted up.

THE DUFFUS GARAGE.

The Dufus Garage has just received a carload of GrayDort touring cars, including two "Specials" and a "Standard."

These cars are exceptionally pretty in design and some of the new features include the gasolene tank on the rear, lever emergency brake, instead of a foot pedal. Special designed tops with side curtains opening with the doors and the body re-designed to give the maximum seating comfort.

They are now on exhibit on the floor of the commodious showroom.

D'ANNUNZIO IS STILL IN A FIGHTING MOOD—SECRET TREATY ALLEGED—HOME RULE FOR IRELAND.

CHURCH DESTROYED

(Canadian Press.)

TRIESTE, Dec. 22. — Despite efforts to delay or cancel the proposed plebiscite in Fiume on the question of accepting the proposal of General Badoglio, Italian Chief of Staff, providing for substitution of Italian regulars for the D'Annunzio forces of occupation, the vote after all was taken, and is reported to have gone strongly in favour of accepting the proposals. D'Annunzio, however, declined to accept the result and declared he would reserve the decision for for himself. According to officials who had charge of the polling, the vote was 83 per cent. in favour of occupation by regular Italian forces.

SECRET TREATY.

(Canadian Press.)

BRUSSELS, Dec. 22.—The "Nation Bele" to-day prints a rumor that a secret treaty has been signed by Great Britain and Holland by which the integrity of Dutch territory is guaranteed.

WERE EXECUTED.

(Canadian Press.)

BUDAPEST, Dec. 22. — Joseph Czerny and thirteen other terrorists accused of excesses during the Bela Khun regime, were executed here to-day.

DEFENCE CONCLUDED.

(Canadian Press.)

WINNIPEG, Dec. 22.—Abrupt termination of defence case in the trial of R. B. Russell was unexpectedly announced to-day by Robert Cassidy, K.C., senior counsel for defence, on the conclusion of the examination of Hon. Thomas Johnson, Attorney-General of Manitoba. The evidence of this witness completed the defence and at 2 p.m. Mr. Cassidy commenced his address to the jury.

SOLDIERS RETURNING.

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Dec. 22.— The Militia Department has been advised that the Scandinavian, carrying fourteen officers and thirty-seven other ranks, will reach St. John about Christmas day. The Scotian, with ten officers and fifty-two other ranks, will reach the same port about the end of the month.

HOME RULE.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Dec. 22.—Lloyd George was ready at opening of Parliament to-day to announce details of the government's Irish Home Rule Bill. This measure, it is believed, will give a large amount of autonomy to Ireland.

THE WOUNDED.

(Canadian Press.)

MONTREAL, Dec. 22.— A special train bearing the injured from Onawa, and a number of others who were on the train at the time of the accident, arrived at the Windsor station this morning. C.P.R. officials awaited their arrival, and the uninjured were hurried to the "Place Vigor Hotel" and made as comfortable as possible. Twenty-four injured were hurried to the Royal Victoria Hospital.

A SON.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Dec. 22. — Lady Ramsay, formerly Princess Patricia of Connaught, gave birth to a son yesterday. Lady Ramsay was married in February to Commander Ramsay of the Royal Navy.

FACTORY DESTROYED.

(Canadian Press.)

ST. CATHARINES, Dec. 22.—Fire completely destroyed the factory of the Dominion Electric Company this morning. The building was used for many years as a Congregational Tabernacle. The loss is estimated at fifteen thousand dollars, partly covered by insurance.

22 POUND TURKEY RETAILED FOR $11

A twenty-two pound turkey that foraged successfully all summer in some farmer's fields, sold for eleven dollars on the market on Saturday, and earned a medal that goes with each new top record. Expert agricultural accounting can probably show how the high cost of living affected flocks of fowls that roamed the farm lands, keeping away from the bins of high priced grain and the attentions of high salaried hired help for weeks on end. This bird was built on the general lines of the ostrich, will require one of those mobile army kitchens to cook it, and will defy the avid appetite of a whole dynasty of Cratchetts in family union on Christmas day.

77 MARRIES 71.

LONDON, Eng., Dec. 20.—A widower names John William West, aged 77, who is a woodman at Deanland Handley, Dorset, has married a widow named Charlotte Adey, aged 71, at Wimborne Registry Office. Both received old age pensions.

PLENTY OF WHISKY.

DUBLIN, Dec. 20.—It was reported to the Dublin Port and Docks Board that the sheds were congested with consignments of whisky and wine. An order to clear the sheds was made.

A TOY PIANO WOULD GIVE ENDLESS PLEASURE TO THAT DAINTY LITTLE LADY AT HOME. SEE THEM AT GREENE MUSIC STORE, CHARLOTTE STREET. 4d-143

ASSESS BILLBOARD.

Judge Madden, of Kingston, heard the appeal of owners against the assessment of billboards in the city as imposed by the Assessment Commissioner. For the first time Mr. Moore this year assessed owners, believing the city should derive money from them. The Court of Revision upheld the assessor, and the matter was taken before Judge Madden, with the result that the assessment was upheld.

ADDRESS BY MR. J. H. PERRIN

Last evening, Mr. J. H. Perrin delivered his famous and convincing lecture on Spiritism—Is it Scriptural? to an attentive audience in the Allen Theatre.

He showed that there were many phases of Spiritism: viz., Charmers, consulters of evil spirits, wizards, necromancers, witches, enchanters, observers of times, diviners, and those who cause their children to pass through the fire, fortune tellers, others such as rapping, tapping, and writing mediums. The ouija board is a very popular phase of Spiritism at the present time.

Evil Angels.

Mr. Perrin showed that the communication received through spiritism was from the evil angels who sined in the days of Noah. Gen. 6:1-6; II. Peter 2:4-5, and Jude 6; and not from departed friends, because the dead of earth's millions are not living in the spirit world but are dead in Sheol—Hades—the great prison house of death. I. Cor. 15; Job 14; 12-1512-15; 21.

He also showed that during the Gospel age many have been and are possessed with evil spirits. The Lord, at his first advent, cast many of the evil spirits out and also gave the Apostles power to cast them out. Luke 4:33-35, 41. Luke 6:18; Luke (8 2), 27-30; Luke 9-1; Acts 16:16-18. These evil spirits will soon be destroyed finally and completely, and even Sa[illegible] will be destroyed at the end of the millenial age. Hebrews 2:14.

Mr. Perrin showed that all who accept the fake doctrine of the Immortality of the Soul and the eternal torment theory, are an easy prey to Spiritism and that the Ministers are largely responsible for the great deception (Spiritism) which is sweeping over the earth, deceiving millions of honest people.

From a Scriptural standpoint he showed that Spiritism is Demonism, and pointed those who hunger and thirst for truth in the direction of God's word, the counsel of the most High.

and upon the calibre of the men who are chosen to preside over the city's affairs, much will depend. Ontario municipalities are in a keen race for the many industrial prizes that are being located in the province, and Peterborough, if her interests are intelligently looked after in business-like fashion, should be able to secure a fair share of these plums. The protected in the council of alert, wide-awake citizens whose only ambition shall be to serve the interests of the whole community would increase the city's chances of success in an industrial campaign. In addition there are many local problems that require ability and energy to solve and the knowledge that such is the case should be a challenge to those who are of a calibre needed in the Council. It is to be hoped that some of those who are hesitating will make a personal sacrifice and allow their names to be placed before the electors.

THE OTTAWA SITUATION.

The adjustment of the Ottawa situation, while it may be satisfactory to the Union cabinet and the members of the government, is far from pleasing the country generally, judging by the tone of the press comment. Even the Toronto Globe is constrained to remark: "These are stormy times and Canada needs a captain able to stay on the bridge." That opinion will be general. In view of the unrest in the country, and the many problems that have followed the war, the compromise that has been adopted by the government, by which Sir Robert Borden retains the title of Prime Minister, and vacates the duties of the position, is a situation that means nothing more than a continuation of the policy of drift that has characterized the administration. It is difficult to see how there will be any other result. While the government marks time waiting for the Premier to recover sufficiently to return to the head of affairs, decisions on important matters that should be made immediately will be shelved as long as possible, and there will necessarily be a tie-up in the country's business. The situation cannot long be endured. Doubtless the Unionist members of Parliament when they are consulted, will approve of the proposal because it averts a general election. But in doing so they will prove themselves hopelessly out of touch with the sentiments of the people of Canada. The issues of the war are over, the usefulness of the Union administration, if it ever had any, has long been outlived; there are domestic problems that require attention. The present government cannot be ignorant that the people are only awaiting the opportunity to turn them out. They have skated around one dangerous situation in the past few days, but they cannot surely hope to continue to cling to office for the next three years in the face of the dissatisfaction of the country.

"The infirmity of purpose which has been one of the most serious weaknesses of Sir Robert Borden as a political leader is once more exhibited in the device of a semi-vacant Premiership," says th Globe. "The members of the Unionist party in Parliament may consent to the proposal if they nsider that the only alternative is eak-up of the Government and an ast to the country. The electors not take a like view. There is a dily increasing demand that the ition be dissolved, that the War stry, having accomplished the with which it was entrusted, resign, and that a new Parlia- shall be sent to Ottawa with a ate to deal promptly with the issues of domestic politics now ading consideration. Sir Robert n's own followers cannot be to the drift of public opinion. the proposal to extend indefin- ave of absence to the Premier before them they may decide he interests of eight million ians are of more importance he convenience of a group of ers who fear Sir Robert's res- n would result in their own re- from office following upon a ge election.

y is like a crop of wheat—it is first adled, then thrashed, and finally becomes the flower of the family.

BRITISH COLMUBIA WATER POWERS.

According to the comprehensive report just issued by the Commission of Conservation on the Water Powers of British Columbia, it is estimated that 3,000,000 twenty-four hour horse-power may be developed from the waters of the province. This estimate is, admittedly, not conclusive and may be misleading, especially if compared with other totals where "no real basis for comparison has been established." The mountain systems, glaciers, snow fields and widely variant precipitation make the power question in British Columbia an unique one and render difficult comparisons with other provinces. There are already about 250,000 horse-power developed, also estimated on 24-hour basis. For various reasons a number of the possibilities on such rivers as the Fraser, Thompson, Skeena and Naas cannot be economically developed under present conditions. Moreover, it was not possible to make adequate estimates of the power potentialities of the more northerly portions of the province. As the country becomes more developed considerable additional power may be found to be available.

The author of the report, Mr. Arthur V. White, deals fully with the relationship between water as a source of power and its use for domestic and municipal supply, agriculture, irrigation, navigation, fisheries, mining, forestry and riparian rights. These problems are too frequently neglected in surveys of water-powers. The development of the country's natural resources can best be carried on when each of them is given adequate consideration. It is a mistake to concentrate on any single resource such as water-power or the soil, or the forests to the exclusion of all others. They are naturally inter-dependent.

As every engineer knows, it is necessary to obtain records of stream flow, precipitation and natural storage for a period of years to arrive at average conditions, before attempting to estimate the amount of potential power. Power possibilities at present must be based on the minimum flow of streams. In many instances, however, artificial storage may be used economically and perform a double function of reducing floods, and increasing the amount of available power.

The report deals at length with historical aspects of water legislation in British Columbia. A useful feature is the chronological key to water legislation in British Columbia from 1856 to 1917. The chapter devoted to power developments discusses the subject from an historical standpoint which adds materially to its value and interest.

Detailed descriptions are given of the topographical features on the larger watersheds, such as the Columbia and Fraser and Mackenzie River systems, Vancouver Island and Mainland Pacific coast.

A large amount of stream flow data has been assembled and carefully analyzed. Meteorological data has been compiled with similar care, a feature that adds much to the value of the report from a technical standpoint.

A convenient set of hydraulic conversion tables as well as a list of benchmarks on the Vancouver Mainland coasts are given in the appendices. As a work for reference purposes the report is greatly enhanced by the inclusion of a full bibliography and an index.

While relating particularly to British Columbia, this publication presents a thorough examination of the economic, legal and other problems common to the efficient development of water resources throughout the Dominion.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

If Sir Robert Borden is in earnest about desiring to be relieved of his duties he has an easy way out. An appeal to the country will achieve his purpose.

There will be pretty general agreement with the declaration of the Regina Leader that the irresistible logic of the present situation is a general election.

Better do it to-night or to-morrow. Don't leave the rest of that Christmas shopping until Wednesday.

Remember the days when you could have bought a quarter of beef for the price you paid for a turkey on Saturday?

Not Often Enough.

A Scotsman sends us the following anecdote: An Englishman and two Scotsmen were sitting in the smoke-room when there entered another Scot. "Ah, ha," said the Englishman, "another Scot has arrived." "Weel," said another of the Scots, "I don't see what you've got to complain about. We always treat the English natives well." "What worries us," said the Englishman, "is that you don't treat us often enough." Then there fell a silence which led the waiter to turn to and polish his glasses.

QUEER COINS.

Money That Was Circulated as Result of the War.

The great war brought into circulation some very odd kinds of money. There was lack of copper and nickel throughout Europe, owing to the demand for those metals for munitions, etc.; and, to aggravate the situation people everywhere took to hoarding coins.

Germany issued hundreds of millions of five-pfennig and ten-pfennig iron coins, the later output of these pieces being coated with zinc to prevent rust. Iron coins were likewise minted by the Governments of Sweden, Norway and Denmark.

The Germans issued one-pfennig pieces of aluminum, and in Algeria also aluminum coins of five centimes and ten centimes made their appearance in circulation.

Germany issued muslin notes, and the local governments in that country and in Austria printed paper money of the smallest value ever known, representing one-fifth of a cent.

Even more curious was the pasteboard money issued in some of the enemy-occupied cities in France. It was in denominations up to five francs, and was of different colors and shapes — square, round, octagonal, oval and diamond shaped. This "card money" was guaranteed by the local municipality, and was good only for use in transactions with merchants of the town where it was issued.

Meanwhile the clever Japanese bought up in China nearly all of the visible supply of "cash"—the copper pieces with square holes for stringing them together. At the enhanced price of copper they were worth considerably more as bullion than as money.

A Lover of Animals.

Miss Marshall Saunders' early home was Halifax, Nova Scotia. While she was assisting her father, the late Rev. Dr. Saunders, with some correspondence with Dr. Rand, then a professor in the University of Toronto, the suggestion came from Dr. Rand, "Why does not Marshall write stories?" The suggestion was repeated, and the result was a burglar story which brought a cheque for $40 from a New York magazine. The young writer's air castles were soon shattered by the steady return of subsequent manuscripts, but in 1892 she found her true field in writing. Her "Beautiful Joe," the result of six months' careful work, won the $200 prize offered by the American Humane Society for the best story about animals. This book is still very popular. Miss Saunders lived for a number of years in the United States and has traveled widely in Europe and elsewhere. Her home is now in Toronto. She has written a large number of articles, stories, and books about animal pets, as well as several novels.

The Long-winded Scot.

Two Rhinelanders — not from choice but from necessity—were having an argument about the music—and musicians — of their native lands.

"Talk about your long playing," said Pat. "Why, your countrymen wouldn't get a look in with us! I know a fellow who played 'Kathleen Mavourneen' on the piano for several hours."

Said Sandy:

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself to be talking about nothing. Sure, I knew a laddie that played 'Scotland For Ever' on the pipes."

SANDRA THE JEALOUS

By JANE PHELPS

SANDRA IS CHIDED BY HER FRIENDS

CHAPTER II.

SANDRA IS CHIDED BY HER FRIENDS.

Even as I declared that nothing would make me marry Everett, I felt I was not quite truthful. I might—sometime, after I was older, —if he asked me.

The town boys and girls teased me unmercifully about Everett. Some of them dubbed him "grandpa" and made fun because he was as old as my father. Dad was a little older, four years. He was forty-five the summer I met Everett. But I didn't mind their chaffing very much. He was so nice to me. I hardly think any girl would.

"You are all jealous," I told Rose Grandon, the prettiest girl in town.

"Indeed I'm not, honest Sandra. "I would rather mary a man without a penny, and as ugly as could be to look at if I loved him, and he loved me, than a man as old as Mr. Graham. Why when he is a real old man all twisted up with rheumatism, a girl your age would be real young. The idea of marrying a man to play nurse to him never appealed to me."

Really I never had thought serious of marrying Everett until Rose had put the idea into my head. Afterward I unconsciously looked at him every time that I met him in the light of a husband; not my husband, necessarily, but some girl's.

Everett Graham was tall, dark and very handsome in an aristocratic way He was an accomplished man of the world. That he was also blase I had no way of knowing, or that he had been called fickle. He dressed in perfect taste, and was well groomed. Rose said he looked always as if he just that minute had left his valet's hands.

I remember that I was a little cross at Rose when she teazed me when Everett visited Lakeville the second time. I thought him very wise, very generous, very kind. And much more charming in his manners than the boys with whom I had romped and danced for years.

When he left the second time I someway felt like crying—but I forced back the tears. I look horribly unattractive when I cry. My face swells up and my lids get so red. I choked a little when I said good-bye, however, and he must have noticed it, because he squeezed my hand and his voice was almost like a kiss, it was so tender. That was the way I thought of it after he had gone.

He bought me a big box of candy and some magazines as a parting gift then after he had gone to the next day the town florist delivered me a wonderful box of roses. He bade mother and father good bye nicely, too, and said that he would be in town soon again. That his business there would require his attention.

I was awful lonely after he left, and for a day or two I "mooned" about looking as if "I had lost my last friend," so Rose said. But Rose never had been admired by a man like Everett, so I forgave her. We had been chums all our lives so she felt privileged to say what she liked to me. I would not have stood it from anyone else.

Mother was glad when Everett went away and said so. But father rebuked her and remarked:

"He is a good substantial man."

"But he is much older than Sandra, I am afraid she will become interested in him. And such marriages never turn out happily. I want my girl to be happy, dear. As you and I have been happy.

They did not know I was where I could hear them talking. It once more made me think of Everett in the light of a husband.

I wanted to be happy too! but would it not be nice to be married to a man who was rich and generous and so good looking? He would be so kind to his wife she couldn't help but be happy. Of course she wouldn't be crazy in love with him like the young people were in the books I had read, or like Rose seemed to think was necessary. But one would be terribly proud of him and lone[illegible] him enough.

Everett was dignified. More so than Dad, who was always joking and teasing either me or the boys. But even his dignity added to his attractions in my eyes—then. It set him apart, made him very different.

"Give me one of the boys every time," Rose declared, when we talked of him. "Honest, Sandra, I don't believe he would let his wife peep if he didn't feel in the mood. I am sure that she would not be allowed to say her soul was her own."

"You are jealous, that's the reason you say such things," I replied in my most superior manner.

Cane Sugar Industry Is Growing in Australia; Government Fixed Price

"THE foundations of the cane sugar industry in Queensland," says the East Indian Archipelago, "were laid in the days of the struggle against slavery between the Southern and Northern States of America. The founders of the cane sugar industry obtained extensive tracts of land in concession and got permission to import South Sea contract laborers. Great difficulties were encountered, and in 1871 only 9,581 acres were planted with cane which yielded 3,752 tons of sugar. In the following decade an improvement is perceptible (planted area being 28,026 acres), which continued till the fall in the sugar prices coinciding with an increase of South Sea labor. A law was passed prohibiting colored workmen, European laborers took ground for the planting of cane, while the Government of Queensland advanced money to the groups of farmers working on a small scale to help them to build co-operative factories in order to enable them to compete with the big land owners, who still had Polynesian contract laborers at their disposal for some time.

"Owing to the fact that the big land owners began to subdivide their estate on which the former white laborers now established themselves as cane planters, and thanks to the Government's policy of advancing money, the cane sugar industry had undoubtedly a very successful period, 1895-1900. The end of this period saw a further important development of the principle concerning the exploiting of tropical Australia by white men. The Federation of the Australian states which were in favor of free traffic among the different states, protected further the Australian cane sugar industry against foreign competition by imposing an import duty of 1.27c. a pound. At the first meeting of the Commonwealth Parliament in 1901 a resolution was passed to send home the eight or nine thousand South Sea laborers which were still employed in the cane sugar industry, and further, as compensation for the increasing cost price of sugar, a premium was offered for all sugar which was produced solely by white labor.

"The fear that there would be an insufficient amount of white laborers proved unfounded, as the profits made in this industry were large enough to pay big wages in the harvest time, and so laborers came from all parts of Australia to the cane sugar district.

"Many cane sugar planters continued to subdivide their estates because of the law already referred to, and in 1908 the number of European cane planters registered was 4,426, the total production 151,000 tons, of which more than 93 per cent. was produced without colored workmen.

"The following figure will give an idea of the development of the industry:

	Planted Area (Acres.)	Cane Produc'n (Tons.)	Sugar Produc'n (Tons.)
1909 ..	130,649	1,047,446	111,659
1910 ..	185,542	2,000,752	220,534
1916 ..	178,109	1,723,072	192,881

"Forty years ago planters ground their own cane, but now the planting of cane is as a rule apart from the manufacturing of sugar.

"Manufacturers do not sell their sugar in the open market, but to refineries. It goes without saying that an industry which stretches from Nerang in the south to Port Douglas in the north, a distance of about 1,000 miles, shows great contrasts here and there. Irrigation is necessary in some districts, so as in Burdekin delta and in other places drainage is a first essential. Top-dressing varies according to the ground, and extensive analyses are made in the laboratory at Bundaberg, in the cane sugar district. It takes the cane two years to ripen in South Queensland, while the cane in the extreme north is ready for the rollers fifteen months after planting.

"Certain industries in connection with the cane sugar industry, as, for example, jam making industry, so important in Australia, have experienced great difficulties of late years because of the increasing price of sugar. These difficulties date from 1916-17, when the Government purchased the sugar at 3.80c. per pound, and a new standard of wages was fixed (the so-called Dickson award) by which the laborers in the cane sugar industry received from $6 to $8 more per week. This wage standard threatened the cane sugar planters with financial ruin; the Federal Government purchased the crop for 4.85c. per pound, and after the Government of Queensland had promised not to increase the cost price of sugar further (as had happened with the granting of the Dickson wages) the Federal Government bound itself to pay this price for the present crop as well as that of 1918-1920."

TENDER GUMS —A WARNING

Beware of gum tenderness that warns of Pyorrhea. Four out of five people over forty have Pyorrhea—many under forty also. Loosening teeth indicate Pyorrhea. Bleeding gums, too. Remember—these inflamed, bleeding gums act as so many doorways for disease germs to enter the system—infecting the joints or tonsils—or causing other ailments.

Forhan's positively prevents Pyorrhea, if used in time and used consistently. As it hardens the gums the teeth become firmer.

Brush your teeth with Forhan's. It cleans the teeth scientifically—keeps them white and clean.

"North Sea Gibraltar" Naval Wall Flower in War And Now a White Elephant

HELIGOLAND, naval wall flower during the world war, now seems as much of a military white elephant as the German battleships.

The fortifications, built to defend the entrance to Kiel canal will be dismantled, despatches state, and the British propose to use left over Allied and German explosives to blast away the towering rocks which make the island so highly strategic.

Nature has been unkind to this little island of fairy tales and ghost lore, with its quaint, kindly folk and their queer customs. The sea all but washed it away, brought shoals of fishes but wafted them back across the channel, cut the island in two, but was unkindest of all, perhaps, when it planted the plateau rock land to be a magnet for German militarism. It did not take long, after Germany acquired the island from Great Britain in 1890, to convert it into a combination super-fort and Coney Island for over-stout German tradesmen.

Thirty miles west of the Schleswig-Holstein coast, less than a square mile in area, the few thousand fisher folk had little chance to make any protest. Yet the sturdy islanders, for centuries, had well defined ideas about self-determination — even if they never heard the phrase.

Upon one memorable occasion the women of the island decided its political fate. About the time William Penn was settling Pennsylvania a Danish admiral captured the island's fishermen one night while they were placing their nets. He threatened to hold them as hostages until the island surrendered to Denmark. Wives, mothers and sisters arose "to a woman" and forced the Schleswig garrison to relinquish any claim upon Heligoland to Denmark.

Before the Hun fortifications capped the main land and the sand dune was overrun by bathing houses, the appearance of the island to the approaching mariner was aptly described in the verse:

"Green is the land,
Red is the rock,
White is the strand,
These are the colors of Heligoland."

From its predominant natural colors, in fact, the island did take its red, white and green, contained in the olden days of lenient Danish and British rule not only in flags and on the curious postage stamps, but extending to house painting and wo-

JOKER OR SWINDLER?

STRANGE TRICK PLAYED ON PUBLISHING FIRM.

Editors of Encyclopaedia Published Biographies of a Number of Famous Botanists, But It Now Turns Out That the Names and Data Were Faked and That No Such Men Ever Lived.

As fine a humorous passage as H. G. Wells has been able to write in recent years is that in "Marriage," in which the heroine's pampered father plays his favorite game. It consisted in a letter being pronounced, after which the contestants immediately wrote down the names of as many famous people as they could think of whose initial the letter was, the one writing down the most names being the winner. Mr. Pope used invariably to win this game when competing with his family, but one day a stranger took a hand, and defeated Mr. Pope with humiliating ease. His practice was to lug in a lot of names which he alleged to be famous, but which nobody else had ever heard of, but for fear of appearing ignorant they dared not challenge them. A similar sort of joke on a vaster scale has been perpetrated at the expense of Appleton's Cyclopaedia of American Biography, if we are to believe Dr. John Hendley Barnhart, librarian of the New York Botanical Garden for three years, and now a contributor to the Gardens' Journal. He deals only with the botanists in the Cyclopaedia, but the suspicion arises that if so many of the supposed botanists were figments of the imagination, may not many other names be equally fictitious?

The editor of Appleton's evidently considered that a European who had visited America and made any discoveries there was entitled to mention in an encyclopaedia. Therefore, we come across the following list:

Kehr, Gustav Herman, German botanist, b. in Freysingen in 1581; d. in Magdeburg in 1639.

Kerckhove, Lorenz Wenceslas, Dutch naturalist, b. in Bois le Duc in 1785; d. in Amsterdam in 1839.

Kjoeping, Olaus, Swedish explorer, b. in Dalecarlia in 1741; d. in Horoe, Denmark, in 1809.

Koehler, Alexander Daniel, German botanist, b. in Altenkirchen, Rugen Island, 18 April, 1762; d. in Langenbranden, Wurttemberg, 6 Dec., 1828.

Lotter, Frederic August, German botanist, b. in Kleinaupe, Moravia, in 1741; d. in Gotha in 1806.

Mortier, Edouard Louis, French naturalist, b. in Mulhouse in 1801; d. in Rio Janeiro in 1852.

Nascher, Friedrich Wilhelm, German naturalist, b. in Newent, England, in 1702; d. in Paderborn, Westphalia, in 1764.

Ramee, Stanislas Henri de la, French naturalist, b. in Perigueux in 1747; d. in Fontainebleau in 1803.

Thibaudin, Gaston Louis, French explorer, b. in Dunkirk in 1727; d. in Lima, Peru, in 1796.

Vivier, Jacques du, b. in Lorent, France, in 1720; d. there in 1793.

Wallerton, Charles Louis Auguste, French naturalist, b. in Sainte-Menehould in 1721; d. in Nancy in 1788.

If we trust Dr. Barnhart, every one of these men is bogus. They never made any contribution to American or any other science; they never lived. Dr. Barnhart says that the editors of the encyclopaedia were imposed upon by some one who was either a practical joker or a plain swindler, and contributed the biographies at so much a word. He finds internal evidence to indicate that the biographies were all the work of one author. It is to be noted that of all the eleven, none died in the United States where a tombstone might be supposed to confirm or deny a story about him. Two are supposed to have died in South America, and certainly the editors of Appleton's would not have thought of despatching an expedition to search the churchyards there. All these great botanists were safely interred by the author in small, remote towns where it might be expected that the encyclopaedia would never enter, and to which no subsequent botanist would make a pious pilgrimage. On this account Dr. Barnhart says that thirty years have elapsed since the fraud was perpetrated, and is only now exposed. Probably, too, the house of Appleton now will find it difficult to look up the records and discover who was the contributor whose acquaintance with other European botanists of some hundreds of years ago was so intimate.

Dr. Barnhart mentions not fewer than 69 titles of 139 volumes in all mentioned as the work of these bogus botanists that never were written, and it was a search for some of them that first gave him the clue to the fraud. He notes that the earliest work on sex in plants was not published until 1694, or sixty-three years after the monumental tome of a fake botanist. In another case the bogus biography speaks of the subject writing a treatise on the bread fruit tree in South America in 1758, whereas this cereal was not introduced into tropical America until 1793. It is difficult to summon up much indignation against the scoundrel who forged these biographies. He ought to be classed with George Buchanan and Theodore Hook, as a practical joker. But it is not usual for a practical joker to wait thirty years to get his laugh. Maybe he was one of those true humorists who do not need anyone to laugh with them. Maybe he needed the money.

Handling Asparagus After the Cutting Season.

Handling of beds of asparagus after the cutting season is comparatively simple. The first thing necessary is to stop all cutting no later than the first of July. At this time give the bed a thorough cultivation and a heavy coat of manure to the depth of about four to six inches. The addition of commercial fertiliser at the rate of 800 to 1,000 pounds per acre made up largely of nitrogen and phosphorous will be a great help to it. Then allow the bed to grow until the fall, being sure that it is kept sprayed with poison Bordeaux mixture to keep down the asparagus rust and disease by the asparagus beetle, both in the adult and larval stage. To this poisoned Bordeaux should be added a sticker made of resin or soap as the spray will not adhere to the smooth surface unless this is done. In October when the berries are turning red all the tops should be cut and burned. Then spore and cloth and st. In la

Home of Perpetual Peace

GENEVA is to be the capital of the League of Nations. Seated serenely on both banks of the River Rhone where it leaves the limpid waters of Lake Geneva as a placid stream, in contrast to the muddy turbulence of its ingress at the other end of the lake, Geneva is not the metropolis of the miniature republic of Switzerland, for Zurich surpasses it in population by 50 per cent. and Berne is the capital. But it is doubtful whether before the world war any other city of its size was visited annually by as many tourists, for it was the main gateway into the world famous "playground of Europe."

Although its recorded history goes back beyond the Christian era, to the time when Julius Caesar, in his commentaries on his first expedition into Gaul, mentions it as a stronghold of the Allobroges, its growth has been phenomenal only in its leisureliness. To-day, after twenty centuries, it has a little more than twice the population of the young capital of Canada.

The city enjoys the distinction of being the birthplace of the International Red Cross, but also has some dark chapters in its past—the religious excesses of the Reformation, when the persecuted became the persecutors.

Rousseau, of whom Napoleon said, "Without him France would not have had her revolution," and the patriot Bonivard, whose trials Byron immortalized as the Prisoner of Chillon, were Genevans. Farel, the Billy Sunday of his day, who could not be made to desist from preaching, even though the women of his congregation dragged him up and down the aisles of the church by his beard, made the lake city his headquarters during his ascendency. And John Calvin, "who found Geneva a bear garden, and left it a docile school of piety," was virtual dictator there for a quarter of a century.

One of the most picturesque figures in the history of Geneva during this period was Francis de Bonivard, who, when his victorious friends rushed into his dungeon at Chillon crying, "Bonivard, you are freed!" responded with the query, "And Geneva?" Upon being assured that his city was also saved, he went home rejoicing.

By one of those curious chances upon which hinge events of monumental moment, the young French philosopher John Calvin, a native of Picardy, passed through Geneva one evening on his way to Strassbourg. He had intended spending only one night; but Farel, hearing of his arrival, rushed to him and with the fiery impetuosity which characterised every act of his life convinced Calvin that it was his duty to remain and assist in the organization of a theocratic state.

The austerity of the Calvin code presents many amusing phases to the modern reader. For example, a hairdresser was imprisoned because he made one of his clients too beautiful. Any man who swore "without necessity" was required to take off his hat, "kneel down on the place or make obeisance, clasp his hands and kiss the earth." The wearing of silk or embroidered hose was prohibited; likewise the adornment of one's person with chains of silver or gold, and eating or drinking in taverns outside of the city. Hosts and hostesses were enjoined to warm their guests to be in their own lodgings "after the trumpet sound to the watch or the ringing of the bell" (nine o'clock at night).

There is no more beautiful picture of Christian charity than the one in this city when on August 30, 1572, merchants of Lyons brought news of the massacre of the Huguenots on St. Bartholomew's Day. Senators were despatched to the frontiers to meet the fugitives, who were reported to be on their way to this asylum, and the venerable Theodore de Beze, who had succeeded Calvin as the spiritual head of the council, directed the whole population to fast and pray for the sufferers.

Geneva has set aside as a site for the permanent home of the League of Nations a beautiful wooded park bordering on the lake, some five miles from the centre of the city. Behind the park tower the snow-clad Jura mountains. While there are many villages in the vicinity of the park which are suitable for offices and for quarters of the delegates and their secretarial staffs, the capital building itself must be built.

Easy Money.

The Chinese gamble of "Pukkapoo" in which the punter receives 170 for 1s, if he cancels the whole of the same ten numbers out of a total of 80, and draws £42 if he cancels eight numbers of the ten cancelled by the banker, does not seem to err on the side of liberality, says the London Chronicle.

It is only a varient of the Italian government lotto, in which there are extractions of five numbered balls out of a bag containing ninety. If a punter stakes "a terno," i.e., takes his chance of naming three numbers on one ticket, and for all three to be among the lucky five, the Italian Government pays about £200 for 1s.

Every village has its "Banco di Lotto," in which stakes as low as 2d. are accepted for drawings at Rome, Bari, Venice, Palermo, etc.

Bathing in the Jordan.

Bathing in the River Jordan, famous in sacred history, has lost its popularity as the result of the discovery by American physicians that it is a dangerous disease germ carrier. One of the first steps taken by the American Red Cross unit reaching that region was an analysis of the river water. It was found laden with the germs of skin diseases and other maladies.

There have never before been restrictions on bathing in the stream, regardless of the physical conditions of the bathers, but the revelations of the danger lurking in the Jordan's waters caused the local authorities to place a ban on unrestricted bathing.

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Fever...ness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Comfort—The Mother's Friend.

COOTIES THRIVE IN LETTER

MIFFINTOWN, Pa.—While looking through some old letters received when he was living in the trenches on the battlefields of France, Walter Mingle, of Fermanagh township, had an uncomfortable reminder of some of the hardship that he was compelled to endure while on foreign soil. From the folds of one of the envelopes walked three of as healthy looking specimens of cooties as ever hid in a soldier's garment. There they were, having run the gauntlet of delousing stations, turning up in Juniata county, more than 3000 miles from their point of origin, full of life after leaving their native land many months ago.

NOMINATIONS WILL BE HELD TO-MORROW

ALDERMANIC LIST WILL BE OPENED IN THE EVENING—OTHERS IN THE MORNING.

The shadow of the municipal elections for 1920 will be cast upon the electorate to-morrow in the nominations at the City Hall in the morning and evening. Following last year's precedent, the names of the candidates for the aldermanic board will be received in the evening, beginning at 7.30 o'clock. In the morning from 10 until 11 o'clock the lists will be open for the mayoralty, the Board of Education, and the Utilities Commission.

It is expected that the aspirants for civic responsibility will discuss the problems of the departments to which they hope the citizens will elect them.

The preliminaries that have been in progress for two or three weeks may produce a surprise or two.

The Labour Council will pick its slate at a special meeting to-night, at which special committee for election purposes will submit its report.

SPECIAL MUSIC IN THE CHURCHES

Music of an unusually high and finished order was presented in the different churches last evening. Each of the denominations, having arranged for special Christmas music, proved in the presentation that the choirs, well worthy of the utmost credit before, have reached an even higher degree of proficiency.

Murray Street Church.

A distinctive feature of the Christmas music at Murray Street Baptist Church last evening was the anthem, by the choir, "And the Glory of the Lord," from Handel's "Messiah." This was unusually fine. Each part was balanced the enunciation was clear and distinct, and the tonal qualites splendid. "Unto us a child is born," by Buck, and "Festival in E flat" by Dudley Buck, were also admirably rendered by the choir. The solo, "The Birthday of a King," by Neidlinger, sung by Miss Lillian Eastwood, revealed to great advantage her artistic powers. The choir, under the leadership of Mr. Asa Huycke, has reached this year a higher degree of proficiency than ever before. The organ numbers and accompaniments by Miss Ida Sanderson showed the work of a finished artiste.

St. Andrew's Church.

St. Andrew's Christmas music was far above the usual high standard presented at the church, and the careful preparation the members have been making, under the leadership of Mr John Crane, was most gratifying in its results. The church had been suitably and beautifully decorated in evergreens and flowers by the Young Men's Guild.

Grove's O-Pen-Trate Salve.

Opens the Pores and Penetrates the Skin. Its stimulating, Soothing and Healing effect soon relieves Chest Colds, Head Cods, Colds in the Back, Spasmodic Croup, and any Congestion, inflammation or pains caused from colds. 35c per box. If your druggist hasn't any, send 35c in postage stamps to Paris Medicine Company, 193 Spadina Avenue, Toronto, and a full sized box will be mailed to you promptly.

CANTATA WAS WELL RENDERED

GOOD SOLO WORK AT TRINITY METHODIST CHURCH.

Trinity Methodist Church was crowded to the doors last evening, when the beautiful Christmas cantata, "Adoration," by George B. Nevin, was presented by the Choir under the direction of Mr. George King, the organist.

Mrs. King, who took the soprano solos, sang with a high degree of perfection; her range and sweetness of voice was particularly commented upon last evening. Mr. Maurice Park sang the tenor solos in a masterly manner, while the contralto Miss L. Corbett, and the baritone, Mr. Fred Hartshorn, who have studied with Mr. King, displayed the wonderful advancement that they have made under his tuition, having added a professional and finished touch to their already splendid voices. The four voices of the soloists made an especially happy combination in the quartette work and blended magnificently.

The choir's work was a high compliment to their leader, Mr. King, and reflected the talented instruction which the members have received at his hands. Mr. King made a most sympathetic accompanist throughout the Cantata.

MEHARRY APPEAL WAS DISMISSED

The Supreme Court of Canada delivered judgment to-day at Ottawa in this case. The Court consisted of the Chief Justice Sir Louis Davies, Idington, Duff, Anglin, Brodeur, and Mignault. The appeal was heard on the 27th and 28th days of November last.

The action was brough by Mr. W. J. Meharry against the Auburn Woollen Company for the specific performance of an agreement for the sale of 4.70 acres of gravel lands opposite the Golf Links for $4,700.00, dated the 8th day of September, 1915, upon which Mr. Meharry had paid $200.00 at the time of signing the agreement, and paid a further instalment of $500.00 on the 25th of September, 1915.

He obtained time from the late Mr. Kendry for the payment of the third instalment, which became due on the 20th October, 1915. The last instalment became due on the 8th September, 1918.

The agreement contained a drastic forfeiture clause, giving the company the right to forfeit all money paid on any default that might take place to deprive Mr. Meharry of all his rights, to eject him from the property, and to retake possession of his lands.

At the trial in Peterborough on the 19th of February last, Chief Justice Sir Glenholme Falconbridge relieved the plaintiff from forfeiture, and granted him specific performance of his contract on payment to the company of the balance of the purchase money.

The company appealed from this decision to the Appellate Division of Ontario, consisting of Sir William Meredith, Magee, J.A., Hodgins, J. A., and Latchford, J. And this Court on the 19th of May last set aside the judgment of the Trial Judge, dismissed Mr. Meharry's action, with costs, and directed that the instalments paid be returned to Mr. Meharry, subject to the company's lien for costs.

From this judgment Mr. Meharry appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada, and its judgment is as follows:

Appellant Meharry's appeal dismissed, with costs, ground of decision, Trial Judge found Meharry misapprehended his rights when he wrote his letter drawn in Mr. Peck's office, who was acting for the Respondent, and the Supreme Court of Canada drew the inference Mr. Peck could act for both parties and allow Meharry to abandon his rights against his own client, Auburn Woollen Co., and let Meharry lose his rights under his contract.

Mr. R. R. Hall and Mr. C. R. Widdifield appeared as counsel for Mr. Meharry, the appellant, and Mr. Strachan Johnston, K.C., Toronto, and Mr. J. E. L. Goodwill appeared as counsel for the Auburn Woollen Company, respondents.

PETERBORO OPERA HOUSE WILL SHARE IN THE FIRST RELEASE

VICE-PRESIDENT DRISCOLL TELLS WHY THE GIGANTIC THEATRE DEAL WAS ARRANGED AND CONCLUDED.

(Special to The Examiner.)

MONTREAL, Dec. 22. — By the completion of the organisation of the Trans-Canada Theatres, Limited, a seven million dollar corporation, the Grand Opera House, Peterborough, along with the rest of the small interests in Ontario, the Walker interests in Winnipeg, and the Lougheed interests in Calgary and Edmonton passes into the control of the new combine.

Mr. Small, Mr. Walker, and Sir James Lougheed retired on 1st December, and their theatres are now being operated by the Trans-Canada people.

Behind this vast organisation, which is formed for the purpose of assuring the highest class American and British companies, booking throughout Canada are some of the largest capitalists in the Dominion, amongst them Lord Shaughnessy, Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, and Sir Herbert Holt and H. W. Beauclerc, Geo. F. Driscoll, joint lessee of His Majesty's Theatre, Montreal, is a vice-president, and it is to his efforts, backed by Mr. Beauclerc, who is president, and his financial associates, that the work of incorporating the big line of theatres across Canada under one management has been accomplished after negotiations stretching over four years.

The theatres bought outright by the new company are: His Majesty's, Montreal, Walker House, Winnipeg, and the Grand Opera Houses at Toronto, Hamilton, Peterborough, London, St. Thomas, Kingston, Calgary, and Edmonton.

New theatres will be built at Vancouver, Regina, Edmonton, and Montreal, the last-named to take care of the lower price attractions.

Although no theatres have been bought east of Montreal, bookings for the east will have to be made through Trans-Canada Theatres, as they will control all the bookings for Canada and the big visiting companies.

First Releases.

The new Edmonton Theatre is already under construction. Besides theatrical productions, Trans-Canada Theatres will control the first releases of the big artistes' films, which include the Chaplin, Fairbanks, Griffiths, and Pickford pictures, of which there are only twelve releases a year. Talking of the object of the new company, Vice-President Driscoll said the amalgamation was the only way to save the situation for the theatres of Canada, as it was impossible to get high-class American and British companies to play Canada owing to the difficulty of getting continuous booking which would necessitate arrangements with twenty-five or thirty managers.

Now, all the booking would be done through Montreal for the whole of Canada.

Mr. Small is said to have received two million dollars, mostly in cash, for his interests in Ontario.

Trans-Canada Theatres will control through bookings for 160 theatres outside of those it owns outrigt. h

"CUSS" WORDS BANNED.

Wellesley, Mass.—The use of 'cuss' words at Wellesley College must be abolished, according to the girls who have adopted a system whereby if a student says "damn," "my word," or "darn," she is fined a dime.

Voice Of The People

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—John Moher, East City, says he will give his labour from now on until the first of April for his board to any farmer. I have been unable to get work all winter.

John Moher, 40 Caddy Street, East City.

MR. JOHN ALLAN MOVES TO CHATHAM

Mr. John Allan, formerly organist of St. Paul's Church, who left the city to take a similar position in Brantford in April last, has accepted a more remunerative position as organist of St. Andrew's Church, Chatham, and will take over his new duties on 4th January. Rev. A. S. Orton is pastor of the church.

CHRISTMAS SERVICES IN ST. JAMES' CHURCH.

The Christmas services in St. James' Church yesterday were especially beautiful in character. The decorations of choice flowers and evergreens emphasised the Christmas spirit. Large congregations gathered at both services. In the morning the pastor, Rev. J. F. Chapman, took for his theme, "The Visit of the Shepherds." The beautiful music and anthems given by the choir were all in keeping with the day. At night the service was specially devoted to Christmas music. The sacred cantata, "The Nativity of Christ," was given, and made a beautiful closing for the last Sabbath before Christmas.

The most undesirable seats at the theatre of war are on the front tier.

STORE OPEN TO-NIGHT TO-MORROW AND WEDNESDAY NIGHTS

The Bargain Annex Will be Open Every Day and Evening Until Christmas

Gathered from Here and There About the Store

Their Prices and Uses Are Widely Different but Each Will Convey the Christmas Spirit from Giver to Receiver

We could go on and on making Christmas gift suggestions from our extensive stocks—there are so many lovely things worth giving and having. These few may be a guide in making your selection, but we advise that you make a tour among the goods in our establishment, letting our sales force show all that we have. We suggest that you shop in the mornings if possible.

A Good Assortment of Light, Filmy Blouses at $9.95

They are made of such desirable materials as Georgette and Crepe de Chine, and the colours are apricot, flesh, maize, black and white. The collars are in various shape, as square, convertible, tuxedo and V neck and collarless styles. They are prettied with tucks, beadings, pipings, buttons and laces. There are numerous other touches that make them distinctive and contribute greatly to the variety. Moderately priced at $9.95.

An Eiderdown Kimono Will Contribute to Her Comfort

Several Priced at $9.75

Much can be said in favour of a kimono for a gift, especially if it is of eiderdown, for they are so comfy and warm. Knowing this, we thought it wise to mention this range at $9.75.

They are made of good quality cloths, that are prettily patterned in floral effects and can be had in such desirable colours as pale blue, pink, Pekin blue, rose and maize. The trimmings are principally satin facings down the front and on the sleeves and collar and cuffs, and a girdle to tie about the waist.

Other Eiderdowns priced from $6.95 to $14. Japanese Quilted Robes from $7 to $25. Negligees of cotton and cotton and silk from $3.00 to $14.00.

Stationery in Handsome Boxes, Regular $1.50 and $1.75 Value for $1.29

You may consider stationery an ordinary gift, but this is not so if it is so beautifully boxed as these. Many are from the renowned makers, "White and Wycoff." Some are in long flat boxes, others in flat square shapes and several can be properly described as upright grands. Each boxes contains two quires of fine finished linen paper and envelopes to match. You have choice of two shapes in these, "The Copley" and "Intervale." The former is long and narrow and the latter is square. The boxes are tinted in the following colours: pink, pale blue and maize.

Comely Neckwear that She Will Greatly Prize—Priced at $1.25

If you are particular about the neck fixings you buy and would like to see something infinitely smart and yet moderately priced, then we recommend you to view this lot of neckwear at $1.25.

In the assortment you will find long and short tuxedos, sailors and round shapes. The materials employed in the making are: georgette crepe, crepe de chine, satin, nets and corded silk. Some rely on simplicity for their charm and others are touched with hemstitching, lace and net.

A Boudoir Lamp with a Mahogany Stem and Silk Shade Can be Had at $5 or up to $11

There is no range of Boudoir Lamps hereabouts to compare with, in number or elegance, this comprehensive assemblage. The stems are gracefully shaped and highly polished, and the shades are made of richly colored silks, through which filters soft rays of light. The prices mentioned above are nominal.

$3.75 SERVING TRAYS FOR $2.99.

They are square in shape, and some are Mahogany and others Walnut. All have Glass Tops, lined with Circassian Walnut; also Brass Handles. A Clearance Price at $2.99.

TABLE LAMPS - - - $13.00 to $20.00
FLOOR LAMPS - - - - $24.25 to $62.50
LIBRARY LAMPS - - $10.50 to $23.75

These Felt Slippers Were Never Made to Sell at $1.49 for Such Quality is Easily worth $1.75

Felt Slippers are warm. That cannot be denied. These can be had in deep rich red, a medium shade of brown and a good navy. The edges are beaded with ribbon to match, and the insteps are decked with a pom - pom. The sole is of a soft, pliable leather and the insole is well padded.

Tweedie Boot Tops can be had only in the Cressman Store. We have the exclusive agency for this line in Peterborough. They make excellent gifts. Price $5.50.

If you are buying boots for the children, remember that we stock Hurlbut wefts and MacFarlane shoes. Every size, from infants to the last size that is classified as children's.

AN AVALANCHE IS ANTICIPATED

EXPRSES COMPANIES PREPARED TO HANDLE SHIPMENTS AFTER CHRISTMAS.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, Dec. 2.— The Canadian Express have not been notified by the government of the lifting of the war-time restrictions on the importation of liquor on January 1st. Until that happens they will not handle any shipments. When it is lifted, according to Mr. R. C. Mitchell, Toronto agent, they expect an "avalanche."

"Our only fear was that the restrictions would be lifted for Christmas. If they had been, we simply could not have handled the extra shipments. Merchants with their regular business would have to have been looked after first, and it is taking up all our time handling that in the present rush."

"After the New Year we will be able to handle any amount of extra stuff, and there will probably be an avalanche of Montreal shipments." At present, Mr. Mitchell said, no special arrangements had been made to handle a rush of liquor shipments. "It will be time enough making arrangements," he said, "when the government notifies us. We will wait for that. We must keep within the law." Mr. Mitchell did not know what quantities of liquor were lined up in Montreal for shipment to Toronto at the first opportunity. He will handle them when they come.

DOCTOR ADVISED HIM TO TAKE IT

A. F. ROBERTS, SUCCESSFUL CATTLE DEALER, GAINS 16 POUNDS IN 60 DAYS TAKING TANLAC.

"One of the best doctors in Colorado advised me to take Tanlac, and it has not only overcome my troubles but I have gained sixteen pounds since I began taking it sixty days ago," said A. F. Roberts, who lives at Rocky Ford, Alberta, Canada, a few days ago.

Mr. Roberts is one of the largest cattle dealers in his section of the country, and before moving to Canada a short time ago, he had spent most of his life in Colorado, U.S.A.

"I can now understand why Tanlac enjoys such wide popularity both in Canada and the United States," continued Mr. Roberts, "and since it has done me so much good I know that it is a very dependable medicine and deserves all the praise that is being given it. For the past two years I have suffered from stomach trouble, and when I commenced taking this Tanlac, it was almost impossible for me to retain anything I ate, I was very nervous and never got a good night's sleep, and finally got so weak and rundown that I was hardly able to get about, I often had dizzy spells, and was bothered a great deal with constipation.

"My physician certainly knew what he was doing when he prescribed Tanlac for me, for it has done the work for me, as I am as healthy and strong now as I ever was in my life. In fact it has done much more for me than I expected it would do. I have a fine appetite and everything I eat agrees with me perfectly, and I never have the slightest sign of stomach trouble of any kind. I am no longer bothered with constipation, and never have those dizzy spells any more. I have regained all my strength, too, and that nervousness has left me and I sleep like a log every night. In fact, I am simply enjoying perfect health again, and I give Tanlac credit for it all."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowlers Corner by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

Who Won the War?

War has been won by the heroism of France, who gained time for us to prepare, whose armies were foremost in the fight, and whose generals were chosen for the supreme command by all the Allies; by the devotion of Belgium, who was ready to sacrifice everything but her immortal soul; by the nobility of Italy, who in one of the darkest hours came to our aid; by the immense efforts of the United States who entered the war at that critical time when Russia failed, and whose troops at Chateau Thierry, in the breaking of the Hindenburg line and in the Argonne won such laurels last year. It has been won by the patience, tenacity and faith of the British peoples and of the splendid soldiers from Home and the Dominions, whom they sent into the field. We chose, when the hour of decision came, to risk all we had for freedom. "We must be free or die." And we fought at the last, with all our strength—in every element, sparing no sacrifice.—London Daily Mail.

WAR VETERANS' CHILDREN ENJOYED THE CHRISTMAS TREAT ON SATURDAY

SEVEN HUNDRED LITTLE ONES TOOK PART IN THE EVENT—THE PROGRAMME—PRESENTS DISTRIBUTED.

Desiring to express in some tangible manner their continued appreciation of the services of the men who went overseas, the citizens of Peterborough contributed generously to the annual Christmas treat given on Saturday afternoon in the Great War Veterans' rooms and some seven hundred little ones spent a happy afternoon. Long before three o'clock groups of excited little ones commenced to arrive at the G. W. V. A. rooms, accompanied by their parents, and by the time the programme was opened their excitement had reached a fever pitch which was not only gratifying to those interested in the event but a difficult matter to keep in control.

The Programme.

Before the presentation of presents a most acceptable programme was given, opening with a selection by the G.W.V.A. band. This was followewd by a short address by Mrs. Joseph Mills, president of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Great War Veterans, who spoke of the generosity of the citizens in providing the treat and the reason the occasion was held in the G. W.V.A. hall this year instead of the Armouries as formerly.

Loud and prolonged applause greeted Mr. G. N. Gordon, the "father of the Christmas treat," when he came to the platform to wish the kiddies "Merry Christmas" and to ask the children to remember to thank the ladies who undertook the work of organzing the treat. Mr. Sydney Whatley, secretary of the Great War Veterans, in the absence of the President, Mr. Harvey Staunton, on behalf of the G.W.V.A., wished the children a Merry Christmas and spoke briefly of the specially happy occasion this year's Christmas treat was in the fact that to a great extent the fathers and brothers of the children had returned from overseas. The speeches wre interspersed by selections from the G W.V.A. band, a Christmas carol in which all present joined, and a solo and Dance by Miss Dorothy Cook.

Distributed the Presents.

At the conclusion of the programme the big event of the afternoon happened, when Mrs. Mills asked the girls to come to one Christmas tree, the boys to the other, to receive the remembrance which had been placed on the tree for them. With splendid organization, not a child was overlooked and in spite of the fact that each child in his excitement was anxious to be first, the bag of candy and present to each child was presented with comparatively little difficulty, and seven hundred children returned to their homes the happy possessor of a pretty toy or book as he wished Any surplus presents were sent to the children who are ill in the hospitals.

THANKS HIS PATRONS

MR. H. J. ZACKS EXTENDS GRLETINGS AND THANKS TO THE CUSTOMERS OF TWELVE YEARS.

To the Public:

I take this opportunity of conveying to all my customers and friends, my hearty thanks for the continued patronage I have enjoyed during the twelve years I have been in business in Peterborough. Pleasant relations have been sustained throughout my term of business service to residents of Peterborough and district, and it is with sincere regret that I am about to leave the city. I have sold my business to Mr. B. Chesler, and I ask for him the continuance of your patronage, feeling sure that he will give efficient and courteous service and the same considerate treatment our customers have always received.

At this festive season, I extend to all my very warmest greetings and best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy, Prosperous New Year.

H. J. ZACKS.

Mother's Bread

Will Not Be Delivered on Thursday, Dec. 25th or Friday, Dec. 26th

Many people are probably not aware of the fact that a modern bakery is in operation, partially at least, every day in the year.

The bread you get to-day was prepared yesterday and baked last night. We want every man in our employ to be absolutely free on Christmas Day—free to spend that day with his family. To do this will mean that there will be no bread for delivery on the day after Christmas.

Order on Wednesday, Dec 24th. sufficient bread to do until Saturday, Dec. 27th. By doing this you will earn the gratitude of every employee of this company.

The World Of Sport

GIVE THE KIDS A CEANGE

The advent of the City Hockey League will be hailed with enthusiasm by the fans. There is no better way of developing players than through the instrumentality of such an organization, and the launching of the new League which will begin operations in the second week in January, is an important event in hockey circles.

In the drawing up of the constitution of the City League, howeevr, it is to be regretted that a more broad-minded policy towards young players was not adopted. One of the rules of the organization is that no player who signs a certificate with this year's Intermediates or Junior O. H. A. teams, is eligible to compete in the City League. The injustice of that rule is apparent when it is pointed out that there is nothing to bar a player who has played senior, intermediate or junior hockey previous to this year from taking part while a green youngster who may not even catch a place on this year's junior team, would be unable to play City League Hockey if he signs an O.H.A. certificate.

The Junior O. H. A. team this year are practically all inexperienced players making their debut in the Ontario series and it is an illogical move to bar them from the City League while at the same time seasoned players who have played in the O.H.A. for two or more seasons, are admitted without question. The League will be handicapped in producing or developing young players as long as such a narrow visioned policy as that is adopted and it would be decidedly in the interests of the League itself, the Junior O.H. A. team and hockey generally, if the restrictions as far as Junior O.H.A. players were removed. At the very least the mere signing of a certificate should not be enough to bar anybody, for many players are registered with the O.H.A. each year who never get a place in the line-up.

CITY LEAGUE ADOPTS RULES AND CONSTITUTION

MR. A. A. FOWLER HAS DONATED A SILVER CUP AS A TROPHY — LEAGUE WILL LIKELY GET UNDER WAY ON JANUARY 9TH—INTERMEDIATES PRACTICE TO-NIGHT— HOCKEY GOSSIP.

An enthusiastic meeting of the City Hockey League was held at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum on Saturday afternoon, when several important matters of business in connection with the League were taken up. It is expected that the playing season will open on January 9th. Four teams are in line, the following being the names and colours: Business College, blue and white; Belmont Club, purple and mauve; Canadian Woollens, purple and Orange; and C.G.E. Tool Room, garnet and gray.

Walter Miller was appointed official referee.

The rules and constitution were discussed and decided upon. A summary follows:

A player must be a resident of Peterborough for two weeks before taking part in any City League game.

A fine of $5 will be levied on any team which causes a 10 minute delay in starting a game, the referee's time to be taken as official.

Two games, each consisting of three twenty minute periods, with a five minute intermission between periods, will be played each night, the first game to start at 7.30 o'clock.

Any team can play any man who is a resident of the city and does not hold an O.H.A. certificate.

Each team may sign twelve players. The teams will play seven man hockey, with two substitutes allowed.

Each team must make a deposit of $25 to the credit of the League on or before Jan. 3rd to cover expenses. At the end of the season, is there is a credit balance, it will be divided equally among the teams, but any team which fails to finish the season will forfeit its deposit.

Each team must pay a $2 entrance fee on or before Jan. 3rd, 1920.

The admission to the public will be 10c and 25c., the League paying the war tax.

The schedule was drawn up and will be announced later, after it has received the approval of the management of Brock street rink.

President J. A. McKone remarked that the League was receiving hearty support from the citizens, and announced that Mr. A. A. Fowler had donated a silver trophy for competition, to become the permanent property of the team winning it three years in succession. On behalf of the teams and players the League wishes to express its gratitude to Mr. Fowler for his kindness.

There will be a general meeting of the League on Saturday afternoon, Jan. 3, at 2.30 o'clock to handle the final details in connection with the opening of the League.

The Peterborough intermediate O. H.A. team will practise to-night at 7 o'clock. A full attendance is requested in view of the game with Bellevill on Friday night.

BIG VAUDEVILLE COMING TO CITY

HIGH-CLASS VAUDEVILLE WILL BE SHOWN AT THE GRAND.

The management of the Grand Opera House take great pleasure in announcing to the Public that they have secured The Franchise for Peterboro of the famous B. F. Keith Vaudeville Circuit and the policy of this Theatre commencing Thursday January 9th. and the last three days of each following week will be to present a combined programme of High Class Vaudeville and Extraordinary feature pictures 2 1-2 hali hours of clean and wholesome entertainment consisting of Four Big time Vaudeville Acts and eight reels of Famous Picture Stars. Special arrangements have been made for the reservation of seats which can be reserved three days in advance of each evening performance by telephone or at the Box office reservations will be held until 7.45 evening of performance. Prices have been arranged for the evening performance to suit all purses: Orchestra 50c Balcony 50c., 25c., Gallery 15c. There will be a matinee daily at 25c. and 15c. and judging from the numerous enquiries regarding the new Policy, the expectations of the management are that this charge will be a welcome one to Theatregoers and the S.R.O. sign will be hung out at every performance.

THE DUMBELLS

"Biff, Bing, Bang," the greatest musical comedy ever written and played by any military organization, and claimed by many to have been the greatest success ever offered to the boys in France, will return to the Grand on Christmas Day, matinee and evening.

The company presenting this unique revue in Canada, was known in France as "The Dumbells', and has a record of over five hundred performances given immediately behind the front lines during the war. After the Armistice they gave forty performances in Brussels for the benefit of the wounded and disabled soldiers and sailors. These performances were under the royal patronage if King Albert of Belgium, who has since presented Capt. M. W. Plunkett and his Dumbells with a medal and address in commemoration of their splendid success. Their only other public appearance before coming to Canada was in London where they played a month, two weeks of which they appeared in the famous Coliseum, where they played to 91,200 people. All of the original company, who survived the war, are now in Canada and their forthcoming appearance here promises to be one of the finest and certainly the most unique and interesting theatrical engagements ever staged in this city.

ERNIE MARKS AT THE GRAND

On Friday, Dec. 26 Mr. Ernie Marks and his company of advanced repertoire and vaudeville players will present that great comedy drama "Little Peggy O'Moore" and sure is a hearty laugh and a delightful play from start to finish. The play has been a great success for several seasons, because it is chucked full of fun brimming over with good humour, and a story that grips the attention There is entertainment galore in "Little Peggy O'Moore" with its music, clean, bright comedy, and scenes and situations of thrilling excitement and touches of pathos, all so true that it seems like a page torn from Nature's book, a great play for the children. Popular prices prevail. For an evening of enjoyment go to the Grand Opera House, Friday night on the opening of the Ernie Marks Stock Co., supporting the clever actress, Kittie Marks. Prices 25, 35, 50 cents. Seats on sale Wednesday.

LIQUOR TRUCK BROKE DOWN

If all reports are true, some people in Cobourg got liquor that was not intended for Cobourg consumption, but for Toronto. The auto truck was bringing a load from Montreal to Toronto last week, when it broke down on the Front Road. The driver came into town, but when he returned to his disabled car the liquor had all disappeared. In these days of the Ontario Temperance Act, it is not safe to leave liquor on a road to take care of itself—it won't do it, and there are too many thirsty souls.—Cobourg Sentinel-Star.

PORT HOPE MEN WERE ARRESTED.

Charged with Burglary and Stealing an Automobile.

The arm of the law is long, and not easily discouraged. About a year ago Armstrong's general store at Orono was burglarised and goods to the value of several hundred dollars carried off. Provincial detectives have been busy on this case ever since, and the other night two young men of this town were placed under arrest by Constables Colwill and Harvey, and it is alleged they were connected with this burglary and also with the theft of Mr. J. R. Cooper's automobile at Orono about two months ago. An officer from Bowmanville came down and returned with the prisoners.

WALKING 25,000 MILES

LONDON, Eng.— William C. Brown, late of the Leicester Regiment, who, for no particular reason, has set himself the task of walking 25,000 miles in the United Kingdom, said to-day that the "torture of his life" is the refusal of rides offered by kindly motorists. Brown left Darlington on May 8. He is averaging 23 miles a day, and at that rate his task will take three years. His progress is recorded by police stamps in a small ledger.

GHOST HANDS.

Strange Traditions That Are Widely Believed.

Hands, from the days of Daniel—when writings appeared so mysteriously on the walls of Belshazzer's palace—have always been connected with the occult, and were regarded by Chaldeans and Egyptians alike to be omens of the very greatest moment and significance.

The model of a hand, for example, was always carried in the festivals of Isis at the end of a palm branch, and hands figure frequently in the writings on the pyramids and statues, both in Egypt and Mesopotamia.

A certain branch of the Douglas family used to see the shadow of a mailed hand always before the death of one of the clan; whilst a branch of the MacDonnells still hear bony knuckles rapping on doors or walls invariably before a similar occurrence.

Some years ago a gentleman wrote to me from Torquay apropos of one of my ghost books and informed me that, waking up one night, he had put his hand out of bed to feel it immediately taken hold of by a hand of icy coldness. The following morning, he added, he received tidings of the death of a near relative.

Later on he wrote to me again. "I have had another experience with the hand," he said, "but this time of a more startling order, as it took hold of me much more emphatically and seemed very reluctant to let go. I wonder what it means."

I had my idea, but did not tell him. And I was right, for I learned soon afterwards he had died. The hand this time had predicted his own death.

The family of Tulloch Gorms was haunted by the ghost of a girl with a dreadful hairy hand that she used to point at any member of the clan that was soon destined to die; whilst the Kincardines had the spectre with the blood-stained hand which used to—and still does—haunt Glenmore.

It was formerly very aggressive, and in 1669 met and challenged three brothers successively to a duel—each of the brothers dying immediately afterwards; but latterly it has been much more docile and has contented itself with merely waving its blood-red hand—a sure signal, however, of an approaching death or some other kind of disaster.

In Cernfany phantom hands would appear to be even commoner, for nearly all the old families have at one time or another come under the spell or ban of mailed fingers.

There is—or was before the war—an inn in Saxony that was once a private house, and which was haunted by a huge hand that used to descend at night from the ceiling and impart to whoever was present all the sensations of strangulation.

According to tradition, a certain countess, who originally owned the house, got rid of her infirm husband by having him strangled there by an idiot of monstrous size, and as a punishment for the crime, her family and house were ever after haunted by a hand, inconceivably huge and hideous and cruel.

A Little Bit of History

ALTHOUGH it has been asserted by some that there is little reading in Canada, because the stress of life leaves no time for study, it is, nevertheless, a fact that there are many houses in the Dominion which contain libraries of value and well used also. One of an exceptional character lies not far from the foot of the mountain at Hamilton, where dwells the bearer of the familiar name of H. B. Witton, scientist, man of letters and bibliophilist. He possesses a chamber literally walled with books, many of which are rarities of value only appreciable by the bookman. For many years the public have benefited by Mr. Witton's knowledge and ceaseless study.

Mr. Witton as a geologist and microscopist has exposed the secrets of the deposits around Burlington Bay and, soaring above, has entered the arena of selenography and contributed much of expository value to the Hamilton Scientific Association on the subject. Exploring the domain of fifteenth century history he has been able to cast new light on an interesting but generally unfamiliar subject, the famous Paston Letters. Among his other many-sided literary labors must be mentioned a valuable expository sketch of the life and work of Ernest Heinrie Haeckel, contributed to Canadian literature before the name of the noted zoologist was as familiar in our mouths as it is now. Full justice cannot be done in the present compass to the literary work of the gentleman we are noting. It must suffice to say that he may be regarded as worthy of the title "myriad minded," applied to another noted writer of an earlier period. He seems to have applied to himself the maxim of the unfortunate Sir John Denham, that books should "to one of these four ends conduce for wisdom, piety, delight or use." He evidently delights in the society of the "friends who never fail," and uses them as well.

Mr. Witton's name first came before the public eye of the Dominion at the time of the general parliamentary election which was held in 1872. The whirlwind following what was commonly called the Pacific Scandal, and which led to the resignation of Sir John Macdonald, led to the dissolution of the Second Parliament and to the election of the third within a short time; the Hon. Alexander Mackenzie becoming First Minister, holding office for a term until swept out of power by the people in favor of the former Premier and the National Policy he championed.

With Mr. Witton's term of Parliamentary office there is associated an interesting incident hitherto not recorded on the page of contemporary history. As few of those who were in Parliament at the time, or attendant on it incidentally, now remain, there is no harm in recalling the episode. It is no new thing in Parliamentary management for a defeated party to turn upon its sometime accepted leader and wreak their vengeance on him as the cause of their apple cart being upset. It was the case when Sir Charles Tupper failed to accomplish what his delegation under the constitution required and to do, in connection with the Remedial Bill. It was the case when Mr. Mackenzie failed in 1878. He could not compass the impossible, but he had to be sacrificed and there was a tragic incident in connection with the conspiracy, which brought it about. On the eve, almost of March 13th, 1880, the Hon. L. H. Holton, a man above under-handed dealings, had warned Mr. Mackenzie of what was going on, but he was, it is understood, incredulous. On the 13th Mr. Holton died suddenly and on the 15th there was a painful scene in the House of Commons. Sir John insisted on the unusual procedure, in the case of a private member, of adjourning. Mr. Mackenzie began to second the motion, but his grief was accentuated by the action of his deceased friend a few hours previously, and after half a dozen words he closed by saying "I feel myself unable to say—" and Hansard supplies the rest as follows: (The honorable gentleman was here so overcome as to be unable to proceed.) It was not long after that Mr. Mackenzie announced his withdrawal from the leadership of the opposition. Treason had done its worst.

In the attempts to bring about the removal of Sir John Macdonald there was much wire pulling The mass of the party were loyal and the wire-pullers knew it and acted accordingly. But another caucus was held at which matters might have assumed a serious turn. Mr. Alonzo Wright presided and no less a person than Mr. John Abbott delivered a very clever, somewhat ambiguous speech of the special pleading variety, moving that the time had come, in view of recent events, when it was desirable to reconsider the policy and leadership of the party. Dr. Schultz, of all people, who had every reason for loyalty to Sir John, expressed himself in a like strain. The incipient tempest was allayed by Mr. Witton, who stepped into the breach and roundly condemned any such proposition.

The speech silenced any who might have wavered and Mr. Wright cast the weight of his prominence and authority against any such proposition with the additional assurance that had he not been presiding he should have enunciated the same policy as Mr. Witton. So the caucus broke up without the explosion which was expected. There was not another caucus at which Sir John addressed his followers. The great leader fanned the enthusiasm of his followers into a flame and their fealty was pledged. Nor did it ever falter and five years later he was returned to power with an overwhelming majority.

Birds Trained to Fish.

Do you like to fish? In Japan they have the birds do it for them to a great extent. This custom of having seabirds catch fish is practiced widely, particularly on the Niagara river, in the province of Owari. In some parts of China birds are used in the same way. The cormorants work in teams and, once caught and trained will work well for twenty years. The fishing always is at night by torchlight, says the American Forestry Magazine. Cords are tied around the birds and they are let over the side of the boat a dozen at a time. The torches attract the fish, and then the fisherman is the busiest man in the world, for he has to work fast. The average is about 150 fish per hour per bird. They work for three hours at a time.

THE WORLD'S RESOURCES.

Scientists Say That They Will Become Exhausted.

Scientists sometimes give us unpleasant calculations as to the length of time it will take to render the earth uninhabitable if we continue to waste our resources at the present rate, says the New York Sun.

This generation need feel no uneasiness about the cooling down of the sun or about the exhaustion of the coal supply. It is, however, quite time to consider the consequences, not so remote, that will flow from the increasing population of the earth and the much slower increase of agricultural production.

The available but unused area for the growing of grain to feed human beings and the animals that are to be slaughtered for meat is constantly diminishing, whereas the use of wheat is growing at a more rapid rate than the population of the earth. Nothing short of increasing the fertility of the soil can be suggested to meet such conditions. But the store of natural fertilisers is already within a measurable distance of being exhausted. The only great deposit known, the nitrate of soda in Northern Chile, is estimated to be 220,000,000 tons, and at the rate at which it is coming into the market that supply will last much less than a hundred years.

Fortunately, a commercially feasible process, capable of unlimited expansion, has been found for fixing the nitrogen of the air and thereby furnishing an artificial fertiliser equal to that provided in niggardly quantity by nature. The only materials necessary are coal, limestone and air, but in order to make the process commercially successful it is necessary to have cheap power, and because Norway has it in almost unlimited amount the business has become established there. The works at Odde utilize nearly 100,000 horsepower and impound four-fifths as much water as is stored by the Assouan dam on the Nile. At last accounts they were producing only 50,000 tons of fertilizer, but Norway can increase its power for manufacturing purposes to 200,000,000 horsepower.

The process is interesting. Coal from other countries and limestone from Norway are fused in electric furnaces in order to make calcium carbide, the chief use of which in this country is to produce acetylene gas. The calcium carbide pulverized and mixed with nitrogen in retorts heated to a high temperature, forms cyanamide, or nitrolin, which is equal in fertilising value to Chilean nitrate. The magnitude of the Odde works may be inferred from the fact that they liquify 100 tons of air a day. In fact, it was only when the cheap process of making liquid air was discovered that the free nitrogen necessary for making cyanamide could be had. The boiling point of oxygen is lower than that of nitrogen, therefore when liquid air boils the oxygen passes off first and leaves the nitrogen for use in the cyanamide retorts.

Too Punctual.

A traveler just missed a train on a certain southern line, notorious for its poor service and got the following consolation from a porter: "She's the punctualist train, sir, on the line and a great annoyance to travelers."

BEATS FUEL ORDER WITH ELECTRICITY IN HIS COOP

CHICAGO, Ill.—With strictly fresh eggs at dollar five the dozen it was worth taking a chance and George H. Friewald might have put it over by keeping electric lights burning in his chicken house to make the hens lay, but for his jealous neighbours. Anyway, the Public Utilities Commission had not issued its ultimatum relating to the lighting and heating of the chicken houses, and with the city dark and gloomy, the fat pantented hens in the Friewald menage, were delivering the goods regularly until David Murray admitted a sad moan to the police. The desk sergeant ruminated and assumed a judicial air. "Lave it to me—lave it to me. I'll look up the law. I'll take the matter up wid Dr. Garfield in case I find no law coverin' the case."

PROMINENT WINNIPEG MANUFACTURER DEAD

(Canadian Press.)

WINNIPEG, Dec. 22. — James T. Gordon, president of Gordon, Ironsides and Fares Company, Limited, died at his home here. He had been in failing health for some years, but his end was not looked for so suddenly. He is survived by a widow and two son. Mr. Gordon was born at Tweed, Ont., in 1858, and came West at the age of 20. He started a lumber business at Manitou, Man., added grain and live stock to that business, and from a small beginning built up the largest export cattle business ever done from Western Canada, and one of the largest Canadian packing plants.

AFTERBIRTH RETAINED

The Cause and Cure of a Not Uncommon Trouble.

Cows of All Ages Are Sometimes Affected — Remedies Suggested Where Veterinary Cannot Be Had—Grape Pruning For the Garden.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

RETENTION of the afterbirth, foetal membranes or placenta, commonly called "the cleanings," is not uncommon in cows. Its cause is not understood. While it is probably more frequently met with in cows in low condition and unsanitary surroundings, no care, food, attention or surroundings act as preventives. It is noticed in cows of all ages, all breeds, cows in all conditions and at all seasons. We cannot understand why it occurs, or why it cannot be prevented, but experience teaches us that such is the fact. Good care, comfortable surroundings, avoidance of cold and dampness, especially in cold weather and giving a warm mash for a day or two after calving tend to aid expulsion of the membranes, but even all precautions frequently fail. The administration of medicines is ineffective. In ordinary cases the membranes are expelled shortly or in a few hours after parturition, while in other cases they are retained for 24 hours or longer and then spontaneously expelled. In other cases spontaneous expulsion does not take place until after decomposition, when they are expelled in pus and small pieces.

The symptoms are usually evident by the protrusion through the vulva of a portion of the membranes, but in rare cases this symptom is not present, the membranes being wholly contained within the uterus. In such cases, provided the cow has been untied it is hard to know whether they are retained or have been eaten by the cow. Cows have the objectionable habit of eating the afterbirth. We cannot account for this taste, and when possible it should be prevented. In some cases the consumption of the membranes does not appear to affect the health or general condition of the animal; in others it causes trouble, and in some cases death from various conditions.

Treatment.—When the membranes have been retained for 24 hours or over in warm weather or for forty-eight hours in cold weather they should be carefully removed by hand. Where a veterinarian can readily be procured it is probably wise for the ordinary stock owner to employ him, but a stockman who understands the anatomy of the parts, and is not afraid of a dirty and sometimes tedious job can operate himself. The lining membrane of the womb is covered with many little lumps (cotyledons) which are attached to constricted necks, with surfaces varying from one inch or less to three or four inches in diameter, to which the membranes are attached. The operator should have an antiseptic lotion as a 2 per cent. solution of one of the coal tar antiseptics in warm water. A gallon of two of this should be injected into the womb. The operator then disinfects his hand and arm with the same, introduces the hand into the womb and carefully separates the membrane from each cotyledon, being careful to not tear off any of them. If a few are removed the consequences are not likely to be serious, but it is better to remove none. When the whole has been removed a little more of the antiseptic should be injected into the womb. It is good practice to give the cow 40 to 60 drops of carbolic acid in a pail of cold water as a drench, or sprinkled on her food three times daily until all discharge ceases.—J. H. R., O. A. College, Guelph.

Grape Pruning For the Garden.

The average neglected grapevine is generally such a tangled mess that it is very difficult to describe how to prune it. The owner should determine what sort of a trellis he means to fasten his vine on. If there are a number of vines in a row the general practice is to grow it on two wires, these to be drawn tight on posts about 16 feet apart, first wire three feet and second wire five feet from the ground. If only one or two vines are in a place it can be grown on a trellis made of two narrow strips of board nailed to posts.

One thing never to be overlooked in all fruit is produced on last year's wood. Most neglected vines have too much old wood. Try to get one or two upright canes of two-year-old wood or older with four arms or younger canes equally distributed on the two wires. These arms should not be over six feet long, giving four arms of this length. This is sufficient bearing wood for any vine. Suppose the upright part is satisfactory and there are four arms on it, from these arms laterals or side shoots will grow, on which the fruit is produced. A vine should be pruned after it freezes before winter and before it thaws in the spring. Pruning in mild weather causes bleeding from the cuts. The laterals that bore fruit should be cut back, only leaving one bud to sprout the following season and the fruit will grow on that sprout. It is quite easy to occasionally renew one or more arms by training a young branch to take the older one's place. When that is done cut off the old branch. With a little practice pruning is easy, the common fault being to leave too much wood. If in doubt as to the above method of pruning, write for Illustrated Bulletin 237, "The Grape in Ontario."

Willing to Wait.

An Irishman was about to be lynched. Of course he put up a pitiful plea for his life, to which the executioners replied, that the best they could do for him was to let him pick out the kind of tree upon which he would be hanged. The Irishman said he would take the gooseberry tree. "Yes, I know, but that isn't large enough." "Oh," said the doomed man, "I'll wait until it grows up."

NADIAN SOLDIER KILL WHOLE GERMAN CREW.

Sergt. E. W. Sifton Won His V.C. Making It Possible For His Company to Take and Hold Trench at Vimy Ridge—He Was Killed a Few Minutes Later Keeping Huns at Bay.

FOR most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty. During the attack in enemy trenches Sergt. Sifton's company was held up by machine-gun fire, which inflicted many casualties. Having located the gun, he charged it single-handed, killing all the crew. A small enemy party advanced down the trench, but he succeeded in keeping these off till our men had gained the position. In carrying out this gallant act, he was killed, but his conspicuous valor undoubtedly saved many lives, and contributed largely to the success of the operation.—Official Record.

Vimy Ridge is a low, undulating plateau lying between Arras and Lens, crossed about mid-way by a highway. Although the ridge is insignificant in normal times, the Germans, in seizing it in 1914, gained thereby control of all that sector of the battle front. It remained in German hands until April, 1917.

The Somme battles in the fall of 1916, as well as the historic stand in the Ypres sector, had earned for the Canadians a reputation as shock troops, and when the higher command decided that Vimy must be taken in the spring of 1917 the troops of the Dominion were withdrawn from the Somme area and went into training for several months behind the Vimy salient.

Easter Monday, April 9, was chosen for the day of the attack. The morning broke cloudy and uncertain in temper. At 5.30 o'clock, the moment of attack, a chilling rain began to fall, followed later by a keen northwest wind. At 10 o'clock snow fell, then the clouds broke and brilliant sunshine poured down on the hillside up which the Canadians were toiling.

The western slope of the ridge was a conglomeration of broken wire, mud, and other debris, scattered helter-skelter by the terrific bombardment to which it had been subjected by the British artillery. The preparation for the infantry advance, says one of the brigadier-generals who was there, was perfect. Over the spongy ground, pitted with shell holes full of liquid mud, went the Canadians, dragging themselves along under their heavy kits.

The attack was made and objectives taken on scheduled time. There were four lines of defences to be taken. The first line, consisting of six trenches, lay just behind the Arras road. Here the Canadians met slight resistance. The Germans were dazed by the terrific artillery bombardment, and, indeed, some of them were starving hungry, for they had not had food for two days on account of the artillery barrage, and now their emergency rations all gone, they came meekly out of their dugouts, some of them even offering souvenirs to the invaders for bread. They were hustled back to their cages, where they fell on the food given them like wild animals.

But at the second line of trenches, which ran through the cellars of the demolished village of Thelus, the Hun was prepared to put up a fiercer fight. Machine gunners were hidden away in concrete fortresses and as the Canadians passed they poured an enfilading fire, causing many casualties.

The 15th Battalion went over the top in the first wave of the attack and soon reached the second line of defence, where its orders were to consolidate, leaving the next wave to go through to the third and fourth lines. The battalion itself attacked in four waves on a three-platoon frontage. As the men of C company jumped into the second trench line a steady stream of bullets from a hidden gun riddled their ranks. So carefully was the gun concealed that it was some time before it was discovered.

Sergt. Ellis Sifton first caught sight of the gun barrel spouting fire over the parapet. Without a thought he sprang into the trench, charged the crew, overthrew the gun and turned on the gunners with his bayonet, killing them all. At this time a party of Germans was seen running down the trench to the aid of the gun crew. Sifton turned again with his cold steel and held them at bay until his comrades jumped down into the trench. While this was going on a dying German, who had fallen in the first onslaught of the Canadians, rolled over to the side of the trench, picked up a rifle, and taking careful aim, shot Sifton. The 15th Battalion moved on to its objective, but the hero who had made it possible lay dead in the captured trench.

Ellis Walwood Sifton was born at Wallacetown, Ont., October 12, 1891. His father, John James Sifton, still lives in that town. Ellis attended the Wallacetown public school and soon after entering high school decided to go farming, which he was successfully pursuing when he answered the call for men for the overseas army. He enlisted in October, 1914, joining the 15th Battalion, Queen's Park, London, Ont., as a private. He went to England with the second division in April, 1915, transferring to the Army Service Corps on going to France. He was transferred back to his old unit at his own request, and went with them to the Arras front in January, 1917. Before going into the battle of Vimy Ridge he was made sergeant.

The Victoria Cross, won by Sergt. Sifton, was presented to his father by the Governor-General of Canada at a public ceremony in Toronto in the fall of 1917.—Carolyn Cornell in Toronto Star Weekly.

Jade Favorite Gem in China.

Light green jade is the favorite gem of China, and it is difficult to get the stone in uncut forms even in that country. Sometimes a rich Chinaman's estate will consist in part of a lump of jade. Sometimes it can be obtained in masses weighing one pound or two pounds. But even the leading jewelers of Hong Kong usually obtain it in cut form.

DENIKINE'S ...

Another Phase of the Chaos in Russia.

"I have seen the Russian officer of Denikine's army still wearing the uniforms of the old regime," writes Arnaldo Apolla in Gazzetta de Popolo. Much is to be learned from this fact alone of their psychology. The success of Gen. Denikine's forces in the Caucasus has almost upset their minds, and made them arrogant toward their men. They presume to treat them again as slaves, which was one of the principal reasons, in fact, of the revolution. They think they have come back all of a sudden to the days when they could box the ears of a soldier, kick him with impunity, and see him turn and salute them and thank them for having punished him.

The most absorbing question debated by them at present is not the re-conquest of Russia, but whether they should wear epaulettes or not, as they did in the old regime. Factions have been formed. One is for the epaulettes and the other is against the epaulettes. They make appeals to Gen. Denikine to issue an order to abolish them, and contrary factions send letters begging him to retain them as the only symbol of Russian greatness. Poor officers! Thus a question which at most is one of simple military regulation becomes with them a constitutional and national program. They do not realize that these outward symbols are the very things which made them hated and detested by the great majority of Russians.

Ekatedinodar, the seat of Gen. Denikine's headquarters, is a veritable babel. The 90 generals and the 1,100 colonels, and the 30,000 officers of other rank are all talking epaulettes. Many of them claim distinctions and rank to which they evidently have no right, but everything is accorded them. The trouble is that nobody in that army wants to be a private, all want to be officers. Naturally, the 50,000 real soldiers in the army begin to show their discontent.

Here in Odessa we have had the faction of Mme. Denikine, who was pitted against the faction headed by the wife of another general, who at one time commanded the Cossacks of the Don. The Cossacks of the Don made Gen. Denikine an honorary Cossack and Mme. Denikine thereupon suppressed her rival with the methods used in the days of Rasputin.

One of the princesses here is typical of many of her class. She goes about with a coronet of jewels worth more than 1,000,000 rubles, seems perfectly indifferent to the loss of her vast estates and fortunes, and amuses herself with the rest of her class here, in frivolous pastimes. Another is divorced from her husband, who is drinking himself to death; she has married a second time a brilliant officer in the new volunteer army, and is seen at every party.

Another princess succeeded in reaching this town with her jewels and nothing else; her mother has been killed by the Bolsheviki, her sons have been scattered, she does not know where, and she is seen at every banquet. Another, who has long ago been divorced and married again, has lost all the children of her first marriage, and is to be seen going around with four of the second marriage, and the latest, a little baby, in her arms. She was once a lady attendant of the Empress, and seems not to have the slightest idea of the depth to which one has fallen.

There are people here who seem to have no longer a proper notion of the past and the present, of what they have lost and of what they can recover. French ladies avoid them as a pest; the wives of British and other Europeans flee from them.

Cattle Increase: Sheep Decrease.

It is estimated that there are 26,000 more cattle in the United Kingdom now than in 1914; sheep, however, show a decline in numbers of upwards of 900,000.

In this morning's police court seven persons were fined $5.10 apiece for walking on the C.P.R. tracks west of the station. Although this is not the first offence, people still persist in trespassing on the tracks, and the police will be forced to raise the toll if the practice does not end.

OBITUARY

MARJORY IRWIN.

The death occurred at Nicholls Hospital yesterday morning at nine o'clock of Marjory Irwin, the four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Irwin, 168 Rubidge Street, after a short illness.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 168 Rubidge Street, to the Little Lake Cemetery, to-morrow afternoon at 2.30. Service will be held at the house at 2 o'clock by the Rev. J. A. Mackenzie, Knox Church.

MRS. JOS. STAPLES

Mrs. Joseph Staples died yesterday at the family residence North Monaghan aged 80 years. She was born in Cavan but had resided in North Monaghan for the past forty years, where she had won the love and esteem of all who knew her. She leaves of the immediate family besides her husband three sons John of Woodville, F. J. of North Monaghan, and G. C. of Peterborough, also two daughter, Mrs. H. A. Rogers of Mariposa, and Mrs. T. J. Myers. The funeral will take place at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the family residence to the 9th Line of Cavan cemetery.

MRS. WILLIAM J. SKUCE

Mrs. William J. Skuce died on Sunday morning at 2 o'clock at her home, 570 Albert Street, after an illness of three months. Her death was not unexpected and her family were all with her at the end.

Mrs. Skuce, whose maiden name was Mary Jane Moore, was born in Manvers township fifty nine years ago, and had been married for twenty-seven years. She had lived in Peterboro for fifteen years, having moved here from Lindsay. She is survived by her husband, two daughters, Mrs. W. Gould of Vancouver, and Wilma at home, and one son, Harland of Windsor; also by her sister, Mrs. T. McGill of Winnipeg, and two brothers, James Moore, of Lindsay, and Robert Moore, of Waterloo.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday afternoon to the Little Lake cemetery, following the service at the family residence, 570 Albert Street, at two o'clock.

The passing of Mrs. Skuce will bring a deep feeling of loss to her many friends in this city who prized her society and friendship, and who loved the simple beauties of her character, her unfailing cheerfulness and kindliness, her broad sympathies and thoughtfulness for others, and her exemplary fortitude in the long weeks of her illness. She was a faithful member of Trinity Methodist church from whose congregation she will also be greatly missed.

IN MEMORIAM

MOORE—In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. George Moore, died December 20th, 1918.

Gone where every eye is tearless,
Only gone from earthly care.
Oh, the waiting sad and cheerless
Till, we meet our loved ones there
Sweet, the rest from all our roving
Land, of light and hope afar
Lo, our Father's hand so loving
Sets, the pearly gates ajar.

Labour Meeting

FORTY-FOUR HOUR WEEK IS THE NEW OBJECTIVE---DELEGATES WAIT ON ONTARIO CABINET.

FRIENDLY SESSION

(Special to Examiner)

TORONTO, Dec. 23.—Headed by President Tom Moore, of the Dominion Trades and Labour Congress and President Tom Rolph, Head of the Ontario Branch of the Congress, a deputation of thirty representatives of Organized Labour of this Province waited upon the Provincial Government to-day. They were received in the Private Bills Committee Room by Premier E. C. Drury, Minister of Labour Rollo, and Hons. Beniah Bowman, F. C. Biggs, H. C. Nixon, and W. E. Raney. The members of the deputation were introduced by Honorable Walter Rollo.

President Moore stated that the workers to-day approached the Government with a different feeling from that which prevailed in former years. The members of the present Government, they felt, were in much closer touch and sympathy with the workers of the city, than former governments. Mr. Moore stated that they wished to submit various resolutions endorsed by the recent labour congress at Hamilton, which had special provincial application.

Police Unions.

President Moore took advantage of the occasion to protest against the decision of the Commission, which recently decidel against the Toronto Police Union affiliating with the Dominion Trades and Labour Congress. The decision, he said, was without any shadow of warrant from the evidence. He drew attention to the fact that in yesterday's paper it was reported that without explanation; all officers of the union had been reduced by the police commission and otherwise unfairly discriminated against. He urged the government not only to prevent the report of the commission becoming law, but to would be free to affiliate with other bodies who would be helpful to them "Would that involve the right to strike" asked Premier Drury. "Not necessarily", replied Mr. Moore.

"The Trades and Labor Congress is entirely a legislative body. It has no power to call or approve strikes. It has never done so. Each union would have its own bylaws," continued Mr. Moore.

Tom Mellilieu introduced the question of the 44 hour week and spoke with reference to a resolution unanimously passed at the last conference of the Dominion Trades and Labour Congress which reads: "That the Congress use every effort to secure legislation establishing a maximum week of forty four hours and providing a minimum wage for workers that will be adequate to ensure them a reasonable standard of living." The forty four hour week is one of the greatest topics of the day," stated Mellilieu. "We believe that the time for its adoption has come. It has been made possible by the great development of producing machinery during the past several years. Owing to the development of machinery we can now produce enough in an eight hour day to supply all the needs of the world."

PRESS COMMENT ON HOME RULE MEASURE INTRODUCED IN HOUSE

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Dec. 23. — Aside from one or two irreconciliable anti-Home Rule journals, the papers this morning give, on the whole, a favorable reception to the Government's new scheme for Irish self-government. None however, expressed genuine expectation of success of the plan. While it is recognized that the bill, the fourth Home Rule measure to be presented to Parliament, will be absolutely rejected by a large section of the Irish people and regarded with suspicion and distrust by others, it is contended it deserves to be fairly tried and considered.

The Daily News, a great champion of Home Rule, and a severe critic of Lloyd George and the Coalition government, says the offer, as far as Englishmen can judge, should not be rejected out of hand, assuming it to be honestly put forward. The Chronicle says the measure appears to be generous, while the Daily Mail says it is a better scheme than any previous government has produced. The Irish Times says that for many reasons, some good, some bad, some wise and some mad, three-quarters of the Irish people will reject the bill. "We yearn for peace, but in the Lloyd-George offer we see not peace, but the sword."

While it is realized everywhere that no support of the measure may be expected from Ireland, hope is expressed that men will ultimately be found in Ireland to give it effect and gradually evolve a peaceful settlement.

TWENTY-ONE CANDIDATES NOMINATED THIS MORNING

COALITION MEMBER HAD BIG MAJORITY

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Dec. 23. — Lieut.-Col. F. E. Fresmantle, Coalition Unionist, was elected to Parliament for St. Alban's, Division of Hertfordshire, in the by-election on Dec. 10th. He was opposed by Liberal and Labor candidates and had a plurality of 718 votes over the Labor candidate.

LIBERTY LEAGUE WILL FIGHT ISSUE

VIEWS OF COL. PRATT ON THE LIQUOR QUESTION.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, Dec. 23. — Any attempt to make it illegal for people to have liquor in their private dwellings [illegible] by the Citizens' Liberty League and by people who share their views.

It may even lead to a small rebellion, according to Col. A. Pratt, former commander of the 133rd Norfolk County Battalion, and ex-member of the Ontario Legislature for South Norfolk.

"There is still a feeling that an Englishman's home is his castle, and any attempt to search a man's cellar would be keenly resented by liberty-loving citizens," said Col. Pratt.

"Mind you," he said, "I am not worrying about the matter personally, because I don't care about the stuff, but I would certainly be opposed to such drastic legislation."

WORLD HAPPENINGS

GOING TO PARIS.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Dec. 23.—Lloyd-George will go to Paris next week to confer with Premier Clemenceau, it was announced to-day.

HELD CONSULTATION.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Dec. 23.—Law officers of the Crown held a consultation with the French and Belgian law officers to-day regarding the former German Emperor.

It is reported that the confreres made out a case against him, and framed an indictment.

STRONG, NUMEROUS LIST FOR BOARD OF EDUCATION AND ONE YEAR TERM IN UTILITIES COMMISSION--FOUR NAMES PROPOSED FOR MAYORALTY.

COUNCIL TO-NIGHT

For Mayor

William Hall Taylor—Proposed by Albert Cuff and Fred Finnie.

George Newcombe Gordon — Proposed by M. Succee and A. Saunders.

Archibald Alexander McIntyre—Proposed by J. J. Hartley and J. W. Meyers.

George Henry Duncan—Proposed J. J. Turner and Walter J. Oke

Utilities Commission

For Regular Term of Three Years

Robert Hicks—Proposed by W. H. Moore and Walter J. Oke.

Joseph J. Duffus —Proposed by W. T. Hall and Theodore McWilliams.

For One Year Succeeding Mr. Matthews.

Charles Everitt Sisson—Proposed by Gordon K. Langley and E. R. Shirley.

William Herbert Bradburn—Proposed by J. J. Turner and W. J. Oke.

Joseph James Duffus —Proposed by Theodore McWilliams and W. T. Hall.

John Edgar—Proposed by James Hamilton and Wm. H. Lytle.

George H. Duncan—Proposed by E. R. Wilson and James Hamilton.

For Board of Education

Joseph William Worth—Proposed by J. A. Aylmer and W. C. Switzer.

Mrs. Kate E. Morris—Proposed by W. H. Hill and Thos. Barrie.

Frank C. Neal — Proposed by Wm. G. Ferguson and J. John.

Garfield O. Cameron —Proposed Garfield Cameron— Proposed by by W. G. Morrow and J. J. Turner.

Edward George Patterson—Proposed by W. H. Bradburn and Robert Hicks.

E. Bruce Fowler—Proposed by W. H. Bradburn and W. G. Morrow.

Edward E. Harvey—Proposed by Mr. Succee and A. Sanders.

J. Mendel Greene—Proposed by J. J. Turner and W. J. Oke.

A. J. Bolwell —Proposed by J. J. Hartley and James Garside.

Alexander Morrison— Proposed by Jas. Garside and A. A. McIntyre.

The above municipal nominations this morning disclosed no surprises except the encouraging interest and well filled lists for the Board of Education and the one-year term in the Utilities Commission. The twenty-one condidates must file the statutory declarations with the City Clerk before nine o'clock on Wednesday night otherwise they are automatically "scratched" from the election race.

Mr. J. J. Duffus is the only candidate proposed as a contestant to Mr. Robert Hicks who has just completed six years in the Utilities Commission, and who gave an account of his stewardship this morning in support of his candidature for re-election.

The Board of Education has attracted no less than ten nominations with not one "dud" among them, according ot the general opinion expressed by some of the ratepayers who attended this morning's meeting. There are only five vacancies to be filled. This election should produce a close contest. Labour makes a bid for repreesntation with two of its members, Mr. A. J. Bolwell, President of the Trades and Labour Council and Mr. Alex. Morrison.

Foreign Policy

A NUMBER OF IMPORTANT MATTERS DISCUSSED IN BRITISH HOUSE OF COMMONS.

RELIEF WORK

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, Dec. 23.—During a debate on the foreign situation which followed the Irish announcement in the House of Commons last night, Lloyd George defended the secretary of the peace proceedings, declaring that everyone tried to find settlement and nobody was "playing the game" against another. Taking up the Fiume situation, the Premier said that France, America and Great Britain all realized the importance of a proper solution. He admitted that a satisfactory settlement was going to be tremendously difficult.

Great Britain is "free to reconsider her position on the proposed American Franco-British alliance, which would guarantee France against wanton aggression on the part of Germany," Lloyd George asserted. Until America ratifies the pact, Britain is not bound he said. The Allies are in "complete accord" in their policy of non-intervention in Russia, he said. "It is hopeless to talk peace with Germany" until a representative government is established, he added. The Premier said he had invited Premier Nitti of Italy to confer with him and Premier Clemenceau of France. This conference, he said, possibly will be held within the next few days at Paris. An American representative may be present.

Great Britain already has spent 18,500,000 pounds in relief work in Austria, the Premier revealed. She will be unable to continue unless America comes to her aid, he added frankly.

SELF-GOVERNMENT FOR THE INDUS

KING GEORGE ISSUES PROCLAMATION TO THAT EFFECT.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Dec. 23.—King George issued a proclamation to-day announcing a new measure giving India a larger degree of self-government. The proclamation characterizes the government bill as an historic act, giving representation long desired by the natives. It calls for determination of people and officials to work together for the common purpose of making the new plan of government a success.

The King expressed concern over the grave economic position of a large part of Europe. The task of restoring credit and giving industry a new start there was one of the first conditions of a settled peace, he said. The task ,however, was too large for any nation to undertake unaided. He referred to the large sum placed at the disposal of the Supreme Council for the relief of immediate necessities, but that sum was nearly exhausted, and further measures of relief and reconstruction could only be undertaken by joint action by all nations interested in restoration of international commerce.

Germans Evasive

ALLIES INSIST THAT THE PROTOCOL BE SIGNED IMMEDIATELY --A FINAL EFFORT.

DELEGATES LEAVE

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARIS, Dec. 23.—The Allies to-day remitted to Kurt Von Yersner, head of the German delegation here, a final note insisting that Germany sign the protocol first and allow the Allies to consider any modifications afterward.

Secretary Dutasta, in accordance with instructions from the Supreme Council, accompanied the Allied note with a verbal communication in which it is understood he assured Von Lernsner that the Allies recognized the economic difficulties which might exist in Germany and wished to take them into account. If proof were given that errors had been made in the estimate of floating material now in the possession of Germany, upon which the Allies based their demands for reparation for the sinking of the German ships at Scapa Flow, these demands. Dutasta is understood to have told German plentipotentiary, would be reduced proportionately. Herr Von Lersner expressed no opinion on the document presented by Secretary Dutasta.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"BE A LITTLE SPORT."

"Be a Little Sport," the charming comedy in which hearts are trumps, which was shown at the Grand last evening attracted a very large audience who were delighted with the play and with the splendid way in which Albert Ray played the part of the leading man. Fatty Arbuckle appeared in one of the best comedies he has yet played in, while the Vod-a-Vil movies and Weekly Review sustained the enviable reputation all pictures shown at the Grand have already won. The pictures will be repeated this evening.

TO THE SKATING PUBLIC

I am requested by Local 191, American Federation of Musicians, to notify the skating public of Peterborough that they will confer a favour upon our members by skating to union music. It has been brought to our attention that a combination of men have banded themselves together, and wishing to be known as the Maple Leaf Band, are doing duty at the East City Rink, and we cordially suggest to the public that they patronize the rink that is fair to our members, and are paying the union rate of wages. Music supplied either by the G.W.V.A. Band or the 57th Regiment Band, are strictly union members, and can furnish all the music necessary for this or any other purpose. For any further information, write the Secretary of Local 191, "American Federation of Musicians."

Signed on behalf of Local 191, A. F. of M.,

H. A. Simmons, President.
Geo. H. Benson, Secretary.

A FURTHER DEPORTATION OF "REDS" ANTICIPATED

THE RATIFICATION WILL BE DELAYED

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, Dec. 23.—Exchange of ratifications of the German peace treaty before the end of the year is considered in French official circles as impossible. This opinion was formed when the German delegation head announced he would be obliged to return to Berlin to consult with the Government on the latest Allied note.

SEVERAL HUNDRED CASES IN THE WEST

SEVERAL HUNDRED MEN DESERTED FROM SASKATCHEWAN BATTALIONS.

(Special to The Examiner.)

REGINA, Dec. 23.—With the demobilization of the military police here practically complete, the latest figures of the number of military offenders in jails or penitentiaries were not obtainable. It is estimated, however, that less than fifty and probably more than thirty-five are still in detention. According to police estimates approximately 300 have been imprisoned during the past two years. The terms of punishment in many cases have expired, while others have been released from time to time for various reasons. The total number of deserters from all battalions raised in Saskatchewan is placed at 1,400 and probably 500 of them are still to be dealt with. The prosecutions will, of course, be dropped now. While many orders have been placed by Saskatchewan men for liquor to be shipped to the west when shiments become legal, it is not anticipated that orders from this province will swamp either the railways or liquor companies. There is a rumor on the streets that appears to [illegible] during the Christmas season, only to tighten up early in January. With that prospect ahead, it is possible that many large orders will be placed with a view of avoiding the drought expected early in the new year.

SYNOPSIS OF A PROPOSED BY-LAW

The Council of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough proposes to pass a By-law after the assent of the electors of the Municipality has been obtained to the passing thereof to authorize the borrowing of the money necessary to pay for acquiring Lots Numbers 18, 19, 20 and 21 and Block 'F' south of Hunter Street East, according to Registered Plan Number 1A for the City of Peterborough, or parts thereof, for a Public Park.

The said By-law is to authorize the Council to borrow by the issue of Debentures a sum of $28,000.00, for said purposes, such debentures to be payable within forty years from the date of the issue thereof and to bear interest at the rate of five and one-half per cent. per annum. The amount to be raised annually for the payment of the interest on said sum is the sum of $1,-215.00, and the amount to be raised annually as a sinking fund for the payment of the debt created by the said poposed By-law is the sum of $347.28 making together the sum of $2,162.28 to be raised annually for said purposes.

The said proposed By-law can be examined at the City Clerk's Office by any elector of the Municipality.

TAKE NOTICE that the foregoing is a true synopsis of the By-law to be submitted to the votes of the electors of the City of Peterborough and the votes thereon will be taken on the first day of January, 1920, being the same day as the annual municipal election of the Municipal Council is being held and at the same places, between the same hours and before the same Deputy Returning Officers as are appointed and named for said annual Municipal election.

The second day of January, 1920, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon at the City Clerk's office in the City of Peterborough has been fixed for the time and place when and where the Clerk will sum up the number of votes given for and against the proposed by-law and the thirty-first day of December, 1919, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon and at the said City Clerk's office is the time and place fixed for the appointment of person's to attend at the polling places and at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk on behalf of the persons interested in and promoting or opposing the said proposed by-law.

If the assent of the electors is obtained to the said proposed by-law it will be taken into consideration by the Council at a meeting thereof to be held after the expiration of one month from the date of the first publication hereof and the date of such first publication is the 9th of December, 1919.

A tenant who desires to vote upon said proposed by-law must deliver to the Clerk not later than the tenth day before the day appointed for taking the vote, a Declaration under The Canada Evidence Act that he is a tenant whose lease extends for the time for which the debt or liability is to be created or in which the money to be raised by the proposed by-law is payable or for at least twenty-one years and that he has by the lease covenanted to pay all municipal taxes in respect of the property of which he is tenant other than local improvement rate.

S. R. ARMSTRONG,
Clerk.

"THE NATIVITY"

Oh, Thou Celestial Muse, Whose hand Divine,
With inspiration tuned the living lyre
Of Milton, breathing through his song a fire,
That burns to ashes this poor harp of mine.
And still to Him in yonder stall I'd sing,
While yon strange star flings round His infant head,
A radiance through that lowly cattle shed,
And gilds with light the cradle of my King.

Floting afar like murm'rings of the sea,
Away beyond the Galilean hills,
The song of angels all the world thrills,
And heav'n's deep organ blows in harmony.
"Star of the East" fling far thy silver beam,
Illum' the Magi's weary path to Him,
Who comes Himself the world's Rising Gleam—
Christ of the ages, babe of Bethlehem.

Hail, Magi: Is there room for one like me,
To stand a little while beside the King?
The gold and frankincense ye give, the angels sing,
My song I'd bring to Him and bend the knee.
Oh, Thou Eternal One, Whose presence bright,
Illums the ages, and dispells the gloom,
That hangs around man's pathway and his tomb,
Dayspring from on high dissolve the night.

Oh, dare I hold His wond'rous hand in mine?
That hand, in Glory, scept'r'd from the dawn
Of vast eternity, and on the throne,
Rul'd, King Eternal, by His power Divine.
Omnipotent among the Holy, He;
And He above the Mighty, was sublime,
The centuries, great rolling floods of time,
All change their courses by His own decree.

Thy bleeding hands, Oh, Christ, shall yet remove Vast empires from their hinges at Thy will,
And Thou shalt govern the ages still,
And rule the sons of men by dying love.
See'st Thou the agonizing garden scene,
The traitor's kiss, the lash, the judgment-room,
The Diadem of thorns and blood, the gloom
Around the Cross? Oh, Christ, Thy death was mine.

Behold the scarlet garb, the Cross of Shame;
Thy faultless hands Thou layest on the beam,
The hammer falls—the purple wounds—the crimson stream,
The world shall find Salvation in Thy name.
And Thou shalt sleep in borrowed, costly cave,
'Twas borrowed sin that wrought for Thee this hour,
The bands of death Thou'lt rend by Thine own power,
And stand unquestion'd Victor o'er the grave.

Child of the ages: Soul of Prophet's lyre,
No worthy bard may hail Thee "Stranger Born,"
While thousand million suns around Thee burn,
Thou Sun of Righteousness illums their fire;
A stranger in the world that from Thy hand
Sped on its burning way to do Thy will?
Speak Jesus, speak, and heaven and earth and hell
Will speed on lightning wings at Thy command.

Prince of the Nations; Babe of Bethlehem;
An humble bard would here an offering bring,
No song is mine, such as the angels sing;
Nor gold have I, nor frankinsence, nor balm.
But I would bring to Thee my simple song,
And lay its love notes on Thy matchless breast,—
Then speed away to do my Lord's behest
Until He calls me to the Upper Throng.

REV. W. E. ROSS.
Pastor Mark St. Church, Peterborough.

"GOOD HOUSEKEEPING"

Although somewhat late, Good Housekeeping for November has just appeared on the newsstands. Despite the extraordinary difficulties which had to be overcome because of the printers' strike in New York, Good Housekeeping has just issued a larger magazine than ever before, the November issue numbering 258 pages.

Everything in the issue is quite timely and represents an extraordinary feat in magazine publishing.

The opportunity of a lifetime seldom has a label on it.

HOUSEWIVES' BOYCOTT BRINGS TURKEYS DOWN

ST. THOMAS, Dec. 22. — The housewives' allied forces on the local market Saturday, for the first time on record, refused to purchase their Christmas turkeys at 60 to 65 cents a pound, the opening prices.

The boycott lasted about an hour, when a number of the producers reconsidered their prices and lowered them to 55 cents a pound.

THE ANGEL SONGS.

Once when the Star of Israel's Stem,
Effulgent rose in Bethlehem;
A light to lighten, with bright ray
His people to the realms of day,
A Babe of lowly virgin born,
On that first joyous Christmas morn,
The glad Evangel angels told
To Shepherds on Judea's wold;
Loud chanting, in their earthward flight,
To God be Glory in the height,
Then sweet the notes benizon flow,
Peace, and good will to men below.

Oh, may the cadence of that song,
Melodious roll the spheres along,
And far beyond the gay yule tide,
Its influence sweet with us abide,
A soothing solace may it be,
For all earth's pain and misery;
Till love to God, to men good will,
Kindness, and peace, each bosom fill,
Like Him, who Heaven's bright bliss resigned,
To be the Saviour of mankind,
The Prince of Peace, to whom we owe
All laud and honor here below.

—Mrs. A. F. Calder, Peterborough, Ont.

ANNUAL BUSINESS MEETING HELD

The Annual Business Meeting of the Park street Baptist Sunday School was held recently. After the usual business had been dispased of the election of officers resulted as follows:

ANNUAL ENTERTAINMENT AT PARK STREET CHURCH

The annual Christmas entertainment of the Park Street Baptist S. School took place a few days ago. This year it took the form of an offering rather than that of receiving. On Tuesday evening last the entertainment for the Cradle Roll and Primary Classes was held. Mr. Jas. I. Maybee, the Superintendent, occupied the chair. A short program of solos, recitations by the juniors was given also a short talk by Mr. W. H. Moore after which the children were each given a bag of candies and oranges.

On Friday night the entertainment for the intermediates and senior members of the school was given. The basement of the church was packed. A good programme was given consisting of solos, recitations, dialogues also a play a "Scene in the Y.M.C.A. in France" by a number of our returned boys was very much enjoyed. The offering by the children on both evenings was given in aid of the children's Aid Society. The meeting was brought to a close after everyone had received a bag of candies and oranges. A cordial invitation is extended to all to meet with us every Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 23, 1919.

THE GENERAL AMNESTY.

The proclaiming of a general amnesty for all offenders under the Military Service Act will be variously received in the country. Naturally there will be a feeling of resentment among the men who answered the call, that the deserters who have not yet been apprehended should now be able to return to their homes scot free as far as official punishment is concerned. However, the defaulters have already been pretty badly punished for their failure to respond to their country's call. Their position during the past couple of years, exiled from home and hourly expecting the arm of the law to fall upon their shoulder, cannot have been a happy one, while even now that the fear of official action has been removed, there is no reason to envy these men whose status has already been fixed by their fellow-citizens and who cannot expect to be received by the general public in any other manner than with contempt. Peterborough county, fortunately, has not very many who will be affected by the amnesty.

FREE VACCINATION.

The Board of Health, in arranging to provide facilities for free vaccination for the people of Peterborough, have taken a step upon which they are to be congratulated, and it is hoped that the citizens will take advantage of the opportunity to adopt this simple but effective precaution against smallpox. There is in Peterborough a number of cases of the disease and it would be decidedly in the general interests if the citizens generally were to be vaccinated. It has not yet been considered necessary to adopt compulsory vaccination and there will be no need of even considering such a step if the people will respond to the request that they voluntarily undergo the simple operation. The free vaccination in the schools last week was splendidly taken advantage of by the children, and if the adults show the same spirit this week there is no reason to fear any general spread of the dread disease in this city. The folly of temporizing with smallpox is illustrated by the situation in Toronto, where the senseless agitation of a section of the population against vaccination, aided by the spineless attitude of the city council, has resulted in an epidemic of the disease and in the whole province being placed under quarantine by other provinces and by the United States. The majority of the cases in the province, it is claimed, can be traced to infection sustained in Toronto, and the Provincial Board of Health would not be exceeding its duty if it were to place that city under quarantine until the city authorities come to their senses.

Arrangements have been made to have free vaccination to-day, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, so that there is no valid reason why the majority of citizens should not be rendered practically immune against smallpox.

RELEASING THE FLOOD.

The repealing of the war-time orders-in-council by the Dominion government, bringing about, as the Minister of Justice expresses, "once more a condition of peace in Canada, no matter how long, technically speaking, the duration of the war may be," has caused more general interest than any recent action of the Union Administration. Naturally the lifting of the restrictions upon the importation of liquor is the feature of the new development that has been responsible for the most excitement. That it has been joyfully received in some quarters, there is no reason to doubt; that to many women and children it means suffering and privation is unfortunately equally clear. The immediate effect of course will be that after New Year's Day, and until such time as Ontario, by a referendum vote, declares against importation, there will be a flow of liquor into the province. Cellars that have been emptied during the dry spell will be filled again, and money that has been devoted to more useful purchases will be sent to Montreal to buy liquor. In some homes this diversion of the family funds will perhaps mean no loss to the wife and children, but in others where the purse is by no means too well filled, the family will have to go without some of the necessities of life in order that the head of the house may indorse the strong waters that he considers more needful than food and clothing for his children. Such is Hon. Mr. Doherty's conception of "restoring peace to the country."

However, the re-opening of the inter-provincial traffic may not long be continued. Premier Drury and his associates are pledged to continue the fight for temperance and undoubtedly one of the first actions of the government when the new Legislature meets will be to introduce a resolution calling upon the Dominion government to introduce a referendum in Ontario to prohibit the importation of liquor. The new Dominion regulations require that such a referendum must be held within three months after a resolution has been passed by the Legislature so that the probabilities are that by next May or June the people of Ontario will be given an opportunity to permanently prevent the flooding of their province with liquor.

THE NEED OF FRESH AIR.

With the arrival of winter, a writer in the Ottawa Journal makes a timely and well-considered plea for fresh air in the homes. He says the cold weather means too often the sealing up of every chink, the clapping on of the double window—that invention of the evil one, and the terror of our invigorating climate which seems to characterise the natives. "The other day the writer was visiting an invalid. The room was unventilated, so he sugested opening the window a little. She said, "It doesn't open from the top, and if you open it from the bottom the colls will freeze and burst"—they were placed directly underneath. When will it be made compulsory for builders to put in windows opening both ways, or only from the top? The air exhaled rises, and if even an inch of window is open it can escape, otherwise it is reinhaled.

The Ottawa writer proceeds to utter these pointed warnings:

"This week I attended a crowded meeting in one of the most frequented halls of our city. The four large windows were tightly closed and the outer windows were on. Before the proceedings were half over, a violent headache was the danger signal that drove me to the outside air. It was the more regrettable because there were at least seventy children in the audience. Is it any wonder that tuberculosis, 'flu,' and other diseases ride rampant through the land?

"People are naturally afraid of a draught; there would be none if the pure air was allowed to enter above their heads. The sliding pane in the double window is usually placed in the lower part of the sash, instead of the upper, so that when the foul air seeks egress it is met by the closed pane above. We all need life-sustaining oxygen. The family of the writer have never made use of double windows in the bedrooms, and always sleep with the upper sash one or two inches open. We have been in Ottawa twelve winters, and can testify to the benefit of the plan. It is well known that a man exhales at least 38 cubic inches of air per minute when asleep, so that it doesn't take long to vitiate the room if the window's closed. If only the 'powers that be' would wake up and insist on compelling attention to this vital subject, before the winter begins to claim its victims! In the long run, prevention costs less than the effort to cure."

A FIGUREHEAD GOVERNMENT.

"Government by figurehead" is the apt description chosen by the London Advertiser of the situation at Ottawa. Our London contemporary, like many other journals throughout the country, is dissatisfied with the Government's compromise.

Of two evils the Conservative or Union Government and Premier have chosen what they consider the lesser, declares the Advertiser; they have decided that Sir Robert Borden shall retain the Premiership for the sake of whatever prestige may attach to his name, and someone else shall do the work and carry the burden. From the party standpoint the choice may be wise, but from the broader viewpoint of the nation's good, it has little to commend it.

The situation confronting the Cabinet simply is this: The present Premier is at least physically unfit to carry on the duties of his office, and there is none among his colleagues who is considered fit or desirable to replace him.

Under these circumstances, it would have been part of honesty to go to country and give the voters a chance to say whether they wished to take a hazard on another of the present Ministers as leader, or preferred to turn over the conducting of the country's affairs to a more able and stable Government. Power is sweet; however, and they who have it are clinging to it desperately, shrewdly guessing the probable outcome of a general election.

For Government by Order-in-Council is to be substituted Government by figurehead. Sir Robert Borden is to be the nominal leader with no work to do and someone not considered fit to be Premier, is to carry on the business of the office. This does not promise efficiency. Would a private corporation progress under such an arrangement?

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Santa Claus is a new rule for the Union Government.

The United States transport Buford, carrying the Red Anarchists deported from America, is more of a peace ship than was Henry Ford's vessel—at least its sailing will do more to restore peace conditions.

Brantford Expositor: The members of the Liberty League had better cheer up and take their medicine. They devised the confusing ballot for their own purposes, but the people were too intelligent to be caught. Instead, the so-called trick ballot trap snapped with a vengeance on the Liberty League. Let them now accept the result without squealing, and be good citizens.

In African Waters.

The Congo might be called the Amazon of the Dark Continent. They are the two greatest rivers in the world if measured by the volume of water they discharge into the ocean.

In one very important respect, however, they are strikingly different. For whereas the Amazon is comfortably navigable for more than 2,300 miles from its mouth, the Congo is beset by long stretches of impassable rapids.

The vast basin of the Amazon is low, lying, flat territory, through which the mighty river and its tributaries (some of the latter huge streams) flow sluggishly. But the Congo, to reach the sea, breaks through a mountainous plateau.

Thus a vessel ascending the Congo proceeds only ninety miles before reaching, at Matadi, the first great rapids. Its passengers or freight, to get around the latter, must be transferred to a train for a "portage" of 250 miles; and further on there are two other long stretches that have to be covered in the same way.

By steamer and rail one can travel all the way from the Congo's mouth to Bukama, 2,200 miles up. In its upper reaches the river, though still wide, becomes very shallow, so that the steamboats plying those waters are small craft, such as one sometimes sees in Florida, with stern wheels and drawing no more than three feet.

From Bukama the journey may be continued by rail to Lake Tanganyika (a body of fresh water 400 miles long) down the lake 200 miles by steamer and by rail across what used to be German East Africa to a seaport, Dar-es-Salaam, on the Indian Ocean, a short distance south of Zanzibar.

Thus may one cross the whole of middle Africa to-day by steam.

THE HOUSE OF DOORN.

It Was Selected by Wm. Hohenzollern's Wife.

The former German empress personally selected "the house of Doorn," which William Hohenzollern has purchased, as the future home in which she and her one-time imperial husband hope to settle and live the lives of country gentlefolk in Holland.

The former emperor has not yet seen "the house of Doorn," but it is anticipated in Amerongen that he will soon pay a visit to it, says an exchange. Recently he is reported to have been taking carriage rides with Count von Bentinck, the owner of Amerongen Castle, where he is living at present. It is declared that he has expressed himself as being anxious for a change in scenery from that within the limits which the Dutch Government has restricted him in his movements.

Although the deeds for the sale of "the house of Doorn" were signed only a week or so ago at Amerongen by the Baroness Van Heemstria de Beaufort, the owner of the estate, and the ex-emperor's secretary, von Inssiem, former Empress Augusta Victoria, decided in the favor of the purchase of the Doorn estate early in August, when she made a visit there.

The house, though rich in history and imposing in appearance, has only twelve rooms, in addition to small chambers for servants. From the main highway tram line, which is only 200 yards away, a view of the house, in the midst of a grove, is presented to all passers-by. The front of the house is accessible only through the gatekeepers' lodge. Fronting the building is a rose garden and a park filled with stone benched shady nooks and a stagnant pond filled with water lilies. The ivy-covered building resembles an old English country house.

The "house of Doorn" was finished in 1356 and was fitted out in order to serve for the knights of St. Martin. It was damaged in the strife in following years and was rebuilt in the seventeenth century. The estate once consisted of 300 acres, but it is said that only about sixty acres were included in the sale to William Hohenzollern. The price has not been stated.

The Baroness de Beaufort still occupies the house.

It is not expected that the former emperor will not leave Amerongen for three months. There are no moats about the house of Doorn and no walls like those surrounding Amerongen Castle.

SANDRA THE JEALOUS

BY JANE PHELPS

MAYTIME—AND THE WHOLE WORLD THROBBING WITH LIFE

CHAPTER III.

It was in May I first met Everett Graham. For several days it had been unusually warm. The leaves on the trees and shrubs had stolen silently from their winter hiding places and were bursting brilliantly green on their stalks and branches. It seemed to me that the whole world was throbbing with life, was more keenly alive than ever it had been before.

I was just a girl that wonderful Maytime, with just a girl's visions, her ideas, and ideals. The books I had read were mostly light novels, and romances, which exaggerated those ideas without doing me any particular good or harm. Yet in a way I realized that they helped me to overlook the difference in our ages. Many of the heroines of the novels I had read had married men much older than they and had been happy ever after—according to the narrator.

I had always liked my name — Sandra. Rose said it sounded as if I was a writer and had taken it as a nom de plume. Rose often said such queer things although she was a perfect dear. But after she had said that I liked my name better than ever, Sandra Courtney. When I said it aloud I was pleased with the sound and glad that I had not been named Mary or Margaret or Nellie. I liked my own name so much better.

I have told how Everett looked and I expect people who read my story would like to know something of how I looked also.

I was tall—taller than most of my friends. I was thin, almost scrawny. Everett called it "willowy" which sounded much nicer. My hair was a very dark auburn, deep red gold in some lights. I often used to wish that whatever pigment had been used — they say that is what causes different colors in hair—had not been used quite so lavishly. People could see my hair before they saw me. So Rose said. I had the brownish eyes and the light skin that usually goes with such hair. And I also had freckles. I had tried to get rid of them in every possible way since I was ten but although I had taken off the skin many times the freckles persisted. They were lighter in color now and smaller. Mother said that when I was older they would probably disappear altogether. But they were a great trial to me. My two brothers made fun of me for trying to get rid of them so that finally I stopped. But I commenced again that spring I met Everett, but with no success.

Sometimes I used to think that having brothers was not an unalloyed joy. I was sure of it the day they told Everett that I was putting on stuff to get rid of the freckles because he had come to see me.

"Sandra is putting stuff on her face because of you." Teodles, his right name was Harry, confided to Everett. "She's done it before and it didn't work worth a cent; but she thinks you will think she's prettier without freckles. Girls is silly anyway. Freckles don't hurt."

Buster, my other brother, his right name was Charles, was not quite so bad, yet he also often said things that were frightfully embarrassing. Rose Grandon hadn't any brothers, and once I was so exasperated I told her she ought to be thankful she hadn't. I used to urge mother to punish them but she said that all boys who had young lady sisters were just like Toodles and Buster. I didn't wonder sometimes when they had been worse than usual that boys were said to be made of "scissors and snails and puppy dogs tails" or or something equally horrid.

Of course they weren't like that all the time. When they were good I was really fond of them. Toodles was fourteen and Buster was twelve. I guess those are rather bad ages for boys. "Neither hay nor grass" father had said once when I begged him to make them behave.

Everett seemed to like them, and was quite nice to them so they did not play any more tricks or tell tales about me while he stayed. When he got back to New York he sent Toodles a fishing rod and tackle and Buster a big push wagon for which he had expressed a wish, expressed it loudly. But it made things very comfortable for me because if the boys commenced to act badly I at once threatened to tell Mr. Graham.

To-morrow Everett surprises Sandra with a letter.

IN SPORTS SUITS

Splendid Assortment for Woman Fond of Athletics.

Pastime Apparel Very Much English in Cut and Fabric—Knitted Suit May Almost Be Called Indispensable.

It is established that our most delightful fashions come from Paris, and it is becoming equally well established that our sport apparel is English in cut and fabric. We come to speak of the English walking hat, meaning the rather close-fitting hat with a tall crown curling up at the sides. English tweeds and flannels are a part of every sportswoman's vernacular, as suits of these materials are of her wardrobe. We differentiate between the cutaways and the real afternoons, and recognize the rights of the latter to be as plainly and unbecomingly dressed as the most rigorous exercise demands.

During the last year of the war the knitted sport suits made by hand appeared, first in Switzerland at St. Moritz and such places where winter sports abound. They were instantly accepted and were a boon to French and Swiss makers also, who could thus employ remunerativelv their long winter evenings heretofore given over to lace making or the fine embroideries, the demand for which was interrupted by war. Now the knitted suit is indispensable. The great vogue over here for tricolette and jersey cloth has further stimulated this demand.

The wool jerseys are ideal, for they do not rumple or crush and come in such splendid colors that every taste may be gratified. Hunters' green is a favored color for some reason—it always looks well and does not always fade as do other brilliant and decided shades. Nothing is more picturesque than the fashion of topping white skirts with jersey coats of the most brilliant tones imaginable—green, yellow, and scarlet seemingly preferred. Undeniably they make gay color splotches on the landscape and add to the summer picture.

Less serviceable than the wool jerseys are coats of fine faille and silk poplin. They are as delicate and refined as the most conservative woman could ask, and come in such pretty, soft colors as French blue and pale rose. The coat usually has rather wide sleeves which open over the sleeve underneath and are not too tight. Deep revers cut away in front as a man's dinner coat rolls back at the sides and now and then one finds a sash finely fringed and belting in the waist.—New York Sun.

Strategy.

"Nora has just dropped another plate," said Mrs. Twobble.

"Well, my dear," replied Mr. Twobble, "suppose you go into the kitchen and drop a hint to the effect that she must not break any more china?"

"Evidently you don't know how to manage Nora. If I lead her to believe that we rather enjoy having her break a plate occasionally I think she will be more careful."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Exempt.

"We've been playing school, mamma," said little Ethel.

"Indeed?" replied her mother. "I hope you behaved nicely."

"Oh, I didn't have to behave!" said Ethel. "I was the teacher."

YOUNG MAN KILLED ON LEVEL CROSSING

Driving With Younger Brother in a Closed Buggy; Horse Killed by the Engine.

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 22.— A fatal accident occurred at the G.T.R. level crossing north-east of Corbyville, four miles from this city, when Clifford Wallace and his younger brother, Arthur, sons of Harvey Wallce, a well-known farmer of the 5th concession of Thurlow, were struck by an engine, while they were driving to Belleville in a closed buggy. Clifford suffered a fractured skull, as a result of which he died several hours later in Belleville hospital, but Arthur, while sustaining painful injuries to the head, will likely recover.

Apparently the boys did not see the train. The horse was killed and carried about 400 feet down the track, while the buggy was dragged half that distance, the brothers being thrown into the ditch.

Clifford Wallace was 21 years of age and had recently returned from overseas, where he served for three years and a half without injury. He had been awarded the Military Medal for bravery, and was accorded a reception by the neighborhood on his return. His elder brother, Earl, was killed in action in France.

Coroner Dr. Boyce has opened an inquest.

MARRIED WITHIN HOUR AFTER LEAVING PRISON WHERE 41 YEARS SPENT

GLEN FALLS, N.Y., Dec. 23—After 41 years in prison for murder Archie Mull was released from Great Meadow prison on commutation of sentence, and within one hour was married to Miss Stella Grace Howe of Melboro, Mass., who had waited for him for years, it was learned today. Mull was convicted in 1878 of the murder of Melville B. Lord at Nassau, and had been in prison since that time.

Tells How to Stop a Bad Cough

Surprising results from this famous old home-made syrup. Easily prepared and costs little.

If you have a severe cough or chest cold accompanied with soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing, or if your child wakes up during the night with croup and you want quick help, try this reliable old home-made cough remedy. Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth). Pour this into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. This recipe makes 16 ounces of really remarkable cough remedy. It tastes good, and in spite of its low cost, it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens and raises the phlegm, stops throat tickle and soothes and heals the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is probably the best known means of overcoming severe coughs, throat and chest colds.

There are many worthless imitations of this mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

LABOUR CANDIDATES FOR CIVIC ELECTIONS ENDORSED LAST NIGHT

FOUR UNION MEN FOR ALDERMANIC BOARD AND E. F. MASON AND C. E. SISSON CHOSEN FOR UTILITIES COMMISSION—MRS. MORRIS WILL RECEIVE LABOUR SUPPORT.

Labour's Municipal Slate.

For Mayor.

Ald. A. A. McIntyre, carpenter.

For City Council.

L. F. Humber, moulder,
Fred Tuggey, bricklayer,
J. A. Sharpe, pattern-maker,
T. W. Tedford, carpenter.

For Utilities Commission

E. F. Mason, merchant, (three year term).
C. E. Sisson, engineer, (one year term).

Board of Education

A. J. Bolwell, printer,
Alex. Morrison, electrical worker,
Mrs. W.R. Morris.

Trades and Labour Council endorsed the above candidates for the municipal elections at a special meeting last night, adopting the report of the special recruiting committee submitted by its chairman, Mr. William Rudkins. Fifty delegates of the Unions were present, and a high note of enthusiasm ran through the proceedings which were retarded by only note of enthusiasm ran through the procedings which were retarded by only one ballot.

For the City Council the committee presented the names of five candidates, but Ald. Garside asked that his be withdrawn from the list. This obviated selection by voting, and it was also agreed that the aldermanic slate represented the exact minimum of the aldermanic contestants that must be designated by each ratepayer in order to validate his ballot. It may not be out of place to repeat this caution reminding the electors that to comply with a regulation passed two years ago they must vote for at least four candidates for the aldermanic board. Otherwise their ballot will be spoiled.

The Utilities Commission.

Neither of Labour's nominees for the Utilities Commission are members of any Union. Mr. Thomas McMurray was recommended, but he gratefully and regretfully declined the nomination stating that he could not see his way clear to accept at the present time.

The list for the Board of Education includes the name of Mrs. W. R. Morris, and by this action organized labour indicated not only its sympathy for her cause but also pronounced its endorsation.

Main Item the Recall.

The only question that developed a debate last night was a resolution by Mr. Howard Matthews seconded by Mr. Humber that Labour candidates be required to subscribe to the recall and to Labour's municipal platform. Mr. J. J. Hartley and Mr. Tuggey opposed this condition for the general reason that the recall system suggested lack of confidence in the candidate. They held that if the Council hadn't enough faith in its municipal representatives to give them entire freedom of action other candidates should be brought out.

Mr. Tooms, Mr. T. H. Lane and others argued that when a candidate submitted his resignation previous to his election he wasn't depriving himself of freedom, but was simply providing an assurance that in regard to questions involving principles of the Labour platform, and only those questions, he would support and generally be fair to Labour ideas.

Aldermen McIntyre, Gainey and Crowe declared themselves in favour of the recall principle, but Ald. Garside said his opinion coincided with Mr. Hartley's.

It was unanimously agreed that there was nothing in the Labour platform to which any citizen could take objection. Mr. Hartley explained that he didn't like the sound of the idea or rather the interpretation that might be put upon it by persons who might be opposed to Labour. The motion was finally carried without dissent.

The Municipal Platform

The Trades and Labour Council's municipal platform is briefly as follows:

1. Municipal ownership of gas and electric plants, telephone and street railway services, and all municipal franchises to be owned and operated by the municipality for the people.
2. Eight hour day for municipal employees.
3. Municipal work to be performed by the municipalitiy without the intervention of contracters.
4. Weekly payment of wages; equal pay for women for equal work performed by men.
5. Revision of the municipal code.
6. Revision and equalization of salaries of public officials.
7. Municipal halls to be granted free of charge for public meetings.
8. Abolition of property qualifications for municipal candidates.
9. Municipal loans to be supplied to workingmen for building purposes at the lowest possible rates.
10.—Annual publication of the assessment rolls.
11. Universal suffrage and abolition of the Ward system.

Not Carelessly Used.

Several members pointed out that some of these provisions are already accomplished. The recall system would not be lightly nor carelessly enforced. It was not an innovation, but was used in many places and most recently was adopted by the United Farmers of Ontario. "In all my experience", said one delegate "I have never know it to be enforced."

Ald. Garside was tendered a vote of thanks for his services in the City Council this year. Replying he said he would give his assistance in the approaching campaign.

A COMPREHENSIVE STATEMENT OF THE WORK OF THE UTILITIES COMMISSION OF PETERBOROUGH

Dear Mr. Editor,—Peterborough is, in my humble opinion, on the threshold of an unprecedented period of expansion and prosperity and it is of the utmost importance at this time that we as citizens "stop, look and listen." If it shall be the purpose of the ratepayers to give intelligent direction to the city's development, they will take time to understand the business of the city and give it serious attention, and they will vote on New Year's Day.

Look at our boys and girls. I know of no city where you can find better types of physical or mental excellence. If we are going to keep these girls and boys at home we must make the development of our city an objective part of their education. The life of our city and the education of our children are inter-related. We cannot safely shirk our civic duty any more than we can shirk our parental duty. The ownership and management of public utilities has been successfully tried in Peterborough and yet there are some thoughtless people who talk of public business as if the elemental principles of tradesmanship and business did not apply collectively as they do individually.

It seems an opportune moment to examine the condition of two of the great business enterprises which are owned by the people of Peterborough and managed by three of her leading business men.

The record of that Commission is a credit to the gentlemen who have served upon it and one we are proud of as a city. The city is under very great obligation to W. H. Moore, K. C., Robert Hicks and T. F. Matthews, its chairman.

The Commission has expended approximately $400,000 on the plant. The waterworks pays annual interest and sinking fund on debentures of about $40,000, and during the last five years has worked up an annual profit of about $5,000 net. The total profits from date of purchase aggregate almost $80,000. Its sinking fund reserve amounts to $181,219.29, and it has an investment fund of $40,000 to meet any possible contingency.

It has reduced the rate to consumers until it is now a third of the original charge and gives a vastly better service.

When the city bought the old plant it had 19 miles of mains; now it has more than 46 miles.

Then we had 1,150 individual services; now there are 4,652 services supplied.

The city inherited an antiquated pump house and wooden dam; now we have fine concrete structures not surpassed in the country.

The pumping capacity has been increased to 16 1-2 million gallons daily—in excess of the maximum requirement for safeguarding the city.

An auxiliary steam pumping plant and duplicate force mains have been installed, thus minimizing danger from shortage of water or ice troubles.

In order to make the water safe in the interest of the public health a liquid chlorine system of sterilization has been installed.

And last, but by no means least, of many permanent betterments that might be mentioned, which add to the value of this great business, the Carnegie property of 85 acres was recently purchased as a site for the proposed and necessary filtration plant to come. This finely situated property will make one of the most beautiful parks in all Canada, the very possession of which will add to Peterborough's attractiveness as a good place to live and work in.

The Electric System.

The cost of the original electric plants, of lands and buildings and substation equipment, and for increased distribution and transforming capacity, meters and testing devices amounts to about $200,000. A conservative valuation of the tangible assets to-day would exceed $250,000—a gain of $50,000, in five years. Good business that.

A substantial contingent fund has been created out of the earnings to protect the city and safeguard the plant from any exceptional emergency.

Since the plants became the property of the city, and during the war when the high cost of living soared, our Utilities Commission equalized and reduced the rates for domestic electric service and actually saved our citizens as a whole some $50,000 a year—one quarter of a million dollars in five years.

There has been set aside for depreciation on plant the sum of $35,736, and on the debenture issue there has already been set aside the sum of $15,600.56 as sinking fund.

From January 1st last to September 30th there has been sold to customers 947,064 K.W.H. at a net cost of $32,684.39. Had the rate now charged been that of the old company, the cost to the customers would have been almost double the amount now actually paid under the Commission's management, forcibly illustrating the value of municipal ownership under competent management.

The system has grown in these five years from to eight circuits and from 1900 individual services to 5,400 and it successfully met the feverish fluctuations that resulted from the war's abnormal and spasmodic demands upon our industries.

Many betterments are planned and awaiting better prices for material such as copper wire; indeed the Commission has outlined a comprehensive plan of development to impurove the whole service which will show, in spots, as the removal of the poles from George and Charlotte.

The above brief outline of facts surely give a convincing answer to any voter or taxpayer who has the welfare of his city at heart.

The Water and Electric service plants were originally purchased and subsequently improved with borrowed money. The two systems have been so admirably managed that their entire cost will have been wiped out within a few years, and not a cent will go out of our taxes for these properties.

The whole comprehensive management of the two big business enterprises of Peterborough shows that the men who have conducted them so far are capable of handling big business. They have demonstrated that municipal ownership has been very successful in this community.

The city has had from its Utilities Commission in personal service alone what in any private business would have cost thousands of dollars, while our cost can be measured by hundreds.

And now we have a situation to be met—the election of two members of the Utilities Commission. Mr. Hicks' term is about to expire, and Mr. Matthews has resigned because of his removal to Toronto.

It is an outstanding and demonstrated fact that the chief element in the success of municipal ownership in the city has been the continuity, in personnel and policy of its management. Therefore common sense and common honesty oblige us to hold to our standard of service on the Utilities Commission.

Your sincerely,
Ryerson-Ritchie.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

GOES TO LONDON WITH CRIME LIST

FRENCH DELEGATE LEAVES TO ATTEND SPECIAL CONFERENCE.

PARIS, Dec. 23.—Under-Secretary of State for Military Justice Ignace has left for London to take part in the making up of a list of Germans charged with war crimes, and whose delivery to the Entente will be demanded. A conference will be held during the week in London to determine upon a plan for joint action by Great Britain, France and Belgium France, according to the Echo de Paris has a list of 500 names ready to be submitted. Among these names is that of one of the former German Emperor's sons, and also those of the former Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria and several generals and commanders of prison camps in Germany.

In all according to this newspaper about 1,500 persons will be arraigned before military tribunals of each of the three nations or by mixed tribunals in cases where the persons are accused of crimes against peoples of various nationalities. It is said that even if culprits are tried by German courts they nevertheless must appear before the allied tribunals.

The case of former Emperor William will be dealt with separately from the London conference.

BRITISH GOVERN MENT ENTERS SUGAR PRODUCING BUSINESS

LONDON, Dec. 22.—The British Government is going into the sugar producing business and has decided to invest £250,000 in a £1,000,000 company which is to be floated, called the "Home Grown Sugar Company, Limited."

The Government will guarantee a dividend of 5 per cent, for ten years on the private capital invested, and will ask for no interest on its own subscription until a 5 percent, cumulative dividend on the public capital has been subscribed.

The Gressman Company Limited

brother of Ald. Robert Morrison and a prominent Labour worker. Mrs. W. R. Morris has also the endorsation of organized Labour. The present members of the Board whose terms expire are also proposed again, and with them Mr. E. B. Fowler and Dr. Harvey.

Ald. Taylor's Address

The hour for nominations closed at eleven o'clock, and the time until the whistles blew was given over to the usual addresses of the condidates. Ald. Taylor speaking first reviewed the financial conditions of the city as they had been handled by the Finance Committee of which he has been chairman. Debentures issued last year totalled $31,508. Peterboro's financial standing was entirely sound and her security gilt-eged as attested by the advantageous sales of this year's bonds. The actual general debenture debt was $899,573.47 or $40 per capita of population, extended over long periods. Ald. Taylor said he had been particularly interested in the city's street railway problem as if elected Mayor would leave nothing undone to connect all parts of the city by rail with the business and manufacturnig districts. He urged a progressive industrial policy next year and asked the ratepayers to entrust him with the responsibility of guiding the city through the important affairs that would come up next year. He could devote all the time that would be required for the city's work, and felt confident in appealing to the electors by reason of the large number who had requested him to be a candidate for the Mayoralty.

Mayor Duncan

Mayor Duncan said that in retiring from the Council he did so with the feeling that he had done the best he could for all the citizens. "The incoming Mayor has work ahead of him which if he attends to properly will leave him little time for his own business. There is the bridge on which we have already spent $150,000 and it's not half finished. The citizens would do themselves and Ald. Phelan an honour by electing him to the Council next year so that he could carry on the bridge work. We have to build a sewage disposal plant which wil cost us another $150,000. We've got to go ahead with it because the Provincial Board of Health has ordered it. Then there is street paving and altogether there will be a large amount of money to be spent."

Mayor Duncan said he would be greatly pleased at the re-election of Mr. Hicks as Utilities Commissioner. His services would be appreciated by every citizen. There was some criticism of Mr. Hicks in regard to the coal situation two years ago.

"As Mayor I was with Mr. Hicks a great deal during that time and I know the efforts he put forth to get coal for the city. Mr. Hicks saved the situation for the citizens that winter. I know the things he did to get coal, and the citizens should realize it and give him every credit. I hope you will elect Mr. Bradburn for the one year term. I am not saying a word for myself, but I know you will make no mistake by electing these two gentlemen. In regard to the mayoralty, in the words of the old saying let them go to it and fight it out. If there is any choice get the best man for you will need a good one next year."

Ald. McIntyre

Ald. McIntyre recalled his long service in the City Council and explained that he had reached the position where he felt he should retire or go higher. He had accordingly decided to ask the ratepayers for the Mayor's chair. One reason was his long service and experience. He had the municipal training necessary for the position and he felt he could make good. As chairman of the Manufacturers Committee last year he had the satisfaction that with the aid of the City Clerk and Mayor Duncan six new industries had been secured for Peterboro.

I was chairman of the Committee when the Quaker Oats came to Peterboro. I was one of a deputation that went to Chicago and succeeded in inducing them to come here. In regard to the bridge it was my idea that we get aid from the government and we went to Ottawa and got $50,000. I know what we have to face next year. One question is the building of more houses. I will do my best to see that we get a good system. We should deal with the High Cost of Living. There must be some machinery by which we can do this and I will try to get a scheme to reduce the cost of living."

Ald. McIntyre said he was interested in bringing about better relations between the employers and employees in this city. He was an employer himself and believed that Peterboro would greatly profit by an adjustment that would secure a complete understanding in the industrial affairs of the city. If elected this would be one of his principal aims believing it in the highest interests of Peterboro.

Mr. Robert Hicks.

Mr. Hicks stated that he was doubly honoured in the fact of having been nominated by Mr. W. H. Moore, one of the city's oldest public servants, with whom he had been associated for six years. In 1914 Mr. Hicks was appointed to the Utilities Commission. Although everything else had increased in cost the people were getting water at the same rate as in the pre-war days. He explained how the water pressure had been raised to a high standard for fire protection, surpassing most of the cities in Ontario in that respect. Profits accumulated by the Waterworks Department amounted to $80,000, much of which had been expended for mains, but all of it a real asset.

Mr. Hicks touched upon the progress of the light and power department under the Commission's control. The power system had cost $154,000. After five years' operation the profits now represented $27,000. In 1918 the Commission handled 29,786 h.p. at $48,000, and in 1918 42,500 h.p. at $62,097. As a result of the increased demand for power during the last year of the war and the Hydro's plan of charging the municipality on the basis of 75 p.c. of its peak in the previous year, the Utilities Commission had to pay this year for more power than the city needed. This extra charge was $5,600, but it had been taken care of and and a profit balance remained.

Mr. Hicks declared that this was an unavoidable charge, something of a war debt which the citizens should understand and to which they would not object, accepting it as a slight after effect of the war.

W. H. Bradburn.

Mr. W. H. Bradburn intimated that he had closely followed the problems of the Utilities Commission, and if elected for the one year term would endeavour to serve the citizens to the best of his ability. "All I have in the world is in Peterborough," he said. "If Peterborough goes down, I go down, but I'm not pessimistic. If we work together with the Council we shall have annual increases in population of not 200 or 300, but of 700 or 1,000. Then vacant property will be built upon, new houses will be needed and work provided thereby.

Ald. John Edgar.

Ald. Edgar said he would continue, if elected, to serve the citizens as carefully as during his four years in the Council. He had always refrained from making promises but had tried to solve the city's problems with the best judgment. Ald. Edgar recalled some of his accomplishments in the Council, and recommended to the ratepayers the two by-laws he had sponsored. The Aladdin Company was a strong company that desired to locate in Peterborough. The park by-law would provide a splendid recreation grounds for the citizens and deserved unanimous support.

Declined Advantage.

Mr. J. W. Worth declined the opportunity to address the electors as a candidate for the Board of Education, stating that it would be a rather unfair advantage of those candidates who were not present. He spoke for himself and Mr. G. O. Cameron.

Mr. J. J. Turner concluded the proceedings with an explanation of his reasons for proposing a third term for Mayor Duncan.

THE WEATHER

The prospects for sleighing at Christmas are not very bright, but it is well to remember that conditions were even less promising last year at this date, and a few days may yet bring a great change. At present there is no cold weather in any section.—W. P.

OBITUARY

AMBROSE COUGHLIN.

Ambrose Coughlin, Junior, of Douro, died this morning at the family residence, Douro township, about two miles from Lakefield, after an illness of two months duration. WHAT AND WHY IS

Group Insurance?

It is an inexpensive means of insuring the lives of all your employees individually by a single small premium.

It involves no medical inspection and it costs about 75 cents a month for each $1,000, of insurance carried.

It has arisen from the desire of business firms to do something substantial for their employees, and so promote goodwill and avoid constant changes in the payroll.

It has been widely adopted by far-seeing industrial executives.

LOCAL COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO LOOK AFTER NEW APPROPRIATION

At the meeting held last evening at the Rooms of the Patriotic Fund, details in connection with taking over the work of the distribution of the Federal Emergency Appropriation were arranged. The Order-in-Council, under which the work is carried on was consulted and the regulations gone over and discussed. As a conclusion it was felt that with the very thorough arrangements made at Ottawa, and with the assistance of the Information and Service Branch of the S.C.R., now in the city men out of work and presenting themselves for action could be helped during the winter months.

The Distributing Committee to handle details was appointed, being practically the same men as constitute the committee of the Patriotic Fund having that department in charge are : Messrs. W. Buller, Wallace Bunton, Walter Stocker, Henry Rush, Henry Stabler, F. H. Dobbin, Sergt. Sidney Whatley and Ex-Pte. Thomas Williams. Mr. Buller as Chairman and Mr. Dobbin as secretary. This committee will arrange to meet on a separate evening and take up business only as connected with the distribution.

The suggestion is again repeated that men wishing to apply should see in the first instance the management at the information and Service Branch of the S.C.R. (the Ontario Unemployment Bureau, Charlotte street) and state the case. Then attention can be given by the Patriotic Fund, acting for the Administrator. The funds to be disbursed, it should be clearly understood, are not Patriotic Fund funds, but the money so aside by the Government for purposes of assistance to ex-members of the forces out of employment. All this talk about charity, can at once be dismissed. No thought of such should be entertained. All over the country the unemployment problem is imminent. The taking back into the working ranks of over 300,000 men has almost flooded the labor market, so far as employment that may be carried on during the winter months is concerned. The Government makes to the ex-soldier, if hampered by lack of employment, a gift. It should be availed of in the spirit in which it is offered.

GETTING READY FOR THE FLOOD

AMERICAN BREWERS MAY LOCATE PLANTS IN MONTREAL.

(Special to The Examiner.)

MONTREAL, Dec. 23.—The latest "liquor rumor" here is that American brewers and distillers, if they are driven out of the United States, will establish plants in Montreal and that after the ban is lifted in Canada on January 1, there will be large shipments from across the border to this country. In the meantime distillers are making frantic efforts to ship their products out of the United States before Jan. 16, the date when the prohibition amendment will go into effect in that country. It is believed here that Montreal importers will take all that they can ship and that Toronto and the rest of Ontario will find some of this stock in their orders after January 1.

Midnight Dyspepsia

Late Suppers and the Snack Before Going to Bed Are All Right And Safe If You Follow With a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet.

...stomach ... feels empty ... just ... bed ... A little bite usually induces sleep. To avoid indigestion, restlessness and the "dark brown" taste in the morning, take a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet after eating. It supplies just the right elements to aid in digesting food, rests the stomach, provides properties to relieve the tendency to gassiness and sour risings, morning biliousness and consequent absence of appetite for breakfast. To make a practice of always using Stuart's Dyspepsit Tablets after eating is one of those precautionary measures that repay immensely. This is an age of prevention and these tablets are designed to promote liberty of eating and the good-fellowship that goes with a good meal. You will find Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in all drug stores throughout the United States and Canada.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Most leading issues were somewhat lower at the stock market opening to-day. U.S. Steel, however, opened up 3-4 at 104 1-2; U.R. Stores up 1-8 at 91 1-4, and American Loco at 96 1-2, up 1-2; Anaconda opened at 87 1-2, unchanged; Alcohol at 109, unchanged; Mexican Pet. at 216 1-4, off 1-4; Baldwin at 106 1-8, off 1-4; Studebaker at 109 1-2, unchanged; Republic Steel at 111 1-4, unchanged; Reading at 76 1-4, off 3-4, and Union Pacific at 133 3-8, off 1-8.

With the exception of American ocomotive Industrial Alcohol and Transcontinental Oil. The list was dull during early trading. The first two stocks advanced briskly but the latter sold below 3 8.

OFFICERS ELECTED

At the regular meeting of the Local 191 A.F. of M. on Sunday the following officers were elected for 1920:

President—W. Hughes.
1st Vice President—C. Gibson.
Sec. Treas.—N. Leader.
Delegates to the Trades and Labour Council. Messrs. Gilbert, Hill and Benson.

Voice Of The People

To the Editor and all whom it may concern which is every man and woman having a vote in the city looking over the affairs of our city so far as I have been able to see, the Utilities Commission is the only branch of our city expenses that have not increased their rates and after paying necessary but fair wages and also providing for the compensation act have enough to still keep things moving. While we regret that some have removed and tendered their resignation others whose term expires with the end of this year. Now in our own interest which is the interest of the whole city, are we going to wake up and make it our business to see that those who helped to make these things possible, are reinstated to help carry on the good work. We owe it to ourselves as well as to them.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I remain

THE DUMBELLS

Direct from a run of over five hundred performances in France, forty in Brussels and a month in London, the famous "Dumbells", composed entirely of Canadian soldiers, will play a limited home coming tour of the larger cities of Canada. "The Dumbells" will make a Special Return engagement to the Grand on 'Xmas Day matinee and evening.

"The Dumbells", as they were call-in France, need no introduction to the returned soldiers in Canada, as their wonderful success in entertaining the soldiers immediately behind the lines is a matter of military history. This company, composed entirely of soldiers who had done their bit in the front lines, was given much greater latitude than was accorded to the visiting theatrical organizations from England, and many of their performances were staged inside the range of fire from the German guns. They are also the only troupe whose performances were given entirely free to the soldiers. For this Canadian tour they are offering their original overseas revue, "Biff, Bing, Bang," and in it the soldiers boys play everything from chorus girls to prima donnas.

The famous Canadian soldier entertainment organization, known in France as the "Dumbells", has been brought intact to this country for a limited tour of the larger cities, in order to give the people at home an idea of the really wonderful theatricals which were staged in France by and for our boys. The members of this company all soldier-actors having served an average of sixteen months on active service before being chosen by Capt. M. W. Plunkett for service in the entertainment corps The "Dumbells" gave over five hundred prformances in France. many of them immediately behind the front lines, where bursting shells played an important part in the "lightning effects". For this tour they are offering their original overseas revue, "Biff, Bing, Bang", which will be staged as nearly as possible in the manner in which it was given over there, excepting the matter of bursting shells, poison gas and coot-ies.

ERNIE MARKS COMING HERE

The announcement of the coming engagement to the Grand for five nights commencing Friday, Dec. 26 the Ernie Marks Stock Company, supporting the people's favorite actress, Miss Kittie Marks. The company will present on Friday night one of the world's greatest successes "Little Peggy O'Moore", and will be appreciated by all the theatregoers, as they will receive an attraction that is run on an entirely different plan than the general line of these attractions. It is Mr. Marks efforts to elevate his attractions so it will outclass all others, and command the dignity of productions that are so costly in mounting and costuming and settling that others dare not venture to follow in his steps, which will make him leader, and be classed in a field by himself. The plays that will be seen are all bright, clean, royalty plays. In all plays Miss Kittie Marks will be seen to great advantage, as well as her supporting cast having equally as good a chance. Dancing, singing, musical numbers which are numerous, are nightly changed and interspersed during the action of the play.

HONOUR FORMER PETERBORO BOY

JOHN JOSEPH O'ROURKE PRESENTED WITH PHOTOGRAPH OF PRINCE OF WALES.

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Dec. 22.—A former Peterborough lad, whose name is John Joseph O'Rourke, eleven years old, son of Mr. William O'Rourke, now of Ottawa, is a happy youngster today. On Saturday he received from the Prince of Wales an autographed photograph of His Royal Highness, which was accompanied by a brief note on paper bearing the Royal Coat of Arms, on which were the words: "With the Compliments of H.R.H., the Prince of Wales."

Little Jack O'Rourke was recently highly honoured by meeting the Prince of Wales when the latter was in Ottawa. The boy presented His Royal Highness with a beautiful souvenir of farewell greetings:

"I love and honour your father, His Most Illustrious Majesty the King, I have an admiration and respect for your Royal Highness as a great conqueror. Good-bye, my dear Prince of Wales. God bless you."

This touching little souvenir was presented by Master Jack O'Rourke on the occasion of the unveiling of memorial tablets in MacKay street Presbyterian church here on the last Sunday the Prince spent in the capital. The heir to the British throne was much touched by this tribute from one of his youngest subjects, is evidence that the autographed photograph testifies.

The photograph and note were mailed from Portsmouth, England on December first and naturally not only master, Jack but his father are greatly pleased by the thoughtfulness which is so characteristic of the Prince.

Mr. O'Rourke, father of Master Jack, formerly resided in Peterborough, where his son was born. He has been living in Ottawa eleven years and was at one time a well-known member of the Peterborough Review mechanical staff, and is now with the Government Printing Bureau here.

CURLERS HAD A FRIENDLY GAME

A friendly game was played between three Peterborough and three Lakefield rinks on a good sheet of ice at the local curling rink yesterday afternoon.

The Peterborough skips were F. M. Dela Fosse, G. A. Benor and W. J. Oke and the Lakefield skips were C. S. Tanner, Mr. Galvin and Mr. Ridpath. The score was 46 to 28 in favour of Peterborough.

PEOPLE IN LANCASHIRE TOWN THOUGHT THE END HAD COME

LONDON, Dec. 22.—Extraordinary scenes took place in Dukinfield, on the border of Cheshire and Lancashire, about 6 o'clock Wednesday evening, when a severe thunderstorm and blizzard broke over the town. Chimney pots and slates were sent flying in all directions, and in the main street a number of people were thrown down by the force of the storm. In view of "the end of the world" story, many women became hysterical and rushed about looking for refuge.

DOCTOR WROTE 4,000 LIQUOR PRESCRIPTIONS IN ONE MONTH

VICTORIA, Dec. 22.—In the eight months from March to October, inclusive, doctors in British Columbia issued 188,120 prescriptions for liquor Of these totals, 113,273 were issued by Vancouver doctors; 27,240 came from Victoria, and 47,643 from the balance of the Province, according to figures issued by Attorney-General Farris.

Doctors are now limited to two hundred liquor prescriptions each month. Before this regulation was in effect, one doctor prescribed four thousand cases in one month.

Dainty Little Christmas Gifts in Cretonne

By DOROTHY PERKINS

(Copyright, by A. Monty Hall.)

Dainty gifts covered in cretonne are certain to find a welcome in any household, and such a variety of things can be made that you will have no difficulty in filling a want of each one whom you wish to remember on Christmas day.

The unique pair of book ends in Fig. 1 are made of syrup cans. The secret of making satisfactory book ends is to properly weight them so they will not upset, and the book ends illustrated are weighted by filling the cans with sand.

Cretonne with small patterns is the most desirable for small articles, and patterns with dark backgrounds are preferable for articles such as the book ends, which are likely to soil through much handling. Sew a piece of cretonne around the sides of each can, then by means of a gathering string gather the cloth as indicated in Fig. 1. Sew a fancy button, or a cretonne covered button, to the center of the top.

Fig. 2 shows a handy twine holder made of a syrup can. A hole must be pierced through the exact center of the can bottom as an outlet for the string (A, Fig. 3), and holes one-half inch apart must be pierced through the top rim to provide a means of fastening the top edge of the cretonne. The holes can be perforated by means of a nail and hammer. Gather the cretonne on the bottom, and turn the top edge over the rim and sew through the perforations in the rim.

Make a hanger for the twine holder out of cretonne or ribbon.

The hanging workbox in Fig. 4 requires a square cardboard box. Remove two adjacent sides of both the box and cover (Fig. 5), then stitch the cover to the box (Fig. 6). The cretonne may either be stitched over the open edges of the box, or be glued to the cardboard. Sew a doubled strip of cretonne, or a ribbon, to the open corners for a hanger.

The dainty telephone book in Fig. 7 provides a handy directory for numbers used frequently, and numbers which may be wanted quickly in cases of emergency. The covers are of cardboard 6 inches wide and 8 inches long, and are hinged together by the cretonne covering. Lay the cretonne over the edges as indicated in Fig. 8, and glue it to the cardboard, and make a pocket on one edge, to hold a pencil. Cut sheets of writing paper of the right size to extend a trifle over the lapped edges of the cretonne, and glue them in place; then divide the paper into spaces, and index the spaces (Fig. 8). A fancy work ring provides a hanger.

COLDS CAUSE HEADACHES AND PAINS.

Feverish Headaches and Body Pains caused from a cold are soon relieved by taking LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE Tablets. There is only one "Bromo Quinine." E. W. GROVE'S signature on the box. 30c

THE PITCHER'S BOX.

In Baseball's Early Days It Was Just a Line Twelve Feet Long.

Up to 1857, or for eighteen years after the first game of baseball was played, there was no limit to the number of innings, the first side scoring twenty-one runs, or "aces," as they were then called, being the winner. In 1857, however, the game was divided into nine innings. The pitcher had a line twelve feet long, kept behind it and could take a short run before his delivery, just the same as is permitted in cricket today.

In 1861 the old "line" for the pitcher to stand behind was done away with and the twirler limited to a "box" twelve feet long and four feet wide but in this area he could roam at will and throw from whatever spot he pleased. A few years later the "box" was made six feet square, and in 1876 it was again reduced to four feet wide and six feet long. Ten years later it was made a foot longer and a foot wider and in 1887 cut down in length to five and one-half feet.

These "boxes" being always a source of much change and discussion, they were finally abolished altogether and a rubber slab 12 by 4 inches took their place, the pitcher being required to keep his back foot against the slab. This slab was enlarged to two feet by six inches in 1895 and has remained the same since.

A Narrow Escape.

"I near had a scrap this morning," confided a slender young lawyer whom you wouldn't suspect of being belligerent.

"Who with?" we asked with no regard for grammar.

"Jimmie Squiggs. I guess I spoke hastily to him. Anyhow, he got the idea that I wanted to lick him."

"Well, what did he do?"

"He took it on the run. Honest, he did three blocks in about twelve seconds before I could say a word."

"That's going some for a big man like Squiggs."

"Ain't it? And it didn't do him a bit of good. I was half a block ahead of him every step of the way."

Attacked Scheme

By George MacDonough
(United Press.)

DUBLIN, Dec. 23. — The Irish press, of every shade of opinion, today attacked Premier Lloyd George's new Home Rule plan for Ireland, as outlined in the House of Commons yesterday, branding it "impracticable" and "unworkable." Apparently there was not one phase of the Premier's scheme that appealed to the Irish newspapers. Morning editions attacked it from every angle, predicting it never would be enforced if tried. They accused the government of knowing in advance the scheme would not be acceptable.

An Extremely Active One Around Around Indian River.

Mr. A. E. Juby, of Indian River, called up the Examiner on Saturday afternoon to report the appearance of a real live robin at his premises at Indian River. Mr. Juby does not know whether this robin left for the south in the fall, is only a visitor or the Globe's Robin.

THE AFTERMATH OF THE FLUE EPIDEMIC

NECESSITY POINTED OUT OF PUBLIC BEING ON THEIR GUARD FOR YEARS TO COME.

Necessity Pointed out of Public being on their Guard for Years to Come.

A prominent physician is quoted as saying: "It is altogether probable that as an after effect of the influenza there will be an unusually high pneumonia death rate for several years to come."

Warnings such as these should be borne in mind and drive home to every person the necessity of prompt action in every case of cold—usually the forerunner of influenza, pneumonia and kindred ailments.

It is possible to afford effective relief for a cold by home treatment, especially if it is taken in its early stages. Just as soon as the sneezing, running at the nose, closing up of the head occurs—start taking Grip Fix. This preparation contains Aspirin, Phenacetine, Quinine, Salol, Caffein Citrate and Camphor Monobromate — drugs which any physician will say are the proper treatment for colds. So effective is it that Grip Fix relieves a cold in a night and a case of Grippe in 48 hours. This statement is made on a merchandising experience of over 10 years during which the preparation was used all over the country.

Get a box of Grip Fix to-night and take it home. Then when colds come a reliable remedy is at hand. Be sure and get the genuine Reid's Grip Fix as there are no substitutes which do as effective work. It sells at 35c per box and can be obtained at any drugstore.

THE ROYAL BANK OF CANADA MAKES GAIN OF OVER HUNDRED MILLIONS IN ITS TOTAL ASSETS

MONTREAL, Dec. 23—(Special).—The Royal Bank of Canada is out with an Annual Statement that will, in many respects, be regarded as the most notable it has ever forwarded to its shareholders.

At a time when all Canadian banks are reporting important readjustments because of special financing undertaken on behalf of the Government during the war period, the Royal Bank has not only forged steadily ahead but is even able to report a gain in assets for the twelve months of well over One Hundred Million Dollars.

With this achievement the Royal is able to announce to its shareholders that at the close of its Golden Jubilee year its assets are away beyond the $500,000,000 mark.

Under the conditions that have prevailed during the past year this achievement is nothing short of remarkable and must be attributed to the business producing organization which The Royal Bank has built up with its system of over 600 branches. To the shareholders there will come a still more gratifying realisation of what may be expected during the next few years.

Growth of Assets.

An examination of the general statement of assets and liabilities shows that total assets now stand at $533,647,084, being up from $427,512,082 at the end of the last fiscal year. Of this amount liquid assets total $273,908,862, against $224,982,088, while loans and discounts have gained to $233,834,879, as compared with $183,748,392 a year ago.

The benefit the Royal Bank's branch system has been in building up a close relationship with the public is reflected by the very large gains in deposits. Total deposits now stand at $419,121,399, as compared with $332,591,177. Of this amount deposits bearing interest amount to $259,465,169, up from $197,348,439, and deposits not bearing interest $159,656,229, as compared with $135,243,278.

A closer study of liquid assets indicates a gain of approximately $50,000,000, chiefly in the following items: Balances due by banks and banking correspondents elsewhere than in Canada, $18,101,373, as against $10,391,516; Dominion and Provincial Government Securities $45,323,598, as against $36,509,976; Canadian Municipal Securities and British, Foreign and Colonial Public Securities, other than Canadian, $33,400,542, as against $29,629,885; Call Loans in Canada, $16,436,614, compared with $10,067,481; Call Loans elsewhere than in Canada, $33,812,751, compared with $24,374,191.

Big Gains in Earnings.

The Profit and Loss Account this year makes a most interesting exhibit. Following the issue of new capital made, the capital of the Bank now stands at $17,000,000, and the Reserve Fund at $17,000,000. With the larger resources at its disposal there has been a considerable gain in net profits and for the twelve months' period these amounted to $3,423,204, equal to 10.87% on the average capital and reserve for the year. This shows a gain of approximately $600,000, as compared with the previous year, when total profits were reported at $2,809,846.

With the total profits added to the balance of Profit and Loss brought forward, the amount available for distribution this year is $3,959,021. Of this amount $1,866,196 was paid in regular dividends, $340,000 as a bonus of 2% to shareholders to mark the Fiftieth Anniversary of the Bank, $100,000 transferred to Officers' Pension Fund, $400,000 written off Bank Premises Account, and $156,406 War Tax on Bank Note Circulation, leaving to be carried forward to Profit and Loss $1,096,418, as compared with $535,757 at the end of the previous year.

Due Both to Nature and Human Skill

Man must improve upon Nature in the production of super-fine tea like Lanka. The finest grades of British grown tea from the hill gardens of Ceylon are blended with scientific skill to produce the exquisite Lanka flavor.

This flavor is unique, a revelation—you have never tasted such wonderful tea. The aroma is captivating, its flavor, sparkling rich color, proclaims quality. You don't know how good tea can be until you have enjoyed Lanka.

Yet Lanka is a popular priced tea, costing but 75 cents a pound. This is possible because it is imported direct from the Island of Ceylon via Vancouver, Keystone Canadian port for the Orient, which saves import duty and freight charges.

Your grocer has this super-fine tea. Order a package of Lanka Tea today.

GOOD MUSIC AT GEORGE STREET

George street Methodist choir, already a distinct asset to musical Peterborough, won new laurels for both choir and leader in the presentation of the Christmas cantata, "Star of the East," by Fearis, on Sunday evening. The principal soloists, Mrs. J. H. Renwick, soprano, Miss Rathbone, contralto, Mr. E. Jones ,tenor, and Mr. John Smith, bass, sang exceptionally well, while the eight-part quartette was a distinctly unusually splendid feature. The choruses, in which the voices were excellently balanced, were remarkably well rendered, and reflected unlimited credit upon Mr. J. H. Renwick, who trained the voices.

SOMETHING FOR EVERY MEMBER OF THE FAMILY CIRCLE

One of the most attractive Christmas displays this year is the windows of the Peterboro Hardware Store, which has not only caused considerable favorable comment and invited an unusual amount of attention, but at a glance solves the Christmas perplexities of a large percentage of the shoppers, covering as it does the needs of practically every member of a family.

The display has been divided into two sections, the south window for brass and electric fixtures in which every practical need of a household is shown from a brass coal scuttle to an electric stove. Very handsome jardinieres, tea pot stands, etc., are also displayed.

In the north window, which is devoted to silverware ,the display of flat ware is most attractive and has proved absolutely irresistible to many a would be "windowshopper" who could not resist the lure of the latest designs in silverware. Both windows are most skillfully decorated in Christmas wreaths and holly.

THE GOVERNMENT WILL SPEND A QUIET CHRISTMAS.

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Dec. 23.—The Government will spend a more or less peaceful Christmas, with worries of reconstruction postponed for the time being, and with Sir Robert Borden still fairly active at the helm.

The Prime Minister will remain in the city over Christmas, and will attend his office from time to time, clearing up details and preparing for his departure early in the New Year.

To the Electors of Peterborough

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

I have served ten years as a member of the City Council, and on the record which I have made in that time I now feel justified in offering myself as a candidate for the Mayoralty. I have during my aldermanic service, always worked for the interests of the city as a whole, and have never been the tool or servant of any interest or faction. I pledge myself to continue this policy if I am elected to the position of Mayor. To advance the general welfare of the city as a whole, will be my constant aim. This course will be all the easier to follow because of my firm conviction that the interests of all classes are identical, that it is impossible for one to prosper if another is neglected.

I have been endorsed by the Trades Council of this city, but this does not imply that as Mayor I would work for the interests of Labor alone. Let any citizen read the municipal platform of that organization and I will defy him to find anything there that it is possible to interpret as inimical to the prosperity of Peterborough, or as the promulgation of a selfish interest. I believe that Labor and Capital here, as elsewhere, must be brought together, must be made to understand each other, before the highest standard of prosperity can be attained. Labor conditions and Labor's relations to Capital must be stabilized. Unless this is done, Peterborough cannot hope to secure the industries without which future growth and development are impossible. Outside manufacturers seeking a change of location, invariably desire to know the industrial relations that exist in the city which they have in mind as a future field of endeavor. The existence of harmony between the workers and the employers is one of the best inducements that can be offered.

My official record will bear me out when I say that I have always stood for Economy in so far as such a policy was consistent with progress. From that principle I will not depart if the electors place me at the head of the civic administration. The tax rate must be kept within all reasonable bounds.

I recognize the present high cost of living as one of the most serious problems that confronts the country to-day. The Federal Government has conferred upon the municipal councils of Canada special powers to investigate local conditions with a view to correct any injustice that may be deemed to exist. If I am elected Mayor I would be willing to set this machinery in motion, and do anything within the authority of the city government to secure relief for the people.

Peterborough is known as a manufacturing city, and its future growth depends upon the further development of its industrial life. At present the city has about reached the end of its tether in this regard on account of the scarcity of houses due to the almost entire suspension of building operations during the four years of the war and the high cost of material since the signing of the armistice. There can be no increase in the army of workingmen until suitable residences are found in which to house them. I have supported in Council the steps taken to establish a Housing Commission under the authority conferred upon municipalities by the Legislature. This plan will be developed by the Council of 1920 and if I am elected Mayor I will give it all the support of which I am capable. I believe that the proposition is the best solution of the problem, that it is a plan that will work out for the best interests of employers and employees alike. I will provide the former with more skilled labor and will give the workingman a chance to secure a home of his own on the best available terms. The city in which the working classes own their own residences is the city in which there is stability of industrial conditions.

A word now as to my record. During the ten years in which I have held the position of alderman I have served under such distinguished civic administrators as ex-Mayor Best, for two years, one year under ex-Mayor McWilliams, two years under ex-Mayor Rush, one year under ex-Mayor Buller, two years under ex-Mayor Duffus, and two years with Mayor Duncan. I have in that time held important positions as chairman of committees. I have been, respectively, chairman of the Power Committee, of the Property Committee, and of the Board of Works, presiding over the latter body two years ago, since which time I have been chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee. Since an experience is my justification for offering myself now for the position that is the highest gift in the power of the people to bestow. As the head of the Manufacturers' Committee I have always exerted myself to secure the industrial development of Peterborough, and during the present year six new industries have been brought to the city — certainly a gratifying record.

My ambitions as a citizen and an alderman have been to keep the city of Peterborough in the foreground. If the electors honor me by electing me Mayor I will never weary in my efforts to make the city bigger and better by the employment of all honorable means. I will do my utmost to stamp out class jealousy, realizing as I do that nothing worth while can be obtained without co-operation. On my record I make this appeal for a further and greater expression of confidence in my public service, expression of which you have been generous in your bestowal upon me in the past. Yours for a bigger, a better and a happier Peterborough.

World Happenings

(Special to The Examiner.)

PITTSBURG, Kansas, Dec. 23. — 17 mines, employing three thousand miners, were idle this morning as a result of strikes in protest against the action of Judge A. B. Anderson in sending Alex. Mowat, President of the Kansas' Miners' Union, to jail in connection with contempt of court proceedings.

All Accounted For.

(Special to The Examiner.)

MONTREAL, Dec. 23.—All missing in the wreck on the C.P.R. at Onawa Saturday have been accounted for, according to advices to the company's officers here. The body of Freight Engineer Bagley remains to be found. The death list has finally been set at 25.

Smallpox Situation.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, Dec. 23.—The number of smalpox cases in Toronto continue to decrease, the report for the past 24 hours indicating that while there were 24 new cases reported, there were 54 patients discharged as cured.

Troops Surrounded.

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, Dec. 23.—The troops of General Petlura, anti-Bolshevik commander in Ukrania, have been surrounded by the Soviet forces in Kiev province, twenty-four miles south of Zhitomir, according to a Moscow wireless despatch.

ADDRESS TO JURY.

(Canadian Press.)

WINNIPEG, Dec. 23. — Opening his address to the jury in the case of R. B. Russell, charged with seditious conspiracy, A. J. Andrews, Crown counsel, voiced his disappointment at the fact that the defence counsel did not see fit to analyze the evidence. It would be for the jury to decide whether whether this failure was not because of impossibility of finding anything in the evidence pointing to the innocence of the accused. Andrews claimed the indictment was legal. The words were seditious when they tended to provoke a breach of peace.

Analyzing the indictment clause by clause, he said there was not one word in it stating that the accused had attempted to overthrow the government.

A Knighthood.

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, Dec. 23. —Knighthood in the Order of the British Empire has been conferred by the King upon Capt. Ross Smith, the first aviator to complete an airplane flight from England to Australia.

SERIOUSLY ILL.

GENEVA, Dec. 23.—Former Empress Zita of Austria, is reported to be seriously ill with pneumonia at Prangins. In September she gave birth to a son, and is not sufficiently strong to stand the rigors of a Swiss winter.

CAN'T SAY ENOUGH IN THEIR FAVOUR

Why Mrs. F. Lagacey Recommends Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to all her friends who have Stomach Troubles.

"I cannot say enough in favor of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets," so says Mrs. Augustine F. Lagacey, Green Point, N. B. Of course she has reasons for making a statement like this and here they are:

"When I commenced to take Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets my food would not digest properly. They made me well."

The moral of this is that if you take your stomach trouble before it gets too firm a grip it is easily helped by Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

But as in Mrs. Lagacey's case, any stomach trouble if neglected always grows worse. In its worst stages it takes time to help it. But Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will do it.

LATE NEWS DESPATCHES

INCREASE IN THE RETAIL PRICE OF COAL—WIN FOR BOLSHEVIKI.

GENERAL NEWS

CURTAILED ADVANTAGES.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, Dec. 24.—The Japanese delegates found that the mandates for the Pacific colonies gave Japan less advantages than she enjoyed in those colonies under German rule.

Details to which the representative objected were not disclosed, but it is assumed that the question of migration of the Japanese to colonies which would come under the mandate of Australia was involved, as well as the economic advantages the Japanese formerly enjoyed under the most favoured nation clause.

INCREASE IN PRICE.

Canadian Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 24. — The announcement was made to-day by several fuel companies of the increase in the retail price of between 30 and 35 cents per ton on all coal mined since the settlement of the strike, to make up for the fourteen per cent. wage increase granted to the workers.

According to one dealer, this only applies to contracts containing the clause providing for the passing along of any increase in the mining cost.

A NEW POST.

(Canadian Press.)

THE PAS, Man., Dec. 24. — The Royal North-West Mounted Police has opened a post at the mouth of Cuppie Mine, Red Mine River, on the Arctic Ocean, the most northerly and most isolated point in the jurisdiction of the Force.

The establishment of the post was brought about by the report of Captain French, who made the first exploration of the area covered between Chesterfield Inlet and the Arctic to Coronation Gulf.

TRAINS RESTORED.

(Canadian Press.)

MONTREAL, Dec. 24.—Following the cessation of the coal war in the United States and the likelihood within a short time that the ordinary supply of bituminous coal will be sent to Canada, the C. P. R. and the G. T. R. have made arrangements for the restoration of a numebr of trains that were to have been cancelled when the coal strike difficulties were at their height.

The majority of the trains to be restored are week-end trains.

GUNS CAPTURED.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Dec. 24. — Bolsheviki Captured fifteen guns, one thousand horses, and three hundred men, after defeating the forces of General Mamontoff and General Chelnokoff in the region of Staroniensk, according to a wireless despatch received from Moscow to-day.

The despatch adds that over one thousand Cossacks were killed, including General Chelnokoff.

DELEGATE OBJECTS.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, Dec. 24.—Japan's representative on the Supreme Council has objected to the form of the mandates under which the former German colonies in the Pacific would be administered. Time has been asked to refer the question to the Tokio Government.

Meanwhile the Council's adoption of the mandates is in abeyance.

DENIES REPORT.

(Special to The Examiner.)

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 24.—E. G. Leibold, Henry Ford's personal secretary, to-day denied the report that the Ford Motor Company plans to make an immediate increase in the wages of their employees.

His denial followed a published statement that a minimum wage of $8.00 a day was contemplated.

A YEAR AGO TO-DAY

Dec. 24.— 25 candidates nominated for Council.

Local ministers give out Christmas messages.

ONE YEAR AGO IN THE WAR

Sailors exchanged shots with Republican guards in Berlin.

President Wilson left Paris to spend Christmas with American soldiers at Chaumont.

Fourteen carloads of Christmas packages reached Coblenz for soldiers of the American forces of occupation.

Northcliffe Lauds Premier's Scheme

"THE SCHEME PUT IRELAND'S FATE IN IRISH HANDS," DECLARES THE EVENING STANDARD—SIMILAR PLAN WAS ADOPTED IN THE UNITED STATES.

PARLIAMENT HEARS KING'S MESSAGE

(United Press.)

LONDON, Dec. 24. (by Ed. L. Keen).—Some political observers today saw in the unanimously laudatory attitude by the Northcliffe press toward Premier Lloyd-George's Irish proposal a possible approachement between the great publisher and the statesman.

Both the London Times and the Mail, leading Northcliffe publications, were profuse in their praise of the Premier's plan. Heretofore, these newspapers have been bitter in their attacks upon the Premier, following Lord Northcliffe's break with him during the Peace Conference.

The evening papers yesterday continued the shower of praise which has been heaped upon the Premier.

"Lloyd-George's proposal gives the world an example of British statesmanship," the Evening Globe declared, while the Westminster Gazette said, "No American could condemn it fairly."

"The scheme puts Ireland's fate in Irish hands," the Evening Standard asserted; while the usually hostile Star said "the Premier clearly had one eye on American opinion." It compared the taxation powers with those of state legislation in the United States, justifying the division of Ireland by the precedent in the United States in the division of Virginia and West Virginia.

"If the Premier's plan fails to work," the Star asserted, "we will say to the American people, 'We've given the Irish the same powers of self-government as possessed by the States of the Union, and they've rejected them.' It will be difficult to keep up the anti-British campaign in the United States if that happens. No doubt that was part of the calculations of the master strategist—Lloyd-George."

Parliament adjourned late yesterday until February, after the Lord Chancellor had read the King's message. King George declared the relations between the Allies were happy and beneficial toward all. He expressed gratitude at the success of the Paris Conference, but regret at the unhappy position of Russia, where, he said, there was no immediate prospect of a constitutional Government upon which permanent prosperity depends.

The King's statement that "the task of remedying the grave economic position of a large part of Europe" was too big for one nation was considered significant in view of the veiled appeals for aid from the United States, which have been made repeatedly. He said Great Britain would "gladly cooperate with other Governments."

"The high cost of living is receiving the Government's constant consideration," King George concluded.

ENTENTE'S REPLY TO GERMAN NOTE

PROTOCOL WILL BE SIGNED AND TREATY MODIFIED AFTERWARDS.

(United Press.)

BERLIN, Dec. 24.—The Entente's answer to the recent German note requires unconditional signing of the protocol it was said here to-day. The decision of the quantity of marine materials Germany is required to deliver as compensation for sinking of the Scapa Flow fleet is left for later consideration, it was understood. Germany will sign, it was generally believed.

In the States.

(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24. — Progress towards a treaty compromise in the Senate was halted while the Senators hurried home for Christmas. Negotiations will be resumed next week. Senator Hitchcock to-day said he expects Republican reservationists will force Senator Lodge and other extermists to accept a compromise.

APPLICATION FOR CLEMENCY HEARD

A DECISION WILL NOT LIKELY BE AVAILABLE FOR A WEEK.

OTTAWA, Dec. 24. —No definite decision was reached yesterday afternoon by the Minister of Justic, Hon. C. J. Doherty, regarding the application for clemency made on behalf of the five Russians of Peterborough, who were convicted of the murder of a fellow countryman at Havelock, Ont., recently.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, of Peterborough, waited on the Minister of Justice at three o'clock to discuss further some of the grounds on which he is basing his appeal for clemency. It was stated by the Justice Department that definite action would not likely be taken regarding the appeal for at least one week. The application for clemency has been under consideration for some time.

THE PROGRESS OF WOMEN'S RIGHTS

LONDON, Dec. 24.— The Marchioness Crews has been named chairman of Great Britain's women magistrates to the Lord Chancellery. Other members are Marchioness Londonderry, Mrs. Lloyd George, Elizabeth Haldane, Gertrude Tuckwell, Mrs. Humphrey Ward and Mrs. Sidney Webb. These women will act as a committee to advise upon appointment of women justices of the peace, made possible by recent passage of the sex disqualification removal act.

"HARD LICKER" FOR THE GERMANS

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—American distillers have begun to ship large consignments of whisky to Hamburg for the German market, it was learned to-day.

Many shipments already have been made to Great Britain, France, and Italy, but only recently have American distillers decided to convert the German taste to "hard licker."

NOTICE TO PUBLIC

Owing to improvement in the coal situation, the alterations in train service and the temporary withdrawals advertised as effective January 3rd and 4th will not be made with one exception viz:—The "Trans-Canada" which will be temporarily withdrawn after December 31st.

ANOTHER VOTE ON FIUME CONTROVERSY

(Canadian Press.)

ROME, Dec. 24. — In consequence of doubt regarding the first plebiscite at Fiume, another was taken on Sunday which resulted in 75 per cent. of the votes being cast in favor of the Italian government's proposals relative to the future occupation of the city, according to the "Giornale D'Italia." Major Giuriato, chief of D'Annunzio's cabinet, is reported to have resigned. Premier Nitti informed the Council of Ministers that he would leave tonight for Paris and would return only after having obtained a definite settlement of the Fiume and Adriatic question.

THE CELLAR

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Dec. 24.—The proposed liquor legislation of the Drury Cabinet, which would limit the amount of alcoholic beverages a man may keep in stock in his cellar, does not appeal to J. A. Pinard, the Liberal member from Ottawa in the Ontario Legislature.

Mr. Pinard tersely remarked that it was only the rich man who was able to have a well-filled cellar. The poor man was not able to get liquor at all; therefore, the rich man aways had the advantage. He would not be in favour of any lesigslation which would mean inequality between the man of means and the humble worker. Liquor should be "either free for all or else nothing at all," was his summing up of the proposal.

He declined to discuss the matter further.

LONDON, Dec. 24 — James C. Brown, M.P.P.-elect for North Middlesex, is strongly in favour of the proposed legislation. He says:

"It will be certainly agreeable to me, and I certainly will support it. I would allow only enough for medical purposes to be kept, and that only on doctors' prescription."

Dr. H. A. Stevenson declined to commit himself, stating that he would wait until he had taken his seat before beginning to talk.

THE DUMBELLS

Ask any returned soldier to tell you the name of the most famous girl in France, and he will smile and answer "Marjorie." "Marjorie" played no favourites, but was the favourite actre of Tommies, officers, and even major-generals — and once upon a time there was a Prince who gave a dinner in the officers' mess in honour of this same "Marjorie."

Now, "Marjorie" was the "leading lady" of the finest bunch of all soldier talent ever gathered together to entertain the boys while they were in rest billets just behind the lines, and her make-up was so perfect that many believed her to be some famous actress smuggled up to No Man's Land in the guise of a private soldier. This was true in a measure, as "Marjorie" did go up the line as a common soldier, and remained there for sixteen months, a target for German bullets, before Captain Plunkett was given a roving commission to pick out a company of soldier actors, and to organise them into an entertainment unit that could be sent right up to the lines to play for the boys who could not be relieved for long enough to permit them to go back to the various bases where regular theatrical companies from England were giving performances. Among those chosen was Pte. R. D. Hamilton, of Montreal, who later, gowned in the most ravishing costume creations by Lucille, became the famous "Marjorie."

Because this organisation was fostered by Major-General L. J. Lipsett, C.B., C.M.G., they were called The Dumbells, in token of the field marking of his Division, the 3rd, and although they soon became the favourites of the entire C. E. F. and B. E. F., the title stuck to them wherever they went, and now that the war is over and they are playing a homecoming tour of Canada, they still retain their old name, which will be recognised by all their old comrades returned from France.

For this Canadian tour the Dumbells are offering their original overseas musical comedy revue, "Biff, Bing, Bang," which will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House tomorrow (Christmas Day), matinee and evening.

Strike Threatens The Steel Industry

ENGINEERING INDUSTRY IN GREAT BRITAIN IS AT A STANDSTILL OWING TO STRIKE OF MOULDING TRADES.

STRIKE FUNDS EXHAUSTED

(United Press.)

LONDON, Dec. 24.— Contrary to general expectation the conference between the masters and workmen in connection with the national strike of Iron Moulders has ended in a deadlock. The strike is now in its fourteenth week and is having such a paralyzing effect on industry that the prospect of its continuance may be regarded as calamitous. Sir Allan Smith, for the employers, insisted that any settlement arrived at during to-day's conference must be binding on the workmen concerned in a local dispute affecting two engineering firms in West Bromwich. The moulders' representatives claimed that to include this matter in the present negotiations was equivalent to the introduction of a separate issue. They considered that the local dispute had no connection with the national strike and on the moulders' wage rates, and therefore declined to discuss the West Bromwich situation at this conference. As the employers insisted on this point, the proceedings ended, having accomplished nothing. Arthur Henderson now describes the position as hopeless. The men have already refused the award of the arbitration court and terminated their conciliatory agreement with the employers. No other government machinery exists which is likely to promote a settlement. Should both sides choose to remain adamant, a few more weeks will see the engineering industry at an absolute standstill for lack of moulds. The men's unions have already exhausted their strike funds and are now dependent on subscriptions from allied organizations, but the members of the latter look with dismay on this serious drain on their resources. The strike is unpopular in trade union circles, Tom Mann, secretary of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers saying: "Let us frankly own up to the fact that good as the fight was, it was sectional, and only general fights stand any chance of winning."

CHRISTMAS MARKET WAS VERY LIGHT

TURKEYS STILL LEAD THE FIELD OF HIGH PRICES—NO PACKED EGGS THIS MORNING.

The Christmas market this morning was small from every angle other than the prices charged. The produce was limited to a few geese, which sold at 42c a pound; some turkeys which sold at 50c a pound, and about half a dozen pairs of chickens, which sold at 30c a pound. A small quantity of butter was also brought in and sold at 64c and 65c a pound. No eggs were sold.

THREE PERSONS WERE VACCINATED

Three persons only took advantage of the free vaccination at the Sanitary Inspector's office yesterday. Dr. A. W. MacPherson, M.O.H., officiated in the afternoon and Dr. F. C. Neal at night. The opportunity will be presented again on Friday and Saturday.

MR. G. N. GORDON HOME FROM THE CAPITAL

BELIEVES CLEMENCY WILL BE SHOWN RUSSIANS IN COUNTY JAIL.

Mr. G. N. Gordon returned from Ottawa this morning and said they passed through a blizzard which made the train several hours late.

Mr. Gordon said that the prisoners he defended, he believes will have their sentence commuted to imprisonment, and they will not suffer capital punishment. The Minister of Justice, The Honourable C. J. Doherty, made an appointment in the morning to hear Mr. W. B. Essery on behalf of his client, and also to hear Mr. Gordon, but was summoned to a meeting of the Cabinet by Sir Robert Borden so the interview was terminated until after lunch when the Minister of Justice heard argument on behalf of the prisoneds. Mr. Gordon said he thought that the four prisoners would receive imprisonment and would not be hanged, but that the one Tom Konek, who is alleged to have fired the shot which killed Phillip Yanoff was in a different position, and the Minister had not reached a conclusion as to what he should do with his case.

He was extremely well pleased with the kind, courteous treatment he received from the Minister of Justice who would take no other appointments and let everything stand in order to hear argument in this case.

Mr. Gordon said the big hockey game in Ottawa last night made the streets and the Chateau Laurier deserted and Frank Heffernan was the most popular boy on the ice. He had gathered his new team together in forty-eight hours which met the Senators on heavy ice. The experts, who know the game best, prophesy that the St. Patricks will make the best showing of any of the professional teams as soon as they work together and have a chance to make good.

GUILTY ON 7 COUNTS

JURY'S VERDICT IN CASE OF R. B. RUSSELL.

JURY'S REPORT

(Canadian Press.)

WINNIPEG, Dec. 24.— The jury reported this morning that R. B. Russell was guilty on all seven counts on which he stood indicted. The first count was "seditious conspiracy." The next five were for committing overacts and the seventh was "committing a common nuisance."

In summing up, Justice Metcalfe expressed an opinion regarding the Soviet form of government. There was no objection he said, to a man thinking that the Russian Soviet government was a good one so long as he did not intend to convey to others the desirability of the institution of such government in Canada. When a man constantly attacked a Canadian form of government and put before the "plugs" the desirability of the Russian system in Canada, the jury, exercising their common sense, might infer that he was trying to introduce that system in Canada. It was up to the jury, His Lordship said, "Would they like it, would they resist it, would it be likely to cause a breach of the peace. If it would in a public sense it would be seditious."

Justice tempered with the Gospel, in "peace on earth good will towards men" came as a sensational conclusion to the trial to-day when found guilty on seven counts, Russell was allowed his freedom until Saturday morning so that he could spend Christmas with his friends and not behind iron bars. This is the first time in the memory of many of the oldest lawyers in Winnipeg following the constitution, an accused has been allowed to remain free after the [illegible] for sentence on Saturday at [illegible]. It was announced that the defence will appeal from the decision to the Manitoba Court of Appeals, argument to take place as soon as possible.

Russell's temporary freedom was made possible by A. J. Andrews, K.C., Crown counsel, who heartily seconded the request made by Robert Cassidy, K. C., defence counsel. The Judge, Crown counsel and jury showed little personal elation at the successful conclusion of the prosecution. The air in the court rom was one of amity. It was charged with a feeling that a very unpleasant duty had been honestly and conscientiously performed. The leading Crown counsel walked to where the accused sat in the box and put out his hand, Russell grasping it and shaking it heartily. The prisoner did not flinch as the verdict was announced.

ITEMS OF INTEREST FROM WARSAW

LADIES' AID SOCIETY HELD A MEET ING—IN THE CEURCHES.

WARSAW, December 24. — Mr. and Mrs. Charles Foster went to Readboro on Saturday, where they will visit with Mrs. Fosters' mother and other relatives over the holiday.

Mr. Fred Gunn, Peterboro, spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gunn.

Rev. Hugh Brown left for Toronto this morning. He will visit with his sisters until after Christmas.

Mr. John Darling is recovering from the results of an accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Miles have returned from their trip to the west. They have no desire to live there.

Mr. Veals is spending Christmas at is home in Omemee.

U. F. O. Delegate.

Mr. Allan Edwards was the delegate to the U. F. O. convention in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Anderson attended the U. F. O. convention in Toronto last week.

Mrs. Joseph Matthews visited at the home of her sister, Mrs. Wallace Anderson.

Quite a number of people from Warsaw attended the Cottesloe S. S. Christmas tree and entertainment on Wednesday. Though very cold the motoring was splendid and the roads have not been better this year.

Ladies' Aid.

The Presbyterian Ladies' Aid met last Thursday at the home of Mrs. David Miller.

In the absence of the President Mrs Munro took the chair.

Some little business was done, and a good deal of knitting and sewing. A piece of cake was produced by one of the ladies. She had had the cake for about two years. It had been intended to go in a box to Mrs. Miller two years ago, but it was not sent. Mrs. Miller declared that she would now keep it among her war curios. The meeting was closed with the National Anthem, the Mizpah benediction, after which a lunch was served. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Dr. Munro on January 8th prox. This will be the annual meeting when the reports will be given and the election of officers take place.

In the Churches.

The Baptist people have a minister staying here for three weeks. He has been doing some visiting among the people. They had a very nice Christmas service yesterday and have a mid week prayer meeting.

The Methodists held their usual Sunday school and preaching service on Sunday. There was a special Christmas service.

On Friday last their Sunday school had its own little social which those who attended enjoyed very much.

The Presbyterians had their usual Sunday school and preaching service on Sunday. The morning sermon was a helpful Christmas one, from Isaiah 25:9.

The Anglicans had their Sunday School and preaching service. Some people thought there would be the special Christmas service but that will be next Sunday. Dr. Archibold preached from Ps. 6:6. He pressed the great need of the forward movement. At the close of the sermon he wished every one a joyous and Happy Christmas. He also thanked the people for the foot warmer which had been given him to take home with him.

The Warsaw school closed for the holidays on Friday.

The 2nd line Douro, School No. 5, had a very enjoyable entertainment for the pupils.

The village stores will be open at nights this week except Christmas when they will be closed all day except during going and coming of the mails at the post office.

HASTINGS NEWS

HASTINGS, December 24. — A very interesting programme was given by the pupils of the public school on Friday afternoon, to which the parents and friends had been invited. The room was gaily decorated, with evergreens and holly, while a well laden Christmas tree stood up gracefully in one corner loaded with gifts for the children.

The rendition of the various selections on the programme showed that the teachers had taken great pains in the training and the friends who were present were well pleased with the general appearance of the school and of the progress that the children were making.

Hydro Electric.

Mr. Iler, an engineer of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission met with quite a large number of the citizens in the town hall last week and explained in detail the estimates which had been submitted to the council at a previous meeting.

Mr. Iler explained that by developing our own water power, the rate per horse power would be only about $20, which would be much lower than that of some of the neighboring towns.

It is expected that the proposal will be submitted to the ratepayers at a not far distant date.

Officers Elected.

Court Hastings, No. 618, C.O.F., at a recent meeting, elected the following officers for the ensuing year:

C. R.—H. B. Wilson.
V. C. R.—Frank Blackborne.

ALD. W. H. TAYLOR FOR MAYOR

To the Electors of Peterboro:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—In accepting nomination as mayoralty candidate in the coming election, allow me to express my appreciation of the honor conferred upon me, and to assure all citizens alike that if elected to the dignity of first magistrate of this important city of Peterboro, I shall endeavor to exercise such high office for the weal of the whole community irrespective of class or creed.

City Finances.

At this time it seems fitting that reference should be made to our city's financial standing, especially so in the face of that "blue-ruin" criticism which appeared in the press last week. I have been Council's chairman of finance the past two years and believe conditions do not warrant pessimistic views of Peter-borough's financial future In 1919 debentures issued by the city totalled but $31,508.18 in all, and they sold, one set at par, four sets above par, and at from 5½ to 5.30 per cent. interest. The exact figures are as follows:

W. H. TAYLOR.

The placing of the above debentures was left in the hands of City Treasurer Adams and myself. We readily disposed of them on the term above quoted, and such disposition in the state of the money markets, I think, supports my contention that Peterboroughs' financial standing is quite sound and that her security is gilt-edged.

The city's total debenture debt is $4,852,237.64 as against assessed property value of $15,743,305. But it must be borne in mind that for this debt Peterborough has been modernized with public conveniences such as none of you would wish to do without. Then the city owns its own waterworks, the debt for which included in the total of two and a half millions, is $623,200. All of our debentures are of from 20 to 30 years term which distributes the burden of payment over more than one generation, and sinking funds against their maturity are provided, so that from time to time debenture debts will be retired, thus easing the financial situation.

Now I ask you to note that the city's debenture debts are distributed under two heads, first, those chargeable against the general rate, amounting to $1,267,185.36, and secondly, those which are for self-supporting and revenue producing utilities, such as our waterworks and hydro-electric, together with local improvements chargeable against frontages. These latter class of debentures take care of themselves, so to speak, and in estimating the city's debt on general grounds, one should only take those items chargeable in the general rate, amounting to $1,-267,186.38, against which we have a sinking fund of $287,612.91. This leaves the actual general debenture debt of Peterborough $899,573.47, a net debt per capita of $40 extended over long periods.

Street Railway Extensions.

Three years ago, ladies and gentlemen, I pledged myself to support extensions of te street railway system, but the Hydro-Electric Commission could not undertake such while the war was on, and nothing was accomplished in that direction until this year when the commission was persuaded to lay tracks from Charlotte street along the Monaghan Rd., to Patterson street, and to put in operation two new cars. This improved the service somewhat but it is not enough. The end I have in view if privileged to serve you as mayor, is further extensions south to Lansdowne street, north to near the Normal School, and over the new bridge to East City, with perhaps a belt line service. In fact, Sir Adam Beck has a proposition to sell the railway to the city at a price and on such terms as will, he guarantees, make the railway system self-supporting, and provide interest on the debt and a sinking fund with which to retire the city's bonds given in payment for the system. The proposition looks good to me were it not coupled with a provision that the city must also purchase the gas plant with the railway. For this proposed city ownership of the gas plant might saddle us with more expenditure for new machinery and appliances. Then it would be wise to not undertake it for a year or two yet. However, I purpose to leave no stone unturned to connect by steel rails all sections of the city with its business and manufacturing establishments, so that workmen and girls may have easy access to their employment whether they live in the north, south, east or west.

Industrial Progress.

Ladies and gentlemen, we have a city of resources and opportunities. Let us unite in taking advantage of them. British and American industries are seeking locations in Canada and this is an opportune time to reach out after more factories. Don't let us be too conservative in our views but adopt broad and democratic principles in a united effort to stimulate trade and industrial activity, to furnish employment for a greater and growing number and to enhance the community's prosperity in general.

Get Together Spirit.

I am offering my services to this city by request of a large number of ratepayers and respectfully ask the co-operation of all citizens to secure my election. If elected I will devote to the office of mayor whatever time is needed, and above all will serve every interest alike, recognizing no privilege for any particular class, but a four-square consideration for all.

In conclusion I might say that in my opinion this city needs a shaking up in its public spirit, a get-together movement for general progress and increased citizenship, a unison of individual and organized interests in a common board of community fellowship which will make for municipal uplift, industrially, commercially and expansibly. Such is my objective in aspiring to the office of mayor, and leaving myself in your hands.

I extend to one and all best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Yours very truly,

W. H. TAYLOR.

NOTICE

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTH MONAGHAN:

Ladies and Gentlemen:— Having served three years as Councillor for the Township, and as I expect make application, may I ask your support for Deputy-Reeve. I will endeavour to look to your interests in the future as I have in the past.

Thanking you for the past support which you have given me, and wishing you a Merry Christmas and a very Happy New Year.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—A whole year has rolled over our heads since the momentous day when the German representatives signed the armistice. We spent a whole day relieving our long-pent-up feelings in celebrating, and then thought there was nothing ahead of us but to get to work and rebuild the destruction caused by the war. While the war lasted, there were but two factions—the Allies and the enemy. But in the last twelve months we have passed through a greater war than that waged against the Germans—a war among friends. But as the celebration of the birth of Christ draws near, we are apparently again getting back to solid ground, with our labour troubles, we hope, behind us. We are looking forward to the New Year with great hopes.

The great upheaval caused by the war has brought about some very wonderful changes, and none of them more wonderful than the relative position in which we find dwellers, urban and suburban, in our country to-day, as compared with pre-war times.

Canada, in spite of the fact that it is dependent upon its lands, its forests, and its mines for its prosperity, has since Confederation and before for that matter, been represented in her Parliaments by lawyers and doctors and an occasional business man and manufacturer. The people of this richly endowed land have become so obsessed with the idea that only such men were capable of properly conducting the affairs of our provinces, and the Dominion, that urban dwellers especially were almost panicky when the results of the late Ontario election contests were announceds showing that the men who should have been in the saddle long years ago had finally come into their own, and were in control of the reins of Government. That they will also mount the Government horse at Ottawa at the next election is a foregone conclusion, if only they will hang together.

Newspaper comment on the Farmers' Government for Ontario has, for the most part been anything but friendly toward it. Sarcasm, cheap wit, and open hostility have been indulged in by the press, and it was really amusing to listen to the criticism indulged in by the city and town dwellers of the Province. I say was, for these same citizens have found out that the body of men who are to represent us in Queen's Park are not a bunch of Boors, as they thought, but men with minds and ideas of their own, men who are not to be swerved from the responsibility of the position to which they have been elected by the votes of their fellows.

Truly, there is no comparison between these sturdy, honest, virile sons of the fields, and the polished professionals who were left at home. Lawyers and doctors have ruled for so long at Toronto and at Ottawa that they and we, too, had come to regard the job as theirs by divine right. I venture to prophesy that the jolt which has unseated them at Queen's Park will prove an accident of great portent for this Province. We are going to be very much disappointed if the beginning of real prosperity for Ontario will not date from the elections of 1919.

The reason is not far to seek. As I have said, this is an agricultural country first of all. It has been a country of immense forest wealth, but much of this has been squandered, how and why every man knows; who knows the politics of the country. And it has been, and still is a country of immense wealth in mines.

The war has landed the farmer on his feet. With a government at Toronto, and in Ottawa, which is in sympathy with the science of farming, which knows its needs, and will give the aid that it deserves, this country will soon be producing more than any other country in the world. It should have been doing so long ago. Its mines, if their operation is wisely directed, will pour such a stream of wealth into the coffers of this land, that they will slop over. A vigorous policy of reforestration, will yet ensure for future generations, lumber and timber for all their needs. The exportation of the products of our forests and mines in the raw state is a practice which has lost this country many millions of wealth, and has built up industries in other lands, instead of in our own.

Farmer legislators will see to it that first things come first—with our former legislators these things have come last. In the past the manufacturer has been petted and spoon-fed. And on the principle that one good turn deserves another, he always came back with a few fistfuls of the spoils, when there was an election on.

Let us hope we will have seen the last of that, when the next Dominion election is over, and the farmer is in the saddle there, for he will surely oust the present bunch of artful dodgers when the contest comes.

The strange thing about the change at Queen's Park is that the people do not realize that they have been delivered, with a great deliverance, from the thraldom of petty politics. They had become so resigned to the state of things as they have existed for years, that they have lost the idea of what government of the people, by the people, for the people, really means. The very first business of the professional politician is to make things secure for his party. After that his own interests come next, and then some attention is given to the interests of the country. We really are not in need of so much governing as we get, and much of the time of our parliaments is taken up in petty wrangling over matters of no importance. We are hopeful that our farmer legislators will conduct the country's business along straightforward business lines, and when they have finished such business as is necessary they will get back to their farms, and attend to their own business, which is of first importance to this country.

I am an urban dweller myself, and all I have to say to my fellow city dwellers is: for many years we have ranked "first violin," but from henceforth, for us it is "second fiddle." We are despised and rejected of our farmer friends. Let us be good sports. Every dog has his day.

To The Electors of The City of Peterboro

Ladies and Gentlemen,— Having been nominated and endorsed by the Trades and Labour Council of Peterborough as a candidate for the position of Alderman of the City of Peterborough, I accept the same, believing labor to be the basis of national progress. That a better understanding will be arrived at by co-operation of all classes on the Council, which is so essential to the industrial progress of any city, I feel confident that my practical knowledge of construction work will be of great service to the city in the undertakings that will come before it during 1920.

If elected, all matters that may come before the Council shall receive my most serious attention for the benefit of the community in general.

Wishing you all an industrially prosperous New Year, with happy home conditions.

Yours, Etc.,

For BOARD OF EDUCATION

After strong pressure from influential quarters, I have again consented to accept a position on the Board of Education, if it be the will of the Electors to place me there.

If my best business ability is considered necessary to help complete the work which is already in hand, it is at the service of the citizens for another term.

A good substantial vote behind me would look is though what I have tried to do has been appreciated.

Your Vote is respectfully solicited.

WHAT LABOR IS TRYING TO DO.

(By Thos. Tooms, M.L.A.)

To the Editor:

Dear Sir,—It may be of interest to the people of Peterborough, during the period of reconstruction, to know what Labor is really trying to do. It should be borne in mind, that Labor is not what has been claimed in the past, a mere commodity. It is human power. It expends itself for the purpose of maintaining not only its life, but the life of those dependent upon it, which is of course, the whole world. In pre-war times Labor was given as little as possible and degraded. Out of the labor market, like a great pen of slavery, came the millions to be sacrificed, men, women and children alike. Now labor is trying to make this sacrifice impossible and to place itself upon the basis where it belongs, where it can secure from the world recognition of its services. It is struggling against the waste of human life, of human abilities and capacities. It sees great rewards going to the few and a bare existence going to the multitude. Workers of Canada recognize that the man with the dollar can overrun the Dominion, irrespective of moral character. Labor has better ideals, and looks forward to the time, therefore, when it shall be honored. Gambling in human life must cease and a new ideal maintained. We look for moral and intellectual advancement, giving us a certain hold on the principles of good living. We look for shorter hours of work, because we know by experience that long hours have a tendency to stifle the intellect, impair the energy and vital organs of the body, and reduce the opportunities for physical and mental development. The International Labor movement does not discriminate in creed or color, but unites in one common bond to preach the emancipation of the workers, preaching the sentiment of love and brotherhood, which is a stepping stone to a higher civilization.

U.F.O. AFTER CONTROL OF VILLAGE BUSINESS

SIMCOE, Dec. 22.—The U. F. O. element of Townsend, it is stated here, has determined on an effort to take over the control of the business of the village of Waterford. H. A. Sanderson has been approached with a proposal to hand over at a fair price his retail business and become General Manager of a departmental U.F. O. store. The U.F.O. expect to gather in the entire commercial interests o fthe village, according to reports, Frank Ryerson is mentioned as a possible junior member of the Waterford staff.

To the Electors of the City of Peterborough.

Ladies and Gentlemen,

I am again a Candidate for the position of Alderman. I have endeavoured to serve you faithfully in the past, and if you will favour me with re-election, I will continue to give you my best services.

During the year that is closing, I have been Chairman of the Board of Works, and in that position have given practically all of my time to the construction of the new Hunter Street Bridge, and to the preparations for the installation of Sewage Disposal Works.

If you believe my knowledge of these matters will be useful in the coming year, I ask you for an opportunity to see these works finished. To these important works, as well as to the general business of this city, I will devote my close attention if you should favour me with re-election.

Permit me also to take this opportunity of thanking my friends for the confidence reposed in me in the past, and to express the wish that all may enjoy a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Yours respectfully, HARRY PHELAN.

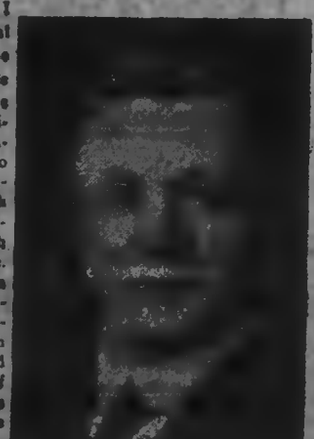
To the Electors of Peterborough

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

I have served ten years as a member of the City Council, and on the record which I have made in that time I now feel justified in offering myself as a candidate for the Mayoralty. I have during my aldermanic service, always worked for the interests of the city as a whole, and have never been the tool or servant of any interest or faction. I pledge myself to continue this policy if I am elected to the position of Mayor. To advance the general welfare of the city as a whole, will be my constant aim. This course will be all the easier to follow because of my firm conviction that the interests of all classes are identical, that it is impossible for one to prosper if another is neglected.

I have been endorsed by the Trades Council of this city, but this does not imply that as Mayor I would work for the interests of Labor alone. Let any citizen read the municipal platform of that organization and I will defy him to find anything there that it is possible to interpret as inimical to the prosperity of Peterborough, or as the promulgation of a selfish interest. I believe that Labor and Capital here, as elsewhere, must be brought together, must be made to understand each other, before the highest standard of prosperity can be attained. Labor conditions and Labor's relations to Capital must be stabilized. Unless this is done, Peterborough cannot hope to secure the industries without which future growth and development are impossible. Outside manufacturers seeking a change of location, invariably desire to know the industrial relations that exist in the city which they have in mind as a future field of endeavor. The existence of harmony between the workers and the employers is one of the best inducements that can be offered.



My official record will bear me out when I say that I have always stood for Economy in so far as such a policy was consistent with progress. From that principle I will not depart if the electors place me at the head of the civic administration. The tax rate must be kept within all reasonable bounds.

I recognize the present high cost of living as one of the most serious problems that confronts the country to-day. The Federal Government has conferred upon the municipal councils of Canada special powers to investigate local conditions with a view to correct any injustice that may be deemed to exist. If I am elected Mayor I would be willing to set this machinery in motion, and do anything within the authority of the city government to secure relief for the people.

Peterborough is known as a manufacturing city, and its future growth depends upon the further development of its industrial life. At present the city has almost reached the end of its tether in this regard on account of the scarcity of houses due to the almost entire suspension of building operations during the four years of the war and the high cost of material since the signing of the armistice. There can be no increase in the army of workingmen until suitable residences are found in which to house them. I have supported in Council the steps taken to establish a Housing Commission under the authority conferred upon municipalities by the Legislature. This plan will be developed by the Council of 1920 and if I am elected Mayor I will give it all the support of which I am capable. I believe that the proposition is the best solution of the problem, that it is a plan that will work out for the best interests of employers and employees alike. I will provide the former with more skilled labor and will give the workingman a chance to secure a home of his own on the best available terms. The city in which the working classes own their own residences is the city in which there is stability of industrial conditions.

A word now as to my record. During the ten years in which I have held the position of alderman I have served under such distinguished civic administrators as ex-Mayor Best, for two years, one year under ex-Mayor McWilliams, two years under ex-Mayor Rush, one year under ex-Mayor Butler, two years under ex-Mayor Dufles, and two years with Mayor Duncan. I have in that time held important positions as chairman of committees. I have been, respectively, chairman of the Power Committee, of the Property Committee, and of the Board of Works, presiding over the latter body two years ago, since which time I have been chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee. Since an experience is my justification for offering myself now for the position that is the highest gift in the power of the people to bestow. As the head of the Manufacturers' Committee I have always exerted myself to secure the industrial development of Peterborough, and during the present year six new industries have been brought to the city—certainly a gratifying record.

My ambitions as a citizen and an alderman have been to keep the city of Peterborough in the foreground. If the electors honor me by electing me Mayor I will never weary in my efforts to make the city bigger and better by the employment of all honorable means. I will do my utmost to stamp out class jealousy, realizing as I do that nothing worth while can be obtained without co-operation. On my record I make this appeal for a further and greater expression of confidence in my public service, expressions of which you have been generous in your bestowal upon me in the past. Yours for a bigger, a better and a happier Peterborough.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 24TH, 1919.

THE SEASON'S GREETINGS.

The Examiner wishes to take this opportunity of extending to its many readers its best wishes for A Very Merry Christmas. May tomorrow be a happy day in every home in Peterboro, may every child's Yuletide be brightened by a visit from Santa Claus, may every heart, old and young alike catch the Christmas spirit, may every soldier, while not forgetting those other Christmas Days, spent within sound of the guns, rejoice that is among those who love and honour him this year, may no one miss a share of the holiday feasting and good cheer—these are the Examiner's wishes for the people of Peterboro.

THE RECALL SYSTEM.

The nominees of organized labour in the present municipal campaign have agreed to submit to the system of recall which means that if they in the opinion of the majority of the members of the Trades and Labour Council depart from the principle of labour's platform their resignation can be demanded. The system simply means that labour candidates if elected will take office with strings attached to them, strings that are to be pulled for the benefit of a section of the community, it is not surprising to find that a number of the labour men themselves including at least two of the candidates, opposed the introduction of this principle into municipal affairs, they felt that the men who are chosen by the people for civic offices should not be hampered by a recall system but should be free to act as they think in the best interests of the city and in this the public will agree. Ald. Garside's action in declining to run as a labour candidate with a string fastened to him, will earn for him the applause of the citizens who believe that members of the City Council and other civic bodies, should have a free hand in deciding the questions that come before them.

THE BY-LAWS.

The two by-laws that are to come before the ratepayers of Peterboro on New Years Day, are of great importance and both should receive the hearty support of the public in as much as they represent important steps in the city's progress. One measure to aid the new Canadian Aladdin Company, Limited, means a new and promising industry for Peterboro, an industry that should speedily develop on big lines. Its coming to Peterboro, if the by-law is favorably received has been secured on remarkably reasonable terms.

The other by-law is to authorize the purchase of Riverside Park and the adjacent land, the property to be converted into a public park. The possibilities before such a scheme are fascinating, the Riverside Park site can be turned into one of the most beautiful parks in the country, a fairyland for children and a pleasant resort in the heart of the city for their elders. The proposal to secure this property for the people is a distinct advance towards the goal of "The City Beautiful" that public spirited citizens have long been agitating, the making of Peterboro a better place in which to live—and who can deny that the providing of parks such as is proposed along the river is a movement in that direction—means a great deal for every citizen and to the city generally.

And as to the material side of the question there can be no doubt that the city which offers the most to its people in the way of healthful and happy living conditions is a city that will be sought by manufactures who are looking for a location, contented workmen are a big asset to the employer and contest is not found in a town where the people only exist and do not live.

Both by-laws on New Years Day should be carried by a decisive vote, they are distinctly in the city's interest and deserve every support.

THE NEXT DUTY.

The majority of the people of Ontario showed by the decisive vote registered two months ago that they were opposed to the liquor traffic in any shape or form at least they went as far as the scope of the referendum would permit adult in expressing that attitude, there can be no questioning the fact that the repeal of the importquent flooding of the Province with liquors distasteful to the greater podtion of Ontario's population, the bar has gone, never to return; the liquor shops is no more and just as soon as the people get a chance to express their opinion, the well-stocked cellar of the well-to-do citizen will have to follow the bar and the liquor shop. Ontario wants the former no more than she does the other two evils, the verdict of last October was clear and unmistakable and Premier Drury and his Government can show that they are in touch with public sentiment by making one of the first Acts of the new Legislature the passing of a resolution calling upon the Dominion Government to take a referendum in Ontario on the question of importation, the Federal Government, if it wanted to show its ability to read public opinion would not take advantage of the three months' time limit but would as soon as possible after the passing of the resolution by the Ontario Legislature, submit the question to the people of the Province. There would be little doubt as to the result of such a vote.

THE NOMINATIONS.

An unexpected large number of candidates was nominated yesterday for the various municipal offices and if the majority of the nominees elect to stay in the field, the ratepayers will have an excellent opportunity of selecting strong men for the City's service, in view of the absence of the usual ante-nomination gossips about new candidates, the interest taken in yesterday's proceedings is gratifying and the fact that the entrance list for the different contests laks neither quality or quantity is a feature upon which Peterboro may congratulate itself.

It is probable that Mr. Robert Hicks who for six years has been a member of the Utilities Commission and before becoming a member of that body did effective service on the City Council will be returned by acclamation for the three year term, as reward that he has earned on his record, as the Utilities Commission has lost the services of Mr. T. F. Matthews, a member since its organization it will be welcome intelligence to the citizens that the benefit of Mr. Hicks' six years experience on the Commission is to be retained. In chosing a commissioner to complete the balance of Mr. Matthews' term, the ratepayers may have diffiulty in making a selection, but they cannot fail to secure a good man, so excellent is the field to choose from, the candidates nominated include three citizens who have most worthly filled the Mayor's chair, Messrs. W. H. Bradburn, J. J. Duffu and G. H. Duncan, Ald. Edgar who has been an efficient member of the City Council for a number of years and Mr. C .E. Sesson whose professional training fits him for the position, all these candidates have qualities that are needed by the city and it will be regretted that only one can be elected and that the services of the others will be lost.

For the Board of Education there is also a splendid field, the five old members of the Board whose terms expire this year, Messrs. E. G. Patterson, J. M. Greene, Dr. Frank C. Neil, G. O. Cameron and J. W. Worth, have all been placed in the field again and in addition six new candidates have been nominated, Mrs. W. R. Morris who asks to be elected as the representative of the women teachers and of the mothers of the city, Dr. E. E. Harvey, Claude H. Rogers, E. Bruce Fowler, A. J. Bolwell, President of the Trades and Labour Council and Alexander Morrison, the last two being the nominees of organized labour. Out of the eleven candidates it should be possible to select a splendid quintette.

Of the aldermanic field it is not possible to say much today inasmuch as a number of those nominated will fail to qualify and until the list has been reduced to the official qualified nominees, comment would be out of place. It is gratifying however to find the names of a number of well-known citizens who by reason of their personal qualities and training are capable of good service included in the list and it is to be hoped that they will see their way clear to allowing their names to go on the ballot paper. One surprise in the field is the candidature of Ald. Garside who declined the labour endorsation and afterward decided to run as an independent.

The Mayoralty contest will probably resolve itself into a battle between Ald. McIntyre and Ald. Taylor, the citizens have a chance to judge between the two on their showing in the Council and the fight promises to be a pretty one.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Too bad some of the surplus nominees for the Utilities Commission could not be diverted to the Council.

The Aldermanic candidates had a chance last night to show that oratory is not a strong point with many of them, but deeds, rather than words will count.

Labour has entered for every contest except for the Utilities Commission.

An election by acclamation would be a nice Christmas present for Mr. Robert Hicks whose sir years' service on the Utilities Commission has earned him such a distinction.

NEPTUNE EXHIBITS SIGNS OF COMPANY

Planet Indicates That There is Another Unknown World About Somewhere.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.— Since the first week in December the Naval Observatory here has been taking special observations of the planet Neptune as part of a search which observatories all over the world are making for a new planet.

The existence of this new planet is suspected because of perturbations of Neptune, which have been noticed for a quarter of a century. The discovery of the planet Neptune in 1845 as the result of observations made by the British astronomer, La Verrier, acting independently of one another, followed the noting of perturbations of Uranus. This planet was found not to be moving in its calculated orbit, which inspired the belief that there might be another planet. Before the discovery that Neptune was a planet it was thought to be a fixed star.

Just as the perturbations of Uranus led to the discovery of Neptune, so the perturbations of Neptune, which have led some astronomers to suspect that there is still another planet, may result in the findin gof a new world.

The observations of Neptune, which began this month, will continue until the end of February. The planet will be nearest the earth on January 31, and the opportunity for observing the planet in its present swing toward the earth will be excellent.

SHE BELIEVES IT SAVED HER LIFE

MRS. O'BRIEN DIDN'T HAVE A SINGLE WELL DAY IN FIVE YEARS TANLAC RESTORES HER TO HEALTH.

"I actually believe this Tanlac has saved my life," is the remarkable statement of Mrs. Grace O'Brien, who resides at 18 June Street, Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada.

"I hadn't seen a well day in five years until I took Tanlac" she continued. "The agonies I suffered from stomach trouble made me almost wish I was dead many a time. In all those long years of suffering, I haven't known what it was to enjoy a meal, and have gone for days at a time without touching real food, because I was afraid of the pain that I knew it would bring me. Even a piece of dry toast would upset me so that I would be in misery for hours, and when I tried liquid food, it would sour on my stomach. When I would try to eat, my food would feel like a rock in my stomach and would sour and form gas that rose up in my throat and almost cut off my breath ing. Pains all through the pit of my stomach sometimes kept me awake at night walking the floor and I finally got to the place where I was so weak and nervous and run down that I couldn't even dress myself. When I would try to dress in the morning, I have fainted away many a time, as I would be so weak that I couldn't stand on my feet. If it hadn't been for my two daughters I don't know what I would have done, as they had to take care of me and the house too.

"The first bottle of Tanlac didn't seem to make much improvement in my condition, for I had suffered so long that my troubles were hard to reach. I began to feel like eating after the second bottle and as soon as I could eat and digest my food I felt myself getting stronger. I kept on until I have now taken four bottles and it is remarkable how I have improved. The pains through my stomach has disappeared entirely and the gas has quit forming. I have a good healthy apetite and can eat meat, onions, in fact anything I want —and it builds me up and I enjoy every meal. My strength has come back until I can get around and do almost as much housework as my daughters can. I have gained ten pounds and am picking up all the time and when night comes I sleep without a pain and wake in the morning feeling like a different person. I really believe Tanlac has saved my life and I am glad to tell everybody about this wonderful medicine."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd: in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co. Ltd.; in Fowlers Corner by W. A. Hunter: in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood by G. Principle & Son.

THE DAY'S NEWS

From barber to millionaire" summarizes the career of W. S. Copley, whose purchase of the town of Huddersfield for $6,500,000 has been mentioned in recent dispatches from England. Sentiment probably prompted Mr. Copley in making his extraordinary purchase, for it was in Huddersfield that he was born some sixty years ago. Penniless and without schooling, he emigrated as a youth to Australia, where he found employment as a barber. Then he went into house buying, and tried his hand, in turn, at cattle ranching, engineering, and other enterprises. Everything he undertook he put his back into, and it was not long before the poor Huddersfield boy was a man to be reckoned with in Australia. Returning to England several years ago, he immediately became interested in commercial affairs in the mother country. Today he is a controlling factor in many great corporations, including insurance, cotton, brewing, and banking.

SANDRA THE JEALOUS

BY JANE PHELPS

EVERETT SUPRISES SANDRA WITH A LETTER

CHAPTER IV.

The world seemed very uninteresting after Everett left. I felt almost as if I were all alone, although all the town boys and girls were around as usual. But someway Everett had a way of making you know he was there. I don't know how else to express it. But Rose and some of the others made no secret of their joy that he had gone.

"So 'grampa' has finally taken himself out of the way, has he?" Rose asked. "Now perhaps we can have some fun."

I never said much when they teased me, and called Everett "Grandpa," but it made me uncomfortable, and I always flushed terribly. When Everett's first letter came, about three days after he left, I was so pleased that I didn't mind their teasing me one single bit.

He had said nothing about writing to me, so I was awfully surprised. It was just a short letter, such a one as any friend might have written me. There wasn't a word out caring for me in it. But just at the last he said:

"I have missed my little frie more than I ever thought it possible to miss anyone." It was silly, but I kissed the paper right on those lines. Then I carried it in the bosom of my dress for days—just like the girls in the novels did. But finally I put it away in the bureau drawer under my shirtwaists. The boys never disturbed them, and the letter was getting worn out.

It took me one whole afternoon to answer that letter. I must have wasted nearly a box of paper before it suited me. Then it didn't—not perfectly.

I wrote about everyday things, the people he knew, etc., just as he did, until I came to the very end of my letter. Then I told him that I had missed him too, more than I ever had missed anyone before. I wasn't very original, but I had spoiled so many sheets of paper I didn't dare use any more. As it was I had to burn up all the spoiled sheets and the envelopes to match for fear the boys would find them. It would have been terrible if they had. I never should have heard the last of it.

It is strange how things long past come back to us. I recall distinctly that whenever Everett came to call in that short first week I knew him, that I was always a bit frightened to go down to meet him,—he always asked for me—for fear I did not look nice, enough. Even then I had heard him express an opinion upon the way some of the girls in our town were dressed at the tennis party, and it made me uncomfortable. I wore simple wash dresses at home, but they were always freshly laundered, and until he commenced coming to the house, I never had thought of wearing anything different. Even now I know there could not have been anything very wrong about my ginghams for morning and dainty muslins for afternoon. Anyway Everett said I looked lovely in them; and that mother was sensible to keep me looking so young.

I don't know that I was very different from other girls of my age, brought up as I had been, and if I confess that I felt in some way different, set apart from the rest of the town girls, after I received Everett's letter I think most people will understand.

I attached a sentimental value to the few lines he had written, that I never should have dreamed of putting up on the notes I had received occasionally from the town boys. This charming man from a great city where there were so many lovely girls had singled me, Sandra Courtney, out for his especial attentions.

It was a long time before he answered my letter. Nearly six weeks. But as he sent me some books and candy in the interim I did not feel that he had forgotten me, al' ough I looked anxiously each day for a reply: and once or twice I locked myself in my room and shed a few tears when father said there was "no mail."

Then came the morning when I received Everett's second letter. I had walked down with father, and went with him to the Post Office. I read it as I walked slowly home under the blossoming trees, the scent of early flowers in the air. He sort of apologized for not replying sooner, asked me to forgive him, and said he would be more prompt in the future if I would. He also said he would be in Lakeville again before fall, and signed himself: "Your fond friend, Everett Graham."

Tomorrow—Everett proposes.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION IN PETERBORO

(J. W. Worth.)

Heretofore we have, here in Canada, concentrated our efforts too much upon what we have been pleased to call an all-round education, but which has really suited our growing generation more for office or professional work.

While we are all anxious that our children should have a good, all-round education, there are many subjects in which they are given a detailed tuition that would be just as useful to them if they were given a superficial knowledge of the subject, so that he or she will not appear absolutely ignorant of everything outside their chosen vocation in life.

Personally, I am of the opinion that pupils desiring to take a technical course should be able through an examination to pass into the Technical School a year earlier than pupils wh wish to go through the Collegiate as at present, to follow a commercial or professional career. My reason for thinking so is, that anybody taking a technical course needs to get out into practical life earlier than the one who takes a commercial or professional course.

Those who are following a technical career will agree with my opinion as outlined above, knowing the amount of practical knowledge that has to be acquired. Some may be acquired by part time education in a factory of the technical branch chosen, but not all by any means. The theoretical part of technical education, while absolutely necessary is only half of the education required.

It is gratifying to see the awakening interest in technical education shown by the people and government of Ontario, and we can live in hopes of great things in the near future.

After these general remarks on technical education I wish to refer to its application to Peterborough.

We will naturally have to start on a small scale and gradually develop to larger proportions. In starting small we must teach our pupils in the branches of industry for which Peterborough is suited, and develop into further branches as other branches of industry become numerous in the city.

It appears to me that at present, we could not do better than take up the following six branches which I think would cover the major portion of the industries in this city, viz.: Electricity, Mechanics, Chemical Science, Textiles, Dressmaking and Millinery.

In suggesting technical education applicable to Peterborough I want to make it possible for the young men and women of Peterborough to find suitable and remunerative employment at home instead of having to leave their homes to get work in some office in Toronto or Montreal. One of the regrettable features in Peterborough at the present time is the fact that a great many of our young men and women have to leave the city to get suitable employment, and homes are only united at holiday periods. It is still more regrettable, when you know that many of our industries have to get managers and foremen from the United States or Europe.

In visualizing a technical school the citizens must not think of a school building like those at present in use. A small part of the school may be of two or three story formation, but the greater part should be of so-called shed formation, with saw-tooth roof construction.

Tehnical education is to the fore in Peterborough and the question will undoubtedly have to be tackled by next year's board. I have therefore in this short article endeavoured to show the citizens a few of my views on technical education and also a few of the matters that will be presented for the Board's solution.

TO-DAY'S EVENTS

(For Wednesday, December 24, 1919.)

Today's forecast is for a "dry" Christmas.

William Hohenzollern and family will have their second Christmas Eve celebration at Amerongen.

Queen Alexandrine of Denmark celebrates her 40th birthday today, having been born on Christmas Eve, in 1879.

Fifty years ago today died Edwin M. Stanton, famous in history as President Lincoln's secretary of war.

General Pershing will bring his tour of the middle West to a practical close today with a visit to Lincoln, Neb.

With its tip adorned by a brilliant gold star, commemorative of the men who lost their lives in the service, the "Tree of Light" will make its appearance tonight in Madison Square, New York, and will continue to be illuminated every night until New Year's Eve.

On account of the enormous business transacted during the past year there is promised a record distribution of bonuses today to employes of banks, brokerage houses, and commercial and industrial concerns of all kinds and located in every part of the United States and Canada.

Several hundred ladies are attached to the Imperial Court of Japan, in positions similar to those filled by the ladies-in-waiting and others at the English court. The first essential demanded of the Court ladies in Japan is self-denial and perseverance. Lowness of extraction is no obstacle, as this can easily be set aside by nominal adoption into a family of high grade.

NOMINATION SPEECHES HELD YESTERDAY IN NORTH MONAGHAN

MR. JOHN McINTOSH, NOMINEE FOR THE REEVESHIP, SPOKE ON THE GOOD ROADS SYSTEM—MR. W. G HOWDEN WAS CHAIRMAN.

Following the nominations yesterday at May's school house, Mr. W. G. Howden was appointed chairman, and after a short address, Mr. Howden called on Mr. John McIntosh, the reeve of North Monaghan and warden of the county, to address the meeting.

Mr. McIntosh spoke on the County Roads System and of the work that the township had carried on in connection with getting better roads.

The following figures were given by the Warden to show how North Monaghan compared with the other townships in the matter of salaries paid the road superintendents, and the amount expended on roads.

Township:

Otonabee, levy $4540.88; Government $3027.25; total $7568.13.

Asphodel, levy, $2048.63; government $1365.75; total $3414.38.

Monaghan, levy, $1372.68; Government, $915.12; total $2287.80.

Belmont and Methuen, levy, $694.75, Government $463.16; total, $1157.91.

Total levy, $8056.94; total Government grant, $5771.28; grand total $14,-428.22.

Salary to Supt.:

Otonabee, per month	$65.55
Asphodel	$29.55
Monaghan	19.75
Belmont	10.15
	$125.00

Reeve McIntosh spoke on the work that had been carried on during the past year and how they had had to overcome many difficulties, and briefly outlined the work that those who are elected will be called upon to do.

He explained many matters to those present and answered many questions. Reeve McIntosh showed a good grasp of everything pertaining to the township and in conclusion he thanked the mover and seconder for his nomination and said that he would do his best if he was bought back for another term.

Mr. H. B. Rye.

one of the candidates for reeve, Mr. Rye thanked those present for his nomination and said that although he was a little out of touch with the work he would do his duty as best he could if he were elected.

Mr. Rye in speaking on the road question said that in his opinion the township was too economical in expending money on roads. Mr. Rye said that one great trouble in township administration was that too many taxpayers wanted city conveniences on county taxes.

Mr. Rye dwelt on the question of Peterboro City annexing North Monaghan and said that this would neither benefit the city nor the township.

In conclusion Mr. Rye said that he were elected he would work for the interests of the township, not for the interests of the individual.

Mr. Forster.

Mr. Forster spoke briefly thanking them for his nomination and spoke of his long and faithful services, first as councillor, and then as deputy reeve. In nine years he had only missed one regular meeting and two committee meetings.

"Gentlemen, this is my record and I solicit your vote on New Year's Day."

Mr. Wm. Bell.

Mr. Howden expressed regret on the retirement of Mr. William Bell, the deputy reeve for 1919, and called Mr. Bell to the platform.

Mr. Bell said that he had too much work to handle and after five years of service to the township he was retiring. Mr. Bell thanked them for the opportunity of speaking and said hat he wished all present a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Mr. Fred Wilson.

Mr. Fred Wilson, who is in the deputy reeve race, spoke of his work in the past and what he would do in the future if elected. Mr. Wilson spoke of the friction between the eastern and the western parts of the township and said he hoped that it would not be preesnt in the new council.

Mr. Wilson spoke of the trouble with the city over the building of the street railway on Monaghan Rd., and claimed that some of the items sent in to the township were excessive.

He explained his stand on the road question and spoke of the trouble over the appointment of a sanitary inspector.

The speaker in conclusion said "that he would work faithfully and well if elected and would do everything in his power to forward the interests of the township."

Mr. Thomas Henry, Mr. Wilson's opponent, repudiated some of the statements made by Mr. Wilson and a lively little verbal battle ensued between the two opponents.

Mr. Henry said he could only do his best. "I wish you all a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

Mr. James Morrow, Mr. Bert Arnott, Mr. Barnes and Mr. Robert Dobbin, who are all out as councillors, stated their platform and their unanimous support for all that would advance North Monaghan and solicited the votes of those present.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Mr. George May wished everybody a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

BOY LOCKED UP 32 N.Y. POLICEMEN

Latter Had to Telephone for Locksmith to Force Open Door.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Thirty-two New York Policemen, including a captain and a lieutenant, were locked in the East 51st Street station here by a small boy who was refused a ticket to a Christmas celebration after the precinct allotment had been exhausted. The youngster, who brought his "gang" to get tickets, refused to leave until curtly ordered to "get out."

"All right, we'll get out, but you won't," yelled the boy, who was last to leave. He swung the door to and bolted it from the outside. A locksmith was summoned by telephone, and after laboring an hour finally cut the whole lock out. Meanwhile a crowd of a hundred children sang and danced in glee over the discomfiture of their prisoners.

CANTATA WAS A BIG SUCCESS

SUNDAY SCHOOL CHILDREN OF MURRAY STREET TOOK PART.

"Spirits of Christmas" a charming Christmas cantata composed and presented under the direction of Mrs. L. J. Pettit in Murray Street Baptist Sunday School last evening attracted a very large audience of parents and friends of the Sunday School children who took part and who were enthusiastic in their appreciaton both of the cantata and the manner in which each of he children took the different parts.

Distinctive Features.

Some of the distinctive features of the cantata were the solo "While Shepherds Watch Their Flock by Night" sung by Miss Florence Scott whose sweetness of tone and clarity of enunciation were never heard to better advantage, a quartette "O Little Town of Bethlehem" which was beautifully rendered by Misses Doris Rathbone, Amy Rathbone, Gladys Yelland and Hazel Gillespie; two drills "the holly and the mistletoe" in which the girl were dressed in red and white and green and white and the "fire drill" in which the girls wore Grecian costumes. The latter was charmingly concluded by a tebleau in which the girls formed a five point star with their wands over which two Angels of Peace held a banner bearing the inscription "Peace on Earth." Six boys Alvin Yelland, Allan Yelland, Willie Yelland, Winston Merrill, Morgan Azling and Harry Doughty gave two pleasing choruses "Soldiers of St. Nick" and "The Doll Song." The former was prefaced by a dialogue between Santa Claus (Walter Batley) and Percy Daflin both of whom made most favorable impressions in their parts. The "Stocking Drill" by eight little girls of the Primary Class was a pretty feature in which the little girls came on te stage in nighties carrying tiny black stockings which they sedately hung for Santa Claus. This was concluded by a charmingly sung duet by Margaret and Jean Blade which brought down the house. The part of the fairy "Goodwill" was taken by little Miss Isobel Thompson and Miss Shirley Petit took the part of the "Christmas Pie Fairy" very winsomely. Christmas Greeting a playlet by the Sunshine Class was remarkably well preented. The three choroluses "Shine Beautiful Star Yonder His Star" and "Hark Chiming Bells" by the school bore evidence of the splendid voices which augment he singers of he city presently.

An unlimited amount of credit is due Miss Hilda Thompson who rendered the accompaniments for the entire cantata.

BOXES OF COMFORTS FLOOD POST OFFICES

PARCELS TO SOLDIERS IN FRANCE ARE NOT SEEN.

Last Christmas, and the previous Christmas and the Christmas before that, were marked by the preparation and sending of thousands of boxes and parcels containing countless comforts and novelties to our boys who were serving with the colours in France and England.

There was a tremendous rush at the post offices to care for the tens of thousands of boxes which were mailed weeks before Christmas Day so that the boys in the trenches would have just a little taste of the holiday spirit from home folks.

The deluge of overseas boxes for soldiers is conspicuous by its absence this year. But the Post Office is busy nevertheless. The mothers, wives, sisters, and sweethearts learned muc in the art of preparing boxes, and they are now applying that knowledge in another direction. The son or daughter who is now far from home will receive handsome assortments of good things this year — in somewhat the same manner that the soldier boys did last Christmas.

The Post Office is handling hundreds of thousands of packages large and small, and they are filled with everything that it is possible to send through the Royal mails.

The women folks are packing these boxes in similar fashion to the way that they packed the comforts to be sent to France or England in previous years. In many cases they are sending practically the same gifts that had been included in the boxes to fathers, sons, husbands, or brothers in days gone by. The familiar comfort boxes are again much in demand for mailing purposes.

BANK STATEMENT.

OTTAWA, Dec. 24.— Heavy Victory Loan subscriptions are reflected in the November bank statement. During the month withdrawals from saving bank deposits totalled one hundred and twenty-five millions, the largest known. Greater part of the withdrawals went, of course, in subscriptions to the loan.

CLAIM A NOTE FOR $698 AGAINST MATHER ESTATE

In the Surrogate Court yesterday a claim by a representative of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Moorehouse against the estate of the late George Mather was heard by Judge Huycke.

The case involved a note dated in 1912, purporting to be made by George Mather in favour of Mrs. Moorehouse for the sum of $698.

Judgment was reserved.

Mr. J. V. McElderry appeared for the claimant and Mr. J. E. L. Goodwill for the Mather estate.

STANLEY CLYDESDALE WAS RELEASED

Stanley Clysdale was brought up before Magistrate Dumble again this morning.

Crown Attorney Hatton did not come in until the conclusion of the trial so the prosecution was dispensed with.

G. N. Gordon apeared for Clysdale and pleaded not guilty, but admitted the facts.

Mrs. Clydsdale, the boy's mother, was called and said that she had formerly lived in Fenelon Falls, and had an account in the Bank of Montreal there This was about a year ago. She moved to Peterboro and had her acount transferred to the Bank here but had drawn it out. Her husband had an account still in Fenelon Falls. She stated that she had written out cheques before for the boy when he needed money, and he knew that she had money in the bank, but that he didn't know it had all been drawn out."

G. N. Gordon—"Did you tell the boy he could use your name"

"Yes; I told him to get money if he needed a few dollars."

Magistrate—"Did he ever use any of your cheques before?"

"Yes; one in Fenelon Falls for $10."

The resemblance of the boy's signature to that of the mother's was pointed out to the magistrate by Mr. Gordon.

Magistrate—"Did he write you that he had cashed the cheque?"

"No; I was away."

The magistrate said that the mother was putting temptation in the way of the boy and that he might be easily be led astray "You must pay the costs and make good the cheque to Mr. Smith," he said.

The sweater was returned and Mr. Smith was returned the five dollars. The costs were $10.10.

The magistrate gave the boy a good lecture and warned him to keep on the straight and narrow path, and reproved the mother for allowing the boy to draw on her account. He said the boy's signature so closely resembled hers he might easily be led astray.

CHIMNEY FIRE.

A small chimney fire at the residence of Mrs. E. Smith, 110 Sophia Street, gave the firemen a run at 8.15 this morning. There was no damage, but three gallons of chemicals were used to extinguish it.

MR. G. N. GORDON IS A CANDIDATE FOR THE CITY COUNCIL

Mr. G. N. Gordon announced today he would not be a candidate for Mayor but that he would run for Aldetman.

Mr. Gordon said that he felt on account of so many men leaving the council that he should be a candidate on account of his many years experience as an alderman and City Solicitor, and he had made up his mind to run for Alderman.

THE WEATHER

The day before Christmas last year the dust was flying on the roads, and it looked impossible that there should be sleighing for Christmasday. Snow began to fall at 1 p.m., however, and by evening there was over four inches on the level, and the wind caused such drifting that the street cars were blocked at times. The snow fell all night and by morning about eight inches lay on the level and two and three times that amount in some of the drifts. While sufficient snow did not fall last night nor to-day to make sleighing, there is still hope.—W.P.

TALKING TO SANTA IN A SHOP WINDOW

One of the legion of little fellows who are living in a literal wonderland these days stood fascinated the other afternoon before a downtown window in which a hooded figure of Santa Claus stood amidst a heap of toys. It mattered not that the rather comic effigy stared unseeing at the bright eager faces pressed against the glass pane. To this little chap the figure probably seemed sentient and reponsive, for pointing o a toy tank close to the glass the dweller in fairyland looking straight at the funny bearded figure exclaimed "Santa did you buy me this thing down here?"

4 BANDITS TAKE WHOLE PAYROLL

Hold Up 75 Longshoremen in New York and Rob Office of $5,000.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—A hold-up rivalling in technique the masterpieces of Bill Carlisle, Western bandit, occurred here when two robbers covered a pay line of 75 longshoremen at an East River pier, while two companions, marching into the paymaster's office, cleaned up $5,000. The quartette then escaped in an automobile just as 300 repair men at work on the pier heard the commotion and came racing to the rescue.

David Bord, the paymaster, employed by M. B. Smith & Sons, stevedores, arrived at the pier at noon in an automobile. A few minutes later another car arrived and four well-dressed men stepped out.

Approaching the pay window, two whipped out revolvers, shouting that it meant death for anyone to move in the direction of the other bandits who, by this time, had entered the office. The entire line was thrown into confusion and several men fled, seeking refuge behind bales and boxes.

Two bandits who entered the office found Bord flanked by two watchmen. One robber covered them while the other calmly picked up the pay envelopes, placed them in the paymaster's own bag and then turning to his companion, said:

"Let's go."

PREMIER TO LEAVE EARLY IN NEW YEAR

OTTAWA, December 24. — It is expected that Sir Robert Borden will spend the holiday season in Ottawa and then leave for the south shortly after the beginning of the New Year.

At present the Prime Minister is taking things more easily and on the days when he goes to his office in the East Block he only spends a short time there.

There is still no announcement as to who will be the acting Premier during the absence of Sir Robert.

Sir George Foster stated this evening that he had not heard of that question having been decided yet.

JOINT SEA CONTROL

The truth of the late Colonel Roosevelt's assertion that war between the two great English-speaking nations was impossible seems stronger today than ever. They are being drawn closer constantly by their kinship and their common interests. And yet there is a risk of competition between them that would have in view the possibility of conflict some time—competition in naval armament. And this competition threatens at a time when, but for it, the tremendous burden of naval defence might very well be lightened for the British people.

There is a strong advocacy in the United States for a navy second to none. That means, of course, equal to or stronger than that of Britain. Britain might not view with alarm an endeavor on the part of the United States to equal her sea power, and yet she would most certainly feel obliged, owing to her peculiar position as a maritime nation with her Empire scattered over the world, to see that even a friendly power did not exceed her in naval strength. The result of America's adoption of such a policy would be to impose a very great financial burden on her and to continue and increase that of Britain. Before the war Britain had of necessity to keep her naval supremacy by a wide margin, no matter how great the cost; Germany's naval policy was a challenge, for Germany was always a possible enemy. Now, Germany's navy and her ambitions as to sea power have been obliterated, and there is no possible enemy to challenge Britain at sea. The British people look for some relief from the burden of naval competition. Competition between Britain and the United States would not only preclude this relief and increase the burden of the American people, but it must have the effect of engendering suspicion and ill-feeling. Preparation even against a seemingly impossible war would not promote the cause of peace.

The possibility of naval rivalry between the two nations is being given some thought on both sides of the Atlantic. A suggestion for its tveidance that seems at least worthy of consideration comes from England in an article contributed to the New Republic of New York by an English civilian authority on naval and military matters. Mr. Herbert Sidebotham, military critic of the Manchester Guardian during the war and editor of the Guardian's History of the War. Mr. Sidebotham proposes a naval agreement between Britain and the United States under which the high seas fleets of the two nations would be merged, forming an inapproachable preponderance of sea power. The high seas fleets of the two nations would fly the flags of their respective nations and also the flag of the League of Nations, and would be jointly under the orders of the League. In addition to this joint fleet, each nation would have its own fleet of smaller craft for coast defence, operating in its territorial waters. The United States and Britain would agree to joint resistance against threatened or actual invasion of each other's territory from overseas.

One of the primary advantages sought by Mr. Sidebotham from such an agreement would be the financial saving. He estimates that it would save the British people one hundred pounds a year, which, to the British people, already so heavily burdened, would be a very great relief. But as the New Republic observes, the advantages to the United States would be even greater. Britain already is far in the lead in respect of sea power. Billions would have to be spent by the United States to equal her in naval armament. The most important consideration, however, would be the providing of international security and order and the promotion of friendship between the two countries. It would be expected that eventually France, Italy and Japan would enter the agreement.

Whether or not the people of the two countries would even consider relinquishing their control over their naval defences is open to doubt. But apart from that, the proposal in the form outlined by Mr. Sidebotham is impossible now by reason of the American rejection of the League covenant. The United States would have to be a full participant in the League before an arrangement which placed the fleets under its authority could be considered. The idea of the English-speaking nations cooperating in guaranteeing the safety of peace so far as sea power goes is appealing, however, in comparison with the possibility of their competing with each other in the creation of great and expensive navies, for which there is now less need than ever.—Ottawa Journal.

KAISER REPORTED WILLING TO BE TRIED BY ALLIES

GENEVA, Dec. 22. —A despatch from Basel states the former German Emperor has finally agreed to accept trial by the allies, but adds that he wants to choose the place and time of the trial, and desires to be defended by German experts and lawyers. The Basel advices say the former Crown Prince declares he will never appear if he is called before a Court of Justice.

SLEIGH DOGS LATEST TO INCREASE IN PRICE.

One in Northern Ontario Worth as Much as Young Heifer.

COBALT, Dec. 23.—According to figures produced in an action of some Ekl Lake farmers for damages following the death of young cattle by sleigh dogs, a good sleigh dog is worth to-day as much as an ordinary heifer, and a team of dogs as much as a fair team of horses.

Shortly after the farmers found their cattle dead a couple of sleigh dogs were also found dead, and then the court action followed, with the dog owners making counter claims. The shortage in dogs is said to have been caused by their extensive use by trappers and prospectors this year.

The price being asked for good, well-trained dogs averages from $50 to $75, and on a basis of five dogs to a team, a team would cost $375, or the price of a fair team of horses.

A few years ago trappers say they could get good dogs at $10 and $15.

The Coreans are possessed of remarkably fine heads of hair, and they put their "combings" to a remarkable use. A very large number of the saddle-cloths placed under the packs of their ponies are made from human hair woven into coarse mats or bags, and the halters and headropes of the animals are largely composed of the same material.

NERVES ALL GONE TO PIECES

"Fruit-a-tives" Conquered Nervous Prostration

R. R. No.4, Carberry Plains, Man.

"In the year 1910, I had Nervous Prostration in its worst form; dropping from 170 to 115 pounds.

The doctors had no hope of my recovery, and every medicine I tried proved useless until a friend induced me to take "Fruit-a-tives".

I began to mend almost at once, and never had such good health as I have enjoyed the past eight years. I am never without "Fruit-a-tives" in the house". JAS. S. DELGATY.

WOMAN SHOT WOLF NEAR MADOC

At Millbridge, while carrying over her husband's dinner to the mill, about a mile and a half distant, Mrs. William Howe met a wolf in the road. The animal barked several times, and not wishing to run any risks, Mrs. Howe turned back and went to the mill by another route. Securing a rifle she returned by the road watching for the beast. She met him, and he met the contents of her gun. Mrs. Howe returned home victoriously carrying with her the body of the wolf and in true hunter fashion her gun slung over her shoulder.—Madoc Review.

Voice Of The People

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir— With your kind permission I would like to state that while I believe that ratepayers and the Citizens in general appreciate the reports and the statements in regard to the financial affairs of our Prosperous city of Peterboro and although those statement are based on the auditor reports thanks are due to those Gentlemen for the trouble they have taken to have them appear in the newspaper the auditors report finds its way into the hands of only so few and then it requires a certain amount of study and working out to get at the facts the ontention a numerous class of the ratepayers seem to be that our taxes has been increasing and continue to increase at a greater rate in proportion to the advancement of the value of our property or its earning capacity. Let us see.

For instance a house rented at fifteen dollars per month a few years ago or a total of one hundred and eighty dollars a year cash value twenty-five hundred dollars assessed at say two thirds of its value taxes twenty dollars or one ninth of the gross earnings at the present time the value of that property has increased five hundred dollars on account of City improvements thereby giving a direct return for taxes paid of five-hundred dollars and a further advance by five-hundred dollars in improvements making the present value thirty-five hundred dollars rented at twenty-five dollars per month or a gross revenue of three hundred dollars for the year taxes over eighty dollars or nearly one fourth of the gross revenue while the old rate was less than one per cent. on the cash value or about one and a half on the assessed value the present rate is nearly two and one half per cent. on the actual value or over three per cent. on the assessed value or a rate of six per cent. on the increased value of one thousand dollars.

If we stop here the comparison seems odious but we must take into consideration the five hundred dollar increase in value by reason of improvements by the City and for the five hundred dollars expended in improvements by the owner he receives an increase in rent of ten dollars per month or a total of twelve per cent. on the amount thus expended after providing for the extra taxes this instance is a fair sample of an extensive list covering a period of over fifteen years.

I leave the reader to draw his own conclusions it seems to me that it is not difficult.

Thaking you in advance for space,

I am yours very respectfully,

M. H. QUINLAN,

DUBLIN JURY SORROWS FOR WOULD-BE SLAYER

Testimony Shows That Savage Was Shot While Hurling a Bomb.

(Canadian Press.)

DUBLIN, Dec. 23.—The coroner's jury investigating the death of Savage the grocer's clerk who was shot and killed while running from the scene of the attempted assassination of Viscount French, late yesterday afternoon rendered a verdict in which it said that Savage "met his death by a bullet fired by the military escort." A rider to the verdict expressed sympathy with the relatives of the dead man.

The State's attorney gave details of the attempt to assassinate Viscount French. The first car carrying Viscount French passed quickly by the spot from which the shots were fired, the testimony developed, two bombs being hurled in quick succession. Both of them struck a second car which was empty, the second bomb exploding inside the vehicle. Sergeant Rumble, who was a member of the escorting party, was said by the State's attorney to have fired and killed Savage while the latter was in the act of throwing a bomb. Neither of the automobiles was armored, the testimony showed.

The State's attorney said Savage had participated in the rebellion of Easter Sunday, 1916, in Ireland, and that later he was removed to England.

CHRISTMAS

(By F. A. Conners, Pastor First Baptist Church).

When Christ was born in Bethlehem,
The greatest blessing came to men
This world has ever seen;
He came in God's appointed time,
He was the messenger Divine.

The Christ of God Who came to save,
His life for sinners freely gave,
That He might save from sin;
For us His Blood He freely shed,
And wore the thornes upon His head.

O let us on this Christmas Day,
From our hearts most freely say,
He is our Priest and King;
And as we love, so may we live,
Our lives in service freely give.

O may this Christmas then remind
Us of God's Gift to all mankind,
When Jesus Christ was born;
Help us to live that we may be,
With Him through all eternity.

Nineteen caididates for five vacancies in the Board of Aldermen were nominated at a largely attended meeting of ratepayers at the City Hall last night. This made a total of forty nominees for the public positions the electors will fill on New Year's day with their bundles of ballots, but the city will be unusually fortunate if even twenty of the prospective candidates take the necessary steps to qualify before nine o'clock tonight.

Obviously the citizens endeavoured to secure quality in the final selection by crowding the aldermanic card while the opportunity offered. The Trades and Labour Council's candidates were all entered in the race, and in this connection Ald. Garside caused a little surprise by accepting a nomination and announcing that he would stand for election as an independent, and while retaining his labour sympathies would not be tied to any group. He said he would strive to serve the entire community, but wished to get out from the crossfire in which he said he had found himself last year.

The proceedings ran along in the customary dry and formal way. There was even a gloomy tinge from references to responsibilities, duties, bridge construction and other heavy undertakings. Lorenzo Humber, one of the Labour candidates, however, stirred up the latent Christmas spirit of lightness and good cheer with a line of humour and seriousness that delivered a good natured quip or two and carried the announcement that he expected to head the polls.

Ald. Phelan.

Ald. Phelan intimated that he was in the field to stay when as the first candidate nominated he headed the list of those who were present to address the appraising electors. He emphasized the importance of the bridge work in which as chairman of the special committee the Board of Works he had fulfilled an important duty to the best of his ability. He had not spared his time, and if re-elected hoped to be in a position to carry on next year. He especially thanked Mayor Duncan for his kind recommendation to the ratepayers. Ald. Phelan stated that he fully appreciated the compliment the Mayor had paid him.

Ald. John Edgar.

Ald. Edgar said he scarcely expected to enter this year's aldermanic contest. This year's work had been pleasant, and onerous. The biggest undertaking was the Hunter street bridge, which he said had been unnecessarily delayed by early indecision in the letting of the contract. He urged the citizens to support the two by-laws that will be presented to them on election day. Referring to the Housing scheme he expressed his surprise at Ald. McIntyre's statement in his published election address that he had supported the Housing by-law in the Council. All the Labour aldermen but Ald. Crowe had voted against it, and had it not been for Ald. Crowe the machinery for a housing scheme next year would not have been provided for the citizens who desired to take advantage of it. Ald. Edgar bespoke for the incoming Mayor and Council the sympathy and active assistance of the ratepayers and of the press. Progress could not be attained by bickerings, but only by mutual confidence and co-operation.

Mr. Fred Tuggey.

Mr. Fred Tuggey loosed a whirlwind speech without a single falter. He had the endorsation of the Trades and Labour Council and offered his services as an alderman to the entire body of citizens. Mr. Tuggey favoured a strong and energetic campaign to secure new industries. He twitted Ald. Edgar about the Council's delay last Spring in fixing the wages of the workmen on the bridge, and asserted that organized Labour asked for nothing unreasonable or detrimental to the city.

William H. Tedford.

Mr. Tedford balked at oratory but stated that he was in full sympathy with the aspirations of Labour. He had been endorsed by the Trades Council and honed to be elected. Mr. Tedford wished the citizens a very happy Christmas.

Herb. J. McCannon.

Herb McCannon said he had just dropped in to hear what was going on and did not expect to be nominated. He was uncertain whether he would stand for election. If he was elected, he believed that he might help to conduct the Council's affairs in a business-like manner that would obviate the midnight sessions.

Mr. A. H. Stratton.

There was something familiar in ex-Alderman's Stratton's presence within the brass rail and at one of the aldermanic desks. He remarked there was good material in the proposed candidates, but said he had not expected to be nominated. He discussed the tax rate in passing, and expressed the opinion that the Council was paying too much for the park property. He doubted the necessity of spending $33,000 and added that the sum of $30,000 would be required to lay out the grounds according to the plans some of the aldermen had visioned. "And then the park would be looking into back yards all around," he observed. If elected, he promised to give the city's business the time and attention it deserved.

Mr. Humber Confident.

In Mr. Humber's eloquence there was no parsimony of words, and his few remarks extended into a real speech. Not on his own volition was he a candidate, he said, but on the unanimous decision of the Trades and Labour Council. His residence in Peterborough for more than thirty years, during many years of which he was a taxpayer, gave him a title to a seat in the City Council.

"I stand for humane justice for all classes of the people," said Mr. Humber, "for those who work with the hand and those who work with the brain. Labour has arisen out of the ditch, as it were. In elections, it used to be tributaries to the main channel, but the tributaries, like the promises of persons seeking office, had dried up when the sun beat upon them. The other classes are the tributaries, and Labour is the main channel."

Referring to Ald. Phelan's speech, Mr. Humber said, "Unfortunately I can't get up and compliment myself on what I did in municipal office, but at the end of 1920 I hope I can get up and tell of the great things I have done. You are all talking about the bridge and parks and so on, but you say nothing of Peterborough's Exhibition. I believe it has been neglected in the past, and I will be in favour of making it a bigger exhibition, and worthy of this city." (Applause, led by the president of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition.)

"My expectations are that I am going to head the polls," continued Mr. Humber. "Just a word about the finish of the bridge. I have been reading the papers closely, and I followed the question of the finish of the bridge. I wanted to see a granite finish. If you have concrete finish, it would be like a man coming down town in his bare feet, wearing a ninety dollar suit." (Applause, led by Ald. Turner.)

A Jibe at the Council.

Mr. Humber remarked that if there were any women present masquerading in the clothes of men, he hoped he would be excused for not addressing them, as he had often heard it said that there were old women in the Council. He remarked that the manufacturers should lend every assistance in securing new industries.

Mentioning Mr. Stratton's reference to taxes, Mr. Humber said: "We have to pay taxes, but if we get more industries and make the city busier, we wouldn't feel any increased taxes. I wish you all a happy industrial New Year."

Ald. Garside.

Ald. Garside said he had decided not to run, but he had been urged to accept nomination, and concluded to stay in the field as an independent. "I had one year's experience in the Council, but I couldn't stand the pressure between two fires. I thought it was better to get out before I got burnt. What I did I was blamed for, so I said to night when they insisted on nominating me that I'd stand as an independent candidate. I will do justice for the Labour men. I didn't want to step over the rulings of the Legislature last year. I did the best for the city and will do my best in 1920 also for Labour. I will help them in the elections. In verything that is square to the city I will support them. I love the city I'm in, and I want to do what's square. I tried to play fifty-fifty, but I got myself into trouble over it. If I'm not elected I won't lose any sleep, for I lost a good deal of it in 1919."

This concluded the addresses, and the meeting dispersed after the singing of the National Anthem, led by Ald. Turner in the key of F.

"Gee-Whiz! How it Hurts—The Pain in My Foot!"

"Sometimes it is in my arm. Merciful Heaven, how my back hurts in the morning!" It's all due to an overabundance of that poison called uric acid. The kidneys are not able to get rid of it. Such conditions you can readily overcome, and prolong life by taking the advice of Dr. Pierce, which is "keep the kidneys in good order." "Avoid too much meat, alcohol or tea. Drink plenty of pure water, preferably hot water, before meals, and drive the uric acid out of the system by taking Anuric." This can be obtained at almost any drug store.

Send a bottle of water to the chemist at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and you will receive free medical advice as to whether the kidneys are affected. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog, you suffer from backache, sick-headache, dizzy spells, or twinges and pains of lumbago, rheumatism or gout; or sleep is disturbed two or three times a night, take heed, before too late. Get Anuric (anti-uric-acid), for it will put new life into your kidneys and your entire system. Ask your nearest druggist for it or send Dr. Pierce ten cents for trial package.

MRS. R. M'DONALD DEAD.

Wife of the Well-Known Singer Passed Away Sunday.

After many months of illness the death occured in Toronto of Mrs. Ella McDonald, wife of H. Ruthven McDonald, the well-known Toronto vocalist, at her home, 284 Avenue road. Her maiden name was Ella Wilson, and she was born at Newry, Ireland, about 54 years ago, but she came to Canada when she was two years old. Her father, who had served in the Crimean War, was stationed at Halifax, and was barracks master there. Thirty-five years ago she came to Kingsville, Essex County, where she later met Mr. McDonald.

In 1900 along with her husband she came to Toronto and was organist at Cooke's Church, while Mr. McDonald was choirmaster. An accomplished musician, she accompanied her husband on all his tours through Canada and the United States until quite recently. In religion she was a Christian Scientist. Besides her husband, one sister, Mrs. J. M. Williams, 872 Ossington avenue, and one son, Sergt. Neil McDonald, formerly with the 13th Battery, C.F.A., survive. The funeral took place today to Prospect

RUSSELL HAD MERRY XMAS

WINNIPEG STRIKE LEADER RECEIVED MANY TELEGRAMS ON THE HOLIDAY—DINNER WITH FRIENDS.

SENTENCED TO-DAY

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 27.—Russell was sentenced this morning to two years each for the first six counts, to run concurrently, and one year on the seventh, this also to run concurrently.

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Dec. 27.—R. B. Russell, convicted strike leader, who will to-day be sentenced for seditious conspiracy and committing a common nuisance, by Justice Metcalfe, spent "as merry a Friday as could be expected under the circumstances," he told your correspondent last night. At home with his family during the day, he was deluged by greetings over the telephone from his friends in Winnipeg and telegrams from all over the Dominion. An evening dinner party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Armstrong included Mr. and Mrs. Russell and Aldermen Queen and Heaps and their families.

Objection on which the defence will base the main portion of the appeal will be in regard to relevancy as evidence of letters passing between parties other than accused. Defence counsel hold, it was stated, that letters between Stevenson of Vancouver and Beatty of Calgary, many of which were put in by the Crown as evidence, have no connection whatever with Russell.

TURKISH WAR DEBT SHOWS LEAST INCREASE

ONLY ONE LOAN, AMOUNTING TO $[illegible], WAS ADDED TO THE BONDED OBLIGATIONS.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 26.—The [illegible] of the Ottoman Empire [illegible] have in[illegible] of any other nation. Its bonded indebtedness was increased by only one new loan of about [illegible], and, adding to this other increases in obligations such as home military requisitions and advances from Austria and Germany, the war expenses ran to only $600,000,000. Consequently, allowing for various offsets, post-war indebtedness amounts to about $1,000,300,000.

This would make it appear that Turkey "ran the war on a shoestring," financially, as compared to Great Britain with her $40,000,000,000 war debt, France with $30,000,000,000, the United States with $25,000,000,000, and Italy with possibly $15,000,000,000.

It will be recalled that on paper the Ottoman Empire mobilised nearly 4,000,000 men, yet it escaped with something like the war expenses of a country such as Roumania or Bulgaria.

The record of the Turkish war indebtedness is unique. The Empire met war costs by requisitions and by printing in Germany 155,000,000 Turkish paper pounds, normally about $680,000,000, but this, according to the experts, cannot be considered a Government liability. It is not a financial burden, as it bears no interest, and the proper administrative body of the Peace Conference can have it cancelled.

Turkey's paper money, it is said, has not depreciated as much as that of her Allies. In Mesopotamia Turkish paper money is refused since the British occupation, which the Turks do not consider fair since the paper money was issued for the whole of the Ottoman Empire.

Drury Upholds the Middlesex Action

DEFIES U.F.O. DISSENT TO THIS INSTANCE OF THE ABOLITION OF PATRONAGE IN APPOINTMENT OF REGISTRAR—MEMBERS ELECT AGREE WITH PREMIER.

TORONTO, Dec. 27. — Premier Drury is standing firm on the pre-election pledges of the U.F.O. for the abolition of patronage and refuses to cancel the appointment of Miss Minnie Walker as registrar for Middlesex, although there are many influences at work in the U.F.O. ranks to have the appointment upset and the choice of the farmers' organization given the position. Premier Drury holds that there is no middle course for the U.F.O. to pursue than to separate themselves absolutely from the system of patronage as it existed under the old government. The Premier is being upheld by the U.F.O members-elect for the Middlesexes.

J. W. Freeborn, farmer M.P.P. for East Middlesex, says he does not believe the registrarship of Middlesex will be re-o-pened. J. G. Lethbridge, farmer M.P.P. for West Middlesex, says he is satisfied with Miss Walker's appointment.

Harold Currie, of Strathroy, district organizer of the U.F.O., says it will be re-opened. Mr. Currie says he has a letter "that would show a whole lot." Thus the matter of the registrarship stands to-day.

"The appointment will have to stand," Mr. Freeborn told a reporter over long distance from Ilderton. It was evident he does not want to get tangled up with anybody over the case. Mr. Freeborn said that Harold Currie had not been after the job. Personally, he had never been asked to resign to make way for Mr. Raney or any other member of the government and he does not think Mr. Lethbridge was approached to resign. There is nothing in such stories so far as I know," he declared.

Mr. Lethbridge, who was found at Glencoe, said: "I understand that Miss Walker is quite efficient and capable and I am satisfied with the appointment. Miss Walker secured the job because it is the intention of the farmers to keep their pledge and do away with the patronage system."

"Were you ever asked to give up your seat to make way for Mr. Raney or any other cabinet minister?" he was asked.

"I was never asked directly by any member of the government," he replied.

"Were you ever approached by anybody on behalf of the government?"

"That's my business," was Mr. Lethbridge's reply.

"Were you ever offered the appointment of the registrarship," the reporter next questioned.

Mr. Lethbridge said: "Not exactly," and then that he was not prepared to answer.

"Did you have the refusal of the job?"

"That question I don't want to answer," he said.

ROMANTIC WARFARE WAS WAGED IN HOLY LAND BY ENGLISHMAN

THE EXAMINER OFFERS TO ITS READERS CHANCE TO SEE THIS WONDERFU. STORY ON MOVING PICTURE SCREEN AT THE GRAND —CLIP THE COUPON.

Practically nothing is known by the public about the campaigns in the Holy Land and in Arabia. In fact, the average person does not know that there was a campaign in Arabia, and if asked where Arabia is he might say next door to Zanzibar. In a way this lack of knowledge [illegible] but it is easily accounted for by the conditions on the western front. The events taking place in Belgium and France, where our own men were baring their breasts to bayonts and machine guns, were so gigantic and staggering that the human mind could not get away from it. The campaign in the west completely overshadowed what was happening out in the Near East.

Epochal Events.

Some of the greatest events that have taken place in the world since the dawn of the Christian era occurred in Palestine during 1916 and 1918; yet practically nothing has been written about these epoch-making changes. In fact, the public at large has an unbelievably vague conception of Great Britain's twentieth century crusade. At each showing of these exquisitely colored and motion pictures at the Grand Dale Carnagey, who has come direct from London with these pictures, will tell the audience in his delightful and chatty way all about Allenby's campaign. This will be a gigantic news story, one that has never been told in Peterborough before. It was said by people who heard Dale Carnagey in London that after attending this travelogue one actually felt that he or she had been with General Allenby in his campaign.

A Man of Mystery.

The Arabian campaign was kept a secret for military purposes, yet is undoubtedly the most picturesque and romantic and entertaining of all the campaigns of the great world war. Mr. Carnagey will bring to Ottawa the first real inside information of how a mysterious young Englishman went out into the land of the Arabian Nights and raised an army in unexplored and forbidden Arabia, and broke the backbone of the Turkish empire. This young, beardless Englishman will undoubtedly go down in history as the most romantci and picturesque figure of the whole world war, yet the human details of his story might never have been made public had it not been for Lowell Thomas and Dale Carnagey, who went out to Arabia and ate dates and drank camel's milk with him.

In getting the story and pictorial record of his adventures in dangerous Arabia, Carnagey and Thomas secured the only motion pictures that have ever been taken in that land, which has been closed to Europeans for centuries. The only pictures that posterity will have of the war out there where the Queen of Sheba ruled are the ones that you will see on the screen at the Grand Theatre next week. Copies of these pictures have been given to the British War Office, so that during all time to come posterity may walk again with the Arab army in 1916, 1917 and 1918 that wrested the holy city of Mecca from Turkish possession and banished the Crescent from Arabia forever.

Not Like West.

War on the western front developed into a system of trenches and mud and monotony. It was difficult under the conditions to get satisfying pictures, but out in the Near East conditions were vastly different. Here was atmosphere, that elusive quality which motion picture directors and critics prize so highly. Allenby's campaign was waged over a land fairly soaked with atmosphere. There were veiled women, camels, palms, deserts and places memory-laden by the earliest records of man. These pictures show vast hordes of cavalry charging over the Judean hills and by places where Abraham lived and David and Solomon and where the Prince of Peace walked and taught. These films show unending caravans of camels carrying cannon, water, bully beef and Tommy Atkins over the same roads that caravans used in the days of the Queen of Sheba, when they were bringing sandalwood and myrrh up to Nineveh and Babylon.

Brought Here By Examiner.

Every person in Peterborough should see these pitcures. The Examiner, at great expense, has made the admission so low that no one need be denied this rare privilege. Examiner readers by cliping the coupons that appear in connection with the advertisement may attend this Arabian Nights entertainment at one half the price a quarter of a million Londoners paid.

NO SUPERINTENDEN T FOR RUTLAND HOSPITAL

FLAG INCIDENT HAS LEFT SOME BITTERNESS AND SOME SATISFACTION.

(Special to The Examiner.)

RUTLAND, Vt., Dec. 26. — The sentiment of the people of this city regarding the recent friction in the Rutland Hospital following the refusal of Miss MacLean, the Canadian nurse-in-training here, to salute the American flag after having made what the other nurses considered insulting remarks about it, seems to be that the incident was most unfortunate. Miss Aitken, the superintendent, whose resignation followed the incident, was on the whole well liked by the people of the city, and the stand which she took came as a surprise.

Considerable dissatisfaction with the Board of Directors of the Hospital has arisen, due to their supporting Mis Aitken in her attitude. Irregularities in the management of the Hospital by the Board are hinted at, especially with regard to the finances.

At present the Hospital is without a superintendent and is in a rather demoralizing condition. The nurses fear that the Miss McLean incident has given the Hospital a great deal of unpleasant notoriety. They have, however, received several letters and telegrams from various parts of the United States congratulating them on the stand which they took.

SURPLUS WHEAT IS BEING EXPORTED

TWO-THIRDS OF IT HAS BEEN SOLD BY CANADIAN BOARD.

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Dec. 27.—About two-thirds of the exportable surplus of the Canadian wheat crop has already been sold and exported through the medium of the Canadian Wheat Board, the sole purchasing agency of the Government.

The total is variously calculated from seventy-five to one hundred million bushels, the quantity in the hands of farmers not being known exactly.

A fair proportion of the supply has been moving to the United States since the embargo was lifted. A primary consideration, however, is the need of Canadian millers for wheat for milling not only of flour but also of by-products needed in stock-raising. Whether wheat has already been contracted for or is still in the hands of the farmers, that part intended for export must be sold by the Wheat Board.

Up to 30th November, over forty million bushels, valued at more than one hundred and ten million dollars, had been sent abroad.

ITALY HOPES FOR BETTER RELATIONS

ALLIED PREMIERS WILL MEET IN PARIS NEXT WEEK.

(Canadian Press.)

ROME, Dec. 27. — Premier Nitti will go to London from Rome, and from there will return to Paris to attend the meeting of the Allied Premiers and foreign ministers which is expected to begin next week, according to the Corriere d'Italia.

It is stated that the Premier believes he will come to an understanding with the British Premier on problems closely affecting Italy.

The newspaper says that Signor Nitti hopes to obtain from Britain financial treatment similar to that granted to France. The Premier will do his best to have the Supreme Council agree that the Allied and Associated Governments will recognize Italy's sovereignty over Italian towns, first of all Fiume, and that they will accept the result of the negotiations between Italy and Jugo-Slavia.

BELLE ISLE COLONY ISOLATED FROM WORLD

(Special to The Examiner.)

QUEBEC, Dec. 27. — Marooned with only a meagre supply of provisions, isolated from the outside world and staring into the grim face of privation if not worse—such is the fate of fifteen or sixteen persons at Belle Isle, the famous sentinel of Canada, on the outskirts of the Atlantic, at the entrance of Canadian waters. Two lighthouse keepers with their wives and children, their assistants and three wireless operators, making a population of about nine adults and six or seven children, are the heroes of this modern adventure. The news of the plight of these people came to Quebec in the form of a message from a lower gulf village, where the situation of the small population of Belle Isle had become known.

AN EXCEPTION TO MILITARY AMNESTY

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, Dec. 27.—An interpretation of the order regarding the general amnesty for offenders under the Military Service Act and troops undergoing punishment for military offences, has been made by local military headquarters, and shows that certain reservations are made under the order, which is not merely a blanket pardon for all persons who could be classed as military offenders. It is pointed out that under the general amnesty, discharges for misconduct will not be affected. These discharges for misconduct already issued will stand and the issued of discharges for misconduct will not be interfered with or interrupted in any ways but will be carried out as heretofore.

SETTLED KINMOUNT BRIDGE DISPUTE

Representatives of Peterboro and Victoria Counties agreed yesterday to share equally the cost of maintaining the Burnt River bridge at Kinmount where the two deputations spent four hours in conference yesterday. This county was represented by Warden McIntosh, Reeves Brown, Nicholls, Squire; Deputy Reeve Eason and County Clerk Elliott.

Bootleg Whiskey Took Heavy Toll

51 PERSONS DEAD AND 23 SERIOUSLY ILL IN U.S. CITIES—THIRTEEN VICTIMS IN HARTFORD AND NEW YORK HAD FIFTEEN.

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 27. — Thirteen persons are dead and eight in a serious condition here, as the result of drinking whiskey containing wood alcohol. Two of the deaths occurred early to-day, and physicians said that others might be expected within a few hours.

Fifty-one persons were dead and twenty-three seriously ill to-day in various cities of the United States as the result of drinking whiskey containing wood alcohol. Of these thirty of the dead and seventeen of the ill were victims of a quantity of the poisoned whiskey alleged to have been shipped into New England for the Christmas trade. The other victims were distributed between New York and Chicago.

Reports showed the following casualties from wood alcohol poisoning: Chicopee, Mass., 14 dead, 7 ill; Holyoke, Mass. 5 dead, 2 ill; Hartford, Conn., 13 dead, 8 ill; Chicago, 4 dead, 6 ill; New York, 15 dead.

The deaths in New York cover the entire month of December. In the other cities the deaths occurred in the last few days. Several arrests have been made in the New England cities, and other arrests were expected in New York.

Police Take Action.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27. — Federal agents, health authorities and police in many cities in the east were stirred into action to-day against the traffic in whiskey made from wood alcohol, following the wave of deaths and blindness from this cause in Massachussets and and Connecticut. Death list of victims of Christmas cheer in these States totalled more than forty-one early to-day. Officials declared it probably that unreported cases by the score extended from coast to coast. A general warning has been issued here by agencies co-operating in the fight, telling the public of the danger lurking in anything that passes for whiskey in saloons. Arrests were expected in New York to-day in connection with deaths in Massachussets and Connecticut.

Four Arrests in Hartford.

Four men are under arrest in Hartford, charged with murder. The police allege that they bought a dozen barrels of fluid in the Bronx for twelve thousand dollars, which they took to Hartford by motor, where water was added. Then it was sold, according to the police, in other cities. The Department of Justice agents announce that they have traced the whiskey to New York, where they say it was made.

LONG IMPRISONMENT AND HEAVY FINE FOR RUTHLESS GERMAN STEEL KING

CONDIGN PUNISHMENT FOR MAN WHO ORGANIZED, WITH AID OF TWO BROTHERS, PILLAGE OF FACTORIES IN EASTERN FRANCE.

AMIENS, Dec. 27.— A court martial has sentenced the German officer Robert Roeckling, Administrator of Mines at Karlruhe, to ten years' imprisonment, fifteen years of exile and a fine of ten million francs upon his conviction of a charge of organising the pillage of factories in Eastern France. It was testified at his trial that he collected machinery and other material from the factories, and blew it up in November, 1918. His brothers, Herman and Ludwig, were given similar sentences by default.

The Roeckling Brothers are known as German steel kings. Herman Roeckling, president of a steel association, was at Treves as a member of the German Armistice Commission, for which reason he was not arrested. The other brother, Ludwig, went to Versailles as a member of the peace delegation and consequently was covered by diplomatic immunity.

The evidence presented by the prosecution went to show that the brothers had systematically destroyed the French metal plants at Briey, Micheville, Longwy and other places, transporting within two years' time millions of tons of material to their factory at Karlsruhe, including quantities of undamaged materials so as to make the operation of what remained of the French plants the next thing to impossible.

Robert Roeckling, in his defence, pleaded that he had acted by order of the German Government, but testimony was given to show that his action was on his personal initiative.

FREE CHRISTMAS DINNERS WENT BEGGING ALONG THE BOWERY

NEW YORK, December 26. — Christmas dinners went begging on the Bowery last night. Roast turkey with all its "trimmings," candy and mince pie failed to attract half as many hungry men as were served in former years. This was attributed to the prevalent prosperity and prohibition. The famous Bowery Mission served only 400 persons where in former years they have been called to provide for at least 15,000.

At Hadly's Rescue Hall less than 300 appeared for dinner. Many of the missions did not serve the usual Christmas repast because of the lack of applicants.

The usual Christmas noon-hour dinner at the McCauley Water Street Mission was postponed until to-night because of the lack of applicants. Not a man apepared at noon although 400 pounds of turkey, and many other good things had been prepared. A few years ago it was not unusual for the mission to feed 1500 but to-night less than 300 hungry men appeared.

Outside the Bowery Christmas cheer was spread into many humble homes on the east side and the poorer sections of New York by different organizations, institutions and individuals. Christmas dinners and gifts were distributed to every needy family that could be located.

The Salvation Army furnished a bountiful Christmas dinner to more than 3,000 families.

KOLCHAK HAMPERED BY OUTBREAK OF REVOLUTIONS AMONG SIBERIANS

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Dec. 27.—Admiral Kolchak, head of the All-Russian Government in Siberia, apparently faces a critical situation, according to Moscow advices. Bolshevik forces, advancing eastward along the trans-Siberian railroad from Omsk, former capital of the All-Russian regime, are said to have captured Tomsk and Triga and to have occupied a number of smaller towns in that region.

Admiral Kolchak and his cabinet left Tomsk recently, retiring to the east, but reports received here indicate that the retreat of the All-Russian armies may be cut off as a result of the action of social revolutionary elements which have set up a new government at Chermekov, about eighty miles north-west of Irkutsk. Further east another centre of rebellion has developed in Amurriver Valley, Blagovestchensk being isolated from the outside world according to despatches.

Premier Pepeliaeff, of the Kolchak government, is absent from Irkutsk, being on his way to meet Admiral Kolchak for the formation of a new ministry. Foreign Minister Tretickoff also left recently to meet General Semenoff, Cossack leader. Taking advantage of the priacipal members of the government, Socialists according to advices, organized an insurrection. It is considered doubtful here whether Admiral Kolchak will find anything of his government when he finally gets to Irkutsk. His present whereabout is not definitely known.

FOCH WILL DECLARE CANDIDACY FOR SENATE

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, Dec. 27.—Marshal Foch has informed the Republican Committee of Finisterre that he will decline the offer of candidacy to the Senate which was recently offered to him, according to the Matin.

The Ex-Crown Prince, it is said, will be charged with criminal offences, including looting and robbery with violence committed in France. There appears to have been no further decision reached at the conference with regard to the case of former Emperor William. It was stated that a full list of men whose surrender will be demanded, has been completed.

WARFARE ON CIGARETTE

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH SINGLES OUT ERSTWHILE AID OF SOLDIER'S FOR SPECIAL ATTENTION IN 1920 SOCIAL CRUSADE.

HAS SWEEPING PROGRAM

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—The Presbyterian church to-day entered the fight to bring world-wide prohibition and abolish the cigaret. In its annual programme of reform, made public through the Board of Temperance and Moral Welfare here to-day. The church announced it would work for the following: Elimination of the brewer and distiller in foreign fields, abolition of the cigaret, regulation of theatres and dancing, study of marriage and divorce problems, christianization and humanization of penal institutions, closer supervision over moving pictures, elimination of social diseases, use of narcotic drugs and the use of alcohol in the home.

The church has set aside $50,000 to start its fight against brewers and distillers in foreign mission fields, it was announced, and has sent the Rev. Jno. Steele, Associate Secretary of the Board to England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales to aid in the prohibition fight. An "especial target for attack will be the cigaret, which became so firmly entrenched during the war." The Board's announcement declared that President J. H. Dickason, formerly of Worcester College, has been selected to lead this crusade, and already has started a series of lectures against the "fag." The Board's headquarters is in Pittsburg, with Dr. Chas. Scanlon as general secretary.

CANADA'S FARMERS GETTING TOGETHER

(Special to Examiner.)

SASKATOON, Sask., Dec. 27. — With the approach of the annual convention of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association, the first since the organized farmers of the west decided to enter the political field, interest is centering on the programme which the [illegible] will consider. While it has not been fully completed one outside speaker at least has been decided on in the person of Hon. E. C. Drury, the premier of Ontario. The dates for the annual convention are Feb. 10 to 13. On Jan. 6 the Canadian Council of Agriculture will meet in Winnipeg as an interprovincial conference of the farmers of Canada at which the relationship of the various farmers' organizations in the different provinces in connection with political activity will be considered.

The annual convention of the United Farmers of Alberta will be held at Calgary on Jan. 20 to 23, and the Manitoba Grain Growers will meet at Brandon about the same time. In Saskatchewan considerable thought is being given by the Grain Growers' Executive to propaganda work among the non-English and an effort is also being made for spreading the propaganda of the association in the University and other institutions.

At the age of sixty-five, Sir Arthur Pinero, who is coming to New York to conduct rehearsals for one of his plays, holds away as the leading English playwright. Few dramatists have had so many successes since he took London by torm with "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" a quarter of a century ago. Sir Arthur takes immense pains over all his plays, is exceedingly patient, and will coach the dullest actor for hours at a time until his performance expresses the author's conception.

King Albert of the Belgians continues a custom inaugurated by the late King Leopold of becoming godfather to every seventh son born in Brussels. In carrying out the old usage he once had some difficulty because the seventh and eighth sons were twins. He could not stand as godfather for both boys, because that would give the family two Alberts The remedy was found by Queen Elizabeth, who suggested that the Crown Prince should be the godfather to the eighth boy, who consequently received the name Leopold.

WILLIAMS

NEW SCALE PIANO

YOU would be very much interested if you could see the wood being scientifically prepared for the Williams New Scale Piano. Every inch of it goes through a special process which removes all sap and sugar. When this wood is being cut up, there is a great deal of waste, because only absolutely flawless pieces can measure up to the standard we have maintained during many years for Williams Pianos. The woodwork on this famous Canadian piano—not only the case, but on all the unseen parts also—will never shrink, warp or decay. The Williams is built to last a lifetime.

Write us for illustrated literature and ask any Williams dealer to show you this beautiful instrument.

CONCLUSION OF EVIDENCE IN BOWLER CASE--ARGUMENT TO-DAY

PLAINTIFF OVERCOME BY EPILEPTIC SEIZURE—WAS CARRIED FROM COURT ROOM AND DID NOT RETURN—DR. YOUNG EXPLAINED THE AFFECTS OF THE DISEASE.

The evidence in Timothy Bowler's actio nfor damages against Mrs. Edith Redman and Albert Vass was concluded yesterday afternoon at 4.30 o'clock, and the case was adjourned for argument this morning.

When he came back from overseas there wasn't much talk about the car, Bowler said after the noon adjournment.

"I saw it in the barn. Vass told me he was going to get it fixed. It wasn't fit to run into the yard."

Mr. Hall: "You didn't say to Vass, 'This is my car?'"—I thought it was mine, and think so still.

But you didn't tell him so?

Bowler didn't answer this question. He waved a hand at Mr. Hall. "You're getting me all balled up," he said.

Mr. Hall remarked that he didn't wish to examine the plaintiff if he was unable to answer.

Bowler rather drowsily admitted that he couldn't precisely recollect what was said.

Mr. Hatton addressed him an opening question in cross-examination, but Bowler fainted away. Dr. Young and Sydney Whatley lifted him off his seat on the witness stand and laid him on the floor. He was afterwards carried into Judge Huycke's withdrawing room.

It was stated that Bowler had been given an opiate to sustain him through the last stage of his examination.

Albert Vass.

Called by Mr. Hall, the defendant Albert Vass, declared that he had never mentioned the fixing of the car to Bowler.

"The car was in the barn. It was jacked up and didn't look very good. We were doing some work on it whenever we had time."

Judge Huycke: He says you said you would fix it up?—I never mentioned it.

To Mr. Hall, the defendant said Bowler had seemed to want to get rid of the car for spite.

What for?

He wouldn't give to them (Blodgetts), and wanted to give it to her before going overseas.

What did you do to induce him?

I never said anything.

Mr. Vass declared that he didn't know Bowler had money in the bank until after he had given it to Mrs. Redman. He had never had business dealings of any kind with Bowler.

Referring to young Dummitt's evidence, defendant said he wasn't acquainted with Bowler until February, 1918, and didn't know he had to go overseas until one night defendant went to Blodgett.

So at the time you heard Bowler was going overseas, Mrs. Redman wasn't working at Blodgett's? — No, she was at our place.

Mr. Vass recited friendly interchanges that had taken place between his and Blodgett's family. Mr. Blodgett used to plough for him and the Vass boys used to go over and help with the hay.

Mr. Gordon: You knew it wasn't necessary to have a bill of sale for Bowler to give his car to Mrs. Redman?—I have nothing to say. I don't know.

Was it for the reason you wanted to tighten it up so tight he couldn't get it?—No, sir.

Mr. Vass denied vehemently that he ever had a conversation at Mr. Dummitt's with Mrs. Redman about Bowler and his money.

What do you say about Mrs. Blodgett's evidence that she had told you Bowler was a thrifty boy and had money in the bank?

I don't remember anything about that.

Well, what about her statement that Mrs. Redman pulled down her hat passing Mrs. Blodgett?

She never saw us. I haven't had the chestnut horse she said she saw for three years.

Do you mean to say people didn't see you together?

People saw us, I guess.

Did you recommend Mrs. Redman to Mrs. Henderson?

No, sir.

Dr. T. W. H. Young.

Dr. Young was called at the request of Mr. Gordon, and with the consent of the Court and Mr. Hatton and Mr. Hall.

What's Timothy Bowler suffering from?

Epilepsy. That's what he had today.

What is the effect of his experience in the war?

From his life at the Front, the loss of arm and shock would intensify the attacks and make them worse.

Dr. Young said to Mr. Hall that any kind of excitement would upset his nerves and precipitate an attack. Epileptics were not as bright as ordinary persons. The disease weakens the intellect and gets worse as he grows older. The attacks become more severe and frequent as the person grows older.

Mrs. Edith Redman.

Recalled, Mrs. Redman said she had kept house for Mr. Dummitt until he married. She left on 1st February, 1918. At that time she didn't know Timothy Bowler, and declared that Mr. Vass hadn't spoken to her about Bowler. Referring to the amended statement of claim, Mr. Hatton asked how she was confidentially related to plaintiff.

She replied she had no such relationship whatever, and had used no influence to induce him to give her his money and automobile.

Mr. Gordon: I want to ask you the date of the birth of your child.

Mr. Hatton: I object that this question is not relevant to the issues.

Judge Huycke: I don't see what it has to do with it, Mr. Gordon.

Mrs. Redman said she wasn't sure, but agreed with Mr. Gordon's report of registry of birth in August, 1903.

Mr. Gordon remarked that the girl's age had been given in Court as thirteen.

Did you write anybody overseas except Timothy Bowler?—No.

Mr. Hatton: I want to ask you a leading question—how old are you? Thirty-four or thirty-five.

How old were you when your mother died?

Ten. I kept house for my father.

Mrs. Maude Vass.

Dealing with the point as to whether or not Mr. Vass was present when the bill of sale was obtained at Gordon & O'Brien's office, Mr. Hatton asked Mrs. Vass what she knew of it.

She replied that Bowler and Mrs. Redman and the two Vass children left in the car to go down. Mr. Vass was at home fixing a sprayer for the orchard.

"I saw him all forenoon, till after eleven," Mrs. Vass asserted. "I don't think he left the yard."

"Did you go into the house and attend to your work?—Yes.

Did your husband tell you to bring the children to Court?

He said they would have to come.

Did you ever speak to the children about this?—No.

Thelma Vass.

Thelma Vass, eleven years old, daughter of the defendant, said she knew Tim Bowler. One time she drove in his car with him and Edith Redman and her own brother. They went to the corner of Hunter and George Streets. Tim and Edith went upstairs. Half an hour later they came down with a man and went across the road. Thelma said she had not gone to school that day because it was wet. Her father had stayed at home.

Mr. Gordon: Nobody knew what you were going to say here until you came?—No.

Arthur Vass.

Arthur Vass, 15 years of age, said he had not been attending school for two years because of illness. His evidence paralleled his sister's. He added that his mother did not tell him he had to come to Court this morning. His father told him some days ago.

Did you read the papers about this case?—No.

You never mentioned it to anybody in your house or heard it mentioned?—No.

When they went home last week from Court they never talked of the case?—No.

MADAME ARTHUR BEAUCHER

805 Cartier St., Montreal.

"I suffered terribly from Constipation and Dyspepsia for many years. I felt pains after eating and had gas, constant headache, and was unable to sleep at night. I was getting so thin that I was frightened and saw several physicians who, however, did not seem able to help me.

At last a friend advised me to take 'Fruit-a-tives'.* I did so and soon I felt some relief. I continued with 'Fruit-a-tives' and in a short time, the Constipation was banished, I felt no more pains or headache or the disagreeable sensations that follow dyspepsia. *Now I am well, strong and vigorous."

SUNDAY SCHOOL HELD CONCERT

INTERESTING PROGRAMME PROVIDED—THE SPEAKERS.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 26.—The Sunday School of the Methodist Church held their annual Christmas entertainment in the basement of the church on Christmas night. The large room was prettily decorated and filled to capacity. Rev. S. F. Dixon was in the chair, and made a few remarks in opening the programme. He hoped they all had had a merry Christmas, and was glad to take the opportunity of thanking the congregation for temporarily releasing him for the work he has been called on to do in connection with the Forward Movement. The work, while very strenuous, is bringing forth great results.

Mr. Sparling, of Lindsay (a business man), is acting as a supply, and a supply has also been arranged for January.

The following is the programme:

Chairman's address.
Chorus—Little Tots.
Prayer.
Piano solo—Miss Loloa Waldon.
Recitation—Sherman Hill, Jr.
Song—Emerson Kemp.
Recitation—Jack English.
Recitation—Jack Flynn.
Recitation and song — "Christmas Candles," Four little girls.
Recitation—Teddy Leonard.
Duet—Hannah Webster and Letta Nixon.
Recitation—Hilda Boyce.
Recitation—Patrick Dixon.
Song—"Tippy-Toes," Twelve girls and six boys.
Recitation—Elwood Dunford.
Recitation—Emerson Kemp.
Drill—The Christmas Crackers, by Twelve boys.
Recitation—Stanley Darling.
Song—"The Holly and Mistletoe Fairies," Six girls.
Recitation—Olive Dunford.
Dialogue—Seven girls.
Song — "Sweetheart Lad." Eight girls.
Recitation—"Beautiful Stories."
Flag Drill—Sixteen young girls.
Song — "Christmas Eats." Five Boys.
Recitation—Miss Ura Dunford.
Song and tableau—"My Old Kentucky Home."
Dialogue — "The Home Guards," by Miss Clara Doidge, Miss Alice Hill, Miss Grace Burke, Mrs. Theodore Crawford, Misses Effie Webster, Elmeta Hull, Myrtle Payne, and Mrs. McConkey.
"God Save the King."

The financial returns were most gratifying, and teachers and children are to be congratulated on their good entertainment.

SPECIAL SERVICES HELD IN LAKEFIELD

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 26. — Service was held in St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church at 11 a.m. on Christmas morning, commemorating the festival of the Nativity of our Lord.

On Christmas Day two celebrations of the Holy Communion were held in St. John's Church—one at 8.30 a.m. and one at 10.30 a.m.

The church was decorated for Christmas by the Chancel Guild, and looked its best with Christmas greens in the windows and quantities of wreathing.

Rev. (Dr.) Archbold, rector of the church, was in charge of both services. The 10.30 celebration was mainly choral, and was splendidly attended. The anthem, "Arise, Shine," was sung by the choir during the offertory.

Christmas Tree.

The Presbyterian Sunday School had an old-fashioned Christmas tree for the children on Tuesday evening, which proved a great success. The evening, which included a short programme, was informal, and was enlivened by the presence of Santa Claus, who distributed the gifts and was popular as that delightful old gentleman always is. A substantial freewill offering was taken up.

Zero Weather.

The thermometer registered 16 degrees below zero at the residence of Mr. Robert Carter at six o'clock on Christmas morning.

Matrimony is a school in which women unlearn most of the things they know about men.

PRESENTATION TO MR. J. HARDACRE

The employees of the Weaving Department of the Auburn Mills plant, Canadian Woollens, showed their appreciation of the good qualities of their foreman, Mr. J. Hardacre, by presenting him with a handsome smoking set and the following address:

Mr. J. Hardacre: We would like to take this opportunity of expressing to you our many good wishes, and also to thank you for the great interest you have always shown in our work during the past year.

We all realize that at time you have a great many difficulties to overcome bu we find that you have never been too busy to give us your undivided attention which we assure you has been very much apprehiated, and we ask you to accept this smoker's set so that when your days' work is over and you are sitting down tired, and sometimes weary, you can enjoy a good pipe of tobacco and feel that it is not such a tough world after all.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season and again thanking you for your interest shown.

MAKE SURE OF IT.

The by-law to assist the Canadian Aladdin Company by giving them a free site and fixed assessment for ten years is a measure that should be enthusiastically supported when it comes before the ratepayers on New Year's Day.

This very promising company, the parent branch of which, located at Bay City, Michigan, employs five hundred hands, has for several years been engaged in business in Ontario, and so rapidly has it developed that it becomes necessary to locate a manufacturing plant in the Province. Peterborough has been fortunate enough in presenting the claims of this city in such a manner that the company has been induced to come here, provided the by-law to be voted on next Thursday is carried by the electors.

The Canadian Aladdin Company are to build a factory here 100 by 200 feet, and to have the plant in operation by the first of next September. From 30 to 40 men will be employed at the commencement, and it is to be expected that this number will be considerably augmented in the course of a short time, inasmuch as the business of the company gives promise of rapid development.

The coming of the Canadian Aladdin Company means much to Peterborough, and every ratepayer is urged to help to make sure of the gaining of this industry by a favourable vote in New Year's Day.

A RIFT IN THE LUTE.

Premier Drury and the members of his Government are experiencing some of the bitterness of practical politics after a few weeks' enjoyment of an unexpected capture of the reins of government. The outburst of the United Farmers' Clubs in West and North Middlesex over the action of Attorney-General Raney in promoting Miss Minnie Walker, of London, to a position as registrar at a salary of $3,500 a year is a rift in the lute of the Farmers' party that is undoubtedly causing the members of the Cabinet some anxious moments. The Government's stand on the appointment is that Miss Walker, who was the assistant to the late registrar, is competent and qualified for the position, and that in view of the attitude of himself and his associates against the patronage evil, there was no other course to follow than to adopt the principle of promotion and select Miss Walker for the position. On the other hand, the United Farmers' Clubs in Middlesex protest bitterly that the course taken by Mr. Raney was high-handed and an abuse of the principles of responsible government. The Farmers' Clubs declare that they should have been consulted as to the appointment; Mr. Drury maintains that to have done so would have meant a slump into the old patronage system.

The result of the controversy will be awaited with interest. The success or failure of the Drury administration may depend upon the manner in which the issue is handled. A yielding to the pressure from the local Farmers' Club means that the new agrarian party has decided to play party politics as they have always been played. On the contrary, if the Government stands firm, it will be a sign that they are determined to place appointments on a higher plane than has been the case. To give Premier Drury his due, there has been as yet no signs of weakening on his part.

SUPPOSE FARMERS STRIKE?

Labour radicals in the industrial centres speak and act as if the world depended entirely upon them, while they are independent of everything and everybody. Here is an editorial from a Western paper, "Successful Farming," which should convince even the most unthinking radical that he and his are dependent upon society as a whole, and without it he would starve, freeze, or go naked. The editorial in part follows:

"We ask city workers to ponder a moment what might happen if the farmers should do what the workers are doing—demanding shorter hours and higher pay. The farmers are their own bosses, so they would not quarrel with anybody. They could hold out on strike until they got good and ready, for they can feed themselves.

"You working fellows, suppose for a moment that the farmers adopted the eight-hour day. It would cut down production at least half. Suppose they also set a price on their labour and their products based on an eight-hour basic scale. Where would you get your food? Only the rich could buy it at all, for the price would be prohibitive to men on strike. If the cost of living is too high now, how will lessened production affect it? How will increased cost of production bring down prices?

"If you city workers expect the farmers to go on feeding you at the old price, you have got to get back to work at the old wage and make it possible for the farmer to buy cheaper so he can produce cheaper. This is not a one-sided game. It takes two to play it, and if you city fellows quit, don't get sore if you go hungry soon. Either the farmers must do as you are doing, shorten the hours and demand higher pay, or else they must lengthen the hours and produce more without more pay.

"The farmers have been patient with you. When they lose their patience, look out. If they quit, who is going to feed you? What city workers have in common with farmers is not so much political as economic. What are you going to do about it?"

In many countries of Europe food production this year was half the usual amount, because farmers could not plant the average crops. Relief societies are now trying to save the children from starvation and tuberculosis. In the radical's heaven—Russia—farmers have gone on strike and refused to produce more than sufficient for their own needs. Possession of a piece of bread is now something to fight for.

A CANADIAN ACE.

Canadians will deeply regret the death in Toronto, as a result of an automobile accident, one of Canada's cleverest and bravest aviators, in the person of Major McKeever, of Listowel. Major McKeever, while his name is not as well known to his fellow Canadians as were those of Col. Bishop and Col. Barker, was one of the finest air fighters thta the Dominion sent to the Royal Air Force. He was the hero of many a thrilling and hard-fought battle, and was officially credited with having destroyed no fewer than forty-two enemy machines. His gallantry won him many decorations and the fine distinction of being recommended by the British government for the position of director of the United States' airdrome at Mineola at a salary of $10,000 a year. This appointment Major McKeever had just received and he was to have gone to the United States as soon as he recovered from his injuries. Like the ill-fated Sir John Alcock, however, the Canadian ace met a tragic death just as he had reached the pinnacle of success. The name of McKeever should be a house hold one in Canada. No braver or more gallant knight of the air ever did battle with the enemy than this valorous flyer from Listowel

APPOINT SOLDIERS.

That the United Farmers should appoint returned soldiers to vacant government positions and thus avoid the clash that has occurred in Middlesex is the contention of the Toronto Telegram.

Ontario will support a direct and simple method of civil service reform and abolition of patronage, says the Telegram. The party in power should appoint on merit and assume responsibility for its appointments. The party that goes into power should not dismiss or disturb the appointees of other parties, provided that these appointees are doing their duty.

The issue as to the registrarship of Middlesex was not dodged by Hon. E. C. Drury and Hon. W. E. Raney. The U. F. O. party is like other parties, supported by human beings. These human beings would sooner apply for jobs than have the principles of their platform applied to the disadvantage of the U.F.O. party men. If the U.F.O. Government wishes to start a general reformation let the Drury Government demand the abolition of registrarships and other sinecures that pay large salaries to the pensioners who hold the office and small wages to the subordinates who do the work. If $3,500 registrarships and other sinecures are to be continued, let these appointments go to returned soldiers and not be filled either by promotion or by the appointment of civilians inside or outside the U.F.O.

THE PARK BY-LAW.

As the date of voting draws near, the certainty that the by-law to authorize the purchase of Riverside Park and the property immediately north, by the city, seems to be assured. The ratepayers are apparently not slow to recognize the fact that a large sum of money would have to be paid out for land damages to the property owners in any case and that therefore it is good business to purchase the property. Neither are they failing to appreciate that the by-law gives the sole remaining chance of preserving a section of the water front for the people. The banks on both sides of the river have been allowed to get into private hands and unless the present opportunity is taken advantage of there will be no public land on the Otonabee from Inverlea Park south. Many citizens have within the past few days crossed the temporary bridge over the river to familiarize themselves with the park situation, and the majority of them have come away enthusiastic over the possibilities that the property offers. It does not require a landscape gardener to visualize what can be accomplished there in making a public park that will be a boon to the people the summer long. The location on the river and in the central portion of the city, is conceded as an ideal one, and it is no wonder that those who have taken the trouble to inspect the property for themselves are warm advocates for passing the park by-law. The interest and enthusiasm are growing as New Year's Day approaches and it will be the wish of every citizen who realizes the advantages to be gained by Peterborough in the securing of this property that the enthusiasm will take tangible form in the polling of a big majority in favour of the by-law.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A good New Year's resolution would be to forget that importation of liquor into Ontario is permissible after that date.

Another would be to start the New Year right by exercising your franchise in the municipal elections.

The Globe points out that the Union Government has made it unnecessary for the Citizens' Liberty League to nominate candidates in the next general election.

Mr. Russell Copping, who is one of the candidates for the council board, taken a great interest in municipal matters and has been a member of the City Planning committee of the Board of Trade. He is in a position to devote much of his time to the city's interests.

PRESENTATION OF KNIVES AND FORKS

A presentation and te following address were made to Miss Mesley, of the Quaker Oats Company:

Dear Miss Mesley,

We, the employees of the Package Dept. of the Quaker Oats Co., desire to express to you our appreciation of your services in our midst. You have always manifested a kindly, patient spirit in the performance of your duties, and been ever ready to cheerfully render a helping hand in our times of difficulty.

Sometimes, we fear, our thoughtlessness has caused you worry, which we regret, and trust you will overlook—hoping that the same pleasant relations which have existed during the time you have been with us shall extend throughout the coming year.

We feel we could not allow this festive season to pass without, in some tangible way, showing our appreciation of your faithful service. We now ask you to accept this slight token as an assurance of our love and respect for you.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Signed on behalf of the employees of the Package Dept. of the Quaker Oats Co.,—Celia Wilson, Muriel Armour, Elsie Northcott.

RUSSIAN SOVIET ENVOY ON HIS WAY HOME

PARIS, Dec. 26.—A Russian Soviet envoy, charged with a special mission to the Italian government, arrived at Naples yesterday, according to a despatch received here from Rome.

Gave Him Away.

With a stormy look on his face, the master of the house waylaid the servant in the kitchen.

"Look here," he began angrily, "how dare you tell my wife what time I came home this morning, after I had told you not to?"

The Irish girl eyed him steadily.

"Shure, an' Oi didn't!" she replied calmly. "She asked me phwat toime yez came in, an' Oi only towld her that Oi was too busy gettin' the breakfast ready to look at the clock."—London Mail.

HOME-MADE BREAD

Home bread-making reduces the high cost of living by lessening the amount of expensive meats required to supply the necessary nourishment to the body. The increased nutritious value of bread made in the home with

ROYAL YEAST CAKES

should be sufficient incentive to the thoughtful housewife to give this important food item the attention to which it is justly entitled. Bread made with Royal Yeast will keep fresh and moist longer than that made with any other.

SANDRA THE JEALOUS

BY JANE PHELPS

"PLAYING SECOND FIDDLE" IS SANDRA'S ONE WORRY.

CHAPTER VI.

Rose Grandon cried when I told her that I was going to marry Everett. And she too said something about "playing second fiddle" and about a man "always loving the first wife best," and a lot of things like that, not a bit calculated to make me comfortable, let alone happy.

Then Rose cried some more because she would be so lonesome without me. I told her she should come and visit Everett and me and that I would find her a husband, so she could live near me. That comforted her a little especially when I said that of coprse we would live right next door to each other.

"However will your father and mother get along without you?" she asked. "It will be awful to have just boys in the house."

"Oh, they shall visit us a lot too. Then I shall come home ever so often." I had all sorts of faith in the idea that a married woman could do as she pleased. I would be able to invite people whenever I wished. It was only one of the many things I had to learn, that even being married does not allow one to do as as they want to do—not always.

"Perhaps, he, Mr. Graham, won't let you do as you want to," Rose's voice held a donbt. "He may not like company, young company." She waited a minute: "He may have older friends of his own he would rather entertain."

"I guess he will come pretty near letting me do as I want to. He is crazy to marry me."

"Yes, why shouldn't he be? A nice young girl like you. But he may not be so crazy to give you your own way—not after he is sure of you. Honest Sandra, I don't think that I would marry a widower. The ghost of his firstwife would haunt me. I should be everlastingly thinking that he cared more for her and if I loved him itwoul d drive me crazy. No Sandra, you are welcome to your rich old man."

I have a notion that a young untried girl is a good deal like a book with its leaves uncut. A man takes her with a thrill of possession; but just what is in her he does not know. It may be that she will be interesting and able to hold his interest once it it is aroused. Or it may be that each page as it is perused grows harder to read ,his thoughts wander and will not concentrate because of the lack of action or because of the wonderful sameness in the story. Women, young women especially ,are so anxious to be everything all at once that they leave no page unturned, nothing fresh and new with which to stir a jaded appetite.

Then too I had no conception that there were men to whom a woman with a woman's heart and mind, a woman's feelings and desires, were more attractive than any young girl immature and uninteresting, could possibly be Women who had been broadened by experience, who had lived and who knew how to make of themselves ideal companions to a man of the world and- who possessed brains.

The young girl never is satisfied with what a man can give her of himself even though it may be all that he has to give. She must needs dig deep into his past, worry and annoy him with questions as to what he did. and what he did not do before she knew him. When if she would take him for what he was, let his past be his past, and try to take all the present goods he brings her, she might be very happy, instead of —as is often the case—being utterly miserable.

But I have learned all this. Learned it by an experience that has moved me to tell my story to others. Whatever mistakes I have made have been honestly made, yet they were mistakes all the same.

Everett left Lakeville the day after he gave me my ring. He wasn't coming again until he came for me in October. We were to be married on the tenth. Mother tried to have him wait until the spring. I should be 19 in February and she thought me too young to marry. But dad joined with Everett and declared that there was no use in waiting. He and my mother had both been under 20 when they were married. And he said he didnt' see but what they had got along all right.

"Yes, dear," mother's gentle voice replied, "but we were boy and girl together." But in spite of her objections it was settled that we were to be married on the tenth.

I was a little frightened, a little anxious, but also a bit eager for this unknown life opening before me.

"SWAT THE COLD" —A HEALTH SLOGAN

HEALTH AUTHORITIES ARE BACK OF CAMPAIGN WHICH COVERS ENTIRE CONTINENT.

The familiar "Swat the Fly" slogan is now being revised by health authorities and the public is being advised to "Swat the Cold" in winter as heartily as they "swatted" the fly in summer.

Behind the movement is the desire to check the possible spread of 'flu by the prompt treatment of every case of cold. The symptoms of the 'flu in its early stages are the same as those of a bad cold and last year the 'flu reached an advanted stage in many cases before the patient realized that the trouble was more serious than a cold.

"If every person would get busy as soon as a cold develops and use home remedies to break it up, we wouldn't hear so much about the 'flu," says one Eastern official. "It would do wonders and that quickly."

Colds in the head or the 'flu in its early stages are promptly and effectively treated at home by the use of Grip Fix. This is not a patient medicine but a combination of drugs such as would be used by any physician. It comes in capsule form and relieves a cold in the night and acts promptly in case of Grippe.

At this time of the year every home should have a box of Grip Fix. It is on sale at all drug stores, where it sells for 35 cents per box. (Advt.)

Many church steeples in this country are covered with copper, one beinug that of St. Sidwell, in Exeter. The spire, which is covered with sheet copper, was added eighty years ago, the metal being taken from an old man-of-war broken up at Devonport.

Every sanitary kitchen should have a dish-strainer.

INFLAMED GUMS— THE CAUSE OF TOOTH-BASE DECAY

Just as the strength of a building is dependent upon its foundations, so are healthy teeth dependent upon healthy gums.

Permit the gums to become inflamed or tender and you weaken the foundation of the teeth. This condition is called Pyorrhea (Riggs' Disease). Loosening of teeth is a direct result. And spongy, receding gums invite painful tooth-base decay. They act, too, as so many doorways for disease germs to enter the system—infecting the joints or tonsils—or causing other ailments.

Pyorrhea (Riggs' Disease) attacks four out of five people who are over forty. And many under that age, also. Its first symptom is tender gums. So you should look to your gums! Use Forhan's, which positively prevents Pyorrhea if used in time and used consistently. It also scientifically cleans the teeth—keeps them white and clean. Brush your teeth with it.

If gum-shrinkage has already set in, start using Forhan's and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

RURAL MAIL CONTRACTOR IN PORT HOPE MAKES SAD DISCOVERY.

PORT HOPE, December 26.—When Mr. Beattie, the contractor for the rural mail delivery from Port Hope, went to his stables here, he found the body of one of his drivers, Wilfrid Payne, hanging from the ladder leading to the hay loft His parents live in Newtonville but he has been boarding in Port Hope for some time. Deceased was only 21 years of age and had been rejected for overseas service. Recently he had been in failing health and on Wednesday night he showed signs of despondency. Payne had been in the Port Hope Hospital up until last week, being treated for rheumatism. The deceased left his boarding house at 7.30 in the morning and then went straight to the stables. Using one of the reins he fastened it around one of the rungs of the ladder and when found by Mr. Beattie was beyond medical aid. The inquest was adjourned.

Secrecy in Parliament.

Heavy penalties are inflicted for the revelation of parliamentary secret session or cabinet decisions, but they cannot well be heavier than those which the parliament of Henry VII. inflicted for a similar offense. One member of the house of commons was foolish enough to tell the king himself what the commons had been debating. He was sent to the tower, and a special act of parliament was passed by which he and his posterity were barred from sitting in the house of commons as the "representative of any place whatever." In the days of Queen Elizabeth a certain Mr. Hall, M. P., was found guilty of revealing the debates in the commons. He was expelled from the house, sent to the Tower for six months and fined £500—a considerable fortune in those days.—London Spectator.

Dark Nebulae.

A new astronomical belief is that there are not only dark stars in space, but dark nebulae. The dark stars are invisible, revealing themselves only by their effect on the motion or light of bright stars, but dark nebulae may be visible as unlighted masses showing against the feebly luminous background of space. Professor E. E. Barnard notes that many striking dark patches of sky hitherto supposed to be simply starless regions may be really dark nebulae. The case of Hind's nebula in Taurus, which is now feebly visible after completely fading away from a state of conspicuous brilliancy shows that a nebula may lose its light, and perhaps many have never had any light.

DUFFUS GARAGE

WHAT AND WHY IS

Group Insurance?

It is an inexpensive means of insuring the lives of all your employees individually by a single small premium.

It involves no medical inspection and it costs about 75 cents a month for each $1,000, of insurance carried.

It has arisen from the desire of business firms to do something substantial for their employees, and so promote goodwill and avoid constant changes in the payroll.

It has been widely adopted by far-seeing industrial executives.

ACTIVATED SLUDGE SYSTEM OF SEWAGE DISPOSAL IN EXPERIMENTAL STAGE YET

CITY ENGINEER PARSONS CONTENDS THAT IMHOFF SYSTEM IS MORE SUITABLE FOR PETERBORO—WOULD PERMIT SAVING IN COST OF MAINTENANCE.

DECISION RESTS WITH ONTARIO HEALTH BOARD

Peterborough's prepossession for the Imhoff type of sewage disposal plant runs counter to the activated sludge system preferred by A. F. Dallyn, sanitary engineer for the Provincial Board of Health. This conflict of opinion was discussed by the Board of Health last night and because of the economic factors emphasized by City Engineer Parsons the members are anxious that their wishes should prevail. A deputation composed of Mayor Duncan, Ald. Phelan and Mr. Parsons will again interview the Provincial Board on Monday, and Mr. Parsons hopes to enlist the support of Prof. Peter Gillespie of Toronto University, who has been over the proposed site of the local plant, and who has been an "Imhoff man."

The plans prepared by Mr. Parsons must be approved by both the Ontario Railway Board and the Provincial Board of Health, but the Board of Works recognizes that Mr. Dallyn's decisions are accepted and implemented by both the provincial bodies. Hence, the deputation will try to persuade him that the Imhoff system is the more suitable for Peterborough.

Mr. Parsons remarked last night that one of the largest Imhoff tanks in the United States was opened in Albany, N.Y., four months ago, and Hamilton's latest disposal plant is of the same system.

Ald. Turner suggested that if this city's case were put before Mr. Dallyn he would probably consider it favourably, but Mr. Parsons replied that this had already been done.

Heavy Cost of Power.

Answering Ald. Crowe, Mr. Parsons stated that the activated sludge plant was the coming system, but it was still in the experimental stage. It was cheaper to build, but its maintenance was higher. Motors were required in its operation and consequently skilled help. Mr. Parsons estimated that the charges for electric power would alone amount to $6,000 a year, apart from the cost of pumping. This would be avoided with an Imhoff.

One member remarked that Mr. Dallyn apparently wanted to make an experiment in Peterborough. The city's claims for special consideration by the Board of Health will be presented as strongly as possible on Monday.

Ald. Turner moved, seconded by Ald. Edgar, that Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald be employed to make a description of the Wilson property and to have it ready as soon as possible.

ENTERTAINMENT AT SOUTH BURLEIGH

A PRESENTATION TO MRS. CHURCH —THE PROGRAMME.

A very successful entertainment was held in the Haultain school on Friday, December 5th, under the auspices of the Mount Julian Women's Institute. Mr. I. D. Church ably filled the position as chairman.

Before the programme commenced a presentation was made to Mrs. I. D. Church for services as secretary for the South Burleigh Cheese Factory.

The Address.

The following address was read by Mrs. Albert Reid, and the presentation made by Mr. Wm. McCauley, president of the cheese factory:

Haultain, Dec. 5th, 1919.

Dear Mrs. Church,— We, the patrons and interested friends of the South Burleigh cheese factory, have not let these thirteen years of faithfulness and capable service which you have rendered us, in the capacity of secretary, pass by unnoticed. Indeed, we have often thought of how favored we have been in having the services of one so able and faithful to perform such an important duty.

We have for a long time desired to find some way of expressing our appreciation of such valued service, and while we do not think that in handing you this little token, we are in any way relieving ourselves of our obligations to you, yet we thought that some little token would tend to show you that we had appreciated your services and had learned to esteem you highly.

We not only appreciated you as the secretary of our factory, but our associations with you in other ways have caused us to have a very high regard for you, and we trust that we will be spared the pleasure of long continued associations, and hope you will always find us to be your valued friends.

Try Making Your Own Cough Remedy

You can save about $2, and have a better remedy than the ready-made kind. Easily done.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made and saves easily $2. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

FIGHT JAILERS FOR PRISONERS

VISITORS, AFTER EXCHANGING GREETINGS WITH OFFICIALS, OVERPOWER THEM.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Dec. 27.—One of the most daring jail deliveries ever accomplished in this part of the country occurred here when six men called at the county jail, exchanged Christmas greetings with three Deputy Sheriffs on duty, overpowered them in a cell and locked them in a cell, then liberated four notorious burglars and safe-blowers.

In the fight that followed the arrival of the visitors, Leo Noonan, a deputy, was shot through the left breast. Hearing the commotion, Sheriff John Mathias rushed from bed to investigate and was promptly carried off to the cellar and imprisoned.

The ten men then walked leisurely out of the jail, and although an alarm was quickly given, no trace of them had been found late today.

The four men at large are Edward Meehan, alias D. E. West, 30; known nationally as a safe-blower.

Albert Leach, safe burglar, known to police under six aliases.

Leo Mitchell, with eleven aliases; safe-blower.

Frank Howard, alias Albert Johnson, alias Whitey, safe-blower and burglar.

THEY'D BE ELECTED SURE.

"If the voting public had the same high opinion of them as they have of themselves, all of the municipal candidates would be elected!" remarked a man at a nomination meeting.—Toronto Telegram.

VETERANS HELD CHRISTMAS TREE

SANTA CLAUS MAKES A HIT IN LAKEFIELD.

LAKEFIELD, December 27. —The G. W. V. A. here their first annual Christmas tree for the children of soldiers on Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 in the Veterans' rooms. A committee from the Womans' Auxiliary, assisted the Veterans' Committee and together made the afternoon one which will be long remembered. The rooms were prettily decorated with Christmas greens, flags and paper decorations made and donated by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Fairbairn. The tree which was loaded with presents was cut down and donated by little Miss Mary McFadden. Santa Claus gave a couple of hours of his precious time and though his sleigh had broken down and had to be left with the reindeer at Buckhorn, Santa "chanced" it in and arrived in good time. He walked down from the Lakefield house accompanied by the welcoming committee of Veterans.

The children greeted his appearance with a lusty cheer and after a short speech he distributed the gifts. Ninety-two children were remembered includin gthe infants. The youngest being the two months' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Watley.

The Veterans' Christmas tree will be an annual event and a very popular one if the first one is a fair sample.

BARS WEDDING CONFETTI.

English Vicar Will Not Marry Couples Covered With It.

MARYPORT, England, Dec. 26.—The vicar of the parish here, Rev. J. A. Richards, strongly disapproves of showering confetti on bridal parties when they are entering the church to be married. Writing in his parish magazine he says:

"A right-thinking people must realise how unseemly it is for a couple to stand before the altar on their wedding day literally dripping with confetti. The practice is also unkind. The wedding day is a great event in a girl's life. Much time and money have been expended on costumes. The bride and bridesmaids take a pride in looking at their best, and it is abominable that vulgar, brainless people should be allowed to smother them with confetti.

"Strong measures should be taken to put this down, and we wish to give notice that people covered with confetti will not be allowed to enter St. Mary's Church. They will have to come to church in a decent and fitting condition before the ceremony can proceed."

Even the self made man does not boast of his worth to the assessor.

Few People Know This

Large doses of pills for the liver are not as efficient as small doses.

The big dose purges its way through the system fast, but does not cleanse thoroughly.

The small dose (if right) acts gently on the liver, and gives it just the slight help it needs to do its own work, and do it well.

Take one pill regularly, until you know you are all right.

HOW MRS. BOYD AVOIDED AN OPERATION

Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well.

"My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for them."—Mrs. MARIE BOYD, 1621 5th St., N. E., Canton, Ohio.

Sometimes there are serious conditions where a hospital operation is the only alternative, but on the other hand so many women have been cured by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after doctors have said that an operation was necessary—every woman who wants to avoid an operation should give it a fair trial before submitting to such a trying ordeal.

If complications exist, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of many years experience is at your service.

FRANK BARBER TELEPHONED WISHES OF HAPPY NEW YEAR TO OLD COUNCIL

SAYS EAST SIDE SPANDREL WALL WILL BE COMPLETED IN GOOD TIME TO PERMIT U'E OF LUMBER ON WEST SIDE NEXT SPRING.

MR. TOWNSEND'S INTHIATION

The erection of the south spandrel wall on the east side of the Hunter street bridge was the subject of a long distance communication from Mr. Frank Barber at his home in Toronto to the Board of Works last night. Ald. Phelan explained that he had been assured that Mr. Barber would be present in person and for that reason had called the committee to discuss the completion of the week's pouring of cement in order that it would have ample time for setting, thereby releasing the lumber for an early start next spring on the west side spandrels.

This subject had been previously discussed by the Board, and when they decided to telephone to Mr. Barber last night he repeated his former reasons for not cleaning up at once the work on the east side of the river.

Mr. Barber said that the work could be done during the usual January thaw, and that there would be no delay in the spring operations nor any extra cost. As a last shot the special bridge committee will request Mr. Barber to come to Peterborough and discuss this question further.

Mr. Chas. Townsend, the constructing engineer, who was present, said if there was any delay or extra expense Mr. Barber would have to accept the responsibility.

"Wouldn't it be reasonable for us to ask for an extension of time on our contract equal to the delay," he suggested. "I don't wish to discuss anything unless Mr. Barber is present," he added.

Commenting upon a press report to the effect that the north-east spandrel wall had been poured without instructions from Mr. Barber, Mr. Townsend said his diary showed that Mr. Barber and Mr. Middlemist, engineer for the Ontario Municipal Board, were both present when that work was in progress.

City Clerk Armstrong conveyed Mr. Barber's wishes of a happy New Year to the old Council, and in conclusion Ald. Phelan thanked the members for their co-operation to him as chairman of the Board of Works.

MILK SHOULD SELL $2.75 FOR 8 GALS.

BOARD OF COMMERCE DISALLOWS PRICE INCREASE—APPEALS TO RURAL CONSCIENCE.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, Dec. 27. — Ontario's milk and cream producers are so completely organised, according to Major Duncan, M.C., of the Board of Commerce, resident representative in Toronto, that they may wield practically the power of a monopoly.

If milk prices are forced down, they may divert Toronto's milk supply into butter for export, which would create an undesirable condition, as doctors say one pint of milk per day is essential for children.

The Board of Commerce refuses an increase in price, and appeals to the consciences of milk producers to cut the price as the flow of milk increases next year.

Prof. Leitch, of the O. A. C., says efficient dairy farmres are making "considerable money" at $3.10 per eight gallon can, the present price.

"The summer price of milk was too high," says Major Duncan.

The cost of producing milk on 72 farms in Dundas County was $2.44 per hundred at the shipping point, according to Prof. Leitch.

"After the New Year the price should be $2.75 per eight gallon can, delivered at the dairy," Major Duncan contends.

43 APPLICATIONS FOR WORK, 31 WERE PLACED

At the Employment Bureau this week 43 applicaitons for work were received and 31 men placed locally and one sent to the lumber camps. Thirty-two local vacancies for men were reported.

The factory situation is increasingly acute and at present the Bureau has 52 vacancies for female workers in the local factories, also innumerable applications for maids.

LAST SERVICE OF THE YEAR AT ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

The service to-morrow evening will be of special interest, not only because it is the last service of the year 1919, but also because it is to be 'former members" and "strangers" night. There are doubtless many former members of St. Andrew's church in the city for the holiday season, and they are cordially invited to come and find their old seat if possible. The choir, under the leadership of Mr. John Crane, will be out in full force and the Christmas music will be repeated.

During his active career as a professional pianist, Paderewski, the present premier of Poland, could play from memory more than 500 compositions.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKETS

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—The market was irregular at the opening today. Utah Coppper opened at 74 3-8 off 3-8, U. R. Stores at 92 off 5-8, Studebaker at 104 3-4 up 1-4, Republic at 119 1-2 off 1-4, South Pacific at 104 1-2 up 1-4, A. T. Securities at 74 up 1-8, American Locomotive at 103 1-4 up 1-4, Mexican Petroleum at 22 o ff1-4, Central Leather at 97 7-8 unchanged, U. S. Rubber at 126 unchanged, Bethlehem Steel B. at 96 7-8 up 1-4, New York Central at 69 3-4 off 1-8, Pan-American at 105 unchanged, Reading at 76 3-4 off 3-8, and U. S. Steel at 106 1-8 up 1-8.

The market worked toward higher levels near the end of the first half hour. Motor issues, which did not share in Friday's advance were taken in hand and General Motors sold above 340. American Woollen sold as high as 135. Rails did little, with the exception of Pere Marquette, which held above 32.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.— Christmas week in securities market derived much of its occasional activity and strength from the proclamation of President Wilson directing the return of railroads on March next. The railroad situation remained under a cloud, however, because of divergence of views shown in transportation bills adopted by two branches of Congress. Trading otherwise was influenced to a considerable degree by wide fluctuations in call money, due primarily to deficit in local bank reserves and lack of public interest which generally marks the year end period. In its broader or international phases the market was restrained by further delay in formulating of the project to establish foreign credits. Exchange on London lost some of its recent improvement and Paris and Italian rates re-acted in sympathy. Advices from many centres of industry pointed more strongly to an extraordinary revival of activity in matter lines eof finished products, notably Steel and Iron, while Copper and other base metals were in greater demand.

SATURDAY MARKET PRICES LOWER

Prices at the market were considerably lower this week than last week for all farm produce.

To the Electors of North Monaghan

Ladies and Gentlemen: Having been asked by many residents of Claraday, Crawfords' Grove and Byersville Districts, I have allowed myself to be nominated for councillor for 1920. The representation of these districts in previous councils has been such that little progress was made. I would ask for your vote and influence so that I if elected, may serve and ensure greater progress. It will not be possible to make a personal canvass to all.

Yours truly,
JOHN BARNES

North Monaghan Elections

To the Electors:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—I have been again nominated for the position of Reeve for your township. During the period I have been Reeve I have given the very best service I could, and the fact that we have accomplished all the work we have without neglecting anything, and reduced the tax rate, if only slightly, during the past two years, is given as sufficient reason by many residents of North Monaghan for my being returned to the Reeve's chair.

Another reason I would give is that, having made a small start for better roads in North Monaghan, I would like to put in operation next year the plans that have been formulated for improved roads in our township.

I solicit your votes and influence in my behalf, and if elected will give the township's affairs every attention. Wishing you all a Happy and Prosperous New Year,

Yours faithfully,
John McIntosh

To the Electors of North Monoghan

Ladies and Gentlemen,— Having been nominated as Councillor for the Township for 1920, and not being in a position to make a personal canvas, may I use this means of soliciting your support, and if elected will serve all electors to the best of my ability.

To the Ratepayers of North Monaghan

Ladies and Gentlemen,—Having been pressed by many ratepayers of the Township to again stand for the office of Reeve, I have consented to stand for that office for 1920. I am not asking your support on the grounds of the promise of the Wardenship and that if elected this time it will be my last time to ask your support, nor am I handing out to you the record of having kept the same chair warm for 9 years. But, I have been in the Monaghan Council, also have held the Reeveship and leave it to you to decide as to whether my record at that time would warrant your support again. It is impossible for me to see you all personally, so take this means of saying to you that I am in the field again for the Reeveship of North Monaghan and of asking you, that if you think I can be of any service to the township to give me your support on election day, but if otherwise, then elect the man you consider best suited to the office. Ladies and gentlemen, make it a point to use your franchise on New Year's Day.

Yours for the best interests of the Township of Monaghan—

H. B. RYE

To the Electors and Ratepayers of North Monaghan

Ladies and Gentlemen,—Having decided to stay in the field and run as a Councillor for the Township, I respectfully ask for your vote and influence. If I am elected I believe the business affairs of the Council will be carried on in a way, so far as I am concerned, that would be pleasing to you all. The experience I have gained by living in the Township for the last 24 years ought to help me in deciding upon matters pertaining to the Council in a business-like way.

Wishing you all a very Happy and Prosperous New Year.

TO THE ELECTORS OF NORTH MONAGHAN

Ladies and Gentlemen:

I take this opportunity of soliciting your support for Councillor for the important township of North Monaghan, and if elected will do my utmost to prove worthy of your confidence.

Wishing you all a Happy New Year,

Yours faithfully,

3d26 27 30 R. T. LILLICO

To the Electors of North Monaghan:

Having been nominated for Deputy Reeve for said Township for coming year, and being unable to personally call on all, I take this means of announcing the fact of my acceptance of the nomination. Also the platform for which I stand. And solicit the votes and influence of all interested to ensure my election. During the two years of my experience as Councillor, I have endeavoured to advanc the interests of the Municipality by careful attention to municipal matters, also endeavouring to personally advance the interests of the citizens. I feel I can be of greater service if elected Deputy Reeve. And promise that if returned, I shall give the same careful attention to all Township affairs, keeping a special oversight of our Roads and Bridges, with due regard to the maintenance and improvement of same. In reference to appointments, I promise due consideration, having regard to economy, but more particularly to qualification. The regular routine of municipal affairs shall be carefully transacted, realising that owning to our proximity to the city of Peterborough the broadest minds and keenest intellects are required to safeguard our inheritance. As a means toward that end, I believe in Municipal Control of Hydro-Electric Utilities, and shall heartily cooperate with all efforts to secure and extend electric light and power in our urban and rural sections. I consider the extension of the Street Railway would be a valuable asset to the Municipality. I suggest for consideration the following route, diverging from the present street car line at corner of Monaghan Road and Chamberlain Street, going west along Chamberlain Street to Western Avenue, thence south to Cameron Street, thence east to Monaghan Road, a point adjacent to Crawford's Grove and the anticipated Monaghan Park, turning north to the most approved route, thence east to Park Street, continuing along McGill Street to Lock Street, linking up with present railway line. Space will not permit to enumerate the advantages of such a line. In reference to annexation with the city, I would strenuously oppose annexing the proposed area, it being a valuable asset to our Township, and should not be surrendered without remuneration. Neither should the present owners be called upon to contribute towards payment of bonds to which they were not a consenting party, and which were expended for utilities in which they cannot expect to benefit. As to the destiny of the more congested portion, particularly Byersville, I consider the many active and shrewd business men qualified to determine what is best for themselves, having due regard to the probable mandate of the Provincial Board of Health re sewer connection. The Provincial solution of the housing problem is worthy of consideration, and should receive the hearty co-operation of our Reeve and Deputy Reeve. If elected I shall advocate uniting with the Board of Trade of the City of Peterborough; the co-operation with the City Council in a campaign to secure additional manufactures, for which Monaghan has abundant and attractive sites. I extend the compliments of the season to all. And again solicit the support of all to ensure my elec-

Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. Voice Of The People

Re the election of Aldermen:

Ladies and Gentlemen: Allow me to suggest, although New Year's Day is a holiday and all are enjoying themselves in having their relatives and friends to dinner at one and another's house, I suggest that every one who has a vote to turn out and vote, as the voting was very low last year, not half the people voting according to the count of the ballots.

And now as Mr. G. N. Gordon is a candidate for alderman I sincerely hope and trust that those who are looking forward for a better and improved city, and a more industrial city, that they will mark their X for Mr. G. N. Gordon, a gentleman of business and also a man that I consider takes more interest in the development of this city than any alderman. But we don't know all that he has done, for he is not a man who blows or shouts, "I did this," or "I did that." Think of the bathing places. Who made the first proposal to have swimming places for the children? Was it not Mr. Gordon? Why yes. Again, who was it worked so hard for the Aladdin Company, and other industries to start business in this city? It was Mr. Gordon. And I will also say that Mr. Gordon will have good economic municipal government.

Trusting, ladies and gentlemen voters, that Mr. G. N Gordon will be favored with your vote, allow me the final suggestion and that is we bring Mr G. N. Gordon in with a sweeping majority, and all the best of good wishes for a Happy New Year.

LUX.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir: I note that Mr. C. E. Sisson is a candidate for the Utilities Commission and am delighted to think that we will have an opportunity to vote for a man of his experience, mental calibre, and well known integrity of character. We have on the Commission at present a lawyer and a merchant and it is self evident that with the big engineering problems which the Commision have to face, involving the expenditure of large sums of money it is essential that a man of the business experience along engineering lines, such as Mr. Sisson possesses, should be on the Commission. Now is the time for the citizens to put the right man in the right place.

Yours truly,
Progressive Peterborough.

Dear Sir: An explanation is due to the workingmen of the City of Peterborough as to why Mr. E. F. Mason was not nominated as a candidate for the Utilities Commission. He was endorsed by the Trades and Labour Council, and something peculiar has taken place which should be explained by the Committee who recommended the Trades and Labor candidate.

In addition to that I think Mr. G. N. Gordon should have been endorsed. For a great many years he has been a faithful friend to the workingman Personally I know of many cases where he has stood up for the man who had to work, and he will always tell what he thinks, and fight for what he believes is right. I think the Trades and Labor Council made a mistake in not endorsing Mr. Gordon too, because everyman in the shop where I am working intends to vote for him.

Yours truly,
WORKMAN.

Peterborough, Dec. 26th, 1919.
Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,— May I be allowed, through the columns of your paper to express my thanks to the writer of the article on "Technical Education." The introduction of this into the schools and training centres of Peterborough would, I am certain, answer a long-felt want in the training of the young people of our city.

It is the more appreciable coming from a man like Mr. Worth, who has studied the subject deeply and knows what he is speaking about. This is the kind of man we need on our Education Board to-day, and along with other citizens I would very much like to see him re-elected.

As citizens of Peterborough we are indebted to Mr. Worth for his work in connection with the building of the new school, it being his suggestion that only Peterborough men be employed.

He has also shown his appreciation of the work of the teachers by his proposal that a 10 p.c. bonus be paid on the scheduled rate. We know, too, from what transpired at a recent meeting of the board that he is man not to be intimidated.

His active interest in all that tends to the betterment of the conditions of the working classes, surely makes him a worthy candidate for re-election and it is in our interests that we should rally at the polling booths on New Year's Day and return him as our candidate for the Board of Education.

Yours truly,
One Interested in Education.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—Just a few lines in reference to Mr. Edgar's statement that Alderman MMcIntyre was against the housing scheme. Mr. Edgar wants to create a false impression to the general public on this question. Now, Ald. McIntyre is not against it, and Mr. Edgar knows this, only he don't want to say so. What Ald. McIntyre was against was springing a by-law on the Council in its last dying moments, with two appointments. Alderman McIntyre and, I believe, three other members, were opposed to it. My idea was for the coming council of 1920 to handle the housing scheme.

SEARCH FOR NEPTUNE'S NEIGHBOUR IS LIKE HUNTING DIAMOND ON SEASHORE

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, Dec. 27.—The task of finding a new planet located on the outskirts of Neptune, which has been undertakeen by Prof. W. H. Pickering, of Harvard Astronomical Observatory, is not a vain or fruitless effort, acordin gto Dr. C. A. less effort, according to Dr. C. A. Physics at the University of Toronto.

The search for such a body has, however, been kept up constantly since about the middle of the last century. "It's like hunting for a diamond on the seashore," said Dr. Chant. "But I only wish that we had our own new observatory ready, and we would join in the hunt as well."

PARCELS FLOODED THE POST OFFICE

PUBLIC ASSISTED BY MAILING ARTICLES EARLY.

Receipts for stamps for the Christmas mail at the post office were considerably higher than last year and amounted approximately to $1,500. Mr. Corkery stated this morning that the mail was much more satisfactorily arranged this year than in any previous year inasmuch as the people sending parcels out of the city had them in several days before the time absolutely necesary to insure delivery instead of waiting till the last day as in former years. As each of the inside employees worked overtime it was not found necessary to have the staff augmented, the only extra employees put on being the 16 little boys who acted as assistants to the postmen on their rounds.

So far the Christmas mail has not stopped, and up to-day parcels for the city kept arriving at the rate of about three hundred a day.

To the Ratepayers of the City of Peterborough:

Ladies and Gentlemen:

The best claim that any candidate for office can urge on his own behalf is based on his experience and the nature of the public service he has rendered. I have been ten years in the City Council. In that time I have been elected nine times, both under the ward system and the general vote. I appreciate these past expressions of confidence in me, and I pledge myself that, if elected Mayor, I will still strive to retain the good will of the voters.

I was Chairman of the Special Council Committee that selected the site for the Public Bathing Beach, and I gave my personal supervision to the construction of the Bath House. I was also Chairman of the Committee that erected the Bandstand in King Edward Park, thus giving the South-end residents the benefit of open-air band concerts.

Some time ago the health of the citizens was menaced by the sale of milk which the sanitary officers showed by actual tests was impure. I was the father of the measure which provided for a rigid system of inspection for all milk offered for sale. During my various terms of office I have alway taken an active interest in measures intended to improve the health of the city.

For two years I have been Chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee, which, during the year just closing, has secured Six New Industries for Peterborough. These are as follows:

The Western Clock Company of La Salle, Ill., makers of clocks and watches. This firm have taken the Chicle building on George Street, and expect to have two hundred men at work before the end of next year.

The Albion Knitting Company leased, with an option to purchase, the old West Ward School. They are employing about fifteen hands, with good prospects of extending their operations.

The Bon Marche Manufacturing Company, that has leased premises on Simcoe Street, and will engage in the manufacture of white wear.

The Nashua Gummed and Coated Paper Company, that has taken over the old Cordage Co. plant, and will start operations with from thirty to forty skilled workers.

The Canadian Aladdin Company will, if the by-law carries next week, locate a branch in this city for the manufacture of ready-cut houses.

Alexander Stewart has put up two buildings on Gladstone Avenue, and will start a wool stock factory.

These are a few of the matters in which I have had a hand during my different terms in the Council. I will, if elected Mayor, do as I have done in the past, and work for the interests of all classes of citizens.

I repeat what I said in a previous notice to the public—I am in favour of the Housing Scheme, although I voted against the by-law recently adopted because I was convinced that the appointment of the Commission should have been left to the Council of 1920.

Again soliciting your support,—I am,

Yours for progress,

A. A. McINTYRE

OLD COUNTRY SOCCER

West Bromwich were not engaged in the Christmas games in England but Burnley were, and as the Turf Moor beat Middlesboro they now lead in the first division. Sunderland fell to Liverpool and thus dropped two valuable points. Notts County brought off the best result of the day, and it was anything but a Merry Christmas for Blackburn who were beaten by 5 to 0. The leaders of the second division were idle and the outstanding feature of that section was the victory of Burslem Port Vale over Bearnsley by 7 to 1. It is hard to reconcile this result with Barnsley's victory over Tottenham last Saturday. The two leaders in the Southern League met each other at Watford and Portsmouth won, thus breaking the tie between them, and putting the "naval basers" at the top. Following are all the results:

English League, Division 1.

BECKETT ASKS FOR ANOTHER CHANCE

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, Feb. 27.— Two American welter-weights and a bantamweight made a clean sweep of their boxing day bouts in Albert Hall last night. Georges Carpentier, European heavyweight champion, boxed a three round exhibition. Joe Beckett, British champion, who was knocked out in one round by Carpentier, publicly asked for another chance with Carpentier.

PETES LOST HARD GAME TO BELLEVILLE INTERMEDIATES

The Peterborough intermediate O. H.A. team were beaten 10 to 7 in a hard-fought game on soft ice at Belleville last night. Team play and combination were practically impossible under the ice conditions, but nevertheless it was a good work-out for both teams, and the big crowd was pleased with the showing. Belleville led by 4 to 1 at the end of the first period and by 9 to 3 at the close of the second, but the Petes finished strong, outscoring Belleville 4 to 1 in the last session. The Peterborough squad, all of whom were used in the game, included Murray, Halpin, Pete Thornton, Harry Thornton, Jackson, Lornie Rose, Ray Rose, Evans and Lowes.

Belleville will be here on Tuesday night to play the return game and it should be a merry battle, as the Petes will be out to get revenge for the loss last night. It will be the first chance of seeing the home team in action, and no doubt the fans will be out in large numbers.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION IN PETERBORO

The feasibility of the suggestions put forward by Mr J. W. Worth in this paper under date 24th December, are very sound. His arguments are perfectly sound also, and should, to the thinking readers of The Examiner, create a volume of thought.

The need for technical education to the coming generation becomes more apparent each day, and it is to be lamented in these enlightened times—possibly owing to thoughtless direction on the part of many of our educational authorities—that this all-important factor appears to be entirely overlooked.

General intelligence is essential to all, and too great a store of it cannot be acquired; but the minds of our young as they grow should be more extensively cultivated and taught to think in different channels, thus creating in the course of time a much clearer vision, coupled with a desire to acquire a technical or professional knowledge of the subject to which they have a leaning.

How often is it that we find a boy who, during his childhood days and the hours spent at home after school, carved or whittled a piece of wood with a knife or toyed with some object, eventually creating a child-like contrivance, put to work on a delivery rig or some such unskilled employment.

With the system suggested by Mr. Worth, this boy would have an opportunity to study mechanics, and could ultimately offer his services for employment in the capacity for which he is best suited.

Peterborough is an Ontario city, and from a manufacturing point of view, is making rapid strides; but in order that she may keep her place in the race for growth and expansion, she must become more self-contained.

It is undeniable that, from a technical point of view, our city is far behind.

Manufacturers quite frequently are obliged to seek "out of town" for technical men. New concerns of necessity bring their practical help with them, and thus we find, generally speaking, the native of Peterborough assuming the more menial tasks, or, with the general intelligence gained in our schools, seeking employment in offices or stores elsewhere than in our own city. The result being, as Mr. Worth points out, the breaking up of family circles consequent upon the migration of our young men in quest of a more remunerative employment of an unskilled character.

The establishing of technical or manual branches in our schools by an efficient educational board, ie., one composed of professional and technical men, could quite easily be undertaken, and I am convinced that were such a scheme considered seriously by such a representative body, it would receive the wholehearted support of all our leading local manufacturing concerns.

Reconstruction is a broad term; it does not necessarily mean to build up that which has fallen, but can be interpreted to mean improve or advance with the times.

The Old Country, unfortunately known to so many who have not travelled there as conservative, realised the question of technical training many years ago, and as a result, you will find technical schools or institutes throughout the country, graduating from which is a stream of theoretically and practically trained young men and women, in many cases in their early 'teens.

We citizens of Canada, claiming to be ever alert, should be ready to take up this example and exercise the courage of our own convictions by demanding that this question shall receive the consideration for which it is calling.

Procrastination is the thief of time, and it therefore behoves us all to exercise discretion when voting at the coming election.

Consider for yourself how this question affected you when you first commenced to earn a livelihood. Recall the times you may have been disappointed through not being a skilled man, and see to it that your vote will be cast in favour of a man who has not only the welfare of your city at heart, but the educational advancement of your children also.

The obligations of a parent are great, and thrice happy is he who can conscientiously say that the future and training of his children received, always, his unstinted sacrifice and consideration.

Mr. Worth, as a member of our Board of Education, has rendered invaluable assistance, and has at all times exercised excellent discretion. He was responsible for the introduction of the fair wage clause in the contract for the new school at present in course of erection, and furthermore, that Peterborough men only should be employed.

It was Mr. Worth, I believe, who put the motion to the Board that the school teachers of Peterborough should receive a ten per cent. bonus during the war in order that their salaries would be adequate to meet the increased cost of living, and, to a certain extent, commensurate with the position which they had to fill.

As a young man he graduated from the Technical College of Bradford, England, which speaks for itself, and since that date has been closely associated with the textile trade in its many phases, in practically every European country, and in both Canada and the United States of America.

He is again offering his services, and the citizens of Peterborough will be safe in returning him to his seat on the Board, for he has proved his worth.

CROWN PRINCE ON THE CRIMINAL LIST

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Dec. 27. — Frederick William, the former German Crown Prince, will be included in the list of persons whose surrender for trial is demanded by the French, according to unofficial reports of a recent meeting between the British law officials and Edouard Ignace, French Under-Secretary for Military Justice.

When Nature Was Timekeeper.

In the British museum is a large stone composed of carbonate of lime, which would serve perfectly as a day labourer's calendar, inasmuch as it would indicate to him every Sunday and holiday of the year, though not the day of the month. Moreover, the stone is an actual time record of the work done for a long period in an English coal mine.

The "Sunday stone," as it is called, was removed from a colliery drain. When the miners were at work the water running through the drain left a deposit colored black by the coal dust, but when no work was being done the water ran down clear and left a white deposit. These deposits in the course of time built up the stone. Each day of work left a black streak, immediately followed by a white streak made during the night. Wide white streaks indicate the holidays and Sundays.

Women's Time Schedule.

Few women speak of a train starting slightly off the even hour, as the 3:08 train, for example, or the 3:12. "Three" will do. It bothers a man a heap to go hunting for a 3 o'clock train by feminine directions when it is a 3:12 train. For some women "3" will do for the 2:34 train; it's near enough. Then the man following feminine directions, unless he is on his guard against these pitfalls, is lost.

Probably if it were not for his business training, which teaches a man that 3:02 is not 3, not 3:01, not 3:01½, not 3:01¾, but 3:02, he'd be better assured about women's time schedules.—Exchange.

INJECTING LEAGUE OF NATIONS ISSUE INTO UNITED STATES 1920 ELECTIONS

(Special to The Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.— An organization to force the League of Nations into the 1920 campaign as an issue, whether the Senate ratifies the treaty or not, has been perfected by Senators who are opposed to any form of treaty ratification. Branches of this organization are already at work in six States. By the time the Presidential primaries and State conventions for selecting deleagtes to the National conventions begin, the organization will be represented in every State, Senators declared. The movement is non-partisan, its backers declared to-day. Their purpose, they said, is to put on record by one means or another, all canidates for office from constable to president, on the League of Nations issue. They are determined, they said, to get something about the League written into every party platform, State and National. They want to put partisan organizations everywhere on record, whether for or against the league.

ALDERMAN W. H. TAYLOR FOR MAYOR

Pledged to Street Railway Extensions and City Development

To the Electors of Peterboro:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—In accepting nomination as mayoralty candidate in the coming election, allow me to express my appreciation of the honor conferred upon me, and to assure all citizens alike that if elected to the dignity of first magistrate of this important city of Peterboro, I shall endeavor to exercise such high office for the weal of the whole community irrespective of class or creed.

In the past two years, as Finance Minister of the City Council, I have enjoyed close touch with the city's financial affairs generally. This experience, I believe, would stand this municipality in good stead next year, when such big problems as completing the new bridge under the cost-plus commission plan, and installing a costly sewage disposal plant, will demand the expenditure of considerable time and shrewd financing.

W. H. TAYLOR.

Street Railway Extensions.

Three years ago, ladies and gentlemen, I pledged myself to support extensions of te street railway system, but the Hydro-Electric Commission could not undertake such while the war was on, and nothing was accomplished in that direction until this year when the commission was persuaded to lay tracks from Charlotte street along the Monaghan Rd., to Patterson street, and to put in operation two new cars. This improvement in the service somewhat but it is not enough. The end I have in view if privileged to serve you as mayor, is further extensions south to Lansdowne street, north to near the Normal school, and over the new bridge to East City, with perhaps a belt line service. But my broad policy in regard to the street railway is its ultimate ownership by the city for the people, just as soon as it can be purchased from Hydro-Electric at a price and under conditions which will assure profitable investment, and a minimum fare. Whether such transfer to the city as a public utility can be secured or not at an early date, I purpose to leave no stone unturned to connect by steel rails all sections of the city with its business and manufacturing establishments, so that workmen and girls may have easy acces to their employment whether they live in the north, south, east, or west.

City Development.

In regard to city beautifying and development to afford unstinted opportunities for public recreation and a brighter life for the masses of the people, I believe the City Council should co-operate whole-heartedly in any project to these ends. If Peterborough is to grow into a greater Peterborough, city developing and town planning must be generously resorted to. For unless conditions be attractive to working men and their families, this city will be handicapped in its bid for new industries, and present factories will not be encouraged to expand locally.

City of Resources.

Ladies and gentlemen, we have a city of resources and opportunities. Let us unite in taking advantage of them. British and American industries are seeking locations in Canada and this is an opportune time to reach out after more factories. Don't let us be too conservative in our views but adopt broad and democratic principles in a united effort to stimulate trade and industrial activity, to furnish employment for a greater and growing number and to enhance the community's prosperity in general

Serve Every Interest.

I am offering my services to this city by request of a large number of ratepayers and respectfully ask the co-operation of all citizens to secure my election. If elected I will devote to the office of mayor whatever time is needed, and above all will serve every interest alike, recognizing no privilege for any particular class, but a four-square consideration for all.

In conclusion I might say that in my opinion this city needs a shaking up in its public spirit, a get-together movement for general progress and increased citizenship, a unison of individual and organized interests in a common bond of community fellowship which will make for municipal uplift, industrially, commercially and expansibly. Such is my objective in aspiring to the office of mayor, and leaving myself in your hands, I extend to one and all, best wishes for a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Yours very truly,

W. H. TAYLOR

To the Ratepayers of the City of Peterborough

I am offering myself as a candidate for Alderman, as I believe that this City will be benefited with my many years of experience as a member of the City Council and as City Solicitor. I had intended to devote my time to my business affairs, but as there are few men of many years' experience in Municipal affairs in the City Council, I felt that I could be a help in the City's government on account of the large undertakings and important projects which must be dealt with by the Council within the next two years.

To develop this City we must have new industries, and I have given much of my time in the past years, while in the City Council, to this particular part of Municipal affairs.

If elected, I will make every effort to improve this City as a great industrial centre.

The support of those who believe that I shall be able to give faithful service, is respectfully requested.

Yours faithfully,

G. N. GORDON

For Board of Education

MRS. KATE MORRIS

TO THE ELECTORS:—

The Hon. Mr. Drury, Premier of Ontario, has stated that he considers the woman's point of view both desirable and necessary on every Board of Education.

Dr. Cody while Minister of Education many times expressed the same opinion.

Your Board of Education acknowledges the need and value of women in the schools when it employs six times as many women as men teachers (65 women and 11 men) and a woman nurse.

Having been a Public School Teacher ,or some years I am able to see the educational questions of the day from the double viewpoint of the home and the teacher.

It is in the hope of giving intellegent service, that I am a candidate for the Board of Education.

THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC LIGHTING AND POWER

(Norwood Register.)

Despite the extreme cold on Wednesday evening last there was a representative attendance at the Hydro-Electric meeting in the town hall at Norwood. Manufacturers, merchants and householders were present and all took much interest in the address given by the engineer, Mr. Iler. Many questions were also asked and the speaker was very painstaking in his explanations. All present seemed to receive a very favorable impression of the proposition, even more so than at the previous meeting a week ago, which was a most satisfactory one.

It is quite plain that Norwood stands to gain by the installation of hydro. The construction of the trunk line through our village appears to be one of the best strokes of good fortune that has occurred probably since the laying of the C.P.R.'s main line through here.

From the standpoint of cost it is satisfactory to learn that rates for domestic and commercial electric lighting will be lower than what the present system is forced to charge. With the increasing price of wood and coal is it hard to see how our present rates by steam power can ever be as low as the price of water power?

Another favorable feature is the service which will consist of an up-to-date distributing system and twenty-four hours of continuous power in the day.

Our manufacturers will also be able to increase their business by reason of power, and we understand Messrs. Finlay, Buck and Harrison will take considerable power.

SECOND CHRISTMAS SPENT IN EXILE.

AMERONGEN, December 27. — The former German Crown Prince Frederick reached here a few days ago to spend with his parents their second Christmas season in exile.

J. H Kan, Secretary of General Affairs of the Dutch Government; Burgomaster Perebom of Wieringen, the members of the von Bentinck family and some of the Amerongen functionaries were the guests at a banquet this evening in the great hall of the Bentinck Castle.

This was the climax of a celebration that was arranged by the former Emperor personally. A huge Christmas tree was erected in the hall and from this the former ruler distributed gifts.

Utilities' Commission

C. E. SISSON FOR THE UTILITIES COMMISSION

To the Electors of the City of Peterborough:

Ladies and Gentlemen.

It is considered by many that Peterborough has reached that stage of development when a man of business engineering experience is required on the Utilities Commission, and after a good deal of pressure I have decided to allow my name to come before the electors. As is well known, we have now a Water System which, upon completion of the proposed filtration plant, will be one of the best in the Province, and a Light and Power System which, with some improvement ,may be made a credit to the city. In order to effectively continue the development of these systems, it is very essential that one member of the Commission have the business and technical experience which only an engineer has acquired.

Peterborough is my home ,city, in the development and welfare of which I am keenly interested. For many years I have been connected with its largest manufacturing firm, and if elected will be glad to place my experience at the service of the city. I feel certain that I can give the present Commissioners, valuable assistance, and will co-operate with them to the fullest possible extent.

The Water and Power Systems of the City are among the most valuable assets, and the expenditures on them call for the most careful consideration. While the detailed engineering is, of course, attended to by the operating staff of the Commission, my professional work has given me the opportunity of becoming thoroughly conversant with both the problems of engineering and the question of costs which the Commission must carefully solve; and I feel confident that I can assist in carrying out the necessary developments to the system so as to give the most efficient service with the lowest expenditure.

The Trades and Labour Council have seen fit to endorse my candidature, although not a member of their organisation, and were big and broad-minded enough to leave me free to exercise my best judgment and independent action, should I be elected to the Commission.

My desire is to serve the best interests of the City with the view of helping to make it not only one of the first manufacturing cities of the Dominion, but one of the most desirable cities in which to live.

Respectfully yours,

C. E. SISSON.

To The Electors of The City of Peterboro

Ladies and Gentlemen,— Having been nominated and endorsed by the Trades and Labour Council of Peterborough as a candidate for the position of Alderman of the City of Peterborough, I accept the same, believing labor to be the basis of national progress. That a better understanding will be arrived at by co-operation of all classes on the Council, which is so essential to the industrial progress of any city, I feel confident that my practical knowledge of construction work will be of great service to the city in the undretakings that will come before it during 1920.

If elected, all matters that may come before the Council shall receive my most serious attention for the benefit of the community in general.

Wishing you all an industrially prosperous New Year, with happy home conditions.

J. W. WORTH

To the

Board of Education

To the Electors of the City of Peterborough

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

I have the honour of nomination and have been urgently requested by a very large number of ratepayers to be a candidate for the Utilities Commission.

Having served you six years as Alderman and two years as Mayor, I acquired a fairly comprehensive knowledge of the duties of the Utilities Commission.

I was a member of the City Council during the negotiations, construction and prosecution of the work of the City's Electric Power Station, the City Waterworks Dam and the Auxiliary Pumping Station.

As Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee in the City Council, I came directly in contact with the Waterworks System, including the mains, hydrants, pressure, etc., for fire protection, domestic, and manufacturing purposes.

For two years I was Vice-President of the Ontario Hydro Radial Association, which gave me a thorough knowledge of the advantages of the Hydro-Electric system for power, electric lighting, heating and Radial Railway purposes.

With the above experience and knowledge I respectfully solicit your vote and influence in support of my candidature, assuring you, if elected, that I will endeavour to assist in every way possible with the other members of the Commission to carry out the work in the very best interests of the ratepayers of he City of Peterborough.

I am heartily in favour of such improvements as the proposed new Filteration Plant when the time is opportune, but I am of the opinion that all such large expenditures, as far as practicable, in every department of the City, should be deferred until such time as some of the present debentures are fully paid up except in so far as it is found necessary to go ahead with the work in order to keep out workmen and labourers steadily employed.

Respectfully yours,

JOS. J. DUFFUS

Let Phelan Finish His Work!

To the Electors of the City of Peterborough.

Ladies and Gentlemen,

I am again a Candidate for the position of Alderman. I have endeavoured to serve you faithfully in the past, and if you will favour me with re-election, I will continue to give you my best services.

During the year that is closing, I have been Chairman of the Board of Works, and in that position have given practically all of my time to the construction of the new Hunter Street Bridge, and to the preparations for the installation of Sewage Disposal Works.

If you believe my knowledge of these matters will be usful in the coming year, I ask you for an opportunity to see these works finished. To these important works, as well as to the general business of this city, I will devote my close attention if you should favour me with re-election.

Permit me also to take this opportunity of thanking my friends for the confidence reposed in me in the past, and to express the wish that all may enjoy a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Yours respectfully, HARRY PHELAN.

COPPING FOR ALDERMAN

To the Electors of the City of Peterborough:

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Having been nominated for the Council, I have given the matter most earnest consideration, and have finally decided to offer my services to the City. It happens that I have both the time and the means, and in view of the need I feel it my duty to place them at the disposal of the people of Peterborough. If elected I will devote the full time that may be necessary to efficiently discharge all the duties which the office of alderman entails.

The coming year will carry with it tremendous responsibility in finishing the Hunter street bridge and building the Sewage Disposal Plant It will be my earnest endeavor to see to it that this work is carried out in the most effective manner, and that the people's money is spent well and economically.

For several years I have been interested in City Planning and have given a good deal of consideration to plans to make our city bigger and at the same time more beautiful. If elected I will do everything possible to solve the present housing problem, and bring our Street Car System within the reach of all populous portions of the city.

I would also recommend a permanent scheme for the future development of the city which will provide for growth and at the same time ensure the health and well being of all our citizens, particularly those who are forced to spend the most of their time within the City limits.

I am also in favor of gradually extending bathing facilities each year so that in a short time we shall be taking full advantage of our natural resources in this respect, and making use of the river which flows through our city, so that every citizen may enjoy it.

I have no ambition except to serve the city and if elected will do my utmost to represent all classes and bring about a better understanding between the laboring and the business interests.

Yours respectfully,

R. V. COPPING

An Island Where Deer are Safe

Listening to the Barking of Hounds on a Distant Island.

The deep music of a deerhound's voice came faintly down the wind, shortly it blended with the sharper voice of a hunting Airedale. The screams of a hungry cougar is not more terrifying to the timid deer of the British Columbia coast than the bay of the hounds on the trail. When they hear it they get up and go—straight for water.

The little spike buck, born a few seasons before on the rugged, forest-clad coast of the Pacific province lifted his head. His eyes and his ears, his very pose displayed the high tension of his taut nerves. He looked into the forest of the island on which he stood, and he saw nothing alarming. He turned and stared across the water toward Nelson Island. The only thing that caught his eye that did not denote restful nature in primitive grandeur was a smudge of smoke that smeared the horizon and showed that a C.P.I. coasting steamer was outbound from Powell River. Then the boom of the hound's voice rolled again across the waters from Nelson Island. The deer moved nervously, looked all round again—and calmly bent his head to bite a mouthful of grass. He was safe. He was on Hardy Island.

Hardy Island is the city of refuge to all the deer that know about it. Three years ago it was good hunting grounds. To-day it is taboo to men with guns, and hell pops, as the saying goes, if men with both guns and dogs appear. It is unlawful to hunt deer with dogs in British Columbia, but it is still done in certain districts, in spite of law. Two years ago, or perhaps slightly more than that, Mr. C. J. Leyland of England purchased Hardy Island, a gem of land situated just off Nelson Island at the mouth of Jervis Inlet. He bought it to experiment with British trees in the B.C. climate. There were 2,500 acres of rich lands and forests, and there was a good orchard. He placed a watchman, Tom Brazil, on the property and did no more toward development, preferring to await the end of the war. Brazil, a lover of animals, caught two of the wild deer that frequently swam to the island from the other nearby lands. He tamed them.

Taking an Apple From the Fingers of a Visitor.

They in turn brought other w... ones. Many of them had been ... to water by dogs and took re... on Hardy Island. WEDDING BELLS

MORSE — WALKER.

A quiet wedding took place this afternoon at Trinity Methodist Church, at 2.30, when Ida V. Walker, daughter of the late Andrew Walker and Mrs. Walker, of 303 Stewart Street, was united in marriage to Mr. Charles H. Morse, B.A., B.Sc.F.A., son of the late Mr and Mrs. Wm. Morse, of Kirwood, Ontario.

The bride and groom were unattended. Mr. George King played the wedding march, and during the signing of the register Mrs. King sang "Because." The bride was prettily dressed in a brown peachbloom suit, with ermine furs, and carried a bouquet of ophelia roses.

The young couple left on the 3.20 train for a short trip, and will return to the city early in the New Year before leaving for their new home in Calgary.

Mr. Morse was overseas for three years with the Forestry Corps, and the Tank Corps, and is now assistant inspector in the Forestry Reserves in the Department of the Interior at Calgary.

BARRIES LIMITED LED THE WAY IN THE INSURANCE OF STAFF

The employees of Barries Limited, were agreeably surprised when on opening their envelopes on Wednesday, December 24th, they found each contained an announcement that all employees of six months service and upwards are receiving an insurance policy from $500 to $1000, according to the length of service, the premium being paid to the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company by the firm, as their Christmas gift.

"We wish as employees to publicly express our appreciation of the gift, and to show our loyalty to our firm by making this public acknowledgment.

"Signed on behalf of the 50 members of the Barries Limited Welfare Club (Pterboro Branch.)

W. Irvine, President.
W. J. Hamilton, Emp. Representative
H. R. McIllmoyle, Treas.

Misses Annie Fisher, Sec., Violet Preston, Gertie Clancy, F. Mather, Sales Manager.

Barries Limited was the first business house in Peterboro to adopt the Group Insurance System and moreover has also included the employees of their western branches at Regina, Moose Jaw and Saskatchewan.

OLD PETERBORO BOY HAS MADE GOOD

IN THE CITY TO-DAY ON BUSINESS AND PLEASURE.

"Billy" Flemming will be remembered by residents of the city who were boys 20 years ago as a young man very anxious to "break" into the "show game." On leaving Peterborough he did so with the sole purpose of becoming a show man, and since then has had quite a varied career in his travels all over the continent. He is in the city to-day as manager for the Greater Sheesley Shows, and is in conference with Mr. Webber Turner with a view of bringing the show he represents to Peterborough during the coming summer, under the auspices of the Fair Board.

The boys will meet for practice to-night at 7 sharp.

LOS ANGELES POLICE STOP FAMILY SEPTEMBER MORN RIVER STUNTS

LOS ANGELES. — "September Morn Outdone" might have been the title of a scene that met the eyes of the Venice police officers when they saw John Swanson, 35; his ten year old daughter, Mina, and their six year old son, John, doing celesthenics on the beach with no other covering than the soft sea air.

A squad of officers was despatched there; then arose new complications. How were the offenders to be taken through the streets to the jail without fureher violation of an ordnance?

Officer Gorman reappeared with three large blankets which were then wrapped about the bathers and they were taken away in the patrol waggon.

NOT TAKING ANY CHANCES OF AN UNCOFFINED BURIAL

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—The high cost of dying has impressed Mrs. Mary Policaster of Newark to such an extent that she already has bought two coffins, one for herself and one for her husband.

Firemen drove into her flat on the first floor of 309 Miller street yesterday when a fire started in the basement of the building, and were astonished to see two open coffins in the parlor.

"My husband is seventy-six years old, and at the point of death in the City Hospital," Mrs. Policaster explained. "We are alone in the world, and I thought it would be economy to buy our own coffins a year before the price went any higher. We were afraid if we lived many years longer we might not be able to afford coffins at all."

The fire was extinguished without damage to Mr. Policaster's flat or the coffins.

HOLIDAY VISITORS ARE ALL VACCINATED.

Party From U. S. Got Surprise on Return to Port Huron.

SARNIA, Dec. 26—About two hundred holiday visitors on the Canadian side received an unwelcome and unexpected Christmas surprise when they returned to the United States side of the river, in the form of vaccination, the serum being injected into their arms by the United States health officials.

They had been unaware of, or had forgotten about, the order enforcing compulsory vaccination, and on reaching the Port Huron side after their holiday trip they were lined up in queues and vaccinated.

Some raised strenuous objections, but without avail.

A SOLDIER IN CABINET

PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT OF NEW BRUNSWICK WILL PAVE THE WAY.

A BYE-ELECTION

(Special to The Examiner.)

FREDERICTON, N.B., Dec. 29.—The following special despatch appeared in "The Gleaner" on Saturday:

"Woodstock, N.B., Dec. 27.— The rumor is prevalent here that the Provincial government will open the session of the Legislature early in March and that the government will call on a by-election in this country previous to the session, provided a returned soldier is given the vacant seat by acclamation.

The government it is now said intends introducing legislation to assist the returned soldier and professes to be anxious to have one of them in the Legislature for consultation.

"The G.W.V.A. in Woodstock have had a meeting and fixed upon the date for holding a convention, but this action must be ratified by the other branches of the G.W.V.A. in the country and the date of the convention, has not been announced.

"It is reported that Samuel Baxter of Hartland, will be the candidate for the Soldiers, that the Government and Opposition parties will stand aside upon the promise that the Soldier candidate will be independent, and that the United Farmers, who have a candidate in the field in the person of Fred W. Smith, of Windsor, will be approached to have the Soldiers' candidate go in by acclamation."

FINES IMPOSED IN POLICE COURT

SMITH TOWNSHIP FARMER FINED FOR EXCESSIVE SPEED.

Four cases broke the monotony of the Police Court this morning.

Cornelius Lynn, of Ennismore, was fined $10 and costs, amounting to $13.10, or 15 days, for alleged cruelty to dumb animals. On December 20 Lynn drove in a herd of cattle, from Ennismore, and it is alleged that a refractory steer's head was caved in by the boot. Unfortunately for him, the police saw the stunt, which resulted in the fine, which he promised to pay on Saturday.

A farmer from Smith Township was fined $10 and costs, amounting to $13.85, for speeding on Water Street, between Simcoe and King Streets, on the night of December 22.

Sylvan House and Fred. Bradley were fined $10 and costs each, totalling $14.10, for being intoxicated in a public place. Both pleaded guilty, and the fines were paid promptly.

THREE MEN ARRESTED

RESULT OF INVESTIGATION INTO DISTRIBUTION OF WOOD ALCOHOL.

MANY DEATHS

(Canadian Press.)

One of the biggest round-ups of bootleggers and manufacturers of illicit liquor ever made in this country is impending as a result of the wave of deaths and blindness which has followed the sale of poisoning liquor, New York revenue officials announced to-day.

Three men have been arrested, and it is declared that ten others will be apprehended during the day.

According to the latest advices nearly one hundred persons have died during the past sixty hours and scores are suffering from paralysis and blindness, due to drinking wood alcohol "whiskey." In New England, where the toll was highest, sixty-five deaths have been reported. In the districts embracing Chicopee, Holyoke, Springfield, Hadley, Greenfield and Thompsonville, fifty-six deaths are reported, including three women. Fourteen arrests of those alleged to have handled liquor have been made, and others are expected. Investigations conducted by the police have revealed many violations of the prohibition law. Many illicit stills, "kitchen bars" and private stock from which sales had been made were discovered.

NEW YORK, December 29. — Adolph Panarelli, the Manhattan liquor dealer, John Romanelle, a Brooklyn undertaker, and Samuel Saleeby, a Brooklyn druggist, have been arrested by the authorities, and this morning faced charges before a United States Commissioner, in connection with the spreading of wood alcohol as whiskey through five of the states during the last ten days, death and blindness following in its wake.

It is claimed that Romanelli is the "King Pin' in the wood alcohol traffic. Panarelli, according to the federal agents, said when arrested, "I am glad that you got me. I will tell all that I know, but for God's sake don't send me to Connecticut. My name has been published in all the papers, and it would mean certain death."

He believed that twenty barrels of "whiskey" were shipped to Hartford, each containing between forty and fifty gallons. The price paid was from a thousand to fifteen hundred dollars a barrel.

CONCERT BY MUSGRAVE'S ORCHESTRA OF TORONTO

TO-MORROW AFTERNOON FROM 3.30 TO 5.30.

To-morrow (Tuesday) afternoon, Musgrave's five-piece orchestra, under the personal leadership of Mr. George Musgrave, will give a two-hour concert in the spacious lounge room of the Cressman Co., Ltd., from half-past three until half-past five. We invite you to enjoy this music for the full two hours. You will be most comfortable in large easy chairs or lounging on our richly-upholstered Chesterfields. Our tea room adjoins our lounge room and the music will be equally enjoyed in either room.

While we have seating accommodation for two hundred people, we suggest that you come early.

Afternoon tea served during the concert hours.

BURNS' ANNIVERSARY IN PETERBORO

ONE HUNDRETH AND SIXIETH ANNIVERSARY OF HIS BIRTHDAY—BURNS ENTHUSIASTS INVITED.

Robert Burns was born January 25th, 1759, Alloway, near Ayr, and died July 21st, 1796.

The Peterborough Caledonian Club are making great preparations for Burns' anniversary. A banquet is to be held on January 26th, 1920, in the Empress Hotel, to honor the memory and the genius of Robert Burns, Scotland's immortal bard, on the one hundred and sixtieth anniversary of his birthday. "The Immortal Memory" will be responded by an able and prominent Burns' enthusiast, and the other toasts will be delivered by local Scotsmen. Admirers of Burns' works and poems are reminded that a special invitation awaits them, where they will hear some of Burns' poems and songs delivered in true Scottish dialect.

Mr. Weatherstone will deliver 'The Address tae the Haggis," after being carried in by four local Scotsmen, accompanied by the bagpipes.

A special event of the evening will be when Mr. William Thomson will relate "Tam O'Shanter" and give actual facts as to how "Tam" met and saw "auld Nick and the witches" as Burns depicted in his poem.

Harry Taylor will sing "Of a' the Airts," which will bring back memories of "auld countree."

Three prominent Scotsmen will sing "O Willie Brew'd a Peck O' Maut."

Among the many local entertainers will be John Smith, John Anderson and Bob Henry, and a few more.

A piper will be present for the occasion, and the Club expects that the bill o' fare, purveyed by Empress, will hear everybody say, "We're nae quite fou, but just hae plenty," or "Let us drink and gae hame, for if we stay ony langer we'll get a bad name."

Burns' Notes.

A defective copy of the Kilmarnoch edition of Burns' poems was sold in London, England, recently for $850.

The most complete Kilmarnoch edition of Burns' poems and works, and in perfect condition, was bought a few years ago by Scots-American, but resold in to Burns' Cottage Trustees for $9,750.

The picture of Burns, by Naysmith, is the most perfect portrait of the immortal bard.

A ship-building company in Greenock wanted to acquire the ground where Highland Mary was buried, but the Burns' Clubs throughout the Empire appealed against it and won out.

A MEETING ON TUESDAY NIGHT

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—The voting on the two by-laws on 1st January is an important matter for the city. A favourable vote on the by-law to aid the Canadian Aladdin Company will bring to the city an important industry that is now doing a large and growing business in Canada. They will employ at the beginning thirty to forty men, and have made their arrangements so that they can enlarge, as they expect to employ many more. The company has its plans prepared for the building, and for a railway siding, so that they will lose no time in establishing the factory when the by-law carries.

The public park by-law is to authorise the purchase of land on the east side of the river, south of Hunter Street, for a park, and if it is endorsed by the electors, will provide for a park and playground in the centre of the city, where it is needed.

A meeting will be held in the City Council Chamber to-morrow night, 30th December, at eight o'clock, to prepare for getting out as full a vote as possible on these important by-laws. I wish to urge a large attendance at this meeting of all who are willing to assist on Election Day, and hope that the electors will show their interest by being present.

Yours very truly,

GEO. H. DUNCAN, Mayor.

Says Raney Acted in High-Handed Manner

HAROLD CURRIE DOES NOT THINK THE FARMERS' PARTY WILL SUFFER AS A RESULT OF THE SQUABBLE OVER THE MIDDLESEX REGISTRARSHIP.

APPOINTED TO AGRICULTURAL BOARD

Special to Examiner

STRATHROY, December 29. — Harold Currie, the stormy petrel of the U. F. O., will not be disciplined or read out of the Farmers' Party for kicking over the traces and raising such a rumpus over the patronage question. On the contrary, since he made the welkin ring with his sensational attacks on Attorney General Raney over the appointment of the Middlesex Registrar, he has been appointed to represent the United Farmers of Ontario upon the Canadian Council of Agriculture, popularly known as "The Farmers' Parliament" which meets at Winnipeg on Jan. 5.

"When was this appointment made?" he was asked.

"I was informed that I had been chosen since this trouble arose over the Middlesex Registrarship," said Mr. Currie.

"Don't you think that this squabbling is bad business from the U. F. O. point of view?" asked the Examiner.

"No, I don't," replied Mr. Raney, emphatically. "Raney acted in a high handed manner, in appointing the Middlesex registrar over our heads, and he might as well know at the start that the farmers will not tolerate 'rule from Toronto'. We have had too much of that in the past. We insist on government of the people by the people"

"Are you opposed to him because he is down on race track gambling and the liquor traffic?"

"No, we think he overstepped the bounds in making this Middlesex registrarship appointment without consulting the members of the Legislature and the people of the country. This sort of thing has got to be nipped in the bud. It was a high handed piece of business. Raney has not even a seat in the house yet."

"Do you think that the representatives of the riding would be better qualified to make the appointment than the Cabinet or a civil service commission?"

"Certainly, they are on the ground and know the requirements and they have to assume the responsibility for the appointments that are made."

"Were you a candidate for this position?"

"No. I was pressured by lots of people who were wanting the job and asked me to use my influence with the government."

"Were they members of the U. F. O.?"

"Yes"

SEE JERUSALEM GIVEN UP TO GEN. ALLENBY—REMARKABLE PICTURE

CLIP A COUPON AND SEE THE EXAMINER TRAVELOGUES—TWO SEPARATE PICTURES AND LECTURES GIVEN NEXT WEEK AND BOTH WORTH SEEING.

Dale Carnagey, noted traveloguer and globe trotter, will open the Carnagey-Thomas travelogues at Grand theatre under the auspices of The Examiner, New Year's Day matinee and night. The first travelogue to be shown will be gorgeously colored and motion pictures of General Allenby's British campaign in the Holy Land.

Many requests have come in for a special matinee for school children, which will be given Friday afternoon.

From Dan To Beersheba.

The opening travelogue on General Allenby in Palestine shows the British operations in the Holy Land all the way from Dan to Beersheba—and further; in fact, all the way from the Suez Canal to the Berlin-to-Badad railway. The auditors and spectators—for the crowd that assembles at the Grand will both see and hear about the Near East—make their first stop at the Island of Malta, where St. Paul was shipwrecked. The next stop is Cairo. The audience then boards an aeroplane, flies over the Nile, the pyramids, the desert and the Suez Canal and on up to the Promised Land. Many of the pictures are taken from an aeroplane, but the tourists are brought down to earth to enjoy the most interesting things on the trip.

The audience is with General Allenby at the taking of Beersheba, the ancient home of Abraham and Lot. The next stop is Hebron, which contains some of the oldest authenic relics in the world. The next stop is Gaza. On the screen at the Grand the Egyptian Labor Corps will land shells through the surf for the bombardment of Gaza. The audience visits the city of Gaza where Samson demonstrated his great strength, and where General Allenby almost demolished the Turkish army.

Where Jonah Did It.

The pictures show General Allenby combating both the arid deserts and the great floods of the Holy Land. The Zionist colonies are included on this "troubleless travel" tour. A stop is made in the midst of the great locust plague, at Jaffa, where Jonah had his celebrated adventure, and then the audience flies above one of the most famous roads in the world and comes down from above the clouds to observe and enjoy the humorous happenings by the way.

There is one feature of this "personally conducted tour" which will never be forgotten by anyone who sees it. The audience is taken in an aeroplane which does a spinning nose dive over the scene where the 1919 Christmases ago the Prince of Peace was born. The spectators look down and see the earth whirling round and round far below them and plunging up to meet them at a terrific rate. A tour is made of the Church of he Nativity, built over the holy manger.

See Jerusalem Surrendered.

After leaving Bethlehem, the audience hikes over to Jerusalem with General Allenby's troops and sees the surrender of the most fought for city in the world—Jerusalem. A tour is made of the Holy City. The audience gasps when arriving at the summit of the Mount of Olives it finds itself face to face with the most outrageous sight in the whole world.

After the bombing expedition over the Dead Sea, the Holy Jordan river and the Hills of Moab, the audience rides with General Allenby in his miraculous drive which ended by his throwing his troops across the Berlin-to-Bagdad railway, and banishing forever the dream of the Kaiser for a world empire. In the swiftness with which it overcame the enemy, in the finality of its success, this last drive of the British in Palestine was a battle which has few parallels in all history. It was a battle of dreams the kind of a campaign that all great military leaders dream about and few carry out. It was a —battle without a tomorrow.

The cavalry pictures of this great drive are a thing of exquisite beauty.

Clip the Coupon.

These travelogues are the kind of thing that the English public never tires of. "A great and enchanting entertainment"—to use the exact comments of the London press—is in store for all Examiner readers who clip the coupon from the advertisement and assemble at the Grand.

ABANDON ATTEMPT

ICE-BREAKER MONTCALM HAD TO TURN BACK FROM BELLE ISLE —COLONY ISOLATED.

PROVISIONS LOW

(Canadian Press.)

QUEBEC, Dec. 29.—Stopped by a huge barrier of ice fields, the gallant Canadian Governmnt ice breaker Montcalm, had to abandon yesterday her dash to Belle Isle to provide food for the colony of lighthouse keepers and wireless men who are marooned there with scant provisions. Captain John Hearn, on arrival at North Sydney, reported that is was utterly impossible to break through the ice barrier that is encircling Belle Isle. Another effort will be made to reach the island. It is thought that the colony has some food and no serious fear for their safety is entertained because of the abundance of wild duck about the island.

WHEAT PRICES ARE UP AGAIN

(Canadian Press.)

WINNIPEG, Dec. 29. — Effective from midnight December 27, the Canadian Wheat Board orders that the price of Manitoba wheat to mills in Canada be raised from $2.30 to $2.80 per bushel, in store at public terminal elevators at Fort William or Port Arthur. Another regulation increases the maximum wholesale price of Government standard spring wheat flour from $10.90 per barrel to $13.15 per barrel, basis f.o.b. cars Montreal.

In connection with the above advances in the prices of wheat and flour, Jas. Stewart, Chairman of the Canadian Wheat Board, states that in order that the consuming public may have advantage of the supply of cheaper flour in the United States, permits will be issued for the importation of American products.

PEACE OFFER.

(Canadian Press.)

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 29—The Soviet Government at Moscow has sent a formal peace offer to the Polish Government by wireless.

The message declares that the Bolsheviki are preparing a new offensive against Poland with the aid of Chinese forces.

A Large Number Found Employment

WORK OF THE PETERBOROUGH BRANCH OF LABOUR BUREAU MORE THAN JUSTIFIES ITS EXISTENCE.

WORK FOR ALL

Since the opening Peterboro branch of the Government Employment Bureau in February of this year 2043 of the 2723 applicants for work have been placed making Peterboro's average placements above the average for most of the other cities in Ontario. Some idea of the progressive management of the Bureau may be drawn by the fact that in the opening month the applicants totalled 156 and placements 32 while in September, the month in which the biggest business for the year was done, 355 applications were received and 333 placed.

.... Primarily a Public Bureau.

Due to the fact that the percentage of placements among returned soldiers from the Bureau the public generally has drawn the conclusion that the Bureau is operated for returned man alone. The Bureau however is open to all, male and female to the returned man and the married man. The applications which were filled during the year embraced men from the age of fifteen to some of seventy years of age.

Hard Luck Tales.

The Bureau receives a fair percentage of hard luck stories from some of the applicants but none of them having been out of work for more than a couple of months. If the applicants would take any position which is offered to them there would be no excuse for any unemployment in the city. Trade conditions are splendid. The textile manufacturers are exceptionally active although embarassed by the shortage of female help for which there are at the present moment 52 places open. The metal manufacturers are all busy, the smaller ones working at full capacity. Larger concerns such as the Canadian General Electric have room for more men if they could obtain the required material. In fact every manufacturing concern is in so flourishing a condition unemployment is practically unexcusable. In a majority of cases of unemployed the applicant evidently ignores the idea of a half loaf being better than no loaf and turns a deaf ear to an offer of a hour day job at 32½ cents an hour.

..... Leaving the City.

At present the greater number of positions being filled by the staff at the Bureau are in the Western Ontario cities from where a constant demand for sand workers, carpenters, moulders, in fact every branch of employment comes. The factories however which have been most loyal in their co-operation with the Bureau still send in demands for men directly an opening materializes, and any man bearing the introduction card from the Employment Bureau is immediately given the preference. Men once placed by the Bureau invariably return when out of a position again.

Female Department.

The privileges offered by the Bureau for female employment have not been taken advantage of by many of the unemployed women in the city who perhaps do not understand that they are given equal consideration with the men. Any applications as yet received have been immediately attended and one hundred per cent of the girls and women who did not find employment otherwise have been placed.

PROPERTY DAMAGED BY HEAVY FLOODS

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, Dec. 29. — Rivers throughout France, swollen by continued rains, threaten disaster to many sections. Navigation on the Seine is already very difficult, and if the inundation continues, traffic will be forced to stop. In Eastern France the rivers, especially the Meurthe continue to rise. In Belgium the situation has been made worse by news floods on the Sambre and Meuse. German advices state the Rhine tributaries are still rising.

MRS. REDMAN WAS ORDERED TO GIVE UP VICTORY BOND

JUDGMENT RESERVED IN SOMEWHAT CELEBRATED LOCAL CASE.

Judgment in the Bowler case was reserved on Saturday by Judge Huycke, who ordered Mrs. Edith Redman to place in Mr. G. W. Hatton's custody the $50 Victory Bond she received from the co-defendant Albert Vass in part payment for Bowler's automobile, which she sold to Mr. Vass last summer.

Mr. R. R. Hall, counsel for Mr. Vass, said in his argument that the stories of Mrs. Redman's promise of marriage to Bowler were inventions. Bowler had given her his car and money because he had a premonition that he would not return from France, and because of his differences with the Blodgetts.

Mr. Hall said there was no evidence to show Vass was to share in Bowler's money and automobile. He didn't know Bowler had any money in the bank or that he was sending Mrs. Redman money from overseas. Mr. Hall laid stress upon the evidence of Mr. J. A. O'Brien in connection with the episode in the office of Gordon and O'Brien when Bowler formally gave his car and money to Mrs. Redman.

Mr. Hatton likewise referred to the lack of evidence to show that there had been a conspiracy between Mrs. Redman and Mr. Vass to get Bowler's $200 and a pile of junk (the automobile). He declared that Mrs. Redman had insisted that there had never been mention of marriage between herself and the plaintiff.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, representing Mr. Bowler, spoke of the mental condition of his client and of his ignorance of business matters. Vass, on the other hand, had been through numerous transactions. He had used Bowler's car, Mr. Gordon continued, and had spent money on it with the knowledge of Mrs. Redman, and "in fact had assumed ownership." He dwelt upon Mrs. Redman's inability to account for the large sum of money she had spent in a short time, and also of her vagueness as to where the transactions took place. Mr. Gordon also referred to the contradiction in the testimony of Mr. and Mrs. Vass as to which of them had been family banker and handled the money which, it was said, had been paid to Mrs. Redman for the automobile.

FOR

Utilities' Commission

To the Electors of the City of Peterboro

Ladies and Gentlemen,— For the last thirty-eight years I have been a resident of Peterborough and I have been a member of the City Council during the past year. I have watched public affairs closely for a great many years and my last year's service was in the interest of the small ratepayer as well as the large ratepayer.

I supported all progressive measures for the city's benefit and to improve the city's progress. "Equal rights to all and favors to none" has been my motto. I have stood by loyally, everything in the interest of the city.

I invite your hearty support and ask for your vote to return me as Alderman to the City Council, and I promise you that I will give my time and attention and actively support a policy of a Greater and a Better Peterborough. I remain,

Yours faithfully,

James Garside

To the Electors of the City of Peterboro

Ladies and Gentlemen,— I am a candidate for alderman, and if elected I will give the city's government the benefit of my practical knowledge in construction and building.

I assisted in the building of the Canadian Kodak building in Toronto, and have been sixteen years carrying on cement construction. I have been a resident of Peterborough for the last sixteen years and I believe I have a knowledge of the needs of the people from the workingman's standpoint.

I will see that for every dollar spent, one dollar value is given to the city, and I will watch and protect the city's interests as I would my own, if elected.

I request the support of every ratepayer anxious to have an economical, yet progressive city government.

Yours respectfully,

Fred T. Tuggy

NORTH MONAGAN ELECTIONS

To the Electors and Ratepayers of North Monaghan

Ladies and Gentlemen,—Having decided to stay in the field and run as a Councillor for the Township, I respectfully ask for your vote and influence. If I am elected I believe the business affairs of the Council will be carried on in a way, so far as I am concerned, that would be pleasing to you all. The experience I have gained by living in the Township for the last 24 years ought to help me in deciding upon matters pertaining to the Council in a business-like way.

Wishing you all a very Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Bert Arnott

Corner Cameron Street and Monaghan Road.

To the Electors of North Monaghan

Ladies and Gentlemen,— After serving as Councillor for the Township of North Monaghan for eight years and one year as Deputy-Reeve, I was approached by a number of my friends to run for Reeve of the Township and have consentd to do.

If I am elected I feel that my experience in office and my willingness to serve the township should result in the careful handling of the township's affairs.

Wishing you all a Happy New Year, I am,

Yours faithfully,

J. H. FORSTER

To the Electors of North Monaghan

Ladies and Gentlemen: Having been asked by many residents of Claraday, Crawfords' Grove and Byersville Districts, I have allowed myself to be nominated for councillor for 1920. The representation of these districts in previous councils has been such that little progress was made. I would ask for your vote and influence as that I if elected, may serve and ensure greater progress. It will not be possible to make a personal canvass to all.

Yours truly,

JOHN BARNES

5 Cottesmore St., BYERSVILLE.

North Monaghan Elections

To the Electors:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—I have been again nominated for the position of Reeve for your township. During the period I have been Reeve I have given the very best service I could, and the fact that we have accomplished all the work we have without neglecting anything, and reduced the tax rate, if only slightly, during the past two years, is given as sufficient reason by many residents of North Monaghan for my being returned to the Reeve's chair.

Another reason I would give is that, having made a small start for better roads in North Monaghan, I would like to put in operation next year the plans that have been formulated for improved roads in our township.

I solicit your votes and influence in my behalf, and if elected will give the township's affairs every attention. Wishing you all a Happy and Prosperous New Year,

Yours faithfully,

John McIntosh

To the Electors of North Monaghan

Ladies and Gentlemen,— Having been nominated as Councillor for the Township for 1920, and not being in a position to make a personal canvas, may I use this means of soliciting your support, and if elected will serve all electors to the best of my ability.

FRED H. ROWAN,
McGill Street, Claraday.

To the Ratepayers of North Monaghan

Ladies and Gentlemen,—Having been pressed by many ratepayers of the Township to again stand for the office of Reeve, I have consented to stand for that office for 1920. I am not asking your support on the grounds of the promise of the Wardenship and that if elected this time it will be my last time to ask your support, nor am I handing out to you the record of having kept the same chair warm for 9 years. But I have been in the Monaghan Council, also have held the Reeveship and leave it to you to decide as to whether my record at that time would warrant your support again. It is impossible for me to see you all personally, so take this means of saying to you that I am in the field again for the Reeveship of North Monaghan and of asking you, that if you think I can be of any service to the township to give me your support on election day, but if otherwise, then elect the man you consider best suited to the office. Ladies and gentlemen, make it a point to use your franchise on New Year's Day.

Yours for the best interests of the Township of Monaghan—

H. B. RYE

To the Electors of North Monaghan:

Having been nominated for Deputy Reeve for said Township for coming year, and being unable to personally call on all, I take this means of announcing the fact of my acceptance of the nomination. Also the platform for which I stand. And solicit the votes and influence of all interested to ensure my election. During the two years of my experience as Councillor, I have endeavoured to advance the interests of the Municipality by careful attention to municipal matters, also endeavouring to personally advance the interests of the citizens. I feel I can be of greater service if elected Deputy Reeve. And promise that if returned, I shall give the same careful attention to all Township affairs, keeping a special oversight of our Roads and Bridges, with due regard to the maintenance and improvement of same. In reference to appointments, I promise due consideration, having regard to economy, but more particularly to qualification. The regular routine of municipal affairs shall be carefully transacted, realising that owning to our proximity to the city of Peterborough the broadest minds and keenest intellects are required to safeguard our inheritance. As a means toward that end, I believe in Municipal Control of Hydro-Electric Utilities, and shall heartily cooperate with all efforts to secure and extend electric light and power in our urban and rural sections. I consider the extension of the Street Railway would be a valuable asset to the Municipality. I suggest for consideration the following route diverging from the present street car line at corner of Monaghan Road and Chamberlain Street, going west along Chamberlain Street to Western Avenue, thence south to Cameron Street, thence east to Monaghan Road, a point adjacent to Crawford's Grove and the anticipated Monaghan Park, turning north to the most approved route, thence east to Park Street, continuing along McGill Street to Lock Street, linking up with present railway line. Space will not permit to enumerate the advantages of such a line. In reference to annexation with the city, I would strenuously oppose annexing the proposed area, it being a valuable asset to our Township, and should not be surrendered without remuneration. Neither should the present owners be called upon to contribute towards payment of bonds to which they were not a consenting party and which were expended for utilities in which they cannot expect to benefit. As to the destiny of the more congested portion, particularly Byersville, I consider the many active and shrewd business men qualified to determine what is best for themselves, having due regard to the probable mandate of the Provincial Board of Health re sewer connection. The Provincial solution of the housing problem is worthy of consideration, and should receive the hearty co-operation of our Reeve and Deputy Reeve. If elected I shall advocate uniting with the Board of Trade of the City of Peterborough; the co-operation with the City Council in a campaign to secure additional manufactures, for which Monaghan has abundant and attractive sites. I extend the compliments of the season to all. And again solicit the support of all to ensure my elec-

NOTICE

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTH MONAGHAN:

Ladies and Gentlemen,— Having served three years as Councillor for the Township, and as I cannot make a personal canvass for the coming election, may I ask your support for Deputy-Reeve. I will endeavour to look to your interests in the future as I have in the past.

Thanking you for the past support which you have given me, and wishing you a Merry Christmas and a very Happy New Year.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

To the Electors of Peterborough

Ladies and Gentlemen,— Having been endorsed by the Trades and Labor Council for the Board of Education I have decided to accept the nomination. With this purpose in mind of advancing technical education and manual training, I advocate night classes to be held for technical instruction on such subjects as machine construction and drawing, building construction and drawing, practical plain, solid geometry, etc., etc., to enable mechanics to improve their knowledge to a state of thoroughness and efficiency. Believing technical education to be as essential as commercial education for the progress of the community. Your vote is solicited for,

Yours respectfully,

Alex. E. Morrison

C. E. SISSON FOR THE UTILITIES COMMISSION

To the Electors of the City of Peterborough:

Ladies and Gentlemen,

Believing that every citizen who enjoys the advantages and privileges of our city should be interested in the development and administration of its utilities to the extent of being willing, to assume some responsibility in connection with the same, and believing that I can render more effective service on the Utilities Commission than in any other capacity, I have agreed to allow my name to appear as a candidate for the vacancy on the Commission.

I solicit your favorable consideration of my candidature.

Yours respectfully,

C. E. SISSON

RE-ELECT ALDERMAN HARRY PHELAN

To the City Council for — 1920 —

As Chairman of the Board of Works he has given practically all his time to the construction of the new Hunter Street Bridge, and to preparation for the construction of sewage disposal plant.

Let Him Finish His Work

COPPING FOR ALDERMAN

TO THE ELECTORS:

Ladies and Gentlemen: Having accepted nomination for election to the City Council, I wish to present myself to the Electorate.

I do so in full confidence that if favored I can give to the city now ample time in which to be useful, and be careful, diligent and helpful in the work, and in the interest of the ratepayers as a whole. I am sure that I can give the time, and not plead, further on, that I am so occupied that matters escape my atention.

I place myself in your hands as a man and a citizen, just one of yourselves, anxious to help my home town and willing to make the effort. I can bring to the work good intelligence, appreciation of needs and the will and the energy to do the very best possible. If elected I will make it my business to work amicably and helpfully with the members of the aldermanic board in joint effort to handle your problems.

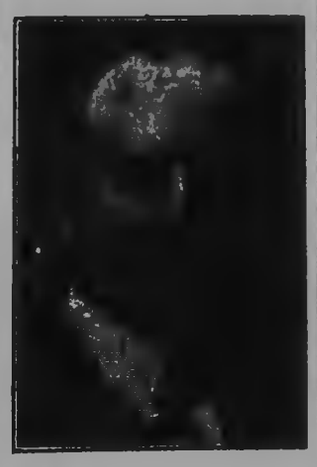
Enterprises that are in hand for the city will have closest attention. Those planned will receive careful scrutiny in the interest that the best may be evolved What is asked for will be supported if reasonable and conducive of the greatest good to the greatest number I promise to be unremitting in my endeavor to justify your choice, if elected, and bespeak for myself your support

I feel that I am not assuming too much in asking that you give the new man a chance He deserves an opportunity to show what he can do. And he will make good, having in view the welfare and progress of the city for its citizens I will not hesitate to encourage enterprise, so long as it promises to build up our municipality, and will assist such sensibly and carefully. We should provide the opportunity for laboring men to be employed and if I am in the Council I will stand for progress in all things that it is well to push forward.

Respectfully,

R. V. COPPING

BOARD OF EDUCATION



DR. F. C. NEAL

Respectfully Requests your Vote for Re-election on the Board of Education in favour of a Progressive and Economic Policy for 1920.

To The Electors of The City of Peterboro

Ladies and Gentlemen,— Having been nominated and endorsed by the Trades and Labour Council of Peterborough as a candidate for the position of Alderman of the City of Peterborough, I accept the same, believing labor to be the basis of national progress. That a better understanding will be arrived at by co-operation of all classes on the Council, which is so essential to the industrial progress of any city, I feel confident that my practical knowledge of construction work will be of great service to the city in the undretakings that will come before it during 1920.

If elected, all matters that may come before the Council shall receive my most serious attention for the benefit of the community in general.

Wishing you all an industrially prosperous New Year, with happy home conditions.

Yours, Etc.,

FOR ALDERMAN

VOTE FOR JONES

Having again been nominated and asked to run for the position of Alderman for 1920, I solicit the support of the ratepayers, in the interest of good economical municipal Government.

If elected I will support only measures that I consider in the best interests of the City.

Yours faithfully,

R. N. JONES

To the Ratepayers of the City of Peterborough

I am offering myself as a candidate for Alderman, as I believe that this City will be benefited with my many years of experience as a member of the City Council and as City Solicitor. I had intended to devote my time to my business affairs, but as there are few men of many years' experience in Municipal affairs in the City Council, I felt that I could be a help in the City's government on account of the large undertakings and important projects which must be dealt with by the Council within the next two years.

To develop this City we must have new industries, and I have given much of my time in the past years, while in the City Council, to this particular part of Municipal affairs.

If elected, I will make every effort to improve this City as a great industrial centre.

The support of those who believe that I shall be able to give faithful service, is respectfully requested.

Yours faithfully,

G. N. GORDON

For BOARD OF EDUCATION

After strong pressure from influential quarters, I have again consented to accept a position on the Board of Education, if it be the will of the Electors to place me there.

If my best business ability is considered necessary to help complete the work which is already in hand, it is at the service of the citizens for another term.

A good substantial vote behind me would look as though what I have tried to do has been appreciated.

The Compliments of the Season.

For Board of Education

MRS. KATE MORRIS

TO THE ELECTORS:—

The Hon. Mr. Drury, Premier of Ontario, has stated that he considers the woman's point of view both desirable and necessary on every Board of Education.

Dr. Cody while Minister of Education many times expressed the same opinion.

Your Board of Education acknowledges the need and value of women in the schools when it employs six times as many women as men teachers (65 women and 11 men) and a woman nurse.

Having been a Public School Teacher ,or some years I am able to see the educational questions of the day from the double viewpoint of the home and the teacher.

It is in the hope of giving intellegent service, that I am a candidate for the Board of Education.

KATE MORRIS
(Mrs. W. R. Morris)

To the Ratepayers of the City of Peterborough:

Ladies and Gentlemen:

The best claim that any candidate for office can urge on his own behalf is based on his experience and the nature of the public service he has rendered. I have been ten years in the City Council. In that time I have been elected nine times, both under the ward system and the general vote. I appreciate these past expressions of confidence in me, and I pledge myself that, if elected Mayor, I will still strive to retain the good will of the voters.

I was Chairman of the Special Council Committee that selected the site for the Public Bathing Beach, and I gave my personal supervision to the construction of the Bath House. I was also Chairman of the Committee that erected the Bandstand in King Edward Park, thus giving the South-end residents the benefit of open-air band concerts.

Some time ago the health of the citizens was menaced by the sale milk which the sanitary offcers showed by actual tests was impure. was the father of the measure which provided for a rigid system inspection for all milk offered for sale. During my various terms of o I have alway taken an active interest in measures intended to improve health of the city.

For two years I have been Chairman of the Manufacturers' Commit which, during the year just closing, has secured Six New Industries Peterborough. These are as follows:

The Western Clock Company of La Salle, Ill., makers of clocks watches. This firm have taken the Chicle buiding on George Street, expect to have two hundred men at work before the end of next year.

The Albion Knitting Company leased, with an option to purchase, old West Ward School. They are employing about fifteen hands, good prospects of extending their operations.

The Bon Marche Manufacturing Company, that has leased premi on Simcoe Street, and will engage in the manufacture of white wear.

The Nashua Gummed and Coated Paper Company, that has ta over the old Cordage Co. plant, and will start operations with thirty to forty skilled workers.

The Canadian Aladdin Company will, if the by-law carries week, locate a branch in this city for the manufacture of ready houses.

Alexander Stewart has put up two buildings on Gladstone Avenue, will start a wool stock factory.

These are a few of the matters in which I have had a hand during different terms in the Council. I will, if elected Mayor, do as I h done in the past, and work for the interests of all classes of citizens.

I repeat what I said in a previous notice to the public—I am in fav of the Housing Scheme, although I voted against the by-law rece adopted because I was convinced that the appointment of the Com sion should have been left to the Council of 1920.

Again soliciting your support,—I am,

Yours for progress,

A. A. McINTYR

To the Electors of the City of Peterborough

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

I have the honour of nomination and have been urgently requested by a very large number of ratepayers to be a candidate for the Utilities Commission.

Having served you six years as Alderman and two years as Mayor, I acquired a fairly comprehensive knowledge of the duties of the Utilities Commission.

I was a member of the City Council during the negotiations, construction and prosecution of the work of the City's Electric Power Station, the City Waterworks Dam and the Auxiliary Pumping Station.

As Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee in the City Council, I came directly in contact with the Waterworks System, including the mains, hydrants, pressure, etc., for fire protection, domestic, and manufacturing purposes.

For two years I was Vice-President of the Ontario Hydro-Radial Association, which gave me a thorough knowledge of the advantages of the Hydro-Electric system for power, electric lighting, heating and Radial Railway purposes.

With the above experience and knowledge I respectfully solicit your vote and influence in support of my candidature, assuring you, if elected, that I will endeavour to assist in every way possible with the other members of the Commission to carry out the work in the very best interests of the ratepayers of the City of Peterborough.

I am heartily in favour of such improvements as the proposed new Filteration Plant when the time is opportune, but I am of the opinion that all such large expenditures, as far as practicable, in every department of the City, should be deferred until such time as some of the present debentures are fully paid up except in so far as it is found necessary to go ahead with the work in order to keep out workmen and labourers steadily employed.

Respectfully yours,

JOS. J. DUFFUS

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

MONDAY, DECEMBER 29TH, 1919.

A GOOD BEGINNING.

Premier Drury has undoubtedly gained friends for the Farmers' Government by his uncompromising stand in the Middlesex registrarship matter, even if he has temporarily alienated the support of some of the element which helped to put his party into power. In adhering firmly to the position that appointments of this kind must, if possible, be made by promotion and on merit he has won the commendation of the ever-increasing section of the population which desires to see the abolition of the Spoils System. If the Farmers' Clubs in Middlesex had been consulted and their recommendation of some friend of the U.F.O., had been acted upon, the people would have been justified in thinking that the Drury Government intended to play the political game as it usually has been played, and that the friends of the party, regardless of their ability or fitness to fill the position, would get the plums. In selecting the assistant of the late registrar to fill the vacancy and in firmly ignoring the protests of those who wanted to select a party stalwart for the position, Hon. Mr. Drury has made a good beginning. His handling of this question will earn general approval.

THURSDAY'S DUTY.

The electors of Peterborough should place prominently on their New Year's programme of reform a resolution that they will commence the year by discharging their responsibility of having a share in the selection of the civic government for 1920. It has unfortunately been the case in the past that hundreds of ratepayers have taken so little interest in municipal elections that they have not even taken the trouble to register their vote. At the annual election last January a very large percentage of the vote was not polled. On this occasion there should be a much better showing. Not only is there a contest for the Mayoralty, the Utilities Commission, the Board of Education and the City Council, but there are two most important by-laws to come before the people, and as a result the responsibility of the electors is more than usually heavy. Every citizen whose name is on the list should regard it as an imperative duty to turn out on Thursday and register his or her vote for the different offices to be filled and on the by-laws as well. Only in this way can Peterborough be sure of a really representative government. With the elections taking place on a public holiday there is no legitimate excuse why practically all the eligible vote should not be polled.

THE ONLY TEST.

The only test that the electors should apply in selecting the candidature that should be supported for the different offices that are to be filled on Thursday, is that of ability and fitness for th position. The field in each contest should be surveyed closely with a view to deciding which of the candidates offer the most desirable qualities from the view point of ability to honestly and efficiently serve the public. There is no more logic in voting for a weak candidate because he is a Labour man than in voting against a good candidate for the same reason. The man who possesses intelligence and vision, the ability for understanding public questions, and strength of character to take a stand for the right, is the man to be supported regardless of his class or creed or following in life. A very logical way of making a selection was described to the Examiner by one citizen who invariably adopts in deciding upon the candidates to be supported. "I always try to imagine," says he, "that I am engaging someone to look after my own private business. Then I go over the candidates one by one and size them up from their public record, if they have any, or from what I know or have heard of them. And I ask myself: Would I want so-and-so to handle my business?" Thus I quickly eliminate the man who do not come up to the test."

There is much to be said in favor of such a plan. For every citizen is a shareholder in Peterboro: the city's business is our business and we should exercise the greatest care in choosing the board of management all comes back to the question of ability. There is no other test that should be applied.

TO-MORROW'S MEETING

In arranging for a public meeting to be held to-morrow night to discuss the two bylaws to come before the ratepayers on New Year's Day, Mayor Duncan has taken a step that is decidedly in the public interest, and there should be a large attendance of the electors in the Council Chamber. While the newspapers have been devoting considerable space to the discussion of the Canadian Aladdin measure, and the by-law to authorize the purchase by the city of Riverside Park, yet it is desirable that an opportunity should be given of hearing the two bylaws thoroughly threshed out in public. There are doubtless details of the two propositions about which the ratepayers are hazy and which have not been touched upon by the newspapers. To-morrow night's meeting will afford a chance of asking questions about points concerning which there may be some doubts, and citizens who are not yet clear in their minds regarding some feature or other of the bylaws, would do well to attend the meeting, hear the measures explained and take part in the discussion.

The Examiner believes that both bylaws should be enthusiastically endorsed by the people and carried by large majorities, and, therefore, welcomes the opportunity afforded by Mayor Duncan's action of having the details placed clearly before the ratepayers.

Speaking of the importance of large attendances at such meetings the London Advertiser says:

"When an opportunity is given the voters of this city to meet and discuss civic affairs, prior to an election, it is greeted with the utmost indifference, and scheduled meetings are attended by almost a mere handful. Judging by these attendances there are hardly a dozen citizens who have any interest in the municipality or the way in which the business is transacted.

"This is a lamentable state of affairs and is not confined to London, but appears to be general. Yet there never are lacking plenty of people to condemn the Mayor, the Council, the Board of Education, or any other body which may be doing its level best to further the city's and nation's interest. It is well known that destructive criticism is much easier and more showy than constructive suggestion, but it is not nearly so useful.

"This is the period of reconstruction following the war, and the problems entailed are municipal as well as national. Never has there been greater need of sound, progressive, broad-minded and far-seeing legislation than in this present time, and never has the individual appeared less inclined to bother himself with the questions of importance.

"There must be an awakening of the public conscience in this respect, or Canada will fail to measure up to the standard. Governments, whatever their sphere or stripe, cannot do the thinking for the country. The members of legislative bodies are only the mouthpieces of the community and they can express and carry out the wishes of the people only when these are made known. Public meetings to discuss politics, of any kind, ought to be the most engrossing of gatherings, they ought to attract the masses as nothing else will. They must become more interesting and popular or Canada will lose ground."

WHAT SHALL THE RESERVATIONS BE?

It is a curious fact that the two political parties at Washington are now disputing as to which of them is responsible for the rejection of the Peace Treaty. Considering the zeal which Senator Lodge and his associates manifested in opposing the treaty it seems strange now to find them accusing the Democrats as the party responsible for the refusal of the Senate to agree to ratification. "You Republicans fought against the treaty and defeated it," say the Democrats. "Oh, no," says Senator Lodge, "we were willing to ratify it, with reservations, and as you refused to join us in that course you are responsible." The dispute proved too much for the stalwart Republican, Senator Borah, who advised his Republican friends to cease "pussyfooting" and accept the responsibility. For himself, he said, he was proud to acknowledge that he had done his utmost to defeat the treaty and he meant to continue to do so. While we may admire the frankness of Senator Borah, the fact that Senator Lodge and many of his Republican associates are trying to fix on others the responsibility of the rejection may be taken as an indication that they are afraid they have been running counter to public opinion, and that they are anxious to find some ground of agreement that will prevent the treaty becoming a party issue in the Presidential election.

The conviction seems to be growing that the treaty must not be finally rejected. Each party seems to be waiting for the other to move. Mr. Lodge and his friends claim that the President and his supporters are bound to present reservations that they are willing to accept. The President practically says he has nothing to propose, that having submitted the treaty he has done his duty. It is observed, however, that though the President takes a stand pat position, his intimate friend, the Democratic leader in the Senat, Mr. Hitchcock, in a recent speech suggested reservations which he thinks might be accepted. Here they are:

1. That the domestic affairs of the United States are never to be taken under the jurisdiction of the League.
2. That the Monroe Doctrine is to be unaffected by the provisions of the League.
3. That if the United States is engaged in a dispute with any nation having self-governing colonies, dominions or parts, each with a vote, all of those votes are to be disqualified just as the vote of the United States is to be disqualified.
4. That the powers of Congress to declare war remain unimpaired.
5. That the League has no control over the American Army and Navy.
6. That the United States, if it should desire to withdraw from the League, is to be the sole judge of whether it has performed its obligations so as to give it the right to withdraw.

Senator Hitchcock would hardly propose these reservation if he felt that the President was not prepared in the end to accept thm. There will be much jockeying for position, much dispute as to who should make the first move; but in the end the treaty will be ratified and probably these reservations or something very like them will be the basis of the agreement that will be reached. The Republicans will plead the reservations as their justification for assenting to the treaty. The Democrats will comfort themselves with the view that the reservations mean nothing of importance.—Journal of Commerce.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Some sections of the U.F.O. do not seem much different from the old political parties.

What do the Labor members of the new government think of Hon. Mr. Biggs' declaration that women should not be paid as much as men?

The injustice of the censorship that kept the people of Canada from learning of the gallantry of Canada's airmen is illustrated by the fact that it was not until the death of Major McKeever that Canadians began to hear of the wonderful record of the Listowel aviator.

As the head of Peterborough's largest industrial plant, where the value of technical training is so well appreciated, and with the business and executive ability to direct big things, and the experience he had in the erection of modern buildings, Mr. E. G. Patterson should, and does, make a valuable member of a public body such as the Board of Education.

Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven..

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. SANDRA THE JEALOUS

BY JANE PHELPS

"A THRILL WITH THOUGHTS OF WHAT THE FUTURE HELD."

CHAPTER VII.

Everett was very rich — so father said. He had large business interests, which required a great deal of attention. He also said that I was a very lucky girl to marry a man who could care so well for me should anything happen to him. I thought so too. And while I had none of that feeling of intense love, I had read about, for my intended husband, I was wildly excited, a-thrill with thoughts of what the future held for me.

Everett wrote often, and constantly sent me presents. Lovely things, a ring, a pair of bracelets, and a dull gold locket, set in diamonds with a picture of himself inside. All appropriate presents for a young girl. When I showed the locket to Rose she said:

"He doesn't love himself, does he? Putting himself in a diamond frame." I didn't let it make me angry. I felt sure Rose was jealous. "Why don't you send him one of yours for his watch case. I'll bet he's got the first in there yet."

When Rose said that I did get angry, and cried. She was awfully sorry, but that didn't make me stop thinking she might be right. And such thoughts made me awfully unhappy; sometimes made me almost wish I wasn't to marry Everett until I too had been married before. Yet I hardly understood how I could accomplish that. But if I had also loved some one first it would have seemed more fair.

I did have my picture taken and sent it to Everett. I told him I thought he might like to put it in his watch. He thanked me very nicely, but said it did not do me justice, and that he would have one taken by a good photographer after we were married.

I felt awfully chagrined, and so glad I had not told Rose I had had it taken. It was the first thing I ever had given him, and he had not been pleased with it. Perhaps it wasn't very good. I imagine our country photographer was not a finished artist, but I couldn't help wishing he had said he was pleased with it.

But I hadn't much time for worry over anything. It was all hurry and bustle until October. The time fairly flew. Rose came over every day and helped mother and me sew. I don't know what I should have done without her, but all the time I had it in my mind to make it up to her after I was married.

Mother hadn't acted real happy over my marrying Everett any of the time. I often caught her looking at me sadly, once or twice with tears in her eyes. Then often her eyes were red in the morning. I was sure she had been crying, although she denied it. But mother never objected to anything father thought the best thing to do for us, so she said very little. I learned long afterward that she was afraid because of his heart trouble.

"I hope you will be a very happy wife, dear," she said one day when we were alone. "You will have to constantly remember that Mr. Graham is much older than you are, that his views of life are formed, that he has had experience. He may be unused to young girls, and at times make things rather difficult for you. But love can smooth away all difficulties.

Mother sighed a little when she finished. She would have been even more disturbed had she known just how difficult things were to be for me; just how hard my being young and inexperienced was to make my life.

"Of course we will be happy," I answered her gayly, reassuring myself and her at the same time. "Everett must love me very dearly, even if he isn't very demonstrative. He didn't have to ask me to marry him mother, you know. He did it because he wanted me."

"I trust it is for the best," was all the answer mother made, but that night I heard her talking to father long after they had gone to bed, and when they supposed I was asleep. I couldn't hear what they said, but I was sure they were talking of me — my future.

I smiled confidently as I lay wide-eyed in the dark. Dear mother was so foolish to worry about me. Of course I was going to be happy. Yet I couldn't help a wish that Everett would make a little more fuss over me.

CAPS DISPLACE THE FEZ.

ELBASA, Albania. The Mohammedans of Elbasa are wearing American golf caps instead of the red fez which form the time Mohammed laid down the religious tenets for his worshippers has been the immemorial head covering of the Turk.

The Austrian occupation left hardly a scrap of clothing in the country. Many of the Turks went bareheaded. Then an American Red Cross unit arrived, bringing thousands of outing caps. The Mohammedans abandoning their religious scruples clamored for these headpieces. To-day most of the Turkish school boys of Elbasa wear the convention caps of their Yankee brothers across the ocean and look the better for it.

PIPE AND TOBACCO FOR OLIVER GREEN

Mr. Oliver Green, night foreman of the spinning room of the Auburn factory of the Canadian Woolens Limited, was presented with a pipe and jar of tobacco by the employees, who accompanied their gifts with the following address:

Dear Sir,— The employees of the night spinning department, desirous of showing our appreciation of your fairness to those under your charge, take the opportunity at this joyous season of festivity and good-will to reciprocate in some small measure by asking you to accept this pipe and tobacco as a slight token of the esteem in which you are held by us, and when by its use you offer incense to "My Lady Nicotine," may you be reminded of the pleasant associations between yourself and the donors.

And may yourself and family share life's choicest blessings and a most joyous Christmas.

Signed on behalf of the spinning room—

George Faux,

THE PEACE TREATY.

(United Press.)

PARIS, Dec. 29. —The "Echo De Paris" said to-day the French and British governments have decided to ask for extradition of the former Kaiser as soon as the provisions of the Versailles treaty are carried out. Latest despatches indicate the Versailles treaty will be made effective early in 1920.

GOES 25 MILES FOR MORE TANLAC

FARMER SAYS IT RESTORED WIFE'S HEALTH AFTER HE HAD SPENT HUNDREDS IN VAIN.

"Well, sir, it is twenty-five miles from here to where I live, and I came all that distance just to get some Tanlac," said W. M. Nance, a well known and prosperous farmer who lives at Irricana, Alberta, Canada, while in the Liggett-Findlay Drug Store in Calgary, the other day.

"You just ought to see the way this Tanlac has brought my wife out," continued Mr. Nance, "and here of late I have been feeling mighty bad myself, so I thought about the best thing I could do was to get started on Tanlac as quickly as possible. Now, my wife's trouble was of five years' standing, and during that time I spent hundreds of dollars trying to get something that would help her, but it was just that much money thrown away. She had a bad case of stomach trouble, and everything she ate would cause gas to form so bad that she could hardly get a good breath. Then she was so nervous and restless that she couldn't sleep at night. She also suffered from headaches, and sometimes she would get so dizzy that she couldn't stand on her feet. She just kept getting worse all the time until she was just past going altogether.

"Well, I noticed that Tanlac was highly recommended for that kind of trouble, so I bought a bottle of it and she commenced taking it. In all my life I never saw anything to equal the way my wife improved after she commenced taking Tanlac. Why, she has gained at least fifteen pounds in weight, and is as well and hearty as she ever was in her life. She has a fine appetite, and eats just anything she wants and she never suffers a particle afterwards. She does all her housework now, and it doesn't seem to tire her a particle. Now, that is what Tanlac did for my wife, and when I commenced to go down hill a short time ago, Tanlac was the first thing I thought about, and after seeing what it did for my wife, I am sure that it will soon put me on my feet. Yes, sir Tanlac is a real medicine and you you may count on me to say a good word for it every chance I have."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowlers Corner by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

CHRISTMAS CHEER.

On Christmas afternoon a number of public-spirited citizens went to the House of Refuge and gave an entertainment for the inmates. The kind thought originated with Rev. F. Ashton, and he was ably assisted by a number of friends.

The old people were treated to oranges, apples and candy, and a sufficient sum was reserved for a New Year's treat.

The following was the programme in part:

Instrumental selection — Mr. Riddle played the violin and Mr. Ashton the harp.

Recitation—Isobel Sutton.

Solo—Dr. C. W. Finnemore.

Solo—Miss Beatrice Campbell.

Duet — Misses Dora and Mildred Darling.

Recitation—Muncy Riddle.

Recitation—Reba Preston.

Solo—Rev. Frederick Ashton.

Christmas carols were also sung by all the assembly.

Mr. Campbell expressed thanks on behalf of his charges for a happy afternoon.

CHRISTMAS PARTY.

On Friday evening the A.Y.P.A. held their annual Christmas party in the Sunday School, with about fifty present. The evening was strictly informal and was spent in games. The chief feature of the evening was a festive looking Christmas tree on which was a present for each person. The opening of these gifts caused much amusement as the amount to be spent on gifts was strictly limited to not more than 20 cents each. During the dainty supper, served by the committee in charge, several toasts were drunk and a vote of thanks was given to the committee. Mr. T. A. Simpson made a neat little speech in reply.

The gathering broke up about midnight, after spending a jolly evening.

This is the fifth annual Christmas party of the Anglican Young People's Association, and was pronounced at least, as good as the best by some who had attended all of them.

Yes, it is the Mr. Sharp you mention who is a candidate.—Editor.

BE SUSPICIOUS OF TENDER GUMS

Be suspicious of any tenderness or bleeding of the gums. This is usually the first stage of Pyorrhea—an insidious disease of the gums that destroys the teeth and undermines bodily health.

Gradually the gums become spongy. They inflame, then shrink, thus exposing the unenamelled tooth-base to the ravages of decay. Tiny openings in the gums form gateways for disease germs to enter the system. Medical science has traced many ills to these infecting germs in the gums weakened by Pyorrhea.

They are now known to be a frequent cause of indigestion, anaemia, rheumatism and other serious conditions.

So watch carefully for that first tenderness or bleeding of the gums. Try Forhan's immediately. It positively prevents Pyorrhea (Riggs' Disease) if used in time and used consistently.

And in preventing Pyorrhea—it guards against other ills.

Forhan's (For the Gums) cleans teeth scientifically as well. Brush your teeth with it. It keeps the teeth white and clean.

If gum-shrinkage has already set in start using Forhan's and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

Grove's O-Pen-Trate Salve
Opens the Pores and Penetrates

A Remedy for Chest Colds, Head Colds, Sore Throat, Stiff Neck, Earache, Spasmodic Croup and kindred ailments. Apply freely to the skin just over the affected parts and rub it in.

GROVE'S O-PEN-TRATE SALVE

is also an Excellent Germicide for the Nose and Throat.

It should be applied to the nostrils so that you will be continually inhaling the vapors while in the presence of patients who are sick with contagious diseases, or when you are entering crowded cars or other public places during an epidemic of Grip or Influenza. Any Grip or Influenza germs breathed through the nose are destroyed by this germicide salve before the germs can reach the throat.

FOR THE SICK

Place One Level Teaspoonful of GROVE'S O-PEN-TRATE SALVE in a hot saucer in the sick room. The Antiseptic Vapor rising from the heated salve makes breathing easy for the patient. It induces sleep and is a great comfort to anyone suffering with Spasmodic Croup, Asthma, Bronchitis, Sore Throat, Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Diphtheria or Pneumonia. The Healing Effect of the Vapor relieves the patient and is very comforting. Price 35c per box. If your Druggist hasn't any, send 35c in postage stamps to Paris Medicine Company, 193 Spadina Ave., Toronto, and a full-size box will be mailed to you promptly.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKETS

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—There was little change at the opening to-day. Many issues opening at the same price as the closing quotations Saturday. The majority of those issues, which varied from the previous close, were higher, however. U. S. Steel opened at 106 5-8, up 1-8, Texas and Pacific at 42 1-2, unchanged, American Loco at 102, unchanged, Republic Steel at 118 3-4, up 1-2, Gen. Motors at 340, up 1 1-4, American Can. at 54 7-8, unchanged, Goodericb at 82, up 1-4, Anaconda at 61, up 1-8, Central Leather at 99 1-2, up 1, Mexican Pet. at 218, unchanged, Southern Pacific at 103, off 5-8, Crucible at 217, unchanged, and U. R. Stores at 92 1-8, off 1-8.

The entire list eased off shortly after the opening, with reaction of a point in Steel Common, 2 points in Republic, 3 in General Motors, and more than 2 in A. T. Securities. U. S. Rubber, however, made a new high on the move at 131. For the first time since 19th November, opening and renewal rate for call money was 12 per cent. There was a large amount of money wanted, and offerings were very light.

Irregularity marked late trading, although the general tendency was toward uneasiness. U. S. Rubber, American International, and most of the copper shares were strong.

Western Pacific was off about a point from the opening. The preferred stock sold at 59 up 2 from Friday's close, and an advance of 5 during the recent rail movement.

At one o'clock, call money was quoted at 18 per cent.

WILL INTERVIEW THE GOVERNMENT

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Dec. 29.—Canadian organised labour is preparing for its annual interview with the Dominion Government, which will take place on 8th January.

Chief among the requests will be one for legislation reducing the hours of labour. Labour men emphasise that in the Versailles Treaty, Canada has already recognised the principle of the eight-hour day, or the forty-eight hour week, and further that the Government delegates to the International Conference voted for an International Convention providing for the eight-hour day for industrial workers.

Whether the executive of the Labour Congress will press the terms of this convention remains to be determined, but it is highly probable that it will decide in favour of urging the forty-four hour week.

FIRE IN BEAMSVILLE.

(Canadian Press.)

HAMILTON, Dec. 29.—Fire broke out at five o'clock this morning in Hamilton, Grimsby, and Beamsville Electric Company's car barns at Beamsville, doing $75,000 damage.

The barns were destroyed, and three passenger cars were lost.

An overheated stove is believed to have been the cause.

SPECIAL MUSIC ALL SAINTS' CHURCH

The services in All Saints church yesterday were largely of a musical nature and were greatly enjoyed by the large congregation present, particularly at the evening service. In the morning the soloist was Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, contralto, who sang "Bishoffs" Christmas song Alleluia! Christ is Born most beautifully. Possessed of a very rich voice of great range and power, which she combines with artistic effect. She will make a very welcome addition to the musical ranks of Peterboro.

In the evening the choir sang a number of Carols featuring solo verses by the boys of the choir also an obligato to the rest of the choir which produced a well balanced effect. After the Carols as a final number the full choir sang the "Gloria in Excelsis" from Mozort's 12th mass which was particularly grand, giving full opportunity for full ensembled singing and grand unison effects forming a brilliant conclusion to the memorable day. Miss Flowers ably presided at the organ and the whole services reflected great credit on the choir and the choirmaster, Mr. Geo. E. Chandler.

To The Electors.

In the Interests of the People For the Immediate Advancement of the CITY OF PETERBOROUGH.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—In the coming election I have been chosen a contestant for municipal honors.

My reason for standing for election to a seat in your worthy council is not of my own volition, but because I was requested by the Trades and Labor Council to stand for election. I am endorsed by the Independent Labor Party also, whose policies are progressive, honest and humane.

Why should the electors place members of this class in the council? Because they are democratic, offering even balanced justice to workers with either hand or brain.

I stand for these principles, and if elected will devote my influence and personal deliberations along aforesaid lines.

I have spent the past thirty years in Peterborough and have been a ratepayer for a great number of years.

So having closely studied existing conditions relative to manufacturing industry my highest ambition would be to see Peterboorugh booming with industrial activity, as manufacturing is the main artery to the community in general.

I trust the electors will not break faith in my candidature for a Greater Peterborough, in which we are all concerned.

I have offered you a free policy of insurance, because I will protect your interests as I do my own.

I therefore solicit your patronage, and sincerely wish young and old a cheerful and prosperous New Year.

Your Obedient Servant,

L. F. HUMBER
President of I.M.U.

CONTINUANCE OF EVIDENCE IN DUBLIN INQUEST

(Canadian Press.)

DUBLIN, December 29. — Private Riddle testified that Kennedy drew an automatic pistol, with which he shot Lieut. Boast in the breast.

Witness added that the corporal of the guard, one soldier, and Kennedy fired at the same time. The Lieutenant shouted, "They've got me."

Pte. Barnwell swore that Kennedy tried to catch Lieut. Boast by the throat. One of the soldiers who went to the lieutenant's relief said he saw a man lying on the ground. When witness tried to turn him over, the man fired two shots at him, whereupon the witness shot him in the neck.

Stories of the various military witnesses differed materially regarding the details of the affair.

The testimony established, however, that no pistol was found on Kennedy's body or near the place where it lay.

The Coroner, in summing up, emphasised that fragments of the bullet which killed Lieut. Boast, produced in Court, proved it was a military bullet.

The verdict in the case of Laurence Kennedy was to the effect that he was killed by the military patrol on his way home.

The jury considered that the military acted in a most heartless manner.

ST. PATRICK'S DEFEAT QUEBEC

TORONTO, Dec. 29.—The local professional hockey season was ushered in on Saturday night, when the newly organized St. Patrick's defeated Quebec in an N.H.L. fixture by a score of 7 to 4. It was a game replete from start to finish with spectacular individual playing, with never a let-up to the speed until near the end of the final period, when lack of condition forced the players to halt the terrific pace which had been maintained throughout the preceding periods.

St. Patrick's shaped up as a promising aggregation. They had speed and staying power on the forward line, and the defence with a little more practice will prove a formidable barrier for any team to pass. For the first two periods of Saturday night's game they forced the Quebec players to shoot from outside or pocketed them into the corners, from where only a lucky pass to centre ice gave them any chance to try out Lockhart. The former 228th Battalion player shaped up as a grand little goalie, and the four shots which beat him would have beaten the best of them.

Frank Heffernan, manager, who made his debut as a professional, was as steady as a rock on the defence, but his rushing on Saturday night was not as effective as in his old amateur days. However, there is not the slightest doubt that once he becomes acquainted with the style of defence of the opposing teams he is going to be one of the hardest men in the League to stop.

It was noticeable that Mummery, the heavyweight champion of the League, wasn't any too anxious to get in the way of "Moose" when he came hurtling straight down the centre of the ice, and the only way he was ever stopped was by the sandwich play, in which both defence men and a forward usually took part.

Mickey Got Two Goals.

Mickey Roach was the hardest working man on the ice. He accounted for two of the locals' tallies, the first and the third. He played the puck every minute he was on the ice, and he checked back like a fiend, breaking up play after play.

St. Patrick's management made a mistake by not using "Babe" Dye more, as this player was not only dangerous every time he had the puck, but he also had Carpenter and Mummery buffaloed with his fake passing. Once he made big Mummery look like a plugged nickel as the big train fell for the fake pass and allowed Dye to walk right by him. In sports the locals tore off some of the best combination yet seen around here in professional hockey, but they were not steady and at other times performed erratically.

St. Patrick's—Goal, Lockhart; defence, Randall, Heffernan; centre, Roach; right, Wilson; left, Noble; subs., Cameron, Dennery, Dye and Mitchell.

Referee—Cooper Smeaton.

A WEALTHY FARM OWNER; WIFE AND 3 BABIES SLAIN.

GILCREST, Colo.—Adam Schank, a wealthy farmer, his wife, and three young children, were murdered on their farm near here. Another child was dangerously wounded.

The bodies were found by Schank's brother, George, when he went to take the family to church.

The murderer apparently used a revolver. The authorities are looking for an employee of Schank who has not been seen since Saturday.

The names of the killed:
Adam Schank, 37.
Elizabeth Schank, his wife, 35.
Marguerite, 6.
Florence, 4.
Wesley, 2.
Jaunita, 3, is in a Greeley hospital, with a bullet in herhead.

ADVOCATES A FORTY-EIGHT HOUR STRIKE IN SYMPATHY FOR RUSSELL

(Special to The Examiner.)

CALGARY, Dec. 29.—News of the sentence of Russell to two years' imprisonment appears to have created a condition of great uneasiness among Labour leaders here, who were not in sympathy with Russell during the strike, and who have consistently opposed the One Big Union movement from the beginning.

Alex. Ross, M.L.A., for Centre Calgary, and a former president of the Alberta Federation of Labour, who is a recognised leader of the anti-O.B.U. forces here openly advocates a 48-hour strike as a protest.

LAST NIGHT AT THE LABOUR CHURCH.

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Dec. 29.—"I take it that your coming here tonight is meant as a tribute to Bob Russell," said Rev. William Ivens at the Central Labour Church last night, and the audience demonstrated acquiescence. The attendance was a record-breaker.

The sentiment of the crowd was undoubtedly correctly interpreted by Mr. Ivens, as every mention of R. B. Russell's name showed.

These references, which were frequent, invariably brought a burst of applause from the audience. Many of the references originated in the body of the theatre itself, wild cheers greeting the man who rose unexpectedly and said, "Jesus Christ was a martyr, and so is Bob Russell."

At the close of his address, Ivens moved his audience to tears in speaking of Russell's children and wife. He reminded his audience how the children of a man serving a sentence for a crime were scorned by their playmates, and said that all must be very careful to see that Russell's family received not only financial support of workers, but also their Christian sympathy.

Ivens was led to give a special eulogy of Russell, in which he said, "In the sight of the judge and jury, Bob Russell is condemned, a guilty man, but in the sight of Almighty God, he is innocent."

WAS KILLED BY HIS OWN PATROL PARTY

(Canadian Press.)

DUBLIN, Dec. 29.—Evidence given at the inquest to-day on the bodies of Lieut. Boast and a civilian killed near the Viceregal Lodge in the shooting affray on Sunday, showed that Lieut. Boast, with two soldiers of the guard, went on patrol duty at three a.m., and saw a man in Phoenix Park, who refused to stop when challenged.

Shots were fired, and the officer fell. The soldiers swore they saw six civilians in all, who succeeded in escaping.

The civilian was identified as Laurence Kennedy, a baker's labourer, of Lucan.

Lieut. Boast, officer of the guard, who met death in Sunday night's shooting affray near the Viceregal Lodge in Phoenix Park, was accidentally killed by a bullet from his own patrol party, it was found by the jury at the inquest into the lieutenant's death held to-day.

PUBLIC MEETING IN LABOUR HALL TO-NIGHT

A public meeting under the joint auspices of the Trades Council and Independent Labour Party will be held in the Labour Hall to-night, at which the candidates in the municipal elections will have an opportunity of addressing the electors and of discussing the city's problems. The citizens generally are invited to attend. This occasion will serve to introduce to the ratepayers some of the candidates, their platforms and their opinions upon some of the city's needs and undertakings.

When you think of what you can't do, you are not thinking of what you can do. You should be thinking of what you can do instead of worrying over what you can't do.

The man who is an optimist is usually a success for his mind is never worrying about the reasons why a thing cannot be done. He doesn't think that way.

Following the line of least resistance is what makes rivers and men crooked.

Voice Of The People

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—No civic body plays a larger part in the making of Peterborough into a desirable place to live than the Public Utilities Commission.

As the functions of the Commission are strictly of an engineering nature, it is self-evident that to properly appreciate them as a body one commissioner must have an intimate knowledge of the economic and technical principles underlying engineering.

Engineers are, by their education, training, and experience, as well qualified as any professional class to discuss, and deal with, public questions and problems, and in the case of technical questions, are better qualified than are the other classes. No body of men are closer in touch with the issues of the present social unrest and the incident cost of labour and living. They have the confidence of both the employer and the employee. Col. Leonard, president of the Engineering Institute of Canada, said in Peterborough not long ago, he believed that the engineer is the logical connecting link between labour and capital, and should be the best arbitrator to harmonize differences between them.

It is as a commissioner in the Public Utilities Commission that we need the vision and authority of the citizen who is also an engineer.

Public opinion demands that the attributes of justice should be administered by jurists, that questions of sanitation and hygiene should be decided by medical men. Let us be consistent and see that the Public Utilities Commission, considering the highly technical character of its problems, has on its board an engineer whose qualifications are indispensible to the successful administration of the Commission.

Mr. Chas. E. Sisson is an eminently qualified engineer. He is a member of the Engineering Institute of Canada and an executive member of the Canadian Branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. It is his everyday business to discuss and administer economic and technical matters equal in value to that dealt with by the Public Utilities Commission. He is in touch with the civic problems of Peterborough and his candidature should appeal to all.

I bespeak the support of all who desire a bigger and better Peterborough, a Peterborough whose sane methods of financing and carrying out of public projects will appeal to all who may be considering establishing themselves in Peterborough.—Yours, etc.,

A RATEPAYING ENGINEER.

The CRESSMAN Co. Limited

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—The writer desires to register his appreciation of the splendid article on technical education by J. W. Worth, published in your issue of the 24th inst.

It is to be hoped the citizens will re-elect Mr. Worth to the Board on New Year's Day with a substantial majority so that we can get the benefit of his valuable services when technical education comes to the front, which it will undoubtedly do in the very near future.—Yours truly,

NORTHENDER.

Editor, Peterborough Examiner:

Dear Sir,—There are not many men who run for public office for purely patriotic reasons, but Mr. Copping seems to be one of them. I notice by his letter to the papers that having the time and the means he wishes to place them at the disposal of the city. It seems to me that this offer should be gladly accepted by our citizens and that Mr. Copping should be given a large vote. For several years now he has been foremost in many movements for the city's interests, and his association with the Brinton Carpet Works has given him an opportunity to realize the city's needs. While there, too, he was known as a champion of the workingman.

Yours truly,

DUTCH STEAMER AND CREW LOST

VAN DRIEL WRECKED WEST OF CAPE RACE WITH ALL HANDS GONE.

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 29.—The Dutch steamer Anton Van Driel has been wrecked west of Cape Race with the loss of the entire crew.

The Van Driel struck on the eastern head of Steinhotts, at the mouth of St. Mary's Bay, Newfoundland, at 1.20 this morning. Some of the boats were launched, but they never reached the shore. Those who did not take to the boats are still on the wreck, with absolutely no hope of their being rescued. News of the disaster reached Halifax this afternoon in a wireless message to the Marine and Fisheries Department from Michael Mayrick, the lighthouse at Cape Freels, in the immediate vicinity of the scene of the disaster.

A PRESENTATION AND ADDRESS

The following presentation and address was made to Miss Gladys Mealey, 462 Park street.

Peterborough, Dec. 27, 1919.

Miss Gladys Mealey, 462 Park street.

Dear Miss Mealey,—Your friends and associate workers in the punch press department have learned of your intention to sever your connection with this department. We will miss your smile and happy jests, but nevertheless we congratulate you upon your preferment. We know you will prove yourself worthy of your high calling in entering upon the state of matrimony, and we hope you may be privileged to enjoy many years of happy wedded life.

And now, on behalf of your friends, permit us to present you with this cabinet of silver as a token of our love and esteem. May it prove useful in your home and continually remind you of the happy associations of the past.

We all join in extending to you our very sincere respects and good wishes.

Signed on behalf of the employees of the punch press department of the Canadian General Electric Company.

FLOUR TAKES ANOTHER JUMP

Flour rose in price in Peterborough $2.00 a barrel to-day, but as yet the Dominion rise in price of the different grades of wheat has not affected the city, but a new schedule of prices at the local mills will be announced to-morrow or on Wednesday.

The price of hogs is also on the upward start, and live hogs were to-day quoted at $20.50, or $1 higher than the same day last week. Dressed hogs at $30.

2 DAY "CLEAN UP" SALE

Tuesday and Wednesday, Dec. 30 and 31

It is a "Clean-Up" Sale because we have been busy the last few days gathering together all broken lots, odds and ends, left-overs, etc., after the great rush of the Holiday Week. These must be cleaned out before the end of the month and we are taking Tuesday and Wednesday to do it. From every department in the Store have come the Special Bargains. They will make this "CLEAN-UP" Sale a veritable money saver. Here is a partial list. Watch for the Yellow Price Tickets all over the store. There will be many lines with a Yellow Ticket on that we cannot mention in the paper.

A Big "Clean-Up" of Silk Petticoats $4.98

There are Silk Petticoats in this lot that sell regularly for $6.50, $7.50, and $7.75. Many are excellent qualities of Taffeta, in Black or Navy, and the fashionable bright shades. Others are pretty flowered Taffetas or plain Satin or Messaline Silk. Our stock of these has been much depleted by the Xmas Sale; so we include them in the big "Clean-Up" Sale, and put the entire Rack on Tuesday Morning at your choice for only $4.98

WONDERFUL SWEATER BARGAIN

This is a "Clean-Up" of the Sweater Stock, in Misses' and Ladies' sizes, in a big range of colours and styles, but there are very few of any one line. It is a "Clean-Up" of the Stock, and these are a gathering together of odds and ends of broken numbers. Some in the lot sell regularly up as high as $8.50—all in one Clearing Lot on Tuesday Morning. Your choice for $3.79

BLACK MOIRETTE PETTICOATS AT $1.98—

These are outside sizes and a splendid quality of Black Moirette, in good sensible style. The quality is beyond question, and to-day the Skirt would cost you double this price if you were to buy one. There are just a few left—so they go out in the "Clean-Up" Sale, commencing Tuesday Morning at, each $1.98

HEATHERBLOOM PETTICOATS FOR $1.98—

These Petticoats are made from a splendid quality of Heatherbloom, and can be had in Black or Bright colourings. Another "Clean-Up" Sale on Tuesday Morning at, each $1.98

Two Remarkable Coat Bargains For Tuesday and Wednesday

40 COATS THAT MUST BE CLEARED BEFORE THE MONTH IS OUT—THIS MEANS THAT THEY MUST GO TUESDAY OR WEDNESDAY. YOU CAN TAKE YOUR CHOICE OF 10 OF THEM AT $15.00 AND OF 30 AT $21.00 A-PIECE. THESE ARE THE LAST OF THE WONDERFUL COATS WE HAVE BEEN SELLING, AT BARGAIN PRICES, THE LAST FEW WEEKS —AND TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY WILL SEE THE LAST OF THEM.

10 COATS AT $15.00—

These are Coats of good quality of Tweed Mixtures, Blanket Cloths, Velours, etc. They have high convertible collars, and are new styles, every one of them. The man who made them intended them to be sold from $25.00 to $28.50. Ten to "clean-up," and your choice of the Ten—Tuesday and Wednesday, for only $15.00

30 COATS AT $21.00—

The man who made these Coats intended them to be sold at $32.50 to $37.50, and they are worth it. Some are lined, others only half-lined. All have the popular high collar and pockets. The materials are Velours, Silvertones, etc., and the styes are right up to the minute. Thirty Coat Bargains for Thirty People who come on Tuesday or Wednesday. Choice of them on "Clean-Up" Day for only $21.00

SERGE DRESSES $19.75 Pretty Dresses of Navy Serge, nicely trimmed with Braid; particularly suitable for general wear. "Clean-Up" Sale, each only $19.75

These Will Be Found in The Economy Basement

FIVE BIG SPECIALS IN GRANITEWARE FOR THIS "CLEAN-UP" SALE. IT IS QUITE TRUE THAT THESE ARE "SECONDS," BUT IN MOST CASES THE IMPERFECTION IS SO SLIGHT THAT IT WILL NOT INTERFERE WITH THE WEAR. IN EVERY CASE THE PRICE IS NOT A FRACTION OF THE ACTUAL VALUE OF THE ARTICLE, BUT WE WANT TO MAKE A CLEAN SWEEP OF THESE "SECONDS ON TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY, AND GIVE YOU YOUR CHOICE OF THESE LOTS AT REAL BARGAIN PRICES. BELLEVILLE OPENS HOCKEY SEASON TO-MORROW NIGHT

The weather man has guaranteed good ice for to-morrow night's game with Belleville, which opens the local hockey season, and everything points to a fast and clever exhibition. Belleville beat the local intermediates in Belleville on Friday night, and although the series is only an exhibition one, Capt. Lornie Rose's outfit are very anxious to wipe out the sting of this defeat by taking the Easterners into camp at Brock street rink to-morrow night. Belleville has a fast outfit this season, last year's good intermediate squad having been reinforced by the addition of several speedy juniors, and on good ice they will be a hard crew to stop. They had the Petes down 9 to 3 at one stage in Friday's game, so that it is evident that the homesters can take no chances. The Peterborough line-up will not be announced until after to-night's practice, but it is possible that the whole crew will be given a chance to show their wares in action against the Arnott-Finkle combination. The fans who are anxious to get a line on this year's team will be out in large numbers for Tuesday's engagement.

Every player is requested to be out at to-night's practice, which is called for 7 o'clock. There will be an important meeting of players and officers immediately after the practice, and a full attendance is requested.

The intermediates will play their first O.H.A. game in Cannington on Friday night.

HOCKEY

The Auburn City League team will practise at Brock street rink on New Year's morning between 10.30 and 11.30 o'clock and the following players are asked to be out: Legros, F. Graham, H. Graham, Frost, Tudhope, McMartin, Williams, Jackson, Coughlin, H. Smith, Mulhall, Rutherford, Cherrett, Gilchrist.

Unanimous Consent.

There was a wedding in a certain church the other day, and, as usual, the minister in the course of the ceremony said: "If any one has aught to say why this couple should not be joined in the holy bonds of wedlock let him now speak or forever hold his peace." During the silence that followed a man who was accustomed to serving as a chairman of meetings arose and, rapping the top of the pew sharply with his knuckles, said, "There being no objection the motion is carried."

Crown Prince of Belgium Called Duke of Brabant After Historic Province

IN connection with the visit to America of King Albert of Belgium and the Duke of Brabant, it is interesting to know how the eldest son of the Belgian ruler acquired that title.

It is fitting that the name of Brabant should be perpetuated in Belgian history, for the territory originally so designated may well be called the cradle of that Belgian freedom which functioned so gloriously in 1914.

Present-day Brabant, most populous province of Belgium, has an area slightly larger than Rhode Island and three times as many people. But the Brabant of earlier times, conquered by Caesar, settled by Salic Franks, parceled out to Germany by the treaty of Verdun in 843, and made a part of Lower Lorraine, was more extensive. It included North Brabant, now the largest Holland province.

Late in the twelfth century the rulers of Brabant assumed the title of duke, but it was not until 1354 that an event occurred which removed Brabant from the rank of a pawn of the feudal system, and laid the foundations for a love of independence which sometimes was suppressed but never crushed.

This event is known as the Joyeuse Entree, a charter of Brabant liberty akin to the Magna Charta and the Declaration of Independence, granted by Duke John III. so there would not be too vigorous protest against the marriage of his daughter, Jeanne, and Wenceslaus of Luxemburg, a union which entailed a change of dynasty.

A year later John III. died and his heiress and her husband made their coming to Brussels an occasion to renew their vows to observe the terms of the charter. From this circumstance — an exceedingly "joyous entry" indeed—the charter derived its name.

DUKE OF BRABANT.

It must not be concluded that because this victory was passive it was handed, manna-like, to Brabant citizens. The charter of Cortenberg, wrested from John II, was a reminder of the Brabant state of mind and it foreshadowed the broader principles of the more famous document. The Joyeuse Entree pledged the dukes to begin no wars, nor conclude any peace, without the approval of their subjects; it provided that members of the council, representing municipalities, must be native born; and that the ruler must preserve the duchy's territorial integrity.

Even this concession did not pave the way of Wenceslaus for a peaceful reign. Louvain, once the ducal residence of Brabant rulers, had become a centre of cloth manufacture, and there sprang up the consequent troubles of an industrial city. During an uprising the city's magistrates, mostly noblemen, were thrown from the windows of a building and caught by the populace on the points of spears. Duke Wenceslaus besieged the city in 1382, and punished the rioters, but many of the city's best artisans fled to escape retribution. In so doing, they transferred their industry to England and Holland. Louvain regained prestige in another field with the establishment, by Pope Martin V., of its famous university, from which it was said no one could graduate, "without knowledge, manners and age."

Brabant passed to the House of Burgundy, then fell under Spanish dominion, and, finally, by the Treaty of Utrecht, to the Hapsburgs of Austria.

It was at Brussels, the later Brabancon capital, that the uprising against the tyrannical Spanish rule was generated, and developed into an 80-years' war of independence. Brabant bore the Hapsburg yoke no more willingly than that of Philip II., and when Joseph II. tried to interfere with the long standing rights granted by the Joyeuse Entree, he precipitated the revolt of 1789. At Brussels, too, was fomented the revolution of 1830 against Dutch rule, which resulted in the independence of Belgium.

Perhaps one of the most appealing figures in Brabant's long history was the much-married Jacqueline, or Jacoba, Countess of Holland, who first married the Duke of Touraine, then successively, John IV., Duke of Brabant; Humphrey, Duke of Gloucester, and Francis of Borselin. History accounts her the most beautiful, talented and valorous woman of her day.

SAILOR COLLARS IN VOGUE

Once Favorite Decoration Back Again as Trimming for the Thin Summer Frocks.

Some years ago everybody wore deep sailor collars reaching almost to the waist in the back and down into a deep point like a bib in front. These collars are in vogue again as a trimming for this summer frocks, only this year they are turned exactly around, as the deep part of the collar is placed in front in a yoke effect and the long points formerly in front now go around the neck to fasten in a shallow square at the back.

This is an excellent way to use up the lace and fine embroidery one has been saving for years in the hope of finding some manner of using again. Nothing is smarter than this sort of deep square yoke of lace or finest batiste embroidery, serving not only as yoke but collar as well. The front is open and comfortably low, so that even the dresses of moire and taffeta and satin which are serving for morning wear along with the fashionable little challis are not uncomfortably warm by means of these low-cut necks. Cuffs of the same shape and material as the yoke collars add further embellishment for a dark dress. Moire is having a vogue it has not had in years.

PAY ATTENTION TO SHOES

"Sloppy" Footwear Will Spoil the Effect of the Most Handsome Costume That Can Be Donned.

Shoes are not good fits that wrinkle anywhere. Wrinkles under the arch are caused by too low a heel or the low instep of the wearer. A higher heel will usually make a shoe fit better if the instep is low. This is especially true with a long, slender foot. Shoes that wrinkle because a little wide can be remedied after a fashion by wearing an inner sole. Shoe trees, of course, should be used in shoes when they are not being worn, for the best-fitting pair is apt to wrinkle in the process of cooling from a warm foot. With thin pumps and slippers a generous stuffing of tissue paper makes a good substitute for shoe trees. A well-dressed woman never allows her heels to "run down." Having heels "built up" is inexpensive, is the least "patchy" looking of all shoe repairing, and besides improving the looks of shoes, enables the wearer to have a better carriage in walking.

ERNIE MARKS AT THE GRAND

The Ernie Marks Stock and Vaudeville Company will present at the Grand to-night the great problem play, The Straight Road, with a picked cast of players and vaudeville artists, as we all know that Mr. Ernie Marks, as a comedian, is one of the funniest screams that ever stepped on the stage, and will easy prove to supply a very hearty laugh every minute. Miss Kittie Marks will be seen in this production of the Straight Road. The story is not only funny but it has a very interesting plot running all through the story.

FOR BETTER, FOR WORSE, A GRIPPING PHOTOPLAY

Cecil B. DeMille's latest production, "For Better, for Worse," which is being shown at the Allen Theatre to-day and to-morrow, discusses the most vital modern problems now engaging public attention. Of course it would be impossible to deal with all the problem in a single picture, so Mr. De Mille has taken one of the most important angles of the subject: the status of the man who stayed at home instead of going to France. The story was written by Edgar Selwyn, and it is an extremely powerful and gripping picture drama.

DR. ANNA DWYER IS A DEFENDER OF HER SEX AND ALL MORALS

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—"Uncorseted women do not live any longer nor enjoy any better health than the smartly corseted, up-to-the-minute modern city women," was the claim of Dr. Anna Dwyer, morals court physician.

"It is every girl's privilege to paint her face, if she likes. Those who do attract attention, and those that don't do not, I notice. But it should be done artistically.

"Everyone wears too many clothes these days. Silk stockings and low shoes are neither objectionable nor dangerous and the modern corset is quite sensible, to my mind."

LABORS' APPEAL

To the Electors of Peterborough:

Remembering its initial success of one year ago, when the entire slate of four aldermanic candidates was elected, and firm in the belief that the general public of Peterborough have every confidence in the fair-mindedness of Organized Labor and appreciate the beneficent reforms they have in view, the adoption of which would go far in enhancing the welfare of the masses, and still not work any injustice to the few, the Trades and Labour Council are again in the field, this year widening the scope of their activities to include branches of civic government other than the City Council. Being impressed by the spirit of indifference demonstrated by the Electorate in previous years, due in great measure to the fact that only one class of citizens were placed in nomination, and that no opportunity was given the great bulk of the people to vote for representative citizens for the various offices, the Trades and Labor Council is once more to the fore in an attempt to remedy this condition of affairs.

It will be noted that the Trades Council has not been selfish in its endorsation of the various aspirants for office, having gone outside of its organization and chosen several candidates who have no connection with the Trade Union Movement, believing they are eminently fitted to discharge the duties of the offices for which they were placed in nomination.

The idea of the Trades Council is to get every voter interested in the betterment of the conditions under which we all have to live, and herewith submit a civic platform to which all the endorsed candidates have signified their wilingness to adhere. This platform is the outcome of serious thought and consideration of students of economic conditions for years, and its adoption is designed to bring about the greatest good to the greatest number. We would ask you at this time to carefully peruse two of the planks here set forth:

6. Thorough revision and more just equalization of the salaries of public officials.

10. Annual publication of Assessment Rolls.

No citizen will have the temerity to deny that the salaries attaching to the various civic offices should not be more generally equalized; neither would he deny that the publication of the assessment roll would bring about a more just assessment of taxes.

Apart from the platform as set forth, Labors' candidates, if honored with election, will to the best of their ability see that the city's business is handled in a manner that will not only prove of benefit to the masses, but they pledge themselves to represent all the people of the city, irrespective of class or creed.

The platform of the Trades and Labor Council is as follows:

MUNICIPAL ISSUES.

1. Municipal ownership of gas and electric light plants, telephones and all street railroads, all municipal franchises to be owned and operated by the municipality in the interests of the people.
2. Eight hour services for all municipal employees.
3. All municipal work to be performed directly by the municipality without the intervention of contractors.
4. Payment of wages weekly; equal pay for women for equal work performed with men.
5. Revision and simplification of the municipal code.
6. Thorough revision and more just equalization of salaries of public officials.
7. The use of halls in all municipal buildings to be granted free of charge to the citizens for the discussion of public questions.
8. Abolition of property qualifications for municipal candidates.
9. Municipal loans to be supplied to workingmen for building purposes at lowest rates of interest.
10. Annual publication of Assessment Rolls.
11. Universal suffrage and abolition of the ward system.

We herewith present for your earnest consideration and support the following candidates for the various civic offices named:

FOR THE MAYORALTY:

A. A. McINTYRE

FOR THE ALDERMANIC BOARD:

L. F. HUMBER JOHN A. SHARP

D T. TUGGEY WM. H. TEDFORD

FOR UTILITIES COMMISSION:

CHARLES EVERETT SISSON

FOR BOARD OF EDUCATION:

MRS. KATE E. MORRIS

J. BOLWELL ALEX. MORRISON

Wishing you all the compliments of the season and trusting you will again see your way to repose confidence in the candidates endorsed by the Trades Council. Yours sincerely,

WEDDING BELLS

NORTHEY—HOCKADAY.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized in Lakefield at the Parsonage on Wednesday evening, Dec. 24th, when Gilbert Lorne Northey, younger son of Mr. T. Northey, Burleigh, was united in marriage to Gertrude May Hockaday, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hockaday, Young's Point. The Rev. S. F. Dixon officiated.

The bride looked charming in a gown of midnight blue silk, with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of lily of the valley. She was attended by Miss Florence Matthews, who wore a midnight blue silk poplin dress. The bride's brother, Percy, supported the groom. Miss Edna, sister of the bride, wore white messaline silk and acted as ring-bearer.

After the ceremony the wedding party returned to the home of the bride's parents, where the relatives of both parties partook of a dainty supper. The bride cut the cake with a German dagger trimmed with a white satin bow, which was brought home from France by her husband.

The bride received many beautiful and costly presents, among which was an Irish linen tablecloth, the gift of the bride's brother, which he brought home from Belfast, Ireland. The evening was spent in music and games. Mr. and Mrs. Northey will reside at Mt. Julian.

BAILEY—HOARE.

A pretty wedding took place at high noon, Christmas Day, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hoare, 59 Webber Street East, Kitchener, formerly of Peterborough, when Addie Jane, their eldest daughter, was united in marriage to Mr. John James Bailey, just returned from overseas, and son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bailey, of 708 Ontario Street, Toronto.

The Rev. H. F. Schade officiated.

The bride wore a beautiful wedding gown of champagne silk crepe de chene, tulle veil with orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations with maidenhair fern. The bride was given away by her father.

The bridesmaid was her sister, Miss Pearl Hoare, while the groom was supported by Mr. Frank Wood.

The wedding march was played by Miss Annabel Vogel, a friend of the bride.

After the assembled guests had extended their congratulations the wedding dinner was served by girl friends of the bride.

The happy couple left on the 5.20 train for Toronto and other eastern points on their honeymoon, taking with them many good wishes. The bride's travelling suit was navy blue, with black maline hat.

The groom's gift to the bride was a set of Hudson seal furs. The bride received many other useful and costly gifts. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a sunburst, to the groomsman, cuff links, and to the pianist, a pearl brooch.

After their return the bridal couple will reside in Kitchener.

OBITUARY

R. A. DEYELL.

The death took place on Saturday of R. A. Deyell, a life long resident of Otonabee and one of its best known and most respected men, in his 97th year. The late Mr. Deyell, while ailing for some time, was able to be out to church a week ago, and his death on Saturday was a shock to all his friends and relatives. He married Letitia Stewart, of which union a family of eleven children were born, seven of them surviving, together with his widow, as follows: Mrs. James Chambers, Mrs. Wm. Hanbridge, Mrs. Bruce Wood and one son, Ward, at home. Two daughters and a son, Mrs. Fred Deyell, Mrs. Bert McWhinnie and Mr. Roland Deyell, live at Frobishire, Sask.

While the late Mr. Deyell had not sought public honours of any kind, he was greatly interested in agriculture and had been a member of the Exhibition Board for some time.

The funeral will be held from the family residence, concession 18, Otonabee, on Tuesday, December 30th, and interment will take place in the Little Lake cemetery. Service at the house at one o'clock.

RUSHING LIQUOR FROM UNITED STATES

PITTSBURG.—Five thousand barrels of whiskey were being loaded here to-night in the hope that it might reach the seaboard in time to be shipped abroad before national prohibition becomes an accomplished fact.

Distillers said it was the first of a large amount of liquor held in this district which had been sold in Europe, but they had little hope of getting more than one tenth of it out of the country. More than ten million gallons, it was said, were still in warehouses in this vicinity.

GERMAN DYESTUFFS WANTED BY CANADA.

Dominion Asking for Its Share—May Be Given Through Britain.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—The non-delivery of Canada's share of German dyestuffs allotted as part of Teutonic reparation under the Peace Treaty forms the subject of an inquiry just made to the British Government by the Canadian mission in London.

Canada is calling for these dyes, and is being seriously hampered by the lack of them. So far, however, they have not made their appearance.

Some time ago it was announced that the first shipment of German dyestuffs was due in Britain, but since then there have been complaints on the part of the British manufacturers at the slowness of delivery.

It is understood that Britain is receiving her share, and it would appear that Canada will obtain her supply through the Mother Country.

On account of the growing importance of the Canadian textile industry, the matter is of more importance than it would have been before the war.

W. J. Egan, Trade Commissioner in South Africa, remarked before leaving for Cape Town that he had never seen better knitted goods anywhere than were now being manufactured in Canada, and that with adequate supplies of raw material the Dominion could compete in the markets of the world.

DIED.

HEWSON.—On Sunday, Dec. 28th, at Verulam Hall, Peterborough, Margaret Lundy Hewson, beloved wife of the late T. R. Hewson.

Reply to the Note

HEAD OF GERMAN PEACE DELEGATION AGAIN IN TOUCH WITH THE PEACE CONFERENCE OFFICIALS.

WANT GUARANTEES

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, Dec. 30.—Kurt von Lersner, head of the German Peace delegation, called on the Secretary of the Peace Conference this afternoon.

The greatest reserve is maintained relative to the subjects discussed, and it is only known that Von Lersner did not bring the German reply to the last note from the Allies to the German Government.

It is generally understood, however, that Germany is inclined to sign the Protocol to the Treaty on condition that guarantees are given regarding the possible reductions as to the quantity of harbour and dock materials to be handed over in compensation for the warships sunk at Scapa Flow.

Hopes have again been raised in Supreme Council circles for an early exchange of ratifications of the Versailles Treaty, and the first week in January is given now as the probable date when the Treaty will be put into effect. This prospect springs from the conversation held between Kurt Von Lersner and Secretary Dutasta of the Peace Conference. It was said to-day that the chances were that the Germans would decide to sign the protocol without waiting for the verification of figures regarding harbour tonnage. It is explained that the Council will satisfy the Germans' demand for a more specific declaration on the reduction of tonnage asked for, through affixing to the protocol the text of M. Dutasta's verbal declaration to the German representative on the subject.

THE GREAT WAR VETERANS HEAR LOCAL CANDIDATES

SMALL REPRESENTATION OF VETERANS RECOMMEND THE ENDORSATION OF A NUMBER OF LOCAL ASPIRANTS TO PUBLIC OFFICE.

THE ADDRESSES

At a meeting of the Great War Veterans held last evening in the G.W.V.A. Hall candidates for municipal offices in the coming elections were given a hearing regarding the platform they would adopt and have taken during previous service to the city. On account of the small representation of War Veterans present, the endorsation of candidates were restricted to a recommendation to the members of the Association by the members who attended last evening. Following the speeches made by the different candidates these recommended were; for the Council Messrs. G. N. Gordon, L.P. Humber, R. V. Copping and Frank Whitehouse; for the Board of Education Mrs. Kate Morris, Messrs. G. O. Cameron, J. W. Worth and Claude Rogers.

Mayoralty Left Open.

It was decided to leave the candidacy for mayoralty open and no endorsation was made for the Utilities Commission.

Mr. J. W. Worth.

Mr. J. W. Worth was first called to the platform and after modestly admitting that he had not been a Soloman in his administration on the Board of Educaton stated that anything he had done had always been done with a view of best serving the public. He stated that during his two years of service he had left no cause for any objection to claim favoritism. He outlined his part in securing the 10 per cent. bonus for the school teachers of the city and stated that he has always and will always stand for adequate renumeration. He also reminded the Association of the stand he had taken in having a fair wage and a "Peterboro men first" clause in the letting of the contract. Continuing he outlined his platform in regard to the Industrial Schools claiming that men should be trained in the city to take the positions in the Peterboro industries and recommend that the Collegiate Institute, at present inadequate, should immediately have a gymnasium added.

Mrs. W. R. Morris.

Mrs. Kate Morris followed Mr. Worth and stated that in offering herself as a candidate for the Board of Education she was not doing so because it was a thing she particularly wanted but because a woman on the Board of Education had to be brought out for the people who wanted co-operation. She stated that having been a school teacher herself she could see the educational questions of the day from the double view point of the home and the teacher. She promised that the men of the Board should have her hearty co-operation in any matter a sane woman would approve.

Mr. G. N. Gordon.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, a candidate for the Council who was next called to the platform by Comrade R. E. Layfield, pointed out the need on the City Council of men with municipal experience when expenditures running into hundreds of thousands of dollars are anticipated. He outlined the stand he took in the enforcement of a school tax on the Quaker Oats which resulted in a gain to the city. He concluded by stating that if elected to the council he will serve to his best ability as an alderman; if defeated he will continue to serve as best he may as a citizen.

Ex-Mayor Duffus.

Ex-Mayor Jos. J. Duffus who as a candidate for the Utilities Commission next spoke outlined his activities in securing better quarters for the Great War Veterans and in looking after the soldiers dependants during the war. He stated that there is nothing in the office he seeks election to outside of doing his duty, and showed by a record of past service that he has a clear knowlege of the importance and in working of the Department. He stated that he is in favor of the proposed filteration plant. He said that his aim would be to perpetuate the work done by his predecessors and to carry out the policies in existance and above all to keep rates and expenses down as much as possible. He concluded that it is his intention to further all work which will keep men employed which is the duty of any citizen. If elected he will do his utmost to carry out the duties imposed by the office to his best ability, if not to assist those who are elected

Mr G. O. Cameron.

Mr G. O. Cameron, a candidate for the Board of Education admitted that he had not done all the work on the Board during his two years of

MAY RESCUE THE REMAINDER OF CREW

(Canadian Press.)

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., Dec. 30. — Hope for the rescue of five men of the Belgian setamer "Anton Van Driel," who have been lashed to the bridge of the wrecked vessel off Saint Shotts since yesterday, was renewed to-day when daybreak showed the storm passing and the seas calmer. It was believed that the steamer sent from here would reach the scene of the wreck early to-day, and there was a chance that her boats might be able to take off the survivors of the crew of thirty. Other members of the crew were lost yesterday in trying to reach the shore in boats after the steamer had struck on the rocks near the entrance of St. Mary's Bay. The Van Driel loaded with coal for Holland left Sydney last Saturday.

REEVE ANDERSON DECLINES HONOUR

MR. F. A. EASON WAS ELECTED REEVE OF OTONABEE BY ACCLAMATION.

Nominations were held yesterday at Keene for Otonabee township. Mr. W. A. Anderson, who has been Reeve for the past eleven years, was given the unanimous choice of the position, but declined the honor for business reasons. Other nominations for the Reeveship were Messrs. E. Deyell, John Sergent and F. A. Eason. The first two resigned in favour of Mr. Eason, who was elected by acclamation.

Mr. David Lawrie, Mr. John Sargent and Mr. John O'Leary were nominated for the Deputy-Reeveship, Mr. John Sargent withdrew, leaving the field to the remaining two and the electors. The following councillors were nominated and will contest the election: Messrs. A. Gillespie, John Sargent, John Devlin and F. A. McIntyre.

SCHOOL BOARD FINANCES FOR THIS YEAR

CHAIRMAN MR. E.G. PATTERSON WILL KEEP WITHIN ESTIMATES—NO OVERDRAFT FOR OPERATING EXPENSES.

Discussing Board of Education affairs this morning with The Examiner, a gentlemen greatly interested in school matters, and much pleased with the standard of the candidates who are presenting themselves for election to next year's Board, pointed out the fact that already Mr. Patterson's experience in charge of the erection and equipment of large buildings and plants had been of great value to the Board in connection with the building of the new school, and that as chairman of the Finance Committee he has this year been able to keep within the estimates for the year in operating expenses, without carrying over an overdraft to 1920. These facts were cited for the information of the public, who are asking for practical men to conduct the city's business in its different activities.

BUSINESS TAX WILL EXPIRE TO-MORROW

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Dec. 30. — To-morrow the Business Profits War Tax will expire, and the question will arise of its renewal or discontinuance.

During the four years the tax has been in force, it has provided the major share of the receipts from war taxes, including the present year.

The estimated yield of tax since its inception is in the neighbourhood of one hundred million dollars.

The Government's policy in regard to the continuance or discontinuance of the tax is not likely to be announced before the budget speech is made by the Finance Minister.

"OPEN HOUSE" ON NEW YEAR'S DAY.

The Young Women's Christian Association is starting the New Year by having "Open House" on New Year's Day. All friends of the Association and those interested in the work, both men and women, are invited to drop in for a cup of tea any time during the afternoon or evening. In the afternoon Mrs. W. D. Scott, the president, and Miss Martha Dickson, vice-president, will receive.

LONDON'S GREATEST SUCCESS BROUGHT HERE BY EXAMINER

FAMOUS ENTERTAINMENT AT GRAND OPERA HOUSE NEW YEAR'S DAY, FRIDAY AND SATURDAY OF THIS WEEK STILL DRAWS OVER TWELVE THOUSAND A NIGHT IN ALBERT MEMORIAL HALL.

GUARDED BY A DESTROYER THESE PICTURES CAME FROM LAND OF ARABIAN NIGHTS—PETERBORO PEOPLE CAN CLIP COUPON AND SEE THEM CHEAPLY.

The Examiner is bringing to the Grand Opera House New Year's Day Friday and Saturday, matinee and evening the most enthralling entertainment ever brought to Canada. This attraction has swept London off its feet. Last August the Carnaghey-Thomas illustrated travalogues on General Allenby's campaign in the land of the Arabian Nights, opened at the Royal Opera House, Convent Garden, London. The opera house was rented for three weeks only. The marvelous colored and motion pictures about the romatic and appealing Near East, together with the delightful travel talks by Dale Carnagey and Lowell Thomas, were an instantaneous success. London was amazed. The London Morning Advertiser declared that "all London is talking of little else." Three hours before the doors opened, crowds would form on the sidewalks to get tickets. The police were out every day for three months to keep these crowds in line. The opera season was postponed, so great was the success of the illustrated travalogue.

Queue at Convent Garden.

The London Daily Mail said: "One of the strangest sights to be seen by the Londoner at present is a large queue waiting in the vestibule of the Royal Opera House, Convent Garden, to buy seats for the evening's entertainment.

"Such an event is beyond imagination—the reason is that Mr. Lowell Thomas and Mr. Dale Carnagey give an amazingly graphic account of the campaigns in the Holy Land and Arabia.

"These pictures should be seen. They are vividly real. It is a delightful and perfect entertainment."

Months have passed and the London public has continued to flock to hear these marvelous illustrated travelogues. When the opera season finally opened, this attraction was moved to the Royal Albert Memorial hall, which seats twelve thousand. This hall is entirely out of London's amusement district, but the public came, by bus and tube and taxi, filling that vast auditorium twice daily. Today, these travelogues are the outstanding success of London's entertainment season. They are now drawing larger crowds than any other attraction in all England.

Here For Three Days, Matinee and Night.

There are only two copies of this travelogue in existence. One is attracting the largest crowds in London; and the other will undoubtedly break all records for Peterborough. At every performance in Peterborough, Dale Carnagey, the incomparable traveloguer, the Burton Holmes of England, will appear on the platform and deliver his intimate travel talk while the pictures are on the screne.

NOMINATIONS IN LAKEFIELD AND OTHER COUNTY MUNICIPALITIES

A CONTEST IN LAKEFIELD, HAVELOCK AND NORWOOD—THE NOMINATION SPEECHES IN LAKEFIELD.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 30.—The nominations for Reeve, Councillors and School Trustees for the village of Lakefield was held in the Queen Street Theatre last evening and were received by Mr. Wesley Sherin, village clerk, and was one of the largest held for a number of years.

The following nominations were made for Reeve:

Mr. F. J. Moore, nominated by Mr. R. Duff and Gerald Fitzgerald.

Mr. J. A. Porter, nominated by Mr. J. C. Strickland and Mr. James Millar.

Mr. A. J. Kidd, nominated by Mr. Gavin Preston and Mr. D. A. McDonald.

Mr. J. C. Strickland, nominated by Mr. W. J. Charlton and Mr. J. A. Porter.

Mr. A. J. Young, nominated by Dr. J. C. Smith and Mr. Robert Carter.

Councillors.

Mr. J. A. Porter, nominated by Mr. W. W. Leonard and Mr. W. J. Charlton.

Mr. S. J. Charlton, nominated by Mr. Walter Nugent and Mr. Percy Spence.

Captain T. B. Marling, nominated by Mr. D. H. Charlton and Mr. W. G. Morrison.

Mr. Andrew J. Young, nominated by Mr. Percy Spence and Mr. J. Reid.

Mr. George Spence, nominated by Mr. Aubrey Mitchell and Mr. Walter Nugent.

Mr. J. H. Chant, nominated by Mr. Fred. Richardson and Mr. S. J. Charlton.

Dr. J. C. Smith, nominated by Mr. J. A. Porter and Mr. J. J. McDonald.

Capt. J. M. Bygott, nominated by Mr. D. A. McDonald and Mr. J. F. Lillicrap.

Mr. J. J. McDonald, nominated by Mr. A. J. Young and Dr. J. C. Smith.

Mr. J. C. Strickland, nominated by Dr. J. C. Smith and Mr. Robert Duff.

Mr. W. W. Leonard, nominated by Mr. J. A. Porter and Dr. J. C. Smith.

School Trustees.

Dr. S. J. Gibson, nominated by Mr. Charles Tanner and Mr. J. J. McFadden.

Mr. J. E. Galvin, nominated by Mr. B. Dench and Mr. S. J. Charlton.

Dr. J. R. Fraser, nominated by Mr. Wm. Graham and Mr. J. E. Richardson.

Mr. Percy Spence, nominated by Mr. Robert Webster and Capt. J. M. Biggott.

The Speeches.

The nominations being closed, it was moved by Reeve Moore and seconded by Mr. J. A. Porter, that they hold an open meeting, with Mr. Wesley Sherin, clerk, as chairman, which was unanimously carried.

After a few preliminary remarks by Mr. Sherin, he called on Reeve. F. J. Moore to address the meeting.

Mr. Moore stated that he had almost made up his mind to retire from municipal affairs, but owing to the fact that the Town Hall was not completed and the Hydro about to be installed, and as he was strongly in favour of Hydro, he considered it advisable to retain his office if the people decided in his favour, as he had been pressed by a number of people to do so, and hoped that on Monday next every one would vote in favour of Hydro.

Councillor Porter.

Councillor Porter, chairman of the Finance Committee, was next called on, starting out with the fact that a year ago we had suffered a great disaster in the loss by fire of our Town Hall, fire equipment, tools, etc., and the first thing that had to be done by the Council was to secure a new Council-room, Court-room and Library room, new fire hose, hose waggon, buckets, two chemical engines, tools, etc. The chemical engine a number of people are opposed to, but these same engines are used in a great many villages and towns and give good service. What we need is a thoroughly organized fire brigade and also a night watchman, who would act as chief of the brigade. It was necessary to better our fire-fighting appliances, as the Fire Underwriters are not at all satisfied with our equipment which he hoped before long would be greatly improved.

The amount spent this year on streets and sidewalks was about $2,000.

The Corporation team was also a valuable assets. They had drawn this year over 300 yards of gravel, watered the streets and done a lot of other work that, computed at the rate of $4 per day, would net $1,200 for the year's work, while in the summer they needed an extra team and had as a great favour to pay $6.00 per day for it.

The school account was greatly increased this year, and notwithstanding all that our total assessment was about the same as last year, $400,000;

OFFICERS INSTALLED IN LOCAL MASONIC LODGES

ANNIVERSARY OF ST. JOHN THE EVANGELIST WAS OBSERVED —INTERESTING ADDRESSES.

THE OFFICERS

The social event of the Masonic year is the annual banquet. It brings together the members of the years past, those who from business cares, professional duties and general hurry of occupations are not able to attend lodge with regularity. A sort of rounding up of the clans, a fraternal love feast, and there is a mental recount of those who are there and those who are taken in mind as of "The Absent Brethren." For scattered all over the continent, from Florida to Alaska, from Halifax to Vancouver are to be found men who came into the local lodges and afterwards migrated. To enter the fraternal association of the Order in the places where their several lots have been cast. All who may not be detained by pressing emergency make it a point, indeed a duty, to come to the gathering. The tables display a welcome, the brethren are cordial, all considerations are set aside and everyone joins in the festival of the evening, commemorating the Masonic Festival of St. John the Evangelist, the patron saint of the Order.

The New Quarters.

Further. The new rooms, or lodge, cannot now hold the number who wish to participate. So the formal installation is carried through and afterwards those engaged migrate to the scene of festivity, where they joined by those who have arrived before. The Empress Hotel was the assembling point, and the large dining room was in shape for the guests. Not only that, but tables were set in various odd situations, in order to afford accommodation. The house met the demands well and good. The service excellent. The waiters attentive and alert. The list of good things to eat was ample, and several averred that the grilled sirloin steak was a "peach." Which means that trimmed with brown gravy, garnished with succulent peas and flanked with a creamy Murphy potato, the whole was done to the King's taste. The menu was a great success, and worthy of Chris Graham's catering.

Wor. Bro. J. E. L. Goodwill filled the chair. As a preliminary to further speaking he told of the arrangements now to become a permanency, that the banquet would not in future be served in the lodge room, but would be

NATIONAL LOAN BILL IS ADOPTED

United Press:

PARIS, Dec. 30.—The Chamber of Deputies last night passed the National Loan Bill, presented by Louis Klotz, Minister of Finance, by a vote of 491 to 64.

The vote was considered equivalent to a vote of confidence in the Government.

The Klotz measure provided for a small loan of treasury notes immune from taxation, bearing five per cent. interest, and to mature in sixty years unless withdrawn sooner. The plan contained a lottery feature providing semi-annual drawings, beginning the first of the year. Numbers drawn will be reimbursed on a basis of 150 francs for each 50 francs invested.

No limit was placed on subscriptions.

WILL CHOOSE THE ACTING PREMIER

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Dec. 30.—It is authoritatively stated that the choice of acting Premier will be made this week before the departure of Sir Robert Borden for South Africa.

As senior members of the Privy Council, the choice would naturally fall on Sir George Foster, but it is not definitely known that he is desirous of assuming the responsibilities of the post for such a long period.

In the event of Sir George declining, the Hon. J. A. Calder is mentioned in political circles as the probable choice.

MINISTERS ARE REPORTED KILLED

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Dec. 30.—A wireless dispatch from the Soviet Government at Moscow asserts that the Ministers of Admiral Kolchak, head of All-Russian Government, were killed when the train on which they departed from Omsk left the rails and ran down a slope.

Inside Facts

It's what's inside your battery that makes it last long or wear out quickly.

Inferior insulation wears out before the plates do, and reinsulation is necessary.

Threaded Rubber Insulation eliminates the need of reinsulation, makes a battery last much longer under equal conditions, and reduces the liability to any other kind of repairs.

It's the one biggest battery improvement in ten years—demonstrated now by four years of use.

You can't afford not to know about it, for some day you'll need a new battery.

THREAD RUBBER

MR. GORDON AND LABOUR

Editor, Examiner:—Saturday's local press contained a letter signed "Union." In fairness to Labor as a whole, we would like to make a few comments. The matter of Mr. Mason not being nominated is most regrettable, as his endorsation, like all those made by the fountain head of Organized Labor here, was unanimous, and fifty accredited delegates were present. But this is a question for the Trades Council to deal with. As to endorsing a lawyer, does "Union" think himself big enough to tell the Trades Council how it should do business? If he is, and is a union man, he would most likely have enough confidence placed in him by his fellow craftsmen to be in the local Labor Parliament. That word at the bottom of a letter means nothing at all and carries no weight. Having had experience in other elections, such letters, no matter who may write or inspire them, are paid for at so much an inch when they advertise a candidate. The fact of "Union" saying Mr. Gordon is a friend of Labor does not make him so. Sometimes, Labor and Capital run along fairly well as a team. When a corporation lawyer holds the reins on such a team and the parting of the ways is reached—Labor, have a care. No lawyer, who looks after the interests of corporations, can be truly called Labor's friend.

We are inclined to think Mr. Gordon acts as counsel for corporations, which he has a right to do, being a branch of his profession. Labor does not look among such men for its supporters. "Union" need not prate about the Trades Council's mistakes. He makes the one of his life when he fancies the workingmen of this city will fall for his talk. The Trades Council represents close to 100 per cent of Organized Labor here, and any man in any union had the privilege to submit the name of "Union's" pet. It was not mentioned. Mr. Gordon is an amiable man, but surely cannot look for support from true union men. They will support their own slate, endorsed by their own representatives, thus helping themselves up another notch.

Yours truly,
LABOR CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE

THREE SAILORS ARE RESCUED

(Canadian Press.)

ST. JOHN'S, N.F., Dec. 30.—Three men were rescued to-day from the wreck of the Belgian steamer Anton Van Driel. They are the only survivors of the crew of twenty-nine.

All wer terribly frost-bitten from long exposure on the bridge, which was the only portion of the vessel remaining above water.

To the Electors of Otonabee

Ladies and Gentlemen,—I take this opportunity of soliciting your support for Councillor for the Township of Otonabee, and if elected will do my uttermost to prove worthy of your confidence.

Wishing you all a prosperous New Year.

Yours faithfully,
Fred D. McIntyre

Township of North Monaghan:

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS FOR DEPUTY REEVE.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—Your vote and influence is respectfully requested, to assure aggressive, progressive and unbiased administration of Municipal matters in the Township of North Monaghan for 1920.

Accommodation will be provided for conveying City Voters from end of Street Car line, to May's School House, between two and four p.m. Election Day.

NORTH MONAGAN ELECTIONS

To the Electors of North Monoghan

Ladies and Gentlemen,— Having been nominated as Councillor for the Township for 1920, and not being in a position to make a personal canvas, may I use this means of soliciting your support, and if elected will serve all electors to the best of my ability.

FRED H. ROWAN,
McGill Street, Claraday.

To the Ratepayers of North Monaghan

Ladies and Gentlemen,—Having been pressed by many ratepayers of the Township to again stand for the office of Reeve, I have consented to stand for that office for 1920. I am not asking your support on the grounds of the promise of the Wardenship and that if elected this time it will be my last time to ask your support, nor am I handing out to you the record of having kept the same chair warm for 9 years. But I have been in the Monaghan Council, also have held the Reeveship and leave it to you to decide as to whether my record at that time would warrant your support again. It is impossible for me to see you all personally, so take this means of saying to you that I am in the field again for the Reeveship of North Monaghan and of asking you, that if you think I can be of any service to the township to give me your support on election day, but if otherwise, then elect the man you consider best suited to the office. Ladies and gentlemen, make it a point to use your franchise on New Year's Day.

Yours for the best interests of the Township of Monaghan—

H. B. RYE

To the Electors of North Monaghan

Ladies and Gentlemen,— After serving as Councillor for the Township of North Monaghan for eight years and one year as Deputy-Reeve, I was approached by a number of my friends to run for Reeve of the Township and have consentd to do.

If I am elected I feel that my experience in office and my willingness to serve the township should result in the careful handling of the township's affairs.

Wishing you all a Happy New Year, I am,

Yours faithfully,
J. H. FORSTER

To the Electors of North Monaghan

Ladies and Gentlemen: Having been asked by many residents of Claraday, Crawfords' Grove and Byersville Districts, I have allowed myself to be nominated for councillor for 1920. The representation of these districts in previous councils has been such that little progress was made, I would ask for your vote and influence a. that I if elected, may serve and ensure greater progress. It will not be possible to make a personal canvass to all.

Yours truly,
JOHN BARNES

North Monaghan Elections

To the Electors:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—I have been again nominated for the position of Reeve for your township. During the period I have been Reeve I have given the very best service I could, and the fact that we have accomplished all the work we have without neglecting anything, and reduced the tax rate, if only slightly, during the past two years, is given as sufficient reason by many residents of North Monaghan for my being returned to the Reeve's chair.

Another reason I would give is that, having made a small start for better roads in North Monaghan, I would like to put in operation next year the plans that have been formulated for improved roads in our township.

I solicit your votes and influence in my behalf, and if elected will give the township's affairs every attention. Wishing you all a Happy and Prosperous New Year,

Yours faithfully,
John McIntosh

TO THE ELECTORS OF NORTH MONAGHAN

Ladies and Gentlemen:

I take this opportunity of soliciting your support for Councillor for the important township of North Monaghan, and if elected will do my utmost to prove worthy of your confidence. I have been farming in the township all my life and am one of its heaviest taxpayers, consequently desire to see the very best service possible given in handling its affairs.

Wishing you all a Happy New Year,

Yours faithfully,

housed at the Empress, practically the same procedure as followed during the evening in which they were all participating.

"The King."

Loyally the toast of "The King" claimed first place, and proposed by W. Bro. W. R. Morris, was welcomed, noted and prefaced by a brief reference to the Crowned Head of the Empire, followed by the National Anthem, the same being well sung, having as leaders of the chorus Bros. Crane, Park, Carlisle and Smith. Anything led by this quartette has to go with a swing. And just here it may be written, that throughout the evening these same brothers of the Craft, added to the enjoyment of the evening with really unlimited number of songs, duets, and trios, all a real musical treat. When it comes to getting on a musical programme it is at once seen that the Masonic order has corralled about all the real musical vocal talent in the men's line that the city has. They contribute without stint and in good voice and admirable and well sung selections.

"The Grand Master and Grand Lodge of Canada in the Province of Ontario," is a sort of round-about way of putting on paper the title of a sentiment and toast that all Masons honor. It expresses allegiance to the Craft, and was proposed by W. Bro. E. B. Fowler, who briefly sketched the history of Grand Lodge, its several functions and how well and efficiently it discharged its duties. For there are ever, in the local lodges, the new member who knows not of these things until he is so advised. The Order, the speaker said, stood for the bond of friendship and this attribute, found and represented in the personality of the officers of Grand Lodge. At once paternal and fraternal this feature of friendship was the one inculcated, the thing we should as Masons, strive for, and in so doing we should be true and accepted Masons.

The Grand Lodge.

Right W. Bro. D. Walker responded to the toast, regretting that he could not do full justice to the theme. The Grand Lodge called for no amount of eulogy or commendation, for it stood on a firm foundation. Promoted from among the local lodges, the Grand Officers rose from the ranks by virtue of application and devotion to the Order. No Mason could advance except by merit. Peterborough had not, as yet, entertained Grand Lodge and an effort should be made to have at least one gathering of the Lodge in Peterborough. With cordial greetings from Grand Lodge his address concluded.

The chairman expressed regrets that M. W. Bro. Wardrobe, retiring Grand Master, who had arranged to be present and deliver an address, was unable to keep the engagement. Other claims had engaged attention, and a worthy substitute could not be found and communicated with in time to attend the meeting. In order not to leave a gap in the programme, the chairman briefly recounted incidents of Masonic history delineating the prevalence of the installation ceremony in lodges of the Craft centuries ago. He described the ritual, the routine observed, showing how closely the practice of the present day followed the traditions of the craft as handed down to lodges of recent years. The analysis of the ritual explained how it came about that St. John the Evangelist became the patron saint of the Order. A short sketch of the life and work of the Patron closed an interesting address.

Absent Brethren.

The toast of "The Absent Brethren," was ably and feelingly proposed by Bro. F. E. Malott, of Trinity church, city. On such occasions as the one we now shared in, our thoughts invariably turned to those who were, though alive, not with us now. It was the fellowship of the Great Order of Masonry that made and formed its greatest charm. In all hours of privation, in extremity of personal or public life we value the friendships that we form in the lodge. And so we keep in mind those at home, who may be sick, those spread abroad over the continent, on this night thinking of the home lodge as we are now thinking of them. And possibly, who knows, our wireless message of remembrance may reach thier hearts. Also we remember those who have crossed the bar, taken the Higher Degree, absent brethren who have passed from our vision. Some lay in the graves we may visit. Others may sleep almost the poppies of Flanders Fields, those who have made the great sacrifice. For all these he would bespeak a moment of silent remembrance.

The Visitors.

"The Visitors," generally a toast that affords some opportunity for reminiscences on the art of those who participate. Proposed by W. Bro. W. R. Breyfogle, who said he would set aside the word visitor and substitute that of brethren. In coming to Peterborough he had experienced a warm welcome as a visitor and as a brother, and he wished to express the value of the welcome as a brother Mason. He understood that brethren in the room, visiting the lodge, and who might respond, be given a hearty reception. This brought to his feet, W. Bro. W. B. Bampford, now of Toronto, who calmly claimed that he was no visitor, not to be considered as such, for he was a life member of Peterborough Lodge, and hoped to be so long as he was on this earth. Peterborough he claimed as his home town. Peterborough Lodge was his parent and present lodge and to it he would ever turn with respect and affection. It was to him a sincere pleasure to greet his old friends and comrades in masonry. And it gave him pleasure to say, in and out of season, in loud and in gentle voice, in his office and on the street that Peterborough was the finest city, its men the best men, his old friends the very kindest and in all the city from which he was absent but turned to 'is his very own.

Former Resident.

Bro. Dr. Keyes, also of Toronto, stood up and interested the gathering by claiming that he was a member of Corinthian Lodge, in excellent standind, and quite one of themselves. In such he claimed allegiance to masonry in Peterborough. He recalled incidents of this connection with the Craft in this city when he was a resident, and during the time in which he was in personal and fraternal connection with Peterborough men. He added a brief sketch of his work and service in the Ontario capital, and pathetically asked that he not be stigmatized as a visitor, but as one of the Band of Brotherhood of the Craft in Peterborough so long as he survived and the ancient landmarks endured.

Ruling Masters.

W. Bro. W. S. Campbell proposed the toast of the "Ruling Masters," the presiding officers elect in the local lodges and who will direct the work during the masonic year. To this toast W. Bro. S. T. Medd, of Corinthian Lodge, W. Bro. John Comstock, Peterboorugh Lodge, and W. Bro. C. E. Smith of Royal Arthur Lodge, made brief acknowledgments. All said that earnest endeavor would be the aim that the lodge would be kept up, to be carried on in such a way as to attract to the monthly and special meetings the brethren, both those who were skilled and those who sought instruction. And that in all respects the Craft should share in the benefits of friendly association and comradeship. Each expressed his diffidence and trusted that more experienced brethren would assist and give of experienced service so often as required.

Before concluding the evening the chairman called attention to the admirable share taken in the entertainment by the members who had contributed the musical numbers. These were Bros. D. Carlisle, Morris Park, J. Smith and Rgt. W. Bro. John Crane. It was, the chairman said, a source of satisfaction to the Lodges that within the membership were included brethern of musical gift quite so excellent as to supply the occasion with song and music of the highest order. And the thanks of the fraternity was handed to the singers and accompanied by cheers and approval.

With the observance of the "Junior Warden's Toast," a time-honored formula, including the chorus of Auld Lang Syne, and 'Happy to meet, happy to part, and happy to meet again," the gathering dispersed, and the observance of the Festival of St. John the Evangelist was over.

A Made in Canada Truck

Marvellous Performance of the Ford One Ton Truck

FOR QUICK DELIVERY, HEAVY DRAY WORK AND FARM USE

The demand for the FORD ONE TON TRUCK is phenominal. The biggest corporations are buying it, and the smallest users, as well, who must have Economy, coupled with Efficiency and Service. Their judgment is based on Performance — on Money Value—on Real Achievement.

Every user of the FORD ONE TON TRUCK is an endorser, because of these facts. It has been tried—tested—proved—in all lines of work. For upwards of three years FORD ONE TON TRUCKS have been sold in Peterborough, during which time the Marvellous "Worm Drive" rear axle has never required a moment's attention.

A Ford Dealer from Western Canada, where he has sold hundreds of these Trucks, states that "Not a man in my employ has ever seen the inside of the rear axle."

What does that mean? Does it not prove, beyond doubt, that the FORD ONE TON TRUCK is

100 PER CENT EFFICIENT

It can be used everywhere—in every season of the year — spring, summer, autumn, winter — always reliable, always saving money — always cutting down hauling and delivery costs.

Every type of body, including special bodies to meet individual requirements, either for long hauls over country roads or service in the city.

WHAT HAS BEEN DONE STAGGERS BELIEF

FORD ONE TON TRUCK achievements are most remarkable, and what will be done dims even past performances. It is a record of success that wins confidence—it is a record of success that has surpassed all previous performances with this type of truck.

The Power Plant that has made the Ford famous will be in the Ford Truck you buy.

In many cases where much hauling has to be done, two or more ONE TON TRUCKS are being put in the place of heavier, more expensive, and less reliable Trucks.

While it was built for One Ton Truck work, Sixty per cent. of the time these Trucks are drawing up to 3,000 pounds—and anyone who has work for a Truck would be well advised to consider the Ford.

LABORS' APPEAL

To the Electors of Peterborough:

Remembering its initial success of one year ago, when the entire slate of four aldermanic candidates was elected, and [illegible] the belief that the general public of Peterborough have every confidence in the fair-mindedness of Organized Labor and [illegible] the beneficent reforms they have in view, the adoption of which would go far in enhancing the welfare of the masses, and [illegible] work any injustice to the few, the Trades and Labour Council [illegible] again in the field, this year widening the scope of their [illegible] to include branches of civic government other than the City [illegible] Being impressed by the spirit of indifference demonstrated by the Electorate in previous years, due in great measure to the fact that only one class of citizens were placed in nomination, and that opportunity was given the great bulk of the people to vote for representative citizens for the various offices, the Trades and Labor Council is once more to the fore in an attempt to remedy this condition of affairs.

It will be noted that the Trades Council has not been [illegible] in its endorsation of the various aspirants for office, having outside of its organization and chosen several candidates who [illegible] no connection with the Trade Union Movement, believing them eminently fitted to discharge the duties of the offices for which they were placed in nomination.

The idea of the Trades Council is to get every voter interested in the betterment of the conditions under which we all have to live and herewith submit a civic platform to which all the endorsed candidates have signified their willingness to adhere. This platform is the outcome of serious thought and consideration of studied economic conditions for years, and its adoption is designed to bring about the greatest good to the greatest number. We would ask you at this time to carefully peruse two of the planks here set forth:

6. Thorough revision and more just equalization of the salaries of public officials.
10. Annual publication of Assessment Rolls.

No citizen will have the temerity to deny that the salaries attaching to the various civic offices should not be more justly equalized; neither would he deny that the publication of the assessment roll would bring about a more just assessment of taxes.

Apart from the platform as set forth, Labors' candidates, if favored with election, will to the best of their ability see that the city's business is handled in a manner that will not only prove a benefit to the masses, but they pledge themselves to represent the people of the city, irrespective of class or creed.

The platform of the Trades and Labor Council is as follows:

MUNICIPAL ISSUES.

1. Municipal ownership of gas and electric light plants, telephones and all street railroads, all municipal franchises to be owned and operated by the municipality in the interests of the people.
2. Eight hour services for all municipal employees.
3. All municipal work to be performed directly by the municipality without the intervention of contractors.
4. Payment of wages weekly; equal pay for women for equal work performed with men.
5. Revision and simplification of the municipal code.
6. Thorough revision and more just equalization of salaries of public officials.
7. The use of halls in all municipal buildings to be granted free of charge to the citizens for the discussion of public questions.
8. Abolition of property qualifications for municipal candidates.
9. Municipal loans to be supplied to workingmen for building purposes at lowest rates of interest.
10. Annual publication of Assessment Rolls.
11. Universal suffrage and abolition of the ward system.

We herewith present for your earnest consideration and support the following candidates for the various civic offices:

FOR THE MAYORALTY:
A. A. McINTYRE

FOR THE ALDERMANIC BOARD:
L. F. HUMBER J. ARTHUR SHAW
FRED T. TUGGEY WM. H. TERRY

FOR UTILITIES COMMISSION:
CHARLES EVERETT SISSON

FOR BOARD OF EDUCATION:
MRS. KATE E. MORRIS
A. J. BOLWELL ALEX. MORRIS

Wishing you all the compliments of the season and trusting we will again see your way to repose confidence in the candidates endorsed by the Trades Council. Yours sincerely,

Labor Campaign Committee

HOW TO VOTE.

There seems to be a little confusion in the minds of some of the electors as to the number of candidates for which votes may be cast in the municipal elections on Thursday. This is doubtless caused by the regulation that requires, in the case of the aldermanic election that a voter must vote for at least four candidates. He or she of course may vote for five if considered desirable, but MUST vote for at least four unless the ballot is to be spoiled. Votes for more than five or for less than four will not be counted.

There is no such regulation in connection with the election of members of the Board of Education. There are five candidates to be elected to the Board and the elector may vote for five, four, three, two or one, as he or she desires. Of course a vote for more than five means a spoiled ballot.

SELECTING CANDIDATES.

Some of the speakers at the Independent Labor Party's meeting last night said that, judging from the newspapers, labor men were not wanted in public offices in Peterborough. Speaking for the Examiner, it may be said that such an interpretation of articles that have appeared in these columns is scarcely justified. It has been and is the contention of the Examiner that no man should be elected to the Council or any other public body simply because he is a Labor man or a member of the Board of Trade or of the G.W.V.A. or any other organization. The candidates who possess the most ability in the judgment of the electors are the men who should be elected, regardless of their occupation or affiliation. If the Labor candidates are considered to be the best qualified for the responsible duties they will be called upon to perform, then by all means let them be elected, but only because they are considered the best candidates and not because they are Labor men. Surely that position cannot be condemned as unfair to any candidate.

WHAT ABOUT THE CONSUMER?

In advancing the price of wheat in Canada it is evident that the Canada Wheat Board has been actuated by only one motive, of getting the best price it can for the farmers. The consumer has no place in the calculations of the Board and, as usual, he is the victim for the advance in wheat of course means an advance in flour and necessarily an increase in the cost of bread, all of which does not worry the Wheat Board in the least. The Board it will be remembered was created last autumn and was given complete control of the purchase, regulation and sale of the wheat crop, both for domestic and export purposes, as well as authority to fix the prices. There are those who see in the present advance in price a political manoeuvre intended to regain for the government some of the prestige it has lost in the eyes of the Canadian farmer. If such was the motive, it is destined to fail, for the agrarian interests have lost all faith in the Union Administration, while the public which as usual suffers by the new order of the Wheat Board, will see in it only another proof that the sooner the present government is swept out of power the better will it be for Canada.

WHAT IT MEANS.

The Riverside Park by-law which is to be voted on on New Year's Day, is a test of the civic spirit of Peterborough. The passing of this measure will bring tangible benefits for every citizen. It is a definite step towards the realization of the vision of a better Peterborough that people have long been talking about, but have done so little to make a reality. It means preserving for the citizens a beauty spot in the centre of the city, a park for all the citizens, an athletic field for the young men, a playground for the children, conveniently located and bordering the river. Rustic bridges connecting the islands to the south with the present park property could easily be built and swimming facilities provided at little expense. The securing of the necessary property will cost about $32,000, and if the lots do not come into possession of the city the sum of $10,000 will have to be expended as damages to the present owners. There are, therefore, many important reasons why this by-law should receive the support of the people and no valid excuse for voting "no." The by-law will be fully explained at to-night's public meeting in the city hall, and any citizen who has any doubts in connection with the proposition should not fail to be present to hear the discussion.

A GOOD BARGAIN.

There is one important feature in connection with the by-law to aid the Canadian Aladdin Company about which little has been said and which should be noted by those citizens who may be dubious over the propositon because they fear that the assistance to be given the new industry may mean an increase in the debt of the city. Peterborough is to give the Aladdin Company a free site and fixed assessment of $5,000 for ten years. The land to be turned over to the Company was secured several years ago, so that the tax rate will not be increased. On the other hand instead of adding to the expenses of the city, the Canadian Aladdin Company will add to the revenue, for the company will have to pay full tax rates on $5,000 for ten years, in addition to school taxes on the whole assessable value of the land and plant, so that there will be an income to the city of probably $500 a year from land which, under the present conditions, pays nothing. In addition, a promising industry, which will commence with a staff of from 30 to 40 men, will be added to Peterborough's list of industrial concerns. The importance of the new company is not only indicated by the extensive advertising done by the concern, but by the letter of congratulation received by City Clerk Armstrong from Mr. W. P. Fitzsimons, Industrial Commissioner of the Grand Trunk Railway, who says: "I wish to congratulate you on securing this concern. It should prove to be a valuable acquisition."

Vote "yes" on the Aladdin by-law if you want to help Peterborough grow.

THE HEART OF CHILDHOOD.

Philosophers who hold it appropriate that Christmas falls in the darkest week of winter are this year finding additional food for cynicism. These many months we have been crying Peace on Earth, while as yet there is no peace. And now, for the first time, King Cole and his bowl have been banished from the hallowed ceremonies of Yuletide. The troubles and perplexities and regrets that beset us are sorrows of the adult. A faith that is real and a spirit of Christmas that comes from the heart will find means to surmount them; and this is the season above all others, in which no other faith than that of hope and cheer, no other spirit, deserves consideration. It is the children who really matter. Christmas was not made for cynics, and only in a secondary degree for grown-ups, except as it were by proxy.

Many and rude are the shocks that have fallen of late upon the childish faith in Santa Claus. Those youngsters are now graying at the temple who first read of the yule log, and of the jolly saint who climbs down the chimney, out of books which they found on the apartment floor, beneath stockings hung from a steam radiator. Children accustomed to automobiles and airplanes need a special fire of the imagination if they are to kindle to the tale of a reindeer sleigh running over the housetops. A feast day and a legend that come to us out of a small world of individual homes and large families have suffered in beauty and in enjoyment as civilization has become grandiose and families have dwindled. This year the family bears a special burden. The war-made rich are creating an atmosphere of prosperity that seems boundless, universal; yet, when the cold statistics of our present wealth are gathered; it must appear, as it did in the similar period of extravagance following the civil war, that the middling sort of folk, with homes and hearts for children, are still paying for the war and pinched as they rarely have been before. That is the darkest spot in this Christmastide.

Only one thing can illumine it, the spirit of the children themselves. That is unaltered, unalterable. As a multitudinous celebration the other day—a celebration in which the old familiar rites of Christmas seemed to be outraged, annihilated —the clowns had only to appear and there was a childish tumult of joy. When the Christmas tree and its gifts were disclosed there was a veritable riot. To the world of grown-ups it constituted a scandal. But which one of us would not give freely from his dearest possessions if he might have the power once more to respond to anything as those children rose to their crowded, disordered Christmas?

This old world has seldom been without a full share of thwarted hopes, of defeats and humiliations. But the heart of childhood has always kindled and glowed to the least spark of joy. When it ceases to do so the world itself will have ceased. The time will come when those who rejoice in small gifts to-day will look back upon this 1919 as a year of the most splendid of all the victories of mankind. Are they not more nearly right than we?—New York Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A New Year's resolution —to vote on Thursday.

The Hamilton dealers who, as a result of the high prices, have turkeys left on their hands, will get little sympathy from the general public.

The elector who thinks he has an easy task making his selection of five members of the School Board from the candidates who are running, will realize when marking his ballot that he has a real job before him.

Pessimism grows through brooding over a fancied slight. Hearts harden themselves in silence, and, as time goes on, it becomes more difficult to break through the silence. Often there are strained relations among men, who, at the bottom of their hearts, have sincere respect for each other, and smouldering affection also, which only needed a little coaxing of the sparks to burst into flames.

LOSES HIS LIFE WHILE SAVING DOG

SAN FRANCICO.— In saving his pet dog from being killed, Melbourne Clark, eleven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Clark of Corte Madera, was crushed to death recently by a Northern Pacific train. The dog, innocent cause of the tragedy, sprang in safety an instant before the train struck his young master.

The boy had been to one of the village stores on an errand for his mother and had already crossed the tracks close to his home. His pet, a terrier puppy he called Towser, was loitering behind. Young Melbourne noticed the approach of the train, which was slowing down for the stop at Corte Madera, and whistled to the dog to come to him. The dog paid no attention to his master's signals, but paused in the middle of the track.

Dog Leaps to Safety.

Melbourne heroically ran back, in spite of the fact that the front car of the electirc train was almost upon him. He tried to catch the terrier in his arms, but the dog eluded his grasp and jumped out of harm's way to one side of the track. The boy stumbled and before he could save himself the train struck him. He was killed instantly.

Witnesses attached no blame either to the engineer of the train, Fred Bradley, or the conductor, Richard Crigley, both of San Rafeel. Power had already been shut off for the stop at Corte Madear station, and nothing could be done to prevent the accident, according to all who witnessed the tragedy. San Rafael authorities say no charges will be brought against either engineer or conductor.

Mother Pleads for Body.

An additional touch of pathos came when the mother of the lad sobbingly begged Deputy Coroner Ray Keaton for her son's body. Keaton had been ordered to take the body to the morgue at San Rafael, and it was only when he told the mother that the body had already been removed that she could be prevailed upon to return to her home so that the body could be taken away. Neighbors were unable to console Mrs. Clark.

Her husband, who is a butcher, and works in San Francisco, had not arrived home. There are three or four young children in the home.

A younger sister was drowned at Sebastapol last summer, making this the second tragedy in the home within the past six months.

GROCERS GET REBATE ON CANNED GOODS.

Chairman O'Connor, of the Board of Commerce, anounced in Toronto on Saturday to the counsel and members of the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association that he would issue a declaration from Ottawa that the rebate of two and one-half cents a dozen on canned goods, now retained by the Dominion Canners, Limited, would be illegal.

As a result, wholesale jobbers will sell canned goods at the usual or probably even lower prices on account of the cancellation of the rebate to the Dominion Canners.

The net effect of the order will be that the wholesale grocers will receive the rebate instead of the canners.

It was said by representatives of the wholesale grocers that the public, and not they, would benefit from the forthcoming order.

SANDRA THE JEALOUS

BY JANE PHELPS

ROSE DOUBTS SANDRA'S LOVE FOR EVERETT

CHAPTER VIII.

I wish I could prescribe understandingly the emotions I felt in those weeks preceding my wedding. One day I was all eagerness to try that new life that was to be mine, the next all fear, and unwillingness. I tried to think of Everett as all a lover should be, as my idea of what one should be (had been) before I met him. But I felt often depressed, gray and overcast like some of the days just passed. The sweet urge of spring was gone; that time when I felt the buoyancy of youth, and I sometimes felt the tears beneath my lids, as I thought of the leaves and buds having lived their short lives and fallen, and wished like mother that Everett had been content to wait until spring came again.

I never had liked the fall of the year. In a way it always saddened me. It seemed to me that when the wind sighed in the tree-trops, or when it whistled so mournfully through the shrubs, that it was moaning with regret because of the coming death of all about. But never had I given voice to this feeling, I feared no one would understand.

And much of the time I was so excited over my pretty clothes, my gifts, the linen shower the girls gave for me, that I had not time for sad thoughts, or to worry about the future.

Sometimes I wondered in a vague sort of way just why Everett Graham had asked me to marry him. How he had come to look at me at all in the light of a wife. But like others I had heard that "love goes where it is sent" and this was probably sent to me. When I said so to Rose, she replied in a real sharp way:

"I wish it had been sent to some one else."

Rose couldn't be reconciled to me marrying Everett. Not that she disliked him, she said often:

"He is a charming man, Sandra. But you can't be happy just because a man has nice manners, and knows how to wear his clothes. A girl has got to have something besides that. I am no older than you are Sandra, but I'd be frightened to death to marry a man unless I just felt I couldn't live another minute without him. You don't love Mr. Graham like that, do you?"

"No—I guess — I —could—live — without him," I said slowly trying to analyze my feelings as I answered. "But Rose, I have read stories where pople didn't care so terribly much, and then love came in a blinding flash — those are just the very words, 'a blinding flash.' Perhaps that is the way it will come to me if I don't love Everett enough now."

"Blinding flash nothing. Maybe you do love him all you can, Sandra. Maybe you aren't the kind that cares very much about love." Rose was sentimental, yet of the two I was far more alive to all that was emotional than was she.

I made up my mind that just as soon as we were married I should ask Everett about a lot of things. I wouldn't dare before, of course. But he must first of all tell me all about his first wife, and tell me he loved me far better than ever he had loved her. That was the most important thing of all. Then he must tell me all about his women friends, those he had called upon since he had been a widower, and if he had been in love with any of them, and a dozen other things I wanted desperately to know. Then I would write Rose and tell her how mistaken she had been, and show her how foolish she was to think Everett was too old to make me happy.

My faith that all his answers would set me at ease shows the little knowledge of what the replies to such questions as I meant to ask might mean to me — if they were honestly answered.

There was one thing about me I was sure Everett liked, that was my name. He had told me so often, and everything he sent me was marked simply "Sandra." No initials, or monograms. He had told me that an unusual name always attratced him. Mine surely was unusual, so of course he was pleased with it.

Had I known that even the liking he had for unusual names was to be a distressing factor in my life, I should not have been so proud that mother had called me Sandra.

TOURISTS STRIP HEROES' GRAVES IS LATE REPORT

PARIS.—Severe restrictions must be imposed upon the trippers who regard a jaunt to the battlefields of France and Flanders as on a level with avisit to Coney Island.

Not long ago three "G. S." wagons containing the bodies of British soldiers removed from the Ypres salient for reburial were held up at Menin gate by a string of chars-a-banc full of trippers. Information was being retailed by a guide who used a megaphone.

Broken-hearted relations whose dead lie in scattered graves away from a regulation cemetery have been distressed beyond measure by having their poignant meditations disturbed by hordes of sightseers.

Graves Are Stripped.

The steel helmet, or some other pitiful relic placed by a comrade upon the hasty grave of his pal, is filched away by souvenir hunters; at Passchendale some tourists were found by the officer in charge of graves busily stripping the last resting place of twelve men of the Warwicks of some shell nosecaps that ornamented it. On being remonstarted with, one of the looters replied: "O, we thought it didn't matter!"

Trains are now running from Ostend to near Ypres. On the outskirts of the ruined town that was once the capital of ancient Flanders 122 cafes have been opened.

Wine Flows Freely.

Corks pop and champagne flowed, followed by the empty and discordant laughter of the junketers upon the graves of heroes, while the guide does a brisk trade in souvenirs filched from the battlefields!

The dug-outs along Ypres Canal banks have almost disappeared, picked to pieces by the hands of the Chinese coolies, who do a great business in retailing souvenirs to gallants who deorate their mantelshelf with fragments of shell and the ubiquitous pumpernikel helmet, and use them to embellish their "stories of the Great War" in which they took no part.

DECLARES IRELAND TO BE A "PARADISE"

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Samuel S. McClure, publisher, arrived on the Mauretania after a three months' visit to Ireuand, where he said he found a "paradise."

"Ireland is the most prosperous, comfortable and law abiding country in the world," said Mr. McClure. "The people are well dressed and well housed. One has to read outside papers to learn of trouble and unsettled conditions there.

"I found that Irish banks have deposits of more than 100,000,000 pounds, and have been forced to form alliances with English banks in order to find an outlet for their money. There are 5,000,000 head of cattle in Ireland, or half as many as in Canada. Ireland exported as much food to England since 1913 as either the United States or the Argentine."

Sir Ernest Harder Williams, English publisher, also arrived on the Mauretania.

SEWING MACHINE ROMANCE.

INVENTOR'S TROUBLES.

After Perfecting Machine Could Not Get Public to Buy it—Nearly Starved.

The year 1919 witnesses the centenary of the birth of a man blessed by women—Elias Howe, inventor of the seving machine, says Pearson's Weekly.

It was in 1845 that Howe made the first perfect model of a machine for sewing. Until then all sewing had to be done by hand.

Elias Howe was the son of a poor farmer of Spencer, Massachusetts. A delicate boy, he was further handicapped in life by lameness, and farm work proved too exhausting for him. He longed to go out into the world to better his position in life. Even as a child he had dreams and ambitions.

Chance Remark.

When sixteen years old he obtained a reluctant consent from his parents and went to Lowel, a manufacturing centre, and secured a job in a cotton mill. But soon after Howe had congratulated himself on getting a good start he was thrown out of work. After a while he succeeded in finding work in various machine shops.

When he was twenty-one his wages were thirty-six shillings a week, and he had a wife to keep.

A remark overheard in the shop that anyone who could invent a sewing machine would make a fortune, and the sight every evening at home of his wife's weary needle at the hand-sewing, for which she was paid a mere pittance, gave him his inspiration. He started on his great adventure, and in 1844 he had made a rough model of a machine for sewing.

Football of Fate.

At least £25 was necessary for him to perfect the machine. Elias Howe was one of those who persevere in spite of all obstacles. He decided he must get that capital somehow. His enthusiasm and force of argument helped him to persuade a wealthy merchant, George Fisher, to enter into partnership with him. For one-half share in the patent of the perfected machine Fisher agreed to advance the necessary money.

After about five months of constant drudgery, Howe's machine was completed. That was in May, 1845. The patent was obtained, and it seemed as though fame and fortune were his. But, though the new machine was praised, it proved impossible to put it on the market. As an achievement the invention was a brilliant success; as a financial enterprise it was a failure. Howe's partner, disgusted at losing his money, withdrew from the partnership.

BREAD PRICES HIGHER.

(Canadian Press.)

TORONTO, Dec. 30.—The public will pay higher for bread, but neither the millers nor the bakers will lose money by the advance ordered by the Canadian Wheat Board, from $2.30 to $2.80 per bushel in store at terminal elevators.

This is the opinion given to-day by Hedley Shaw, of the Hedley Shaw Milling Company.

LABOUR CANDIDATES FOR ELECTION DISCUSS SOME OF CITY'S PROBLEMS

WERE ENDORSED BY INDEPENDENT LABOUR PARTY LAST NIGHT—WILL ASSIST IN THE ORGANIZATION WORK FOR GETTING OUT THE VOTE ON NEW YEAR'S.

ALD. M'INTYRE'S ADDRESS

The Independent Labor Party last night endorsed the Trades and Labor Council's candidates for the municipal elections and promised a full measure of that co-operation that scored the big victory in the recent provincial campaign. The resolution of approval and acceptance was moved by Mr. T. Toomis, M.L.A., and seconded by Mr. T. H. Lane. It was unanimously adopted.

Mr. Thomas McMurray, who presided in the absence of Mr. Peter McArthur, sounded the rallying call to the workingmen of the city, exhorting them to stand firmly together in the present effort to elect a Labor Mayor, four Aldermen, three members of the Board of Education, and one member of the Utilities Commission.

Organized labour's object, he said, was to give everybody a square deal.

"If we read the papers we see that they don't want labor men in public office in Peterborough. The Examiner says they should not be elected because they are going to legislate for one class of the people. I can't see where they get the idea we are going to legislate for our own class alone. I can assure the people of Peterborough that the Labor aldermen will give the city a square deal, because the laboring class as a whole will see that all the citizens get a square deal. Nobody need be afraid that by electing the Labor slate that anybody will be hurt one iota. I think we have as fine a class of men as the other side can put up. If they don't give everybody a square deal we can all turn around next year and put them out.

L. F. Humber.

"We shouldn't feel too sure of election, because we have strong elements against us," said Mr. Lorenzo F. Humber, after thanking the Labor Council's campaign committee for their published appeal to the ratepayers in behalf of the Labor candidates.

"I am meeting with great success in my campaign and if the people are sincere and give me the support they promised me I have not a doubt of the election of our candidates on New Year's. If I am defeated you have defeated your cause and my cause and knocked down the progress of labor for, I might say, a century to come. We don't want to be radical, we want to gain over the confidence of the entire people of Peterborough."

Referring to the Hunter street bridge contract, Mr. Humber said he was opposed to the cost plus plan of letting the city's work. In his way of thinking the bridge was going to cost $360,000.

Speaking of the interest of the G.W.V.A. in the elections, Mr. Humber said that he had given as much as he could to every appeal that was made in behalf of the soldiers, and his contributions were proportionately larger than those of men like Flavelle.

"I only regret that I was not in a position to help as did some wealthy men. Labor as a class gave freely because they knew the cause was in the right. I appeal to the returned soldiers, and if anything that's fair in the way of a request comes up I'll be only too glad to vote for the treasurer to go down into the treasury and dole out the money in a conscientious way."

Mr. Fred Tuggey.

Mr. Tuggey pledged himself to the economic expenditure of the public's money if he was elected. 'If you put us in the City Council I shall try to economize in spending money to the best effect. We ask you as working men to help the cause of Labor. We want you do what is fair for the manufacturer as well as for all citizens. If we have the same people running the city as did the Hunter street bridge, it is no wonder you'd hear the question is the city going bankrupt. We have men in the Council now that shouldn't be there. Therefore the Trades and Labor Council asked us if we would stand as their representatives and try to handle the city's business fair and square.

We hear of a forward movement in the churches. There was never a time in the world when we so needed a forward movement for the men who are working six days a week and trying to give their families a decent chance.

Mr. Tuggey said that Ald. McIntyre was right in standing by the Housing scheme. It was for the benefit of the working men and was a step in the direction for a progressive city. Without homes for working men new industries would not locate here. Mr. Tuggey referred to his long experience in building houses and said that they had the practical knowledge that should be helpful in the construction of the Hunter street bridge, sewage disposal plant and other undertakings. He wanted to see full value obtained for the money spent by the city. He was in favor of better bathing accommodation and of carrying out city work under the day labor system. This would save the money that is now going to contractors. The taxpayers have the first claim to work done by the city.

Mr. J. Arthur Sharpe.

Mr. Sharpe remarked the previous speakers had covered the ground thoroughly. In regard to the platforms of the Trades Council and the Labor party I assure you that I endorse everything on them and will do everything I can to uphold them. There is nothing there but what any person could endorse. I don't care whether he is a manufacturer or a laborer. It is twenty-five years since I tried to boost the I.L.P. and I can say without fear of contradiction that I was the father of the Independent Labor Party in Peterborough. The proudest moment of my life was when we elected Tommy Tooms as our representative.

Mr. Sharpe said there was no doubt of the election of the Labor candidates, especially if all the people who promised their support voted that way.

"I didn't expect to be put up and I didn't seek it. I consented only after my nomiantion. Now that I'm into it I want to see all all the Labor candidates elected. I am asking for support to all of them and I am sure they are doing the same. The professional men don't go there to represent you but his own class. If we expect to get anything we must put in the Council men of our own class.

OH, JOY, LADIES! 1920 IS LEAP YEAR

COY MAIDENS WILL HAVE THE RIGHT TO PROPOSE—CUSTOM ORIGINATED SIX HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

The display of calendars and almanacs in stationery stores brings to mind the fact that the new year, now only a few days away, will be leap year—that year of an extra day when it is right and proper that maidens woo and not be wooed. Nobody knows how this custom originated, but the fact remains that for well over 600 years, since the time when an "ilk mayden ladye of bothe high and lowe estait shall hae liberte to besyeke ye man she likes," maidens have taken advantage of the old custom, and with varying success. The extra day produced by February next year—the 29th—will fall on a Sunday.

The social season for 1920 will close fairly early. Ash Wednesday comes on February 18. Easter will be correspondingly early — on April 4, Good Friday comes on April 2.

Those addicted to week-end jaunts will be pleased to learn that May 24 falls on a Monday, while the King's birthday, a school and bank holiday, will be on a Thursday. July 1, Dominion day, will also be on Thursday. Labor day, the holiday following which the public schools usually open for the fall term, will be observed on September 6.

Nobody knows when Thanksgiving day will be, for the date of this occasion is determined in September, by proclamation of the governor-general-in-council. Should the last few years be taken as a precedent, it will be a Monday in mid-October.

Christmas a year from now, will be on Saturday.

Further information yielded by the almanac shows that several eclipses, both of the sun and the moon, will take place in 1920. Two of these phenomena will be a total eclipse of the moon on October 27, and a partial eclipse of the sun on November 10.

The cleanliness of the sealed package appeals to the daintiness of a woman.

She knows that it protects the contents from dust, dirt, odors and moisture.

She will be doubly pleased with our new waxed board package—which we have adopted after several years of testing—because it is stronger, more secure and more completely air-tight; altogether the best container for tea that has yet been devised.

Ask your grocer for Red Rose Tea in the sealed carton.

FACE WAS FULL OF PIMPLES

For Three Years. Hard and Awfully Sore. Disfigured. Cuticura Heals.

"I had been suffering with a pimply face for three years. My face was full of pimples and they were hard and awfully sore. They festered and dried up, and were scaly, and disfigured my face. They caused me to lose a lot of sleep, and were awfully itchy, making me scratch and irritate my face.

"I started to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment when I was healed." (Signed) Clifford Yeomans, East Chezzetcook, N. S.

WHAT AND WHY IS
Group Insurance?

It is an inexpensive means of insuring the lives of all your employees individually by a single small premium.

It involves no medical inspection and it costs about 75 cents a month for each $1,000, of insurance carried.

It has arisen from the desire of business firms to do something substantial for their employees, and so promote goodwill and avoid constant changes in the payroll.

It has been widely adopted by far-seeing industrial executives.

LABOUR CANDIDATES FOR ELECTION DISCUSS SOME OF CITY'S PROBLEMS

W. H. Tedford.

Three years ago we were all at home reading the papers as to what the Council was doing," said Wm. H. Tedford. "We're here now and I hope that three years from now the other class will be at home reading about what we are doing."

From what he had been told, Mr. Tedford believed that the bridge was going to be "an awful debt." He assured the electors that he knew how "to hang on to" his own money and would guarantee to keep the city's money safe.

Mr. A. J. Bolwell.

As a candidate for the Board of Education Mr. Bolwell promised that if elected he would do all in his power in the interests of the citizens as a whole. He pleaded the cause of Mrs. Kate Morris who was endorsed by the Labor Council. "There is work for women to do on the Board of Education, problems they can handle better than men, and the Trades Council was safe in endorsing Mrs. Morris. If only one of our three candidates is elected I would rather see her get on the Board of Education than myself or Mr. Morrison. However, I hope we'll get elected."

Referring to Ald. Taylor's campaign literature Mr. Bolwell remarked that Labor endorsed everything on it. "The most of it he stole from the Labor platform."

Mr. Bolwell discussing the Labor planks, urged that two of them be put into effect as soon as possible, the equalization of the salaries of public officials and the publishing of the assessment rolls. He declared that the recall system had been misrepresented, that it applied simply to the Labor platform, that it was not harshly applied and to the best of his recollection had never been enforced.

Mr. Alex. Morrison.

"It's nearly time we had a representative on the Board of Education," said Alex. Morrison, who strongly advocated a more extensive technical training course in connection with the schools.

"I would like to see our technical education branch forth more than it has in the past. Everybody who has boys knows that they want to leave school about fourteen years of age. In lots of cases the fathers are willing to let them go, but it would be better for the boys if they could get technical training between the ages of fourteen and eighten years."

Ald. A. A. McIntyre.

"I feel I'm going to win it but we've got to keep going," was Ald. McIntyre's greeting. "My record in the Council is as good as any alderman's. On the Labor question I always tried to be fair with the Labor men. I am an employer, but at the same time my sympathies are with my men. I have seen them kept down and I assure you that if you elect me you will not regret it. You will get all the support I can give you on any question that is fair and above board."

Ald. McIntyre stated that he would give early consideration to the street railway problem, and would urge the Government to proceed with the erection of the post office that had been promised to Peterborough. He was satisfied that the Housing scheme was in the interests of the working men if it could be got working properly.

"I can't see anything in the Labor platform I couldn't support. I don't claim to be a speaker, but I have executive ability and sometimes that's better than being a good speaker."

Mr. C. E. Sisson.

Arriving late, Mr. C. E. Sisson, endorsed by Labor for the Utilities Commission, was the last speaker. He had acquiesced in the urgings of many citizens to be a candidate because he believed that every citizen enjoying the privileges of the community should be willing to share some of its responsibilities. Another reason was the fact of his nineteen years' experience as an engineer.

"If I can render any public service at all it should be on the Utilities Commission," he said. "The argument is put forth that we have already two engineers with the Commission. That is true, but it is not my intention to assume any of their work if I am elected. I have enough detail at the C.G.E. I feel, however, that I would be in a position to deal with the problems before the Commission because of the engineering knowledge I have acquired, and I believe that I could render the best assistance on the Utilities Commission. The other candidates are ex-mayors or ex-aldermn and I am supposed not to have any experience. At any rate I have no bad habits, and I would come to the Commission with an open mind.

I wish to express my hearty appreciation of the endorsation of the Trades and Labor Council in my behalf. They did so without my appearing before them; also my appreciation of the above board manner in which negotiations between my friends who recommended me and the Labor Council were conductd. If the citizens see fit to place me on the Commission I shall do my best and make an honest effort.

Other speakers were Mr. Tooms, P. C. Lloyd, Ald. Gainey and Frank Asta.

WHEN IN TROUBLE AFTER EATING

Mr. Stanyer Always Finds Relief in Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

When you get that uncomfortable feeling after eating don't you just long for something to give you relief? Mr. Thos. E. Stanyer, Ahmic Harbor, Ont., will tell you what will just exactly fit your case. Mr. Stanyer says:

"For five years everything I ate went to water. Your Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are making me right again."

Hundreds of Canadians have found relief after eating in Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and after using them for a time have further discovered that they are no longer necessary—that the stomach has recovered and is able to do its work without assistance.

AFRAID OF DARK, HE WEDS AGAIN AT THE AGE OF NINETY

LONDON, Dec. 29.—"I was afraid to be alone at night," is the explanation given for his third matrimonial venture by 90 year old John Godfrey, who has just married Mrs. Sarah Parsons, aged 76. The bride has for some time acted as housekeeper for the bridegroom, who is wealthy and hale.

At the wedding ceremony the bridegroom's stentorian answers to the clergyman suggested one much nearer 40 than 90. He spends most of his time making models of railway engines which he trundles along in every local hospital parade

FEW FIRES DURING THE PAST MONTH

During the last month the city has been comparatively free of fires and only a few calls have been answered, most of these turning out to be only chimney fires. Needless to say, the firemen have been enjoying this comparative calm and hope that it may continue, and the citizens no doubt will echo their words, remembering the fire losses of other years.

SHE SUFFERED FIVE YEARS

Finally Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Key West, Fla.—"For five years I suffered from irregularities, with terrible pains and an awful weakness in my back. The doctor gave me different medicines but they did me no good. A friend asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I found it to be the medicine I ever ... because it did me well, and can now do my housework. I ... telling my friends about it."—Mrs. ... M. CAMUS, 726 Caroline St., Key West, Florida.

Many women at some period in their life suffer from ailments peculiar to their sex and which in most cases may be readily relieved by this famous root and herb medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, just as Mrs. Camus found it helped her after suffering for years and trying everything else in vain.

If you have any annoying symptoms you fail to understand, write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The results of their 40 years experience is at your service.

office because there were nine other men there to help out. He pointed out the case which should be taken in the selection of the candidates for the Board as they have entrusted to them the administration of affairs which have to do with the greatest asset of the city, the boys and girls. There are two things he said he has in mind in seeking re-election, the raising of the teachers salaries in order to secure a continuity of service from the best teaching staff in Ontario and the building of the new school for which he was one of the members who stood out and which he contends is a big asset in increasing the population as schools are big assets in securing new citizens.

Candidate for Mayoralty.

Alderman A. A. McIntyre the next speaker made a very brief address stating that on account of his many years service as Alerman he felt that the iime has come when he should enter the field as for election as Mayor. If elected he promised to do all possible in giving the coming convention of the G.W.V.A. a royal time. He concluded by assuring the Association that he can fill the bill of Mayor.

Alderman Edgar.

Publicity for the Utilities Commission was the most prominent plank in the platform outlined by Alderman John Edgar. After outlining his efforts in securing the $10,000 grant for the War Veterans hall, his instrumentality in forcing a school assessment for the Quaker Oats Company, the securing of a foot bridge on the C.P.R. and his stand in the matter of the Park By-law which he said was something worth while which should secure the hearty support of teh electorate, and also the Housing By-law which is one of the best movements ever undertaken and which prevents speculation. He stated that if elected he would do his utmost to let the public know a little more of the inner workings of the Commission. The balance quoted for the Utilities sounds, he stated, fine but the public do not know all they should know. If elected he promised to use his best judgment in serving in the offict as he has done in other municipal offices he has held in the past four years.

Alderman Taylor.

Alderman W. H. Taylor in a very brief address told of the platform he will take if elected to the mayoralty. He stated that he is pledged to support Street Railway extension which he believes will advance industry. He said that if elected he will stan for city development, and an increase in the number of manufacturing concerns. There are he said hundreds of British and American firms looking for sites for factories and that as Mayor of the City he would do his utmost in securing them for Peterboro.

Midnight Dyspepsia

Late Suppers and the Snack Before Going to Bed Are All Right and Safe If You Follow With a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet.

The stomach often feels empty just before bed time. A little bite usually induces sleep. To avoid indigestion, restlessness, and the "dark brown" taste in the morning, take a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet after eating. It supplies just the right elements to aid in digesting food, rests the stomach, provides properties to relieve the tendency to gassiness and sour risings, morning biliousness and consequent absence of appetite for breakfast. To make a practice of always using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after eating is one of those precautionary measures that repay immensely. This is an age of prevention, and these tablets are designed to promote liberty of eating and the goodfellowship that goes with a good meal. You will find Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in all drug stores throughout the United States and Canada.

"I sure made a Great Discovery when I Learned about Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets."

THE WEATHER

The year is drawing to a close much as it did last year. The year previous, however, was biterly cold at this time. On the 29th and 30th, the thermometer was at 27 degrees below zero on both days, and on the 31st, 22 below. Another pronounced cold wave is beginning to spread over the northern portions of the prairie provinces, but will not reach here for several days, if it comes this way at all.—W. P.

THE COLLEGIATE AT HOME

The tenth annual "At Home" of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute—held in the Collegiate Institute last night—was one of the most successful events of the holiday season.

The dance and promenade had long been looked forward to by the pupils, and the ex-pupils, many of whom were at a similar but impromptu event held just a generation ago on the opening of the new school.

Last night's affair brought back many pleasant memories of the days spent at Collegiate.

Previous dances had always been held by the Rugby Club in some other building, but this year, due to the kindness of the Board of Education, permission was given to use the Assembly Hall — in fact, the entire building was turned over to the committee; and so this year the "At Home" was truly an "At Home."

Dancing commenced in the hall, which was very prettily decorated with flags and pennants at 8.30, and continued until 1 a.m.

The music by the four-piece orchestra of William Davis, Toronto, was irresistible, and they were forced to respond to every number with one or more encores. The excellence of the music, combined with the good floor and the pretty decorations, kept the dancers on tip-toe, and all expressed regret when the time came to depart.

Great credit for the success of the affair is due the committee, which was composed of Misses Lenore Lyle and Marjory Ingall and Messrs. A. Stevenson, A. H. McClure, N. Rishor, N. Mowat, and H. G. Mason, who are to be complimented on the manner in which the programme was carried out.

The patronesses were: Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, Mrs. C. F. Jamieson, Mrs. (Dr.) Neal, Mrs. A. Stevenson, Mrs. A. Mowat, Mrs. W. H. Hill, Mrs. E. F. Mason Mrs. E. E. Ingall, Mrs. C. D. Cook.

Some of those present were: Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Jamieson, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Denne, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Cook, Dr. and Mrs. Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. G. O. HOCKEY SEASON OPENS WITH BATTLE TO-NIGHT

The local hockey season will be inaugurated to-night when the Peterborough intermediates will clash at Brock street rink in a battle with the fast Belleville team, who beat the green shirts in Belleville last Friday night by 10 goals to 7. The Petes expect to reverse this decision on the fast sheet of ice that is ready for to-night's engagement. They had a lively practice last night and are in good shape for the battle, although Ray Rose will be out of the game as the result of a sprained ankle sustained in Belleville. Frost and Cherrett, stars of last year's junior team, will make their debut with the intermediates to-night. "Jerry" Coughlin will handle the bell, and by the interest the fans have been showing in the practises there will be an unusually large crowd on hand for the opening attraction of the season. The team for to-night's game will be as follows:

Goal—Murray.
Right defence—Pete Thornton.
Left defence—Frost.
Centre—Halpin.
Right wing—Evans.
Left wing—Rose (capt.)
Subs — Cherrett, Jackson, Harry Thornton.

PORT HOPE'S FINAL RUSH DEFEATS BOWMANVILLE.

PORT HOPE, Dec. 29.—With a four to one score against them at the end of the first period, Port Hope came through with a garrison finish, and won from the Bowmanville intermediates by a score of 6 to 5. The game was a hard struggle all the way, marked by the close checking and heavy body work. The teams:

Port Hope—Goal, Micks; right defence, Darch; left defence, Jex and C. W. Hills; wings, R. Ware and Brown. Subs—R. Hills and K. Ware.

Bowmanville—Goal, Fletcher; right defence, Williams; left defence, Grant and C. Pipher; wings, Williams and Hooper. Subs—Willias and Pipher.

Referee—W. M. Tackaberry, of Toronto.

OSHAWA DEFEAT COBOURG.

COBOURG, Dec. 29.—In an O.H.A. Intermediate game played here to-night, Oshawa defeated Cobourg 9 to 2. The Oshawas were in better condition and scored almost at will. The teams:

Cobourg—Goal, Butler; right defence, Drummon; left defence, Davis; centre, Glidden; left wing, Skitch; right wing, Maher. Subs—Irwin and Burch.

YOUNG PEOPLE ENJOY AN OUTING

Last evening the Y. P. G. of Knox Church assembled at the church at 7.30, and proceeded to the Lake to enjoy an evening's skating. The ice was in good shape, and every skater made use of it. About ten o'clock the party returned to the church to partake of lunch, which was served by a committee, composed of Sherman Preston (convener), Mrs. And. McKenzie, Miss T. Pearson, Miss L. Sproule, Miss V. Buckham, and Mr. T. Smith.

During lunch an excellent programme of music was furnished by a miniature victrola (something of a curiosity) brought back from France by Sherman Preston.

After the skaters had partaken of the lunch, presentations of various descriptions were made to the following, each of whom responded: Miss Irene Thirnbeck, Messrs. A. McKenzie, Bob McLeish, Jim Turnbull, Ted Jackson, Lance Petty, Dave Morden, and John Bradbury (who is the new president for 1920). This concluded an evening's entertainment which will not soon be forgotten by the members of the Y. P. G. of Knox Church.

NOMINATIONS FOR CAVAN TOWNSHIP

The nominations for the township of Cavan resulted in the following elections by acclamations: Reeve, Harold Baptie of Springville, Deputy Reeve, J. L. McCamus, of Cavan; Councillors, Harry Bland, George H. Hooton and Stewart Fallis.

When most people talk they waste a lot of valuable time in giving unnecessary details.

WHERE ARE YOU GOING NEW YEAR'S DAY?

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday of This Week You Can travel by camel and aeroplane through unexplored and enchanting lands on the other side of the world.

YOU can ride a camel through the home of the Arabian Nights with a mysterious young Englishman whose story is more absorbing than Robinson Crusoe's.

YOU can meet the fascinating desert Arabs—nomads who have never heard of railroads, moving pictures, telephones, America.

YOU can fly above the pyramids, come down in a spinning nose idve over Bethlehem and soar above the Dead Sea and the Jordan.

YOU can watch the weird dances of the natives at the gateway of the African jungles.

YOU can fly above the Mount of Olives, the Garden of Gethsemane and Jerusalem.

YOU can visit Mecca, the forbidden city, which less than a dozen Christian adventurers have reached.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday of This Week You Can tour with sixty thousand camels the memory-laden and mystical Land of Milk and Honey.

YOU can ride with the Australian Light Horse as it sweeps across the plains of Armageddon, conquers Beersheba, Jericho, Damascus, and Nazareth.

YOU can see the surrender of the most fought-for city in the world—the Holy City—Jerusalem.

YOU can visit the mysterious and enthralling city of Petra—the most beautiful and gorgeous city ever built by man.

YOU can hear DALE CARNAGEY tell the most fascinating of human stories.

YOU can see what the London papers have declared to be the most wonderful motion and coloured picture travelogue ever seen in England.

Voice Of The People

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir, The Independent Labor Party in endorsing the candidates recommended by the Trades and Labor Council for the various municipal offices wish to state: We recognize the organization of Capital and the organization of Labor as natural outcomes of our industrial system. Each kind of organization is to be favored so long as it acts in a spirit of justice. Each to be granted full protection of the law and each to be held to a strict obedience to the law; for no man is above it, and no man below it. The humblest individual to have his rights safeguarded as scrupulously as those of the strongest organization, for each should receive justice—no more no less. The problems with which we have to deal in our modern industrial life are manifold, but the spirit in which it is necessary to approach their solution is simply the spirit of of honesty of courage and of common sense. The local I. L. P. therefore have ten qualifications for their candidates, which are:

(1) Men who cannot be bought.
(2) Men whose word is their bond.
(3) Men who put character before wealth.
(4) Men who possess opinions and a will.
(5) Men who would rather be right than be President.
(6) Men who will not lose their individuality in a crowd.
(7) Men who will make no compromise on questionable things.
(8) Men of courage who are not cowards in any part of their nature.
(9) Men who are willing to sacrifice private interests for the public good.
(10) Men whose ambitions are not confined to their own selfish desires.

T. TOOMS,
Sec. I.L.P.

Peterborough, Dec. 29th.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

In my election card I stated yesterday that I assisted in the building of the Canadian Kodak Building in Toronto and have been sixteen years carrying on cement construction.

The last part of the paragraph should have read "sixteen years in brick and cement construction," and I merely make the change in order that it will be correct.

Yours truly,
FRED T. TUGGEY.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"THE ROAD CALLED STRAIGHT"

The ever-popular Ernie Marks Company was again welcomed last night by a large and appreciative audience. "The Road Called Straight" deals with the difficulties that beset the path of a crook, Chick Hewes, who has gone "straight" and made good through the influence of his wife Molly (Miss Kitty Marks). They are involved in the theft of a diamond necklace through no fault of their own, and after many exciting adventures, are able at last to prove their innocence.

Miss Kitty Marks, as Molly, won all hearts by her sweetness of manner and able interpretation of the part and was ably supported by Mr. Robert E. Dorente as "Chick." Mr. Ernie Marks was a smypathetic but humorous Deputy Commissioner, and caused many a laugh. The specialties between two acts were very good.

TO THE ELECTORS:—

The Hon. Mr. Drury, Premier of Ontario, has stated that he considers the woman's point of view both desirable and necessary on every Board of Education.

Dr. Cody while Minister of Education many times expressed the same opinion.

Your Board of Education acknowledges the need and value of women in the schools when it employs six times as many women as men teachers (65 women and 11 men) and a woman adviser.

Having been a Public School Teacher ,or some years I am able to see the educational questions of the day from the double viewpoint of the home and the teacher.

It is in the hope of giving intellegent service that I am a candidate for the Board of Education.

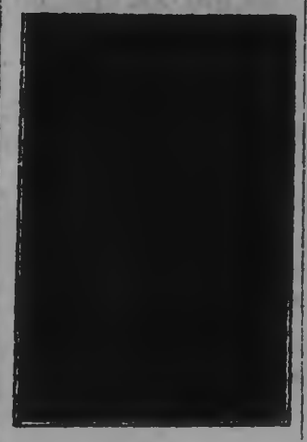
BOARD OF EDUCATION



DR. F. C. NEAL

Respectfully Requests your Vote for Re-election on the Board of Education in favour of a Progressive and Economic Policy for 1920.

To The Electors of The City of Peterboro

Ladies and Gentlemen,— Having been nominated and endorsed by the Trades and Labour Council of Peterborough as a candidate for the position of Alderman of the City of Peterborough, I accept the same, believing labor to be the basis of national progress. That a better understanding will be arrived at by co-operation of all classes on the Council, which is so essential to the industrial progress of any city, I feel confident that my practical knowledge of construction work will be of great service to the city in the undretakings that will come before it during 1920.

If elected, all matters that may come before the Council shall receive my most serious attention for the benefit of the community in general.

Wishing you all an industrially prosperous New Year, with happy home conditions.

Yours, Etc.,

COPPING FOR ALDERMAN

TO THE ELECTORS:

Ladies and Gentlemen: Having accepted nomination for election to the City Council, I wish to present myself to the Electorate.

I do so in full confidence that if favored I can give to the city now ample time in which to be useful, and be careful, diligent and helpful in the work, and in the interest of the ratepayers as a whole. I am sure that I can give the time, and not plead, further on, that I am so occupied that matters escape my attention.

I place myself in your hands as a man and a citizen, just one of yourselves, anxious to help my home town and willing to make the effort. I can bring to the work good intelligence, appreciation of needs and the will and the energy to do the very best possible. If elected I will make it my business to work amicably and helpfully with the members of the aldermanic board in joint effort to handle your problems.

Enterprises that are in hand for the city will have closest attention. Those planned will receive careful scrutiny in the interest that the best may be evolved What is asked for will be supported if reasonable and conducive of the greatest good to the greatest number I promise to be unremitting in my endeavor to justify your choice, if elected, and bespeak for myself your support

I feel that I am not assuming too much in asking that you give the new man a chance He deserves an opportunity to show what he can do. And he will make good, having in view the welfare and progress of the city for its citizens I will not hesitate to encourage enterprise, so long as it promises to build up our municipality, and will assist such sensibly and carefully. We should provide the opportunity for laboring men to be employed and if I am in the Council I will stand for progress in all things that it is well to push forward.

Respectfully,
R. V. COPPING

Respectfully Asks Your Support

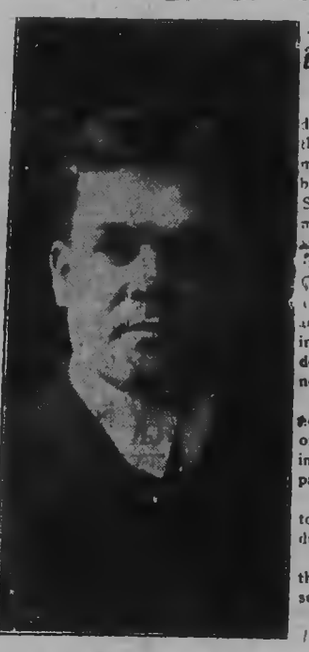
FOR ALDERMAN

Having again been nominated and asked to run for the position of Alderman for 1920, I solicit the support of the ratepayers, in the interest of good economical municipal Government.

If elected I will support only measures that I consider in the best interests of the City.

Yours faithfully,

R. N. JONES



To the Ratepayers of the City of Peterborough

I am offering myself as a candidate for Alderman, as I believe that this City will be benefited with my many years of experience as a member of the City Council and as City Solicitor. I had intended to devote my time to my business affairs, but as there are few men of many years' experience in Municipal affairs in the City Council, I felt that I could be of help in the City's government on account of the large undertakings and important projects which must be dealt with by the Council within the next two years.

To develop this City we must have new industries, and I have given much of my time in the past years, while in the City Council, to this particular part of Municipal affairs.

If elected, I will make every effort to improve this City as a great industrial centre.

The support of those who believe that I shall be able to give faithful service, is respectfully requested.

Yours faithfully,

G. N. GORDON

For BOARD OF EDUCATION

After strong pressure from influential quarters, I have again consented to accept a position on the Board of Education, if it be the will of the Electors to place me there.

If my best business ability is considered necessary to help complete the work which is already in hand, it is at the service of the citizens for another term.

A good substantial vote behind me would look as though what I have tried to do has been appreciated.

FOR UTILITIES COMMISSION

To the Electors of the City of Peterborough

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

I have the honour of nomination and have been urgently requested by a very large number of ratepayers to be a candidate for the Utilities Commission.

Having served you six years as Alderman and two years as Mayor, I acquired a fairly comprehensive knowledge of the duties of the Utilities Commission.

I was a member of the City Council during the negotiations, construction and prosecution of the work of the City's Electric Power Station, the City Waterworks Dam and the Auxiliary Pumping Station.

As Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee in the City Council, I came directly in contact with the Waterworks System, including the mains, hydrants, pressure, etc., for fire protection, domestic, and manufacturing purposes.

For two years I was Vice-President of the Ontario Hydro Radial Association, which gave me a thorough knowledge of the advantages of the Hydro-Electric system for power, electric lighting, heating and Radial Railway purposes.

With the above experience and knowledge I respectfully solicit your vote and influence in support of my candidature, assuring you, if elected, that I will endeavour to assist in every way possible with the other members of the Commission to carry out the work in the very best interests of the ratepayers of the City of Peterborough.

I am heartily in favour of such improvements as the proposed new Filteration Plant when the time is opportune, but I am of the opinion that all such large expenditures, as far as practicable, in every department of the City, should be deferred until such time as some of the present debentures are fully paid up except in so far as it is found necessary to go ahead with the work in order to keep out workmen and labourers steadily employed.

Respectfully yours,

JOS. J. DUFFUS

THE COMMITTEE OF CITIZENS
Interested in City Welfare

To the Electors of Peterboro'

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

If I am elected Mayor, one of my first duties will be to endeavor to secure an extension of the street car system. I will see the Hydro-Electric Commission and urge them to continue the line from Patterson street to Byersville, on the boundary, connecting with the line already in operation. I shall do my best to have this line continued down to Crawford's Grove, where with very little expense a beautiful summer resort could be established, where the workingmen of the city, with their wives and families could enjoy themselves after the labors of the day.

I will also advocate the building of a car line south on Park street, from Braund's corner to the De Laval. This line to be extended south from year to year as the growth of the city requests it.

I am also in favor of a line to East City as soon as possible after the completion of the new overhead bridge.

There is also another part of the city, which in my opinion should have a street car service, namely the north-west portion, and if I am elected I shall do my utmost to have a line constructed to serve the people who live in that section of the city.

I am not in favor of the city buying the street railway and the gas plant at the present time, not, at any rate, until we have completed the two great undertakings which we are at present engaged in, namely the Hunter street bridge and the outfall sewer. Then we must make sure that it will be a paying investment, and help to relieve the burden of the taxpayer instead of adding to it.

FIRE DEPARTMENT IS ALWAYS READY

ITS MOTTO OF PREPAREDNESS SHOULD BE APPLIED TO PROTECTION OF PUBLIC HEALTH.

"There hasn't been a fire in the city for months," said a citizen the other day. "It seems a waste of money to keep up a fire department that does nothing."

"We don't disband the fire department because we have a run of luck," replied a ratepayer. "It pays to have those firemen ready, whether they are doing anything or not." And the ratepayer spoke wisely.

A fire department is an illustration of the principle of preparedness. It's protection, pure and simple—something no modern city or town can do without.

Just as firemen stand ready to protect your property, so Grip Fix stands ready to protect your health. For over 10 years it has been an unexcelled treatment for colds. A box in the house means protection against the common and troublesome cold in the head, and may head off an attack of the 'flu. It is a combination of drugs such as your physician would use and contains nothing of a harmful nature. In capsule form it is something which gives relief to a cold in a night and works quickly in a case of Grippe.

Get a box of Grip Fix to-day. Then you'll be prepared should a cold come. You can get it at 35 cents per box. On sale at all drug stores. (Advt.)

NOMINATIONS IN LAKEFIELD AND OTHER MUNICIPALITIES

our rate this year was only 30 mills as against 33 mills last year.

Now, regarding the new Town Hall. We were all agreed that owing to the fire, it was necessary to build a new one. Consequently a vote was taken, and you passed a by-law for $16,000 to build a Memorial Hall, and to give employment as far as possible to our own men. Owing to the increased cost of everything, the Town Hall is going to cost more money than we anticipated. I am sorry that the hall is not finished. Some people have said that the hall is too good for Lakefield—it is good enough for Peterborough. If it is good enough for Peterborough it is none too good for Lakefield.

The New Hall.

It is only a few days ago that Judge Huycke, speaking in the hall, complimented the people of Lakefield, and said it was an ornament to the county and a credit to the people of Lakefield.

He stated that Hydro was now the live question at the present time, and when the vote is taken next Monday on the by-law he hoped there would be no opposition, as the $33,500 would be paid by those who took the power and used the lights, so that the taxes would not be increased by voting for Hydro, and that at the end of 30 years it would be owned by the municipality, and would be a very valuable asset. If we get the Hydro it will be a great advertisement for the village, which is the entrance to one of the best summer resorts on the Continent.

Whether I represent you or not is not essential, but vote for Hydro next Monday, which is very essential at the present time, and you will never regret it, and took his seat after wishing all a very happy, prosperous and bright New Year.

Councillor A. J. Young chairman of the Road and Sidewalk Committee was next called on, and when he arose stated that the Reeve and Mr. Porter had made such statements that there was very little left for him to say. He felt very much like Mr. Porter in dropping out but if he should decide to remain he would as in the past give the Village his very best services. A lot of work had been done on the outlying streets this year rather than the centre, as the Council thought they required it most. With regards to charity, we this year had our charity fariiy to provide for but at present there are none.

The Town Hall was costing more than we expected but it was a good one of which our citizens should feel proud.

Wishing the electors the Compliments of the Season he took his seat.

Councillor McDonald stated when called on that the others had covered the ground so thoroughly there was nothing left for him to say except to urge the Electors next Monday to all vote for Hydro.

Fire Equipment.

Dr. J. C. Smith stated that a year ago we were in great difficulties owing to the burning of our Town Hall. Fire equipment, etc., but now we had made a start on Fire equipment, which he hoped soon to see brought to a higher standard as we have only started on our Fire equipment. We have 800 feet of hose to attach to the Village Pump at Moore's Mill and hoped we would soon have a system to cover the whole village. Owing to our splendid power and position we occupy we should have more industries which we shall hope to be able to secure when we get the Hydro. We are taking 200 Horse Power for which we are paying $36 per H.P., but if we go over the 200 H.P. the rates will automatically drop to $27 per H.P. and hoped that every one would poll their vote on Monday in favor of the Hydro By-law.

Mr. A. J. Kidd made a few lively remarks regarding the time when he was Reeve, but had already served in that capacity and did not wish to take it up again in view of the fact that there were so many good men in the field.

Mr. John C. Strickland when called on said that he greatly appreciated the confidence placed in him by nominating him for Reeve and Councillor, and should he be elected would endeavor to promote everything that would be in the interest of the Village and especially Hydro.

Capt. J. M. Bygott also appreciated the confidence placed in him by nominating him for Councillor, but as he had already served them on the Council Board on previous occasion, he was so busy at present time he would have to decline.

Mr. Porter took occasion to let the people know that during the past year the work of the Clerk had been greatly increased by the building of the Town Hall and also that he had made the best sale of our Town Hall 5½% debentures, selling them here in Lakefield at par, showing that the people of Lakefield have confidence in their own town, he would therefore move a vote of thanks to our Clerk for his work, seconded by Dr. Smith and which was carried unanimously.

The Clerk announced that the Election would be held next Monday, Jan. 5, at the Council Chamber and the Clerks office.

The meeting then adjourned.

ATTEMPT TO ROB A SICK WIDOW

Canadian Press:

TORONTO, Dec. 30. — Entering the premises on the third floor of the residence in the west-end of the city, two cowardly young thugs, one armed with a revolver, attempted to rob Mrs. Myrtle Dawson, a widow, just recovering from pneumonia. She fainted when the gun was placed at her head. The men searched her, although she was scantily clad. They found little of value, and departed before Mrs. Dawson recovered consciousness. If the Police Commissioners will sanction it, a reward of $200 will be offered for an apprehension of the automobile bandits, who have been terrorizing the city recently. For the first time in the history of the force, the officers effecting the capture may receive the money.

FIERCE FIGHTING IN NARVA REGION

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Dec. 30. — There was fighting in the Narva region, with a heavy gas shell bombardment by the Esthonians, which forced the Bolsheviki to retire over the Narova River, is reported in the official statement issued by the Soviet authorities in Mocow to-day.

The Bolsheviki took with them more than one hundred prisoners.

The Bolshekiv forces have occupied Bakhmut, capturing several cannon, while beyond Novo Nikolaevsk they are pursuing Admiral Kolchak's troops, and have occupied Alexandrovsky, the statement claims.

To the Electors of the City of Peterboro

Ladies and Gentlemen,— I am a candidate for alderman, and if elected I will give the city's government the benefit of my practical knowledge in construction and building.

I assisted in the construction of the Canadian Kodak buildings in Toronto, and I also built the first cement block houses in Peterborough, and during my sixteen years I have been engaged in other construction work. I am a bricklayer by trade and I believe I have a knowledge of the needs of the people from a workingman's standpoint. I will see that for every dollar spent one dollar value is given (with no dollar days thrown in for bargain seekers) and I will watch and protect the city's interests as I would my own, if elected. I am in favor of the Housing scheme for Peterborough and for any other legislation that will make this city a progressive one.

I request the support of every ratepayer anxious to have an economical, yet progressive city government.

OBITUARY

RICHARD DINEEN.

Richard Dineen, aged 72, died last night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Harry McDonald, 484 Charlotte street, after a short illness.

The late Mr. Dineen was born here and had resided with his daughter for many years, and was widely known and respected. The wife of the deceased predeceased him only one month ago. He leaves to mourn his loss two daughters, Mrs. McDonald, and Miss Mary, of Peterboro, and one son, Mr. T. Dineen, of Toronto.

The funeral will take place from the home of his daughter, 484 Charlotte street, on New Year's afternoon, at 2.30, to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

Mr. Kerwood Taylor of Detroit, is visiting in the city.

KERENSKY WORKING IN A BEANERY IN LONDON.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Alexander F. Kerensky, successor to the Tsar as ruler of Russia, is now working in a "beef and beanery" in London, according to Georgy Zilborg, who says he was Kerensky's Secretary of Labour, and who spoke here to-night at the Intercollegiate Socialist Convention.

"The poor fellow is down at the heel," he added. "He is in the same boat as I am."

IN MEMORIAM.

VOL. XLIII NO. 152 — PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1919 — PRICE TWO CENTS.

ELECT EX-MAYOR JOS. J. DUFFUS FOR UTILITIES COMMISSION FOR 1920

(Adv't.)

6040 the Possible Total of Ballot

EVERY RATEPAYER MAY VOTE FOR THE ALADDIN CO. BY-LAW BUT PROPERTY OWNERS ONLY FOR THE PARK PURCHASE—YOU MAY VOTE FOR FIVE ALDERMEN AND MUST FOR FOUR.

BOXES AND BALLOTS ARE NOW READY

The possible total number of votes in the mayoralty election tomorrow, is 6040. The ratepayers who comprise this list are also eligible to ballot for the Aldermen, Utilities Commissioner and the Aladdin by-law. For the Board of Education 4000 ballots have been printed for the entire number of public school supporters, and for the Park by-law 3,370 ballots which will be handed out to property owners only.

Everything is all set at the city hall for staging tomorrow's contest. The ballot boxes have been dusted off and dressed up, the heaps of ballots have been coming from the presses during the past two days in distinguishing colours, appropriate, white for the aldermen, yellow for the Board of Education and so on. Because of the number of questions confronting the electors, the ballot boxes will double up in service. It is likely that there will be four in each booth, one each for the mayoralty and aldermanic slips, one for the two by-laws, and a fourth for the Board of Education and Utilities ballots to rub shoulder until the lid is lifted at five o'clock. Thus with six ballots and four boxes confronting the perplexed electors the New Year's festivities should be deferred until after every citizen has performed his duty to himself and his community. Those who have a little Johnny Walker or [illegible] left [illegible] should give it a wide berth until they have faced the battery of ballot boxes and weathered the storm of ballot slips. Even the slightest degree of hilarious obliquity or a touch of woolliness in the cerebrating faculties is likely to lose the festive elector in the maize of boxes and ballots in the stuffy booths. If thrifty taxpayers they should determine not to waste one ballot, but to use them all, the whole 6040 in the mayoralty contest and all the others besides, making a grand total of 32,370 used ballots, representing one hundred per cent. fulfillment of public duty.

ACCLAMATIONS IN LAKEFIELD

THERE WILL BE A CONTEST FOR THE REEVESHIP.

Last evening the municipal elections in Lakefield simmered down to a contest for the reeveship between Mr. F. J. Moore and Mr. J. C. Strickland. Those who qualified for councillors and trustees were elected by acclamation. The councillors elected were Mr. A. J. Young, Dr. J. C. Smith, Mr. George Spence and Mr. T. B. Marling and the trustees were Dr. J. R. Fraser, S. J. Gibson and J. E. Galvin.

ACCLAMATION FOR GALWAY COUNCIL

The nominations in Galway township resulted in the following elections by acclamations: Reeve John Clark; Councillors: Jas. Allen, T. A. Jackson, Vincent McGuire, Wm. Dudman.

HUGE AUDIENCES THRILLED LONDON NEWSPAPERS DECLARE

THE EXAMINER TRAVELOGUES STILL DRAW THOUSANDS NIGHTLY IN LONDON AND SHOULD BE SEEN BY EVERYONE IN PETERBOROUGH—CLIP THE COUPON—SHOWING AT THE GRAND NEW YEARS, MATINEE AND NIGHT—FRIDAY, SCHOOL CHILDREN, MATINEE AND NIGHT SATURDAY MATINEE AND NIGHT.

The most sensational development of the London season has been the manner in which the Carnagey-Thomas illustrated travelogues have swept London's amusement public by storm. Chu Chin Chow has been running continuously at His Majesty's theatre, London, for four years. It has enjoyed a longer uninterrupted run than any other attraction ever offered to the London public. The Maid of the Mountains has also given more than eleven hundred consecutive performances. Little did anyone dream six months ago that the Carnagey-Thomas illustrated travelogues would come to London and attract larger audiences and bigger box office receipts than either Chu Chin Chow, The Maid of the Mountains or any of the other successful London productions. But that is actual by what has happened.

This attraction was installed during the hot weather at the Royal Opera house, Convent Garden, London. The demand for seats for this attraction was so enormous that the grand opera season was postponed for several weeks to permit the travelogue to continue its run. This is the first time in history that the grand opera season of London has been postponed because of the success of a counter attraction.

Examiner Brings It Here.

The Evening Examiner takes pride in presenting the present reigning success of the London season at the same time that it is attracting its record breaking crowds in England. This is a rare privilege, for there are only two copies of this marvellous travelogue in existence. Of course other copies of the picture could be made, but it is impossible to duplicate the travelogues—Dale Carnagey and Lowell Thomas—the adventurers who combed the mysterious Near East for their wealth of information, experiences and stories. Mr. Carnagey has come direct from London to give at each performance in Peterborough the same travel talk that thrilled English audiences and held them spellbound.

Wonderful Film.

Such pictures as these have never been taken before, and never will be filmed again—unless there is another war out in the romantic deserts of the Holy Land and the Land of the Arabian Nights.

On a mosaic background of scorched earth, sand and the brilliant sunlight of an East of Suez summer, are shown most of Field Marshal Lord Allenby's operations between Dan and Beersheba, Mecca and Damascus, and the Sinai and Syrian deserts.

The London Morning Advertiser, commenting on the purely pictorial side of this attraction said: "It is the most wonderful film ever seen in London. The pictures are all wonderfully clear and beautifully coloured."

In the advertisement of today's issue will be found a coupon which will enable Examiner readers to see what the London Daily Sketch termed "a marvellous show," at one-half the prices charged for this enormously expensive production in London and many other cities. Seats now on sale at the Grand Opera House—Showing Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoon and evening.

FINDS IT HARD TO DISPEL RUMOURS

(Special to The Examiner.)

QUEBEC, Que., Dec. 31.—Sir Lomer Gouin says it is useless for him to comment upon the frequent rumors regarding his possible retirement. In reply to a direct question put to him to-day by the Examiner as to whether there was any truth in the rumors that he was shortly retiring from the Provincial Premiership, Sir Lomer said: "No matter what I say these rumors will go on just the same."

There is a stronger feeling now that it is the intentions of the Premier to remain for some time. A few months ago everybody was talking of his approaching retirement, but to-day it seems to be conceded that Sir Lomer may not go, at least until the present session of the Legislature is over and probably not even then.

INTERNATIONALIZE THE DARDANELLES

SEAT OF TURKISH GOVERNMENT WILL BE TRANSFERRED TO ASIA MINOR.

THE PROTOCOL

By Henry Wood.
(United Press.)

PARIS, Dec. 31. — The protocol probably will be signed in time to declare the Treaty of Peace effective with Germany btween Jan. 7th and 10th, it was stated semi-officially today.

The latest optimistic hope, it was said, was based on information secured from Kart Von Larsner, head of the German delegation here, intimating Germany will accept the Allied demand for signature of the protocol without specific agreement, to reduce the Allied demand for 400,000 tons of German marine materials in compensation for the Scapa Flow sinking.

Le Matin said to-day an agreement has been reached in London to expel Turkey from Europe. The Ottoman capital, the newspaper said, will be transferred to Brusa or Konieh, in Asia Minor.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, Dec. 31.—Internationalization of Constantinople and the Straits of Dardanelles has been decided upon along the lines laid down by Premier Lloyd George in a recent speech, according to the Matin. It seems certain the newspaper says, that the seal of the Turkish government will be transferred to Asia Minor and be located either at Brusa or Konieh. Details of the form of International control to be established over Constantinople is not yet known.

A COALITION FOR WINNIPEG COUNCIL

ONE MEMBER OF LABOUR SECTION DECIDES TO PURSUE AN INDEPENDENT POLICY.

TENSE SITUATION

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 31. —Labor aldermen no longer claim equal representation in the City Council. This is on account of the recent utterances of Alderman Wiginton, who has indicated that he will not support all Labor issues, but will be independent. On the other hands, non-Labor aldermen hope to rely on Alderman Wiginton to break up the fifty-fifty Council and thereby make less tense the Council sessions during the year. Rumors that a coalition may be established between Labor and Citizens' aldermen have not carried much weight because the aldermen have not been able to figure out how certain aldermen of the opposing factions would be willing to work together peaceably, after the numerous rows during the last twelve months.

DUBLIN CASTLE TO BE FORTIFIED

(United Press.)

DUBLIN, Dec. 31. — Dublin Castle and the Vice-Regal Lodge, occupied by Viscount French, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, were prepared for all attacks to-day. Engineers have completed their work of surrounding the two government seats with barbed wire entanglements. Phoenix park, which surrounds the Vice-Regal Lodge, will be closed from sundown to daybreak it was announced.

The defensive measures followed Sunday's supposed attempted attack upon the Lodge by a band of civilians, in which Lieut. Boast of the Government Guard, and Laurence Kennedy, a civilian, were killed.

CARTRIDGES IN GARBAGE CANS

GARBAGE COLLECTION WILL BE HERE TO-MORROW.

Live cartridges are still finding their way into the garbage cans with the result that [illegible] the plant are wondering if a few sticks of dynamite will be the next contribution of an explosive character. Why such dangerous material is dumped into garbage cans is more than the City Officials can understand unless it is done with malicious intent. The cartridges eventually find their way into the furnaces and the bullets can be heard signing in all directions. Sanitary Inspector Stapleton had four cartridges this morning which were sent to the incinerator in a garbage can. They were 32 calibre.

Messrs. Johnston and Anglesey the new garbage contractors will start their initial collection tomorrow. They are starting on a holiday in order to familiarize themselves with the routes and avoid difficulty later on.

A guid New Year tae ane an' a'
And mony may ye see,
And during all the years tae come,
O happy may ye be.
And may ye ne'r hae cause to mourn
To sigh or shed a tear;
Tae ane an' a', baith great and sma',
A hearty guid New Year.

CHORUS

A guid New Year tae ane an' a',
And mony may ye see,
And during a' the years tae come,
O happy may ye be.

O time flies on, he manna wait,
For you ma friens or me,
He works his wonders, day by day,
And onward still doth flee.
O who can tell when ilka ane
We see sae happy here;
We'll meet again and merry be
Anither guid New Year.

LATEST NEWS DESPATCHES

(Canadian Press.)

MELBOURNE, Dec. 31. — Returns received to date from Australian elections indicate that Premier W. M. Mughes has been returned with a strong majority. Mr. Hughes' party, which was coalition, formed with the slogan "win the war," is known as the Nationalist party. Latest returns show that Nationalists have secured thirty-eight seats as against 27 won by Labor party. Ten farmers were elected, who are expected to support Hughes.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Dec. 31. — Lieut.-Col. Cuthbert James, Coalition Unionist, has been elected to the Commons in Bromley, Kent, by-election over Francis Hodges, Laborite, by a majority of 1,071.

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Dec. 31.—In a message to Canadian newspaper editors, Col. E. J. Chambers, chief press censor, makes the formal announcement that in accordance with recent order-in-council relating to press censorship, passed under authority of War Measures Act, becomes inoperative and ineffective from midnight.

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Dec. 31.— Tom Moore, president Trades and Labor Congress, has been chosen to represent Canadian workers at a meeting of the governing body of the International Labor office in Paris on June 26. The Dominion government is also entitled to send a delegate but a choice has not yet been made. Mr. Moore will act as substitute for P. M. Draper.

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Dec. 31.—Trade figures for the Dominion for year closing today will show a total trade of approximately two billion, three hundred and fifty million dollars. This figure it is expected will not differ materially from last year because for the first eight months of the fiscal year ending with November, our trade was less than this year's than in in the same period last year by only about sixteen million dollars.

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Dec 31.— Rumors that large quantities of liquor were held in border counties of Quebec along the Ottawa river for shipment into Ontario was disposed of when careful investigation showed all railway yards without shipments of whiskey. Ottawa county and Hull are in prohibition areas and official vendors are the only ones who can obtain liquor in these districts.

The Civil Service Workers Organize

AGREES TO THE ALLIED DEMAND

(United Press.)

LONDON, Dec. 31.—An exchange Telegraph despatch from Amsterdam quotes the Handelsblad as declaring the German Cabinet, after discussing Premir Clemenceau's recent note,, had decided to agree to the Allied demand hoping to obtain a reduction in the amount of tonnage demanded of Germany in future verbal negotiations.

EMPLOYEES ARE DISSATISFIED WITH THE PRESENT SYSTEM OF CLASSIFICATION.

APPEAL BOARD

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Dec. 31.—Revolt against the Civil Service reclassification bids fair to spread. PublicWorks employees have already organized and are making strong representations through Deputy Minister Hunter to the Government. They maintain that in nearly all cases reclassification decreases the salaries of the employees and demand that a Civil Service Board of Appeal be appointed.

Following the lead of the Public Works employees, the employees of the Department of Agriculture are organizing for a similar purpose and other departments may follow suit. Generally speaking it may be said that reclassification has not given satisfaction. While at present there are no indications of any "walkout" it is difficult to say how far the dissatisfaction will go toward injuring the efficiency of the service.

THE POLICE WANT SALARY INCREASE

MATTER LEFT OVER TO NEXT YEAR'S BOARD TO DEAL WITH.

The Board of Police Commissioners held their regular meeting yesterday afternoon.

Those present were the chairman, His Honor Judge Huycke, Mayor G. H. Duncan, and Police Magistrate D. W. Dumble entered shortly after the opening of the meeting.

The minutes of the last meeting, held on Dec. 8, were read and confirmed.

Salary Increase.

A petition was read from the police force asking for substantial increases in salary to meet the increasing cost of living. Figures from other cities, such as London, Hamilton, etc., were given, showing that Peterborough was near the bottom of the list as far as salaries are concerned.

It was moved by G. H. Duncan, seconded by the chairman, that the petition be referred to the Board of Police Commissioners for 1920.—Carried.

Accounts Confirmed.

Moved by Mayor Duncan, seconded by Magistrate Dumble, that the following accounts be paid. The motion was carried:

Merrill & Meredith, $180; Peterborough Examiner, $17.00; White Bros., $6.70; Peterborough Utilities Commission, $3.60; Peterborough Lumber Co., $6.00; Burroughs and Co., $15.80; Fanning's Steam Laundry, $1.50; Roy Studio, 50c.; Grant & Thorpe, $1.85; Peterborough Utilities Commission, 50c.; D. Thompson, $5.00.

Movd by Mayor Duncan, seconded by the chairman, that the Chief Constable interview Mr. Edgar Worth of the Canadian Woollens Limited as to quotations of cloth for uniform.—Carried.

The Board then adjourned.

CHEMICAL-TREATED WOOD WILL CHAR BUT NOT BURN

Wood is made virtually fireproof by a new English method, which fills the pores with a crystalline deposit of fire-resistant chemicals. The air and moisture content of the pores is extracted, and the sap water dissipated, by a steaming and vacuum process in a close chamber. The empty cells are then impregnated with the chemials by hydraulic pressure. When the solution has dried, each cell of the wood remains filled with crystals, which expand on exposure to heat and prevent the entrance of air. Wood so treated will char, but not burn.—Popular Mechanics.

HOW TO VOTE IN PETERBORO

Under the new system of voting for aldermen, the ballot is spoiled unless the voter votes for four candidates at least. He may vote for five, but if he votes for more than five it spoils his ballot.

For the Board of Education he may vote for one or any number up to five, but if he votes for more than five he spoils his ballot.

For the Utilities Commission he can vote for one candidate only, otherwise the ballot is spoiled.

YOUR CITY COUNCIL FOR 1920

To the Ratepayers, Men and Women:

To-morrow you are called on to exercise the municipal franchise given to you by virtue of your interest in the city in which you live. That franchise tells you that you have a stake in the community. And it is now in your discretion how you will delegate to others the duty of caring for your stake, your property, your taxes, your contribution to the civic chest.

You are urged to consider this duty that you owe to the municipality. To consider it right now, and not lightly. Men are offering to serve you in the Council. To undertake to handle for you the share you must pay of public service sustaining funds. Consider, then, your responsibility.

Look over the list of candidates. Try and reach a conclusion as to which you would select if you were selecting to have your own business handled exclusively for you. It is all business. That's the whole thing in a nutshell. Just the same problems as come into personal affairs, only tremendously larger.

What you need, and you are sure to agree, is that men of some known ability, experience and probity in business should handle the city's affairs. You have such offered among the list of candidates, men who can stand criticism for their public acts and justify those acts to you as in your interest. And on such assurance they ask you to support them by your votes.

Do not be swayed by appeals from classes. There should be no classes in our conception of city administration. Then why let such creep in? The citizens, as a whole, are the determining factor.

When a class appeals to you to do something for it, try and see if what it asks will be for the benefit of all. That is the acid test you should apply. If it does not stand the test, put it down. You are the one to determine, and your vote will signify your intent and wish.

Do not be led aside from a plain duty by all these endorsements. Don't let any one say that they can get you to vote just as they want you to vote. Don't let it be said that the disposition of your vote has been determined for you, and in advance. Be a man, or a real woman, and use your judgment and use it right.

Too many parties are clamouring for your support, proclaiming all things. Most of these calls are as red herrings across the trail to carry you away from the real issue, the best for the city in which you have your stake and earn our livelihood. Tell all these protestants that you will go to the polls and cast your ballot as you jolly well see fit, and in the interests of good, decent administration. Attempts to have ratepayers vote en bloc for this or that interest always indicate that this or that interest has an axe to grind, some purpose to serve that may not stand light as being good for all citizens.

Beware of such appeals. Go and vote with the one solid purpose that in selecting the men you do, you are selecting those in whom you have confidence; who can prove that in the business field they can handle their own business successfully, and can in turn, if you want them so to do, handle yours just as efficiently.

This city will pay out over half a million dollars of taxes next year. Who do you want to do this for you? Get the best.

Respectfully,
FRANK H. DOBBIN.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION MUST RECEIVE ATTENTION

ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT QUESTIONS AFFECTING INDUSTRIAL PETERBORO AT PRESENT.

While the former members of the Board of Education must be given credit of introducing the subject of technical education to the citizens of Peterborough it can however be said that present members of the Board have been supporting technical education in Peterborough with a confidence that must shortly bring results. Men who are behind the question, and acquainted from experience with the great value from the standpoint of developing the boys and girls of the city so that they may be better able to take care of themselves in the commercial world, where technical education is such a factor.

Mr. Worth has been on the board of Education and has given much time and thought to the question is Mr. J. W. Worth, manager of the Bonnerworth Co., and the Canadian Woolen Co. Mr. Worth is a candidate for re-election to the Board and from what he has written, and a perusal of the subjects he has made is one of the most progressive platforms putting forth by any candidate for re-election. Mr. Worth's connection with one of the country's most important industries has brought home to him more appreciably the technical education is necessary to the industrial life of Canada.

MR. R. V. COPPING TRYING TO BRING NEW AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY HERE

HAS BEEN ENGAGED IN NEGOTIATIONS FOR SEVERAL MONTHS PLANS WILL BE CONSIDERED AT A MEETING IN NEW YORK EARLY IN JANUARY.

INTERESTED IN CITY

The possibility of a large automobile plant establishing a factory in Peterborough through the efforts of Mr. R. V. Copping is disclosed in a letter he received late yesterday afternoon proposing a conference in New York early next month, at which the proposal upon which he has been working for several months will be fully discussed.

Mr. Copping decided to acquaint the citizens of the plans in project, simply as evidence of his interest in Peterborough at a time when municipal candidates are being weighed in the scales of public opinion. Otherwise he would not have mentioned the scheme until it was more fully developed. And for that reason he was restrained from announcing the name of the company or of giving other particulars. He said that it was one of the cars for which he had the agency in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime provintes. The company intended to locate an assembling plant in Canada similar to the McLaughlin factory in Oshawa, for the Canadian trade.

The following letter is the latest Mr. Copping has received from the New York interests connected with htis proposed enterprise:

New York, N.Y., Dec. 29th, 1919.
Mr. R. V. Copping,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—In reference to our recent conversation at Chicago re the locating of an automobile plant at your city.

My partners join me in thanking you for your very complete data on the proposition, the writer feels quite confident we will be able to locate in your city, more especially that you are to be actively interested in the concern.

I have arranged for a meeting the week of the 10th of January at New York, and I trust you will be able to attend when we will get under way with as little delay as possible.

At that time we will in all probability we able to give you the plan we are desirous of working out with your city, such as the land we will require, the location on the railroad and etc.

Will you please bring a good map of the city with you, marking the location of the land available.

Wishing you the compliments of the season.

Yours very truly,
W. H. PARKER.

NORTH MONAGAN ELECTIONS

To the Ratepayers of North Monaghan

Ladies and Gentlemen,—Having been pressed by many ratepayers of the Township to again stand for the office of Reeve, I have consented to stand for that office for 1920. I am not asking your support on the grounds of the promise of the Wardenship and that if elected this time it will be my last time to ask your support, nor am I handing out to you the record of having kept the same chair warm for 9 years. But I have been in the Monaghan Council, also have held the Reeveship and leave it to you to decide as to whether my record at that time would warrant your support again. It is impossible for me to see you all personally, so take this means of saying to you that I am in the field again for the Reeveship of North Monaghan and of asking you, that if you think I can be of any service to the township to give me your support on election day, but if otherwise, then elect the man you consider best suited to the office. Ladies and gentlemen, make it a point to use your franchise on New Year's Day.

Yours for the best interests of the Township of Monaghan—

H. B. RYE

To the Electors of North Monaghan

Ladies and Gentlemen: Having been asked by many residents of Claraday, Crawfords' Grove and Byersville Districts, I have allowed myself to be nominated for councillor for 1920. The representation of these districts in previous councils has been such that little progress was made. I would ask for your vote and influence s. that I if elected, may serve and ensure greater progress. It will not be possible to make a personal canvass to all.

Yours truly,
JOHN BARNES
5 Cottesmore St.,
BYERSVILLE.

NOTICE

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTH MONAGHAN:

Ladies and Gentlemen,— Having served three years as Councillor for the Township, and as I cannot make a personal canvass for the coming election, may I ask your support for Deputy-Reeve. I will endeavour to look to your interests in the future as I have in the past.

Thanking you for the past support which you have given me, and wishing you a Merry Christmas and a very Happy New Year.

THOS. HENRY,
Brownton, P.O
4d-24-27-29-31-1w52

To the Electors and Ratepayers of North Monaghan

Ladies and Gentlemen,—Having decided to stay in the field and run as a Councillor for the Township, I respectfully ask for your vote and influence. If I am elected I believe the business affairs of the Council will be carried on in a way, so far as I am concerned, that would be pleasing to you all. The experience I have gained by living in the Township for the last 24 years ought to help me in deciding upon matters pertaining to the Council in a business-like way.

Wishing you all a very Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Bert Arnott
Corner Cameron Street and Monaghan Road.

To the Electors of Otonabee

Ladies and Gentlemen,—I take this opportunity of soliciting your support for Councillor for the Township of Otonabee, and if elected will do my uttermost to prove worthy of your confidence.

Wishing you all a prosperous New Year.

Yours faithfully,
Fred D. McIntyre

Township of North Monaghan:

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS FOR DEPUTY REEVE.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—Your vote and influence is respectfully requested, to assure aggressive, progressive and unbiased administration of Municipal matters in the Township of North Monaghan for 1920.

Accommodation will be provided for conveying City Voters from end of Street Car line, to May's School House, between two and four p.m. Election Day.

Yours faithfully,
FRED E. WILSON

Dale Carnagey Is Coming

IN PERSON

To Conduct the Public of Peterboro Through the Fascinating Near East Showing in Motion and Coloured Pictures

Gen. Allenby's British Campaign

IN

THE HOLY LAND

And The Land of The Arabian Nights

LONDON PRESS INTENSELY ENTHUSIASTIC.

London Daily Telegraph:

"What is modestly and prosaicly described as an 'illustrated travelogue' of the British campaigns in Palestine and Arabia is in reality an heroic epic capable of inspiring a dozen modern emulators of Homer or Plutarch. It is a triumphal vindication of the power of moving pictures to drive home a lesson, and simultaneously to charm the eye, entertain the spirit, and move to its very depths the soul of the spectator.

"Though it has already been exhibited at Covent Gardan Royal Opera House over a hundred times, the big theatre continues to be packed twice a day. . . . It seems almost a nation's misfortune that this series of wonderfully speaking pictures will have to be withdrawn from the Opera House in a few more days."

London Daily Mail:

"One of the strangest sights to be seen by the Londoner at present is a large queue waiting in the vestibule of the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, to buy seats. Such an event is beyond imagination—the reason is that Mr. Lowell Thomas and Dale Carnagey give an amazingly graphic account of these campaigns which freed the Holy Land.

"These pictures should be seen They are vividly real. The entertainment is delightful, perfect."

London News of the World:

"These travelogues are a brilliant success. The speaker rivetted the attention of the house as he told the great story of the liberation of Palestine. He has a keen sense of the picturesque and the humorous, and made telling use of the historical associations of the regions through which he passed.

"These travelogues should be seen by everyone to whom the British Empire is something more than a geographical expression.

"The huge audiences at Covent Garden have been thrilled by it."

London Morning Post:

"Splendid story — exceptionally fine pictures."

London Times:

"The serious and humorous were so skilfully blended that it was almost impossible to realise that Mr. Carnagey had been addressing for almost two hours an audience which filled Covent Garden to overflowing—unique—an extraordinary picture."

Westminster Gazette:

"The Carnagey-Thomas travelogue is a fine story; listened to with rapt attention. . . . It is sincerely to be hoped that many thousands of British people in all parts of the world will take the opportunity when afforded them of making acquaintance in the pleasantest possible way, with the conditions of one of the very great adventures in the war, and with the countries and peoples concerned."

London Evening Standard:

"Entrancing entertainment. . . . No audience could have been more enthralled."

London Morning Advertiser:

"The most wonderful film ever seen in London. All London is talking about it."

The Tatler:

"The most fascinating entertainment ever shown in London."

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday of This Week You Can travel by camel and aeroplane through unexplored and enchanting lands on the other side of the world.

YOU can ride a camel through the home of the Arabian Nights with a mysterious young Englishman whose story is more absorbing than Robinson Crusoe's.

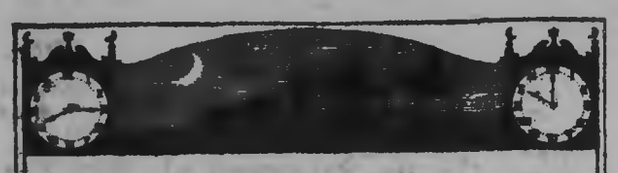
YOU can meet the fascinating desert Arabs—nomads who have never heard of railroads, moving pictures, telephones, America.

YOU can fly above the pyramids, come down in a spinning nose dive over Bethlehem and soar above the Dead Sea and the Jordan.

YOU can watch the weird dances of the natives at the gateway of the African jungles.

YOU can fly above the Mount of Olives, the Garden of Gethsemane and Jerusalem.

YOU can visit Mecca, the forbidden city, which less than a dozen Christian adventurers have reached.



On Thursday, Friday and Saturday of This Week You Can

tour with sixty thousand camels the memory-laden and mystical Land of Milk and Honey.

YOU can ride with the Australian Light Horse as it sweeps across the plains of Armageddon, conquers Beersheba, Jericho, Damascus, and Nazareth.

YOU can see the surrender of the most fought-for city in the world—the Holy City—Jerusalem.

YOU can visit the mysterious and enthralling city of Petra—the most beautiful and gorgeous city ever built by man.

YOU can hear DALE CARNAGEY tell the most fascinating of human stories.

YOU can see what the London papers have declared to be the most wonderful motion and coloured picture travelogue ever seen in England.

DELIGHTED NEW YORK.

These pictures ran longer in New York than any other travelogues ever given in that city. The New York Globe declared them to be the finest travel talks and pictures that had even been shown in America. Many people went to see them several times. Jacob Schiff, an eminent New Yorker, was so delighted with this entertainment that he sent a check to Messrs. Carnagey and Thomas, requesting them to give away tickets to people who could not afford to attend this enchanting and engrossing entertainment.

In certain cities in the United States, the public schools were dismissed and attendance at this entertainment was obligatory—a regular part of the school's schedule.

In Springfield, Massachusetts, the door sale for this entertainment was greater than the door sale for Caruso, Melba or any of the world renowned artists with the exception of Paderewski.

Big Opportunity.

These travelogues will remain in Peterborough Thursday, Friday and Saturday matinee and night. Readers of The Examiner Dailies will be able to see this entertainment at a merely nominal price by clipping the discount coupon that will appear in The Examiner each day. By presenting these coupons at the box office, a special reduction is made from the price of each seat.

This travelogue has been shown in the United States and in London at $1.50 per seat. Examiner readers will be able to see this Arabian Nights entertainment for prices ranging from twenty-five to seventy-five cents. A limited number of excellent orchestra seats at the Grand theatre may be secured for fifty cents by those who attend to the matter at once.

Get Seats Early.

On several occasions these travelogues have been delayed from thirty minutes to an hour by the great line of patrons who procrastinated getting their seats until shortly before the performance. Seats for all performances are on sale so that patrons may secure their seats without a tiresome waiting in line.

The London News of the World said on August 42: "This illustrated travelogue should be seen by everyone of whom the British Empire is something more than a geographical expression." The Examiner has brought this attraction to Peterborough at great expense as a community service. The public cannot get enough of this sort of thing. The chance to see these spectacular pictures of General Allenby's Camel Corps and Light Horse sweeping over the places that have been familiar to all of us since the days of our Sunday School lessons, is an opportunity as rare as pigeon blood rubies. It is sure to be appreciated by all who take advantage of it, and before the end of the week all Peterborough, like London, will be talking of little else than the marvelous illustrated travelogue on General Allenby's romantic campaigns in the fascinating Near East.

Destroyers Guarded Them.

The British Government prized these pictures so highly that a destroyer was sent across the Mediterranean in war time to protect them from the submarines on their journey home. From a historical and educational point of view as well as from an entertainment standpoint, these pictures are priceless.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 31ST, 1919.

GREETINGS.

To its subscribers and readers, the Examiner wishes the happiest of New Years. It is the sincere hope of this paper that 1920 shall prove a banner year in the history of Peterborough, that its citizens shall enjoy peace and prosperity, that new industries shall bring fresh life to the community, that our civic rulers shall be endowed with wisdom and vision, that all movements that tend to make Peterborough a better city shall flourish, that a better understanding between the different elements of our population shall be developed, that unrest shall cease, that every workman shall get a just reward for his services and every employer a fair return for his investment, that there shall be less heard of class differences and more of that community spirit without which no city can thrive, and that the coming year shall see a general betterment of conditions.

POINTS TO REMEMBER.

In voting for the Council to-morrow it is necessary to vote for at least four candidates or the ballot will be spoiled.

Five aldermanic candidates can be voted for if you so desire, but not more than five nor fewer than four.

For the Board of Education you can vote for one, two, three, four or five candidates as you see fit. But remember not more than five.

Every person whose name is on the voters' list may vote for the mayoralty, aldermanic and Utilities Commission contest, but not on the Park by-law.

Only Public school supporters can vote for the Board of Education.

And property owners alone have a vote on the Riverside Park by-law.

A NEW YEAR'S PROGRAMME.

It should be the resolve of every elector in Peterborough that he or she will begin the New Year by meeting squarely the responsibility of the individual voter to help in choosing the municipal government.

Every elector can discharge that duty by exercising the franchise to-morrow. The day is a holiday, and although you doubtless intend to participate in the family gatherings and festivities that usually mark the observance of the occasion, devote a half hour to the task of registering your vote. It is a duty that you owe to yourself and to your home city.

Every elector, having decided to vote, should weigh the merits of the candidates carefully, and putting aside all other considerations, choose the men that appear to be most fitted for the offices to which they are aspirants.

And finally, every elector should vote in favor of the Canadian Aladdin by-law, and every property owner should vote "yes" on the Riverside Park purchase measure.

A QUESTION OF TACTICS.

Some objection has been heard from labor men because a committee of citizens took the responsibility of inserting an advertisement calling upon the ratepayers to vote for a Council slate composed of candidates not endorsed by the Labor organization. Why should there be any complaint over this action, seeing that it is a duplication of a similar campaign on behalf of the Labor nominees? A letter signed "Labor Campaign Committee" appearing in last evening's Examiner left no doubt as to Labor's stand. They will support their own slate, endorsed by their own representatives, thereby helping themselves up another notch. It declares this official communication. No candidate, no matter how well qualified he may be for office, no matter how capable he may be, can therefore expect any support from Labor. What is left then, for those who believe that there are other candidates in the field who are worthy of support but to adopt the most effective means of working for their election? Such clashes are regrettable, but when one section of the city's population openly declares that only its own candidates will receive its support, there can be no logical complaint because other citizens adopt the same tactics.

CHOOSE THE BEST MEN.

The position taken by The Examiner in regard to the municipal elections that the best men be chosen for the various offices regardless of their connection with any particular class or interest is the attitude adopted by the Kingston Whig in regard to the civic contests in that city. The Whig's remarks are as applicable to Peterborough as they are to Kingston:

"The introduction of group or class elements may not prove as harmful as many suppose," says the Whig, "but the movement has within it the germ of future discord. Co-operation and team-work are needed to accomplish anything worth while. The man who is not allied with any political organisation, but whose object is merely to promote better civic government, is not opposed to labour and veterans having a voice in city management, but he deplores any movement that seeks to introduce class distinction. Vital problems are pressing for solution; the time demands vigorous and courageous action. A city, like a business organisation, cannot stand still; it must either go backward or forward. And only the very best class of men—whether they be drawn from labour, the veterans, or the city at large—can ensure that progress and not retrogression will mark Kingston's record in the year to come. The future depends upon a wise choice being made on the part of each individual voter. The public, with all the facts before it, is capable of doing its plain duty without dictation from press or party leaders. The Whig is confident that the choice of next year's Council can safely be left to the intelligence and good sense of the people without regard to the claims or considerations of any particular clique. Let the best men be chosen, irrespective of class or creed or party affiliation."

BORDEN'S NEAR-RESIGNATION

Two or three weeks ago, Sir Robert Borden said that he thought he would resign from the premiership of the Dominion, and then a week or so later, he said that he did not think he would. One would have thought that Sir Robert's mental engine could turn over once thus without causing undue concern. But, no: the simple event caused more discussion, dismay, conversation, and prediction than anything political which has happened since the war. The result of the announcement of the retirement of the Prime Minister had the effect which those in the inner circle at Ottawa probably suspected: it gave some insight into the present political situation in the Dominion. That the state of public political feeling, disclosed by the announcement was such that an election was out of the question from a Union Government point of view, seems certain. It is not often that the public is given a chance to feel its own pulse; but that is what happened when Sir Robert threatened to leave the ship. The public found that Sir Robert was not really such a bad sort, after all: even the Liberal papers admitted that he was a fine fellow and had done wonderful things. These expressions of opinion may have been only the customary courtesies extended to the dead, but there did seem to be an air of sincerity about them. The public also discovered that, in the men at the head of Canadian affairs—the gentlemen sitting in the Borden Cabinet—they did not have a man in whom they had much confidence. This fact, illuminating and deplorable as it was, became evident soon after the first hints of the intended retirement of the Union Government leader. The newspaper speculation as to a possible successor to Sir Robert as Prime Minister, could not concentrate for a moment on any of the present cabinet officials. Calder, Meighen, Rowell, Foster, Lougheed, Mewburn, and all the others were thumbed over, taken to pieces, weighed in the balance, and found wanting: it was sad, but true, that there was not a man in all that galaxy of statesmen to whom any large section of the Canadian public could be expected to give support. The public also found out that there was not a party in Canada which thought it could win an election, with the possible exception of the Farmers' Party, and that party backed up from the prospect of having to take full control of the affairs of the nation at the present state of their development. When all these things became clear, the sitting politicians, and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and the military enthusiastics all came to the conclusion in one breath, that there was only one way in which the country could be saved from eternal damnation, and that was by persuading Sir Robert to remain in his high office. On the whole, it may be just as well that he decided to recall his threat to resign. The election would have been expensive, and the ensuing jumble might have been more expensive. In another year the Union Government will be as certain of defeat as it is now, but the air may be clearer in other directions, and an election at that time more liable to give definite results.—Turner's Weekly.

MEMORIAL SHIELD WAS UNVEILED

George Street Church Sunday School Pays Tribute to Fallen Members.

An impressive service was that held at George Street church Sunday school room Sunday afternoon, when a shield was unveiled, on which were placed in rows fourteen maple leaves each bearing the name of some member of the school who made the great sacrifice during the war.

Those from the Sunday school who fell were: Fred Cressman, Arthur Ackerman, Ira Bradley, Percy Brown, Will Carruthers, Norman Darling, Eric Eagle, Herbert Dixon, James English, Robert Morrow, Roy Nelson, Carl Noftall, Sydney Smith and Victor Thorndyke.

Dr. J. E. Middleton delivered a short address referring to the heroic sacrifice of these boys and the great Christian principles for which they fought and died. During the course of his speech the shield was unveiled and the school rose in a body to pay tribute to its fallen members.

After this the pastor, Rev. A. J. Thomas, delivered his talk to the children on Candles, showing how all might be lights in the world by coming in touch with the one great Light of the World, Jesus.

Time flies so quickly after a man celebrates the thirtieth anniversary of this earthly career that he imagines there is quicksand in the hour-glass.

Habits are acquired early in life. Children, who are taught the value of money and the habit of saving, grow up into good business men and capable women.

The easiest way to teach children to save, is to start a Savings Account for each child ($1.00 each is sufficient). After a child has saved another dollar to make an additional deposit, he or she will have a better appreciation of just what a dollar stands for, and how much work and self-[illegible] ents.

Citizens Would Like To Know

The Working Voters (composing 85 per cent. of Peterborough's population) would be pleased to know from whom this "Citizens'" Committee got its authority to name a slate that does not contain the name of one representative of Labour that should be elected.

There has been no open meeting or convention of citizens that anyone has heard of, to name the ticket put forth. So it is safe to assume that it was named by a coterie of SELF-APPOINT and very SELF-INTERESTED "Citizens"—the Junta, as the editor of the Review observes. The absence of one name of a Labour representative on the slate only demonstrates the utter selfishness of this particular clique of citizens, and who shun Labour as the devil does holy water. "For ways that are dark and tricks that are vain," this particular bunch stands without a rival. Will somebody please tell the 85 per cent. who this "Citizens'" Committee might be?

SLEIGH BELL

Electors of the C of Peterborough

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

I have the honour of nomination and have been urgently requested by a very large number of ratepayers to be a candidate for the Utilities Commission.

Having served you six years as Alderman and two years as Mayor, I acquired a fairly comprehensive knowledge of the duties of the Utilities Commission.

I was a member of the City Council during the negotiations, construction and prosecution of the work of the City's Electric Power Station, the City Waterworks Dam and the Auxiliary Pumping Station.

As Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee in the City Council, I came directly in contact with the Waterworks System, including the mains, hydrants, pressure, etc., for fire protection, domestic, and manufacturing purposes.

For two years I was Vice-President of the Ontario Hydro Radial Association, which gave me a thorough knowledge of the advantages of the Hydro-Electric system for power, electric lighting, heating and Radial Railway purposes.

With the above experience and knowledge I respectfully solicit your vote and influence in support of my candidature, assuring you, if elected, that I will endeavour to assist in every way possible with the other members of the Commission to carry out the work in the very best interests of the ratepayers of the City of Peterborough.

I am heartily in favour of such improvements as the proposed new Filtration Plant when the time is oppertune, but I am of the opinion that all such large expenditures, as far as practicable, in every department of the City, should be deferred until such time as some of the present debentures are fully paid up except in so far as it is found necessary to go ahead with the work in order to keep our workmen and labourers steadily employed

Wallace Reid starring in 'You're Fired" which was seen this afternoon at the Allen Theatre has scored another hit. This title very fittingly describes the main situation in the story, which is about a young man who has to work for three months without being fired, before he can win the consent of a wealthy financier to marry his daughter. Therefore, these two little words are constantly ringing in his ear and he has to act quickly two or three times to keep some employer from speaking them. Wanda Hawley gives a delightful portrayal of the leading feminine role. The cast is of a high order of excellence.

Arnott got that one back by a nice lone-handed dash, making it 6 to 1, and then Halpin scored again when Jackson passed the rubber out in front from behind the nets, leaving the score 6 to 2, the figures remaining unchanged until the end of the period.

Arnott scored for Belleville on a combined rush early in the third session. Pete Thornton went down alone and worked inside for a nice goal for the Petes, and Halpin sent the local mock up a little when he slapped a fast one past Boland. Then Belleville came strong, the Petes fading away in the last few minutes. Whelan made it 8 to 4 on an individual dash, and Arnott added another on a similar play. SANDRA THE JEALOUS

BY JANE PHELPS

SANDRA'S WEDDING EVE.

CHAPTER IX.

The night before my wedding I sat long at my window. I had read of brides spending the early hours of the last night in their homes in that way. But in the stories it was always moonlight, and the scent of flowers was in the air. But it was awfully dark that night, only a faint vague light from a few pale stars illuminated the darkness, accentuating the gloom. There was a raw cold wind. I finally fell asleep in my chair. When I awoke I was shivering with cold. I crept hastily into bed, and pulled the clothes over my head for warmth. I mumbled a prayer and went immediately to sleep. I did not once think of my wedding day, or of Everett Graham—the man I was to marry.

My wedding dress was laid out on the bed in the "spare" room as we called the guest chamber. The rest of my simple trousseau was packed in the new trunk father had given me, my initials on the end. "S. C." Sandra Graham. It seemed so queer to have it done before I had any right to the name.

Everett had urged mother not to worry much about clothes, as he could get me whatever I needed in New York. But mother had provided me with a plentiful outfit of needful things, and several simple but good dresses. Mother was dreadfully proud, and she told father when they thought I wasn't around that she didn't propose to let her daughter go to any man without enough good clothing.

We weren't to have a large wedding. Just a few of my friends and relatives. Everett said he hadn't any relatives living near and they were only distant cousins at that. He would only ask a couple of the men in the branch office in our town.

"You will meet my friends when we get settled," he had said when I demurred because he would invite no one. He also objected to sending out invitations. "We will send announcements after we are married, and give our home address. You write your own friends informal notes. It is quite the thing to do, so don't look so disappointed," he had tweaked my ear while he talked. I wished he had kissed me instead.

The morning of my wedding day I awoke feeling that something was going to happen. Then all suddenly I realized that it was my wedding day, that by the time the sun had set I should be "Mrs. Graham" instead of Sandra Courtney. I ran to the window and pulled up the blind. It was a wonderful morning. The air was crisp and cold, and the sun shone gloriously. I felt happy, that all was going to be well with me.

"'Happy is the bride the sun shines on,' even if she is lazy!" It was Rose Grandon's mocking voice. She caught me in her arms and whirled me around the room until we were both breathless. "Get into your clothes, lazy bones. I've come to get breakfast with Sandra Courtney."

We cried a little at the idea of Sandra Courtney's last breakfast, but we were not unhappy tears. We had a real jolly breakfast, although I caught mother wiping her eyes behind the coffee urn. The morning disappeared, as Rose said, it went so fast. At twelve o'clock Everett came. He kissed me before them all, making me blush horribly, and giving Toodles and Buster such wicked joy that they shrieked again at their giggles.

Everett brought me the loveliest string of pearls. Not a long string, but the pearls were very large, of a wonderful color and brilliance, and perfectly matched.

"I am afraid you will spoil the child," mother said in her quite tones.

Everett only laughed in a way he had, and fastened them about my neck.

"I wonder if they were his first gift," Toodles whispered to Rose. Rose told him to keep quiet, and say such things. But I had overheard, and it sort of spoiled my pleasure in my gift. Yet as I looked at the dainty, absolutely new case in which they came, I felt sure Everett had bought them for me.

It seemed to me that I was hearing many things that day which were not intended for my ears.

"She had been petted all her life, dear," it was mother talking, and shamelessly listened. "Mr. Graham is a cold, undemonstrative man, I feel anxious about her."

"Oh, he'll be demonstrative enough when they are alone. I believe he will be Sandra a good husband. But men of his age aren't apt to gush in public you know."

Someway this conversation made me uneasy. Was Everett "cold," and wouldn't he pet and love me? I should be almost afraid of a man, a husband who would not be loving towards me.

CONCERT HELD AT YOUNG'S POINT

The Christmas entertainment given by S.S. No. 8, Smith at Young's Point on Monday evening last was a grand success. A very fine programme was rendered to the public and those who were present certainly appreciated the effort of the teacher, Mr. Frost and also everyone who took part. The children were exceedingly well trained and surprised the public with their ability in presenting such a concert. The school room was beautifully decorated and at the close of the evening Santa Claus appeared on the scene and distributed the presents from the heavily laden Christmas tree. The building was filled to capacity and the proceeds amounted to about $45 which money will be used to the best advantage of the school.

Capt. W. Scollard who has been engaged with the MacDonald Lumber Co., is spending Christmas at his home in the village.

Mr. E. Frost is spending his vacation at his home in Peterboro.

Miss Irene Young of Rochester is home for the Christmas holidays.

Miss Margaret Young who is attending Lindsay Convent is spending the vacation at her home in the village.

JAPAN MAY RESIST BOLSHEVIK ONRUSH

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—Japan is said now to hold the view that the situation in Siberia resulting from the Bolsheviki advance demands a readjustment of the terms of the powers which participated in the original military movement in Siberia and has approached the American government on the subject. The Japanese are said to feel that it is their duty to hold their present lines against the advancing Bolshevik wave, even though it is necessary to send strong reinforcements to their army in Siberia.

SUPPORT THE ALLADIN BY-LAW

To the Electorate of Peterborough:

The City Administration, through His Worship the Mayor, has invited the co-operation of the Board of Trade in urging the passage of the by-law to enable the City to secure the Canadian plant of the Aladdin Company.

The enquiry into the standing and future of this Company shows it to rank high among the progressive industrial institutions of the United States. Its Head Office is in Bay City, Michigan. The business in which it is engaged has made remarkable progress of late years because of the reduction it effects in wastage to the home builder.

The Company will be a large user of those raw and manufactured materials that go into house construction and its product will go everywhere throughout the Dominion. It designs houses and supplies, ready-cut, everything ready to be placed and fitted in actual construction.

The Company itself, undoubtedly made a critical survey of many cities in the Dominion and its preference for Peterborough is proof of the superior attractiveness of Peterborough for this industry. Its location here will emphasize Peterborough's importance as a centre of widespread publicity to the economic superiority of Peterborough, transportation facilities, and to its growing prestige as a manufacturing city. The Company is a liberal advertiser and will be one of many valuable agencies to further the City's prosperity and growth.

No debt will be created by the by-law: no debenture issue is authorized. The City Council proposes to locate the plant on land on the Monaghan road that is owned by the City and which adjoins the plant of Henry Hope & Sons and, at the rear, the Grand Trunk Railway tracks. The Company is to be given a fixed assessment of $5,000 for one decade, which does not include school and local improvement taxes. The wisdom of having land upon which industries may be locatd is thus dmonstrated.

Not one cent, in the form of a bonus will be given the Company nor added to the City's debt or taxes. On the other hand the Company will pay probably $500 a year in taxes: our only concession is the site, now owned by the City, and the fixed valuation for the period of one decade.

Every consideration that should influence the voter seems to weigh in favour of a popular and generous support of the by-law. W are called upon merely to confirm a good business transaction made by our City Council at no cost but much advantage to the City. The Canadian Aladdin Company should receive a cordial greeting on New Year's Day by our voters.

The Company has plans to expend not less than $70,000 for its first building, 100 by 200 feet in size, and to install its machinery so as to begin operation next September with some forty men. The City will reserve some adjoining land which the Company is to purchase outright for $10,000 as soon as plant and yard expansion becomes obligatory.

Respectively submitted on behalf of the Peterborough Board of Trade.

J. J. TURNER,
President.

MY HEAD!

When the head feels thick or aches, when one feels all out-of-sorts—perhaps a coated tongue—it is the signal that poisons are accumulating in the system, and should be cleaned out at once.

Auto-intoxication can be best ascribed to our own neglect or carelessness. When the organs fail in the discharge of their duties, the putrefactive germs set in and generate toxins—actual poisons, which fill one's own body.

Sleepiness after meals, flushing of the face, extreme lassitude, biliousness, dizziness, sick headache, acidity of the stomach, heartburn, offensive breath, anemia, loss of weight and muscular power, decrease of vitality or lowering of resistance to infectious diseases, disturbance of the eye, dyspepsia, indigestion, gastritis, many forms of catarrh, asthma, ear affections and allied ailments result from auto-intoxication or self-poisoning.

Take castor oil, or procure at the drug store, a pleasant vegetable laxative, called Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, composed of May-apple, aloes and jalap.

VOTE FOR THE PARK BY-LAW

People of Peterborough can [illegible] of the most beautiful parks [illegible]anada on the east shore of [illegible]nebec, from the new bridge [illegible] Canadian Pacific bridge, and [illegible]can have it by their votes on [illegible] Year's Day, at an actual cost [illegible]ost $17,000. This opportunity [illegible]robably never come again.

[illegible] land includes thirteen acres. In [illegible] the city owns the group of [illegible]ds to the south which may be [illegible]nked with and form a part of the [illegible] park. By gradually filling in [illegible] shaping to a plan these little is[illegible]nds are capable of forming a rare[illegible] [illegible]mmer group, with a network of [illegible]nnels for boating.

Shallow and safe wading places can be placed here for the little ones to sail their toy boats and marine scouts.

The planning of the park will be done practically without cost to the city. The walks and drives may be laid at leisure and at small cost. The plan will show where and what trees are to be planted, and it is hoped this will be the happy task of our girls and boys on special days set aside for this purpose.

The bylaw authorizes a debenture issue of $33,000, at 5½% interest, to mature in 1960 at a cost to the city of $2,182.00 yearly. This small sum will pay the interest on the debentures and also create a sinking fund investment that will liquidate the entire obligation at maturity. The amount is less than one half of one per cent. of the present taxes collected. The citizen who pays $25 a year taxes will pay about 11c towards the new park.

The building of the new bridge obliges the city to pay so-called damages to the property, which may amount to $16,000. The purchase of the land will prevent such a waste of public money and at the same time gain a valuable asset. It is fair to figure that the park property will in reality be acquired for $17,000 should the full $33,000 be needed. The city will stand to lose $16,000 unless the people vote to buy. The individual if similarly placed, would surely buy to prevent so great a loss of money.

The bylaw does not oblige the city to buy the land. It authorizes the expenditure up to the amount named in the bylaws but if further negotiations or other steps by the council should succeed in securing it at a smaller expenditure the bylaw will allow that.

This is the first time the people of Peterborough ever voted upon the purchase of a real park. They have however, often voted upon and favored the use of riverside lands for industrial plants with the purpose of promoting the growth of business and population. They have voted valuable concessions to industrial corporations, but have never yet voted a park for themselves. The great value of a park as a business getter for the whole city is unquestioned.

PUBLIC MEETING SHOWS UNANIMITY FOR BY-LAWS

ENCOURAGING PROSPECT IN WHOLE-HEARTED APPROVAL FOR BOTH ALLADIN COMPANY AND PARK PURCHASE BY-LAWS---BOTH HIGHLY RECOMMENDED.

Regarded as a straw vote on the two by-laws, the concensus of approval expressed at the public meeting in the Council Chamber last night augured well for their success at the polls to-morrow. It seemed to be taken for granted that the Aladdin Company by-law would carry with a large majority. The financial strength of the company, the fact that it employed only men, and that it meant for Peterborough another industry with an American wide reputation, were considered to be recommendations that would favorably influence every elector.

Mayor Duncan, presiding, explained that the purpose of the meeting was to organize an effort to ensure the ratification of both by-laws.

The attendance of some sixty citizens indicated an interest that was shown to be more than casual by the spontaneous and ample response to a call for volunteer scrutineers at all the polling places in support of both by-laws. Mayor Duncan announced that he intended to visit all the polls during the day and to press citizens into service for the by-laws if he found any of the posts deserted.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, speaking in favor of the park purchase, reminded the citizens that the damage claims to which the city has been rendered liable by the erection of the Hunter street bridge were quite uncertain as to the amounts the city might have to pay. Hence the electors would avoid these demands by buying the propertjes for use as a park.

The importance of the by-law to the general welfare of Peterborough was not fully realized by the ratepayers, Dr. Harvy said. Coming here for the first time he had been impressed or rather depressed by the city's failure to retain possession of its waterfronts. If a man wished to go canoeing he had to ride outside the municipality to find a suitable place for this great summer recreation.

Mr. C. E. Sisson added that not only would Riverside park be a community asset and a benefit to the citizens, but it would provide a scenic setting for the Hunter street bridge that would not fail to attract visitors. When the bridge was completed, Peterborough would have with the Lift Lock two outstanding engineering accomplishments in Canada, and the many visitors who would come to see them would pass Riverside.

Mayor Duncan.

"We have very little of the waterfront left," Mayor Duncan said. "The C. P. R., the Quaker Oats, and other companies own most of it. There is a rumour that the Quaker Oats intend to run a siding through the park property. To give you the facts in this connection, I will read a letter I got from Mr. Stuart, of Chicago."

The letter in part said: "The Quaker Oats Company will be glad to surrender the use of the raceway for park purposes. The only possible use we had thought of was a rail connection to the C. P. R. We will extend the right of way in exchange for the old Cobourg road."

Mayor Duncan gratefully acknowledged this gift, and replied that the city had no control of the old Cobourg roadbed in Ashburnham. It would soon come into the possession of the Government under the G. T. R. purchase, and could be arranged for then.

"So we have that all cleared up," said His Worship, "and the people should know that the Quaker Oats Company are giving us the old raceway. This completes the park property, and makes splendid grounds."

No Lavish Expenditure.

Mayor Duncan said there was no occasion to spend any money on the park for years. The five houses could be rented, and with the Riverside Park would bring in revenue enough to pay the interest on the money. It was of first importance that th city should purchase their properties now and lay them out at leisure.

Ald. Edgar.

"The time has come when we should own a little of the water-front ourselves," said Ald. Edgar, who, as sponsor for the by-law, discussed several ways by which the Council could fix up the park either immediately or later. The acquisition of Riverside would preserve in the heart of the city one of the finest baseball grounds in the country. A New York manufacturer recently visiting Peterborough emphasized in his quest of information what provision the city offered for athletic sports. This was significant, Ald. Edgar suggested, and offered another reason why the citizens should support the Park By-law.

Dr. A. W. McPherson, M.O.H.

"From the standpoint of athletics, it is very important that we should boost the Park By-law." Dr. McPherson, Medical Officer of Health, urged. "From the standpoint of a citizen it is a good investment. Five years from now, if you went to buy suitable property, you would probably pay double the present sum. From the standpoint of Ashburnham, it is essential that we should secure the property as playgrounds for the children and the older people, and from the standpoint of the people's health it is very important that we should conserve this park and get as many open spaces as we can. As Medical Officer of Health, I can heartily endorse this by-law."

Dr. McPherson pointed out that its central position was a prime factor the ratepayers should consider on New Year's Day. It should influence them to vote for the by-law.

Mr. J. J. Hartley.

Mr. Hartley pointed out that there were very few places in the centre of the city that were now available for park purposes, especiall at a reasonable price. He was confident the citizens would make no mistake in buying these properties. They could be gradually transformed into one whole front by expending a limited sum of money every year. Mr. Hartley was entirely in favour of the by-law, especially when it was remembered that land damages would have to be paid if the lots were not bought.

A Fine Swimming Place.

Ald. Garside believed that by purchasing Riverside the city would obtain an excellent bathing place. In the old days the end of the raceway was an ideal swimming hole. It could be completely restored by cleaning it out at a small expense.

"If we don't take this over on election day, it will be one of the greatest mistakes Peterborough ever made" declared Ald. Garside. "The islands lend themselves to decorative work, with lagoons for canoeing. It would be a grand view and a real beauty spot."

Mr. J. J. Turner.

Mr. Turner was in full accord with the park project. Apparently it was generally believed that the Aladdin Company by-law would carry with little or no opposition. However, it was wise to organise thoroughy for the election. Mr. Turner said he had met the representative of the Aladdin Company, and assured the citizens that this was a strong concern that would make a splendid addition to the list of industries now established in this city.

Ald. Turner, reverting to the park purchase, said he hoped the citizens would get behind the by-law and ensure its success. Future generations would appreciate this investment, and the citizens and Council of 1919 would be remembered for their foresight in securing this park.

Mr. James Ellis.

One of the owners of the property involved in the proposed purchase, Mr. James Ellis, declared that he should get something more than the $8,000 offered in the option to the city. Everyone agreed that the site was in the heart of the city. It was therefore desirable to his business.

"You are taking me from a central place," he said. "And what can I build for $8,000? The price is a snap and I ought to get something more. You can't give me another place as central as that. You say that it's a good place on the river, and that's why we like to live there."

Mr. Ellis contended that in securing a new building for his mattress factory, he would be put to great trouble, would have to re-establish himself, and under present values of money, was getting a comparatively small sum for his property.)

Mayor Duncan closed the meeting with an appeal to the citizens to work together in the fullest harmony and for the progress of Peterborough. It was one of the best cities in Canada. It deserved the heartiest support of every resident, and without that spirit of co-operation it could not make the headway that seemed naturally assured for it.

ENTERTAINMENT FOR CHILDREN

Yesterday afternoon from four to six o'clock the Cradle Roll, Beginners' and Primary Departments of Trinity Methodist church were given supper and an entertainment at Reid street hall through the kindness of the ladies of the church, who provided the good things, and through the kindness of their teachers, most of whom were present.

The tea, which was organized by Mrs. Carver, the head of the Cradle Roll Department, was attended by over seventy children and many parents of the children. Needless to say the children enjoyed themselves immensely and each little kiddie went home happy, proudly bearing a bag of candies.

A Vote for Copping will be a Vote for a Bigger Peterborough.

THE WEATHER

The temperature this morning at daybreak was just zero. No lower was reached during the night.

As this is the last day of 1919, a glance backward over the past year may bring to remembrance a few things of interest in the weather line. The coldest day was Jan. 12th, with 19 degrees below zero. As will be remembered, last winter was exceptionally mild, and the thermometer did not go below zero again from Jan. 12th to March 6th. But one more day (March 7) had a temperature below zero, until Spring came. The warmest day was June 3rd, with 97 degrees. June of 1919 was unusually warm. In 25 years previous to June of 1919 the temperature had been up to 90 or over on but seven occasions in that month. In other words, in 25 years there had only been seven really hot days. June of 1919 alone supplied nine such days.

The rainfall for the year was 28 inches and 94-100. The average here is around 36 inches. This shows quite a deficiency. The wettest month was May; the most dry, December.

These weather notes have been appearing over my initials, more or less regularly, for over twenty-two years. I wish those who read them (and I have been told by hundreds that they are read with interest and appreciation) a Happy and Prosperous New Year.—W. P.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a winner for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get 16 ounces—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

INSIST ON PASTEURIZED MILK

No epidemic of disease has ever been traced to PASTEURIZED MILK.

What, then, is the difference between PASTEURIZED MILK and RAW MILK?

Answer: PASTEURIZED MILK has been heated to a temperature of 145 F. and kept at that temperature 20 minutes. By this heating process any disease producing sediment, dirt, or pus, that gets into the Milk, is destroyed and makes the Milk Safe, without destroying any of its nutritive properties.

PURE MILK is just the Unclarified Milk that comes from the cow, with whatever impurities that may get mixed into it. See the difference?

EVERY DROP OF MILK FROM THE PETERBOROUGH CREAMERY IS BOTH CLARIFIED AND PASTEURIZED BEFORE BEING BOTTLED. That's Your Safety.

TELLS OF PAPUA'S STRANGE CUSTOMS

THE MALE YOUTH MUST PASS AN A1 EXAMINATION IN MANHOOD OR BE KILLED, SAYS TRAVELLER.

NEW YORK—Frances H. Hammond, a civil engineer, on his way home to London from Australia and the Southern Seas via San Francisco and New York, related that one of the most interesting countries he had visited on his travels was Papau, British New Guinea, where he spent some time visiting friends and studying the natives.

There were thousands of these people living in the forests and highlands back from the coast who had never seen a white man, the resident officials told him, and they believe that the world ends over the top of their mountains.

The natives lead their own lives under severe codes, Mr. Hammond continued, and practice homicide., headhunting, and cannibalism, except in the districts governed by British officers who have persuaded them to give up their savage traditions and adopt civilized methods.

"In most other lands the young girls are kept secluded until it is time for them to come out at 18 and make their debut in society, but in New Guinea things are different," said Mr. Hammond. "When a boy reaches the age of 15 he is taken away from the contact and influence of the women of his family, and put through a severe course of training to equip him to play a man's part in life.

"The course includes religion, hygiene, the laws of his tribe, and the art of warfare as it is practised in New Guinea. At different stages he is examined by the elders in Council, and if he does not satisfy them that he will carry himself ably and do his duty as a man he is killed. Before the candidate is passed into manhood he must go out and kill a man of another tribe, and after that he is allowed for the first time to look for a wife.

"If he fails to kill an enemy he cannot marry, mix in society, or wear the coveted homicidal decoration which is the sign that the wearer has become a man.

"The Cannibals believe that ghosts control the supply of food, and that by eating the body of their victim they get the soul essence which remains in it after death and thus absorb the dead man's qualities. When a native is told that he must not collect any more heads he asks how he will be able to propitiate his ghosts, as he had been accustomed to do by offering a head on a platter.

"The doctrine of turning the other cheek to the smiter sounds strange to them. The people in the mountains work hard cultivating their land, especially the women. If a chief feels very friendly toward a stranger he offers him a repast of roasted dog, which is considered a great delicacy in New Guinea.

"Petroleum has been discovered and the country is rich in minerals, well under the tutelage of a small number of British officers who live away in the interior in the midst of these wild men and women, contenting themselves with the fact that they are doing their bit toward building up their great Empire that Kipling has written so much about."

Mr. Hammond said the ordinary method of travel through Papau was in chairs attached to long poles which are borne on the shoulders of the sturdy natives, who keep up a steady pace of five miles an hour when the going is good.

There are many shrines built of human bones on the mountainsides, and there are still thousands of head hunters and cannibals in the interior of New Guinea who have never seen a white man and might hesitate about eating one if they had the opportunity.

In many of the villages it has been the custom, for as long as the natives have any record, to sprinkle the walls of a new house with fresh human blood to bring luck to those who are about to occupy it.

Practically only a small portion of Papanu is under the control of the British officials, but in certain centres the natives have become so civilized that they celebrate Christmas and look forward especially to the presents and the plum pudding.

COULDN'T WORK FOR 8 MONTHS

SPENT FOUR HUNDRED DOLLARS SEEKING HEALTH—TANLAC RESTORES HIM

"I consider my first bottle of Tanlac has been worth all of one hundred dollars to me," declared Dan McLean, of 335 Esplenade street, Sydney, Nova Scotia, while in Turnbull's drug store for more of the medicine, recently. Mr. McLean has been following the carpenter's trade for the past forty years. He has lived in Sydney for twenty years and is well known.

"On the 15th of last September," he continued, "I was taken down with the 'flu' and was never able to get anything to put me on my feet until I found Tanlac. I was left so weak that I could not hit a lick of work for more than eight months and this meant a loss of from $120 to $180 a month to me, for that is what I was making before getting down. I also paid out $400 for treatment and medicine trying to get my health back, so you can see what that spell of 'flu' cost me. I could not walk from town to my room without stopping several times on the way to rest and after the trip I would puff like a steam engine.

"Seeing by the papers that Tanlac was helping so many others who were in a run down condition, and thinking it might help me to get on my feet, I bought a bottle. Well, it may sound exaggerated, but it's the truth, after taking my fourth dose of Tanlac I could tell it was what I needed and was going to do the work, and I have been gaining ground ever since. Why, I never ate more than fifty cents worth of food a week before I got Tanlac, but now I want to eat all the time and no matter what kind of food is set before me, I enjoy it. I have just finished my first bottle of Tanlac and I am feeling well enough already to go back to work. Tanlac beats anything I have ever seen or heard about; it is no more like other medicines I have used than day is like night. Before taking it my nerves were so shattered that I could never get a good night's sleep, but now I sleep like a dog. I also had the worst kind of headaches, but they have been broken up entirely. Tanlac is simply making a new man of me and I honestly believe it's the best medicine in the world, and anyone who gives it a trial will be convinced."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

UNDRESS PERIOD PAST SAYS WORTH IS PARIS REPORT

PARIS.—Women will soon resume the wearing of clothes. in the opinion of M. Worth, aristocratic dressmaker of Paris, who is confident that the extreme limits in "undressed" styles have been reached.

There are two reasons why he expects the change.

First, because the women are regaining their sense of good taste, which he believes has been very noticably absent since the end of the war, and,

Second, because the coal crisis is making it impossible for women to sit in restaurants, theatres, ball rooms and concerts without wraps about their shoulders—wraps which entirely cover their elaborately "missing" bodices.

Worth declared to-day that the really aristocratic women among his clientele never wore these scanty bodices. The great bulk of women, however, obtained their inspiration for the recent styles from musical artists, who extended the exposed back fashion to the front as well.

During the height of the present 'undressed' season among Paris fashionables, the average group of women in the restaurants and hotel dining rooms were more undressed than dressed, the area of exposed surfaces far exceeding the covered waist surfaces.

At one of these fashionable affairs one woman wore a bodice consisting only of two straps. One of the straps broke. It is declared that even then she was so little different from the rest of the diners that the incident attracted little attention.

DON'T OVERLOOK THE NEWSPAPER BOY

PLAN YOUR GIFTS SO THAT HE WON'T BE OVERLOOKED

The Examiner is sure that every person who receives copies of this paper throughout the year from the hands of the newsboys on the street and the route boys at the homes, will heartily join with the Examiner in wishing these boys happiness and prosperity during the year to come.

Few people appreciate the hardships which these boys endure, especially on their very necessary work of distributing newspapers to the reading public.

What an inconvenience it would be indeed if there were no route boys to drop the paper at your door each evening.

Therefore, friends, at this glad time of the year—which is especially a time of cheer for young folks, please do not forget to show your newsboy and route boy some slight token of your appreciation of their services, and you may rely upon the fact that this will be an incentive to these boys to give you the best possible service that they can, and it will make their young hearts glow with the feeling that this is not such a bad old world after all.

Owing to the restrictions on paper consumption and the prohibitive costs the Examiner will not distribute a calendar this year.

THE FORWARD MOVEMENT

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir: Will you permit me to give expression to a few thoughts concerning the above topic.

There is at the present time much talk and stir in the churches concerning this movement, much getting together and discussing the various problems of the church, such as getting better acquainted with each other, and other social problems, and I would like to ask right here "Is the social relation to be placed first?" If so our leaders are making a false start.

I am convinced in my own heart that if church members were members of Christ, if they were acquainted with their God, their acquaintance with their fellow man would follow, and it would be an acquaintance of the right kind, instead as it often is, a hollow, meaningless thing. So then, dear readers, if God is not at the back of this thing guiding its beginning we are not going to be on the right track at all and the whole thing will be a spiritual failure. It may be a success from a worldly and spiritual standpoint, but God knows, and every heaven-born soul knows, we need a different success than this. My own heart is hungry for the fellowship of beautiful souls—souls who pray, who get answers to their prayers, for the fellowship of those who are seeking quietly to reflect the character of God in their life, rather than be so eternally busy at socials, and many other things, which do not count very much, and only leaves these poor misguided workers in such condition as to be a dead weight unto themselves and no inspiration to others.

How then can we accomplish anything for God in this world? Listen, dear friend, while I try to tell you. Although I am far from being an angel myself yet I aspire to be one.

First, we must be willing as God shows us, when we are wrong and sinful, to manfully forsake the evil—not keep it in our heart, and fight and struggle with it, and often in this way be overpowered by it. No.

Fighting and struggling belongs to infants, but to will to be good is a man's part to play. Oh, the weaklings in the church on this account, will they never be anything more than babes. Whole-hearted consecration and devotion to Jesus Christ, born out of love for what he has done for us. This is the starting point of the Forward Movement; and then listen to the voice within which bids you walk in love, to shine as a pure light right where you are; that voice which will always encourage you to be cheerful, because He is able and willing to supply all your needs. If you do this you will not live in vain, no matter whether the church praises you or condemns—you will be classed among those of whom one eminent writer has said, seems to be doing so little, and yet are doing so much, for they are doing their work on a higher plane: one with the Father, one with his laws, one with His aims. Therefore, working in harmony with God they are not living in vain.

In conclusion I would add: Let our ministers be more careful how they classify their members and also their members' works. They are not in the pulpit to judge, nor with slashing tongue that causes one to wonder what patience and what skill has produced such a life. I could go on and give proofs of what a gracious life can do compared with mere works apart from self-conquest and self-control, but let this which a wise man of long ago said be sufficient, "That he which ruleth his spirit is greater than he that taketh a city."

THREE SAILORS MAY GET BETTER

SURVIVORS OF WRECK ARE STILL IN SERIOUS CONDITION.

(Canadian Press.)

ST. JOHN'S, N.F., Dec. 31.—Hope that the heroic work of the sailors of the steamer Ingraham, who saved the three survivors of the wrecked Belgian steamer Anton Van Driel yesterday, had not been in vain, was held out here to-day.

They were severely frost-bitten, and the chances for their recovery are still doubtful.

The rescued men, who had clung to the wreck for more than thirty-six hours, and had seen their twenty-six shipmates drowned in the great seas which at times completely submerged the vessel, were brought here last night in a serious condition.

The rescue was accomplished by one of the most daring feats of seamanship remembered here. While the fisher folks from the bay settlements watched from the cliffs overhead, the lifeboat crew of the Ingraham worked their craft in heavy seas and between rocks to the lee of the wreck, discovering the three men virtually helpless in the wheelhouse.

Another Northender.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

It should be a source of gratification to the people of Peterboro that an Electrical Engineer of the standing and experience of Mr. C. E. Sisson, is offering himself as a candidate on the Utilities Commission. After graduating with honors from the School of Practical Science, he accepted a position with the Canadian General Electric Co., and has proven his worth by being advanced to one of the most responsible positions in that firm. His intimate knowledge of the cost and quality of materials, used by both the Water Works and Light and Power Systems, would make him a valuable asset on the Commission.

Not only in materials but also in the cost of labor his training fits him well to know when values is being received for the service rendered.

Mr. Sisson has won the respect and esteem of all who know of his efforts in these things which pertain to the social and moral uplift of our city.

Surely with this combination of character, ability and education the citizens of this fair city will see to it that he gets such a vote as will encourage others of his calibre to offer themselves for municipal service.

Yours,
ANOTHER PROFESSION.

The Editor of the Examiner, City:

Dear Sir:—

As a workingman I feel it is in the interest of the public to support among the candidates for Aldermen G. N. Gordon. His work in the City for public benefit should be well recognized. I have known him for some years, and I know that his interest is in the man who has to work, and that he has the interests of the City against every influence, and has been most outspoken and persevering in his efforts to help conditions in this City. A man like him is needed in the Council because men of experience in Municipal affairs are hard to get to give their services to the public. I have watched his work as a public man and he always takes a definite stand, and there is no wobbling in anything he does.

He is just as good a labour man as any man that is running, and has done a good deal more for labour than many of the self-appointed leaders of Labour in this City.

I think that of the labour men who are running Mr. Gordan should have the support of every person who wants to see this City grow, and to have a good business like government, and he is one who will attend to business no matter who it effects as long as it is in the interest of the City, and for the benefit of the ratepayers.

More than that he is a man who will not tie himself up with promises or allow anybody or organization to control his actions in the Council. Men of an active energetic and open minded type are not easy to get, and when we have found one who is willing to help us should be appreciated and supported, and he is getting a tremendous lot of support from the men who have the interests of the City at heart.

I have worked since I was a young lad, have always been a workingman and am in sympathy with workingmen and their cause. I am a supporter of the man who gives a fair deal to the workingman which is all he wants and all he asks for, and I ask the support of those who believe in this policy for G. N. Gordon.

Yours truly,
JOHN CREIGHTON.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir:—

I would like to say a word in favour of Mr. A. A. McIntyre who is a candidate for the position of Mayor. I have known Mr. McIntyre for over twenty-five years and have had a good deal of business dealings with him and I have always found him perfectly honest in all business transactions. He has been a member of the City Council for the past ten years and no member of the Council has been more attentive to the business of the City than he has been. Ample for a fact that he has given a great deal of valuable time in the interest of the City during that time he has been chairman of most all important committees and has always worked for the best interest of the City. He may not have pleased all, that would be impossible, but he always stood for what he believed to be the best interest of the masses. He is well versed in Civic Matters and I think is quite capable of filling the Mayor's chair if elected, which I feel sure he will be. I feel confident that he will do justice to all classes. Vote for the man who has served you faithfully and well for the past ten years and who is willing to give his whole time if necessary to the office of Mayor and you will have no regrets.

Wishing all the Citizens of Peterboro a Very Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Yours very truly,
J. J. HARTLEY.

RESCUED MEN FROM THE ANTON VAN DRIEL

(Canadian Press.)

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Dec. 30.—The rescued men are the second mate and two firemen. They were taken to Trepassey by the rescue steamer Ingraham, which was sent out from that harbour to the scene of the wreck early to-day. Shore observers at the village of St. Shotts were unable to see any sign of life on the Anton Van Driel when daylight came, but there was just a chance that the men had taken refuge in the wheel-house, and although the seas were still running so high that the approach to the wreck was perilous, the captain of the Ingraham decided to take the risk. The lifeboat crew that he sent to investigate succeeded in working their craft under the lee of the wreck.

Their hails were answered feebly from the wheel-house, and, getting aboard, they found three men, all virtually helpless from numbing cold. The transfer to the Ingram was effected with much difficulty, and the men were in a serious condition when taken to Trepassy. Physicians said it was uncertain whether they would recover. The bodies of many of the sailors who were lost yesterday in attempting to escape from the vessel in lifeboats have come ashore at St. Shotts.

Lodge criticizes vigorously the debate on spiritualism which featured the Leicester Church Congress.

AN APPRECIATION

OF THE CARNAYGIE-THOMAS TRAVELOGUES, APPEARING BALANCE OF THIS WEEK AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE EVENING EXAMINER,

January 1st, 1920.

Dear Mr. Glover:— On Thursday night I saw the pictures and enjoyed the Travelogue which your paper has been instrumental in bringing to Peterborough. I feel that I must say that you have put the citizens under obligation to you by this enterprise. There is not a picture or a word in the entire evening that is not instructive, entertaining and elevating.

Bible students should have their memories refreshed, and Christian people their reverence increased by spending an evening under such influences.

I could wish that more evenings of this kind might be available to those to appreciate the way that science has brought sacred scenes to our very doors.

Yours sincerely,
J. R. WEBB.
